VOLUME XX. ST. HILAIRE, MINNESOTA, WEDNESDAY, JULY 3, 1901. NUMBER 50.

YE EDITOR TRAVELS.

He Has a Royal Good Time While the Devil Runs the Shop.

BUFFALO AND TORONTO GIVE WELCOME

The Minnesota Building at the Pan-American Exposition Formally Dedicated by the Scribes and Gov. Van Sant and His Staff.

Rightly is it called the "Rainbow City." Ornate in its architecture, beautiful in its coloring, the Pan-American city delights and satisfies the eye and holds the promise of good fortune to all the Americas. Chicago for its "White City" had the help of all the world. The federal government and the state of Illinois made munificent donations, and all foreign countries were directly interested in that great exposition. But the Pan-American is the creation of Buffalo, and almost unaided this single city, not of the first magnitude in population, has carried to completion one of the very few really great expositions. It has in so doing placed itself in the first rank of American cities in its self-reliance, energy and accomplishment of great undertakings. Its exposition in its beauty and interest for visitors rivals the Chicago fair and wholly eclipses any other ever known in this country.

The "all-American" idea is distinctly carved out in the architecture and the color designs, and as the classic outlines of the Grecian architecture of the "White City" was a distinct triumph for American art, so are the turretted, minaretted buildings and beautiful color schemes of the "Rainbow City." It is unusually restful to the eye and satisfying to the mind. As you enter the grounds, over the approach to the triumphal arch and the great quadrangle surrounding the fountains, bursts upon the view, with the graceful lines of the lofty electrical tower marking the far end, you cannot but exclaim, "How beautiful!" To see it in its glory you must see it from this point: the plan evidently contemplates that. At this end, too, you find the ruder and cruder architecture, plainer and less ornate of design, and without color, representing the earliest times. The principal arch is indeed a triumph of architecture, but here is no color, no glamor of the creation, but from here on the color begins, as does the intricacy of ornament, until both reach their climax in the electrical tower. It is all a study in southern architecture and is as distinct and true and consistent as was the "White City." You come away with a clear impression, bearing the exact picture in memory, which is harmonious and pleasing and carries the impression of historic completeness.

We wish to say, with the utmost earnestness, that no one who, by any reasonable sacrifice, can spend a day or a month at the Pan-American will ever regret doing so.

The Minnesota Party.

The representatives of 150 Minnesota newspapers have just spent nearly a week at the exposition. With us were a hundred ladies, our wives and daughters. With us also were Gov. Van Sant and his party, in all making nearly 300 persons. Every one, without exception, was delighted. We of this western country have had no real conception of the magnitude and completeness of this exposition, nor of its educational value, otherwise tens of thousands would go from this state alone. Every one of the 300 of our excursion has come home to urge every friend he has to go, to see and enjoy.

To all those who may contemplate the trip, we wish to tell the plain, unvarnished tale of this 1901 editorial outing, and to give simple facts that will be most useful to the visitor, saving him many delays, annoyances and considerable expense. We take it that most who will visit the Pan-American from Minnesota will have limited time and limited means. They will wish to see the most they can for their money, with the maximum of personal comfort.

The Route.

First, then, as to your route. You cannot possibly do better than to take the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road to Chicago, and the Grand Trunk from there on. The service on these roads is not excelled in the whole world, nor are there any better equipments, or smoother roadbeds. If you have never realized what a good roadbed means to the traveler, outside of safety to life, just notice as you ride over the Milwaukee and Grand Trunk, that after you reach Buffalo, you are as fresh as when you left home. Or, if you started tired, you will reach there rested and refreshed, ready for tramping and sightseeing. You do not have to hang onto your seat all day, nor lay awake all night, to stay in your berth. You can read with ease, watch the landscape with comfort, and sleep as peacefully as in your own bed at home.

The Milwaukee runs five solid passenger trains daily each way between St. Paul and Chicago. It gives you a daylight ride if you wish in chair cars down the Mississippi river, passing Hastings, Red Wing, Winona and La Crosse, a route that for scenic beauty is unexcelled. Its great Pioneer Limited leaves St. Paul at 8:10 p. m. and arrives in Chicago at 9:30 the following morning. It is the pride of the road and the admiration of all railroad men. But just to show what it can do when put to the test, our special was whirled from St. Paul to Chicago in just twelve hours after a run that was as easy and smooth as rubber tires on macadam. This road also is the only one having the block signal system for the entire St. Paul-Chicago route, making collisions impossible. The elegance of its trains, the completeness of its service, the courtesy of its employes and the effort made in every way for your comfort and enjoyment, cost you nothing—they are that much extra for your money. It is a significant fact that no other road ever claims to excel the Milwaukee, the utmost of the pretentions being that they are "just as good." It is the model and its limited train is indeed the "Pioneer." It lead the way and still leads it.

The Grand Trunk.

What the Milwaukee is northwest of Chicago, that the Grand Trunk railway system is to the northern east. Its splendid roadbed insures your ease and safety. It is officered and managed almost wholly by young men, and they have amazed the railroad world by making it the most popular road east of Chicago, and they have done this in just the few last years. They have done it by providing everything the traveling public could reasonably or even unreasonably ask for. Keen and alert they have looked to see where others have lacked and worked to provide that for their road. They handle the large excursion party and the single passenger just the same. Every bit of their knowledge and help is at their service, and every employe looks to see that they are cared for and reach their destination quickly and comfortably. With our party Mr. David Brown, the road's traveling passenger agent at St. Paul, went through to Buffalo and back, personally attending to the train service and the hundreds of little details that conduce so much to the smoothness of such a trip. At Chicago, Mr. Cookson, the assistant to the general passenger agent at that city, met us there and accompanied the train to Buffalo. The Milwaukee road was equally attentive, Mr. J. T. Conley, the general passenger agent, having been with us while on his road.

The Grand Trunk's Chicago depot is known as the Dearborn street station, and is in the heart of the city. It has three splendid trains daily out of Chicago east, and each has a through Buffalo sleeper via Niagara Falls, so that you have no change to make. The first is the New York and Philadelphia train, run in connection with the Lehigh Valley road, one of the great systems of the east. It is a solid train of vestibule cars and runs via Detroit and Mount Clemens, Mich. It may be of more than passing interest to many to know that the Grand Trunk is the only line out of Chicago that will take you to Mount Clemens without change. This train leaves Chicago at 11:30 a. m., reaching Buffalo at 6:15 the next morning, and New York city at 4:30 that afternoon and runs over a beautiful scenic route through New York and Pennsylvania.

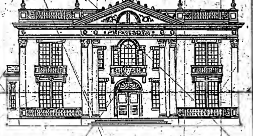
The next train is the famous "No. 4," a flyer and a palace. It leaves Chicago at 3:02 p. m., and is in Buffalo at 8:20 the next morning. The third leaves at 8:15 p. m. and arrives at Buffalo at 4:20 p. m. Also, if you are going beyond Buffalo and wish to stop to see the exposition and Niagara Falls, the Grand Trunk grants a ten days' stopover permit without extra charge, at Niagara, on certain tickets, and on all trains and tickets on payment of $1 at the joint agency at No. 50 Exchange street, Buffalo, very near the depot.

Those wishing a little lake trip in connection with their outing, can go to Milwaukee and there take the boat to Grand Haven, where they then take the Grand Trunk, and there is no extra charge for this route over the Chicago route. The Grand Trunk, for those wishing to visit Toronto, Montreal or any point in Canada, is almost the only line, and it offers every inducement to the traveler.

The connections between the Milwaukee and Grand Trunk at Chicago are very convenient. The night train out of St. Paul arrives in Chicago at 9:30, giving two hours, abundant time for a leisurely breakfast and transfer, before taking the 11:30 Grand Trunk. If you have a little business in Chicago, you can do it and take one of the later trains. The daylight Milwaukee makes equally good connections. If you are expecting or hoping to go to Buffalo, or farther east, write for the Grand Trunk Pan-American folder, a veritable work of art, to Mr. David Brown, Jr., Endicott building, St. Paul, who will send it without charge, and give any further information desired.

The Start from Home.

The editorial party assembled on Saturday, June 15 at St. Paul at the Windsor hotel, which for years has been newspaper headquarters in Minnesota, until Gen. Monfort, the proprietor, has a personal acquaintance with practically every newspaper man in the state. Here each of the party was provided with a handsome badge and button, with his or her name attached, which were the gift of the Kellogg Newspaper Company, the American Press Association, the Minnesota Type Foundry Company, and the American Type Founders. The button represents Niagara Falls, and below was a map of Minnesota and the states extending to New York, with the Great Lakes, the traveling editor standing at St. Paul and looking toward a buffalo marking the location of the Pan-American exposition. It all makes a neat souvenir of the trip.



MINNESOTA BUILDING AT PAN-AMERICAN EXPOSITION.

The party, 240 persons, was the largest by nearly 50 persons that has ever gone on one of these editorial excursions, and consisted wholly of members of the state association. Attached to the editorial special train was Gov. Van Sant's special car for the accommodation of himself and Mrs. Van Sant and his staff, Senator Moses E. Clapp and daughter, and State Secretary Hanson, wife and daughter, in all about thirty persons. It was a feature of the trip that the editors should have charge of the dedication of the Minnesota building at the exposition when it was turned over by the Minnesota board of managers to the governor and by him to the exposition managers. The presence of the state executive, the senator and the other officials gave added dignity and prominence to the excursion and was a very pleasant feature, being wholly non-political. Every editor recognized the courtesy of the governor in conferring upon the editorial association the honor of the dedication of the splendid Minnesota building, and all joined in extending to him every courtesy due the head of the state government.

The train consisted of seven sleepers, a day coach and baggage car. After the exceptionally fast run, we were landed at the Dearborn street station, where a splendid breakfast had been arranged for the party by the Grand Trunk officials at Chicago. All the party were seated at once, a large room having been cleared and seated for our accommodation.

The service was by Mr. Fred Harvey, who has charge of the Santa Fe & Frisco lines' dining cars and eating house, and has a national reputation.

Chicago to Buffalo.

The start from Chicago was made promptly, and we had a delightful ride through the prosperous states of Indiana and Michigan, seeing Valparaiso, South Bend, Cassopolis, Battle Creek, Lansing, and its handsome capitol building, and Durand, by daylight, and passing under the St. Claire river by the Port Huron tunnel, one of the marvels of modern engineering skill. It was at Durand that we had supper. Every one who was on the trip through eastern Canada over the Grand Trunk last year, knew what supper at Mr. Arthur S. Thomas' Durand eating house meant. Everything moves like clockwork. With Mr. Thomas in direct charge, the service is faultless, and the meals we have had there have been as nice and as satisfactory as any we have ever had anywhere, and more could not be said, for on these trips the editors always have the very best. In order that all the ladies of the editorial party might be served at once without delay, the dining room seating but 100, Gov. Van Sant and party were taken to the Richelieu hotel, near by, and were well cared for there. Our stay at Durand was two hours, and Mr. Thomas had an excellent orchestra to help pass the time of waiting; indeed, he neglected nothing, and the editors all endorsed him as a royal good fellow.

Approaching Buffalo in the early morning, the Grand Trunk entered Niagara over its new steel arch bridge, a splendid engineering feat, which three years ago was built to replace the old original suspension bridge, which in its day was considered one of the wonders of the age. From it the traveler gets his first view of the rapids below the falls, and the awe-inspiring scenery of that part of the Niagara river. We reached Buffalo at 8 o'clock.

Statler's Hotel.

When you reach Buffalo walk two blocks to Main street and there take a Main street or Elmwood car to Statler's hotel; that is what we did; it is a ride of about 20 to 30 minutes out there, as Statler's adjoins the exposition grounds. Within half an hour after we had reached the house we were all in our rooms, as we had all been booked and roomed in advance. Statler's is one of the wonders of the exposition. It is but three stories high, yet is the largest hotel in the world, having 2,100 rooms, and it makes it possible for a person of moderate means to visit the great Pan-American. You get a neat, clean room, good meals, promptly and nicely served, and every needed accommodation for $2 a day, which includes breakfast and evening dinner. The dining room accommodates 1,200 people, and the morning we left there, there were 1,000 persons getting breakfast at one time. Excursions of 500 and more persons come here and are swallowed and go unnoticed, while so systematic are the details of the management that there is no hitch, and each one is fully cared for. This is said not to puff Mr. Statler, for the editors paid for all they got there, but it is simply to save the Minnesota people who go to Buffalo their money and their time. Many who have gone have spent days and enough money to do the exposition before finding out where to go to get good meals, comfort and a moderate charge.

Once at Statler's, the exposition is but a stone's throw, and we would advise every one, on their first visit to the grounds, to go by the long central hall out the rear exit of the hotel, where 100 yards distant, is the imposing Lincoln parkway entrance to the grounds. A short and lovely walk past the regular army camp, the Casino, the lake, the unfinished Albright Art building, the United States life-saving stations, brings you to the approach to the Triumphal bridge. Later, if you wish to see the State and Foreign buildings, or the art or army and navy exhibits, turn here to the right. Or, if you wish to go to the woman's building, turn to the left. But, for this first visit, keep straight on to this splendid triumphal bridge, and there you have before you the quadrangle and all the glory of the exposition. After visiting the Minnesota building and registering, spend most of the day in this part of the grounds. Take in the general architectural design of the buildings, and the details and the color scheme, while you listen to the Sousa's band, the finest in this country. As you look to the tower, you will see the various buildings, and, with a map of the grounds, you can sit there, look and listen; place the location of the buildings in your mind, and plan how you will spend your time with most profit and pleasure to yourself. Then you will need this first day to visit for awhile the plaza beyond the electric tower and see its beauties while you hear the Mexican band of fifty pieces, and may hear in the Temple of Music the organ, said to be the largest ever built. Then take a ride on the canal, which circles the grounds, passing through Midway and under the triumphal bridge, which is, with wonderful naturalness, made to resemble a grotto, and we believe you will have spent the day to the best possible advantage.

In the evening just before darkness falls, and after a good dinner at Statler's, take your station at the bridge again, and see the lights turned on. First a tiny red glow, like myriads of fireflies, and then a wonderful burst of light, the grandest electrical display without any question the world has ever seen. Tens and tens of thousands of electric lights outline every detail of every building and a subdued murmur of wonder and admiration runs through the watching multitude.

The Midway.

After that first day work to a plan in visiting the exhibits; they are all well worth seeing and are all now in place. If you wish to start in Midway, take the street cars from Statler's four or five blocks to the first entrance on that side or to the end of the line, both these entrances being direct to that feature.

Through the courtesy of Mr. Louis R. Dennis, who is the press representative of the Dundy Midway Attractions, our party were admitted to all the Midway sights. Each one did not visit all, and very many only a few, but we can assure our readers that there is not one fake; all are worth seeing. Midway is more intricate, more of a labyrinth than at the world's fair, where it was just a long, wide thoroughfare. It does not cover so much ground, but in the character and number of its attractions in their uniform excellence, it far excels. The buildings are more substantial, more artistically built, and planned, and the exhibits are more complete. You can spend much or little money here, and can go to all or select such ones as appeal to your individual liking. If you buy anything here, you will find one honest dealer to ten unadulterated swindlers, and generally pay about half what is asked, and you will pay enough. These swindlers are hurting Midway trade, and the honest dealers do not hesitate to say so. But the exhibits are beautiful and a delight to the lover of the odd and foreign.

The Minnesota Building.

Of course, you will visit the Minnesota building, and you will wonder as you see it and the exhibits from the state elsewhere, how the managers have done so much for so little money, and in so short a time.

The building is in colonial style, with high pillars and a spacious front porch covering the entire front. As you enter the building you are in the main reception room, where will be found a register, arranged for visitors to record their names, stating where they are stopping in the city, as well as where they are from, thus enabling acquaintances to find each other. There is also a postoffice, where Minnesota people can receive and send their mail. On the right hand of this reception room is the ladies' parlor, elegantly fitted with easy chairs, lounges, writing desk, piano, etc. On the left hand side of the reception room is the gentlemen's parlor and reading room, which is also finely furnished. Upstairs will be found a commodious smoking and reading room for gentlemen, as well as various other rooms for the [illegible] of the employes. Almost the entire wall space of the building up stairs and down, is occupied by the state educational exhibit. It is universally conceded by visitors that the Minnesota educational exhibit surpasses that of any state in the Liberal Arts building. A unique feature of the furnishings is that they are very largely made from Minnesota grass twine. Every Minnesotan is invited to make this building a haven of rest and information.

In the Agricultural building will be found the Minnesota booth, which stands opposite New York, and is much more massive, and architecturally superior. The display is the most complete, unique and best arranged of any exhibit in the building. Over the booth are paintings made for the occasion, showing the wholesale and milling districts of St. Paul and Minneapolis.

In the Dairy building the model of our new state capitol in butter is nearing completion. It is enclosed in a large plate glass case. The dome and upper portion of the building is already completed, and when entirely finished will be the most novel exhibit on the grounds.

The Minnesota mining booth in the Mining building, is fine and surmounted with paintings showing our great iron mines and the increase of mining and shipment.

In the Manufacturing building is the Minnesota flour booth, which fitly illustrates the claim that Minnesota is the bread and butter state.

Minnesota Day.

The central feature of the editors' visit in Buffalo was Minnesota day, the dedication of the state building. The arrangements and the manner in which they were carried out were a credit to the state, and brought to it more of notice and public attention than the several exhibits even. In addition to the editorial party, the governor and his staff, Senator Clapp, Congressman Stevens, the Rev. M. Meldrum, Secretary Hanson, Deputy Auditor Iverson, State Librarian Nelson, State Printer Whitney, Deputy Secretary Sjoblen and other state officials, there was a brigade of the state troops, 250 veterans of the Philippine contingent, headed by a splendid band. All assembled at the building, and the procession from there to the Temple of Music where the formal ceremonies were held was certainly imposing. The exposition managers were greatly pleased, and said that it was not only the most elaborate parade of the exposition so far, but, in all the details, the dedication ceremonies set a pace which it would be difficult for other states to equal. Fully a thousand Minnesotans took part and thousands of interested spectators completely filled the large auditorium of the Temple of Music, where President Munro, of the State Editorial association, presided. The program there was as follows:

Presiding officer, W. J. Munro, president Minnesota Editorial association.

Assemble at Minnesota building at 11:30 o'clock, and march to Temple of Music, escorted by Minnesota National Guard and Exposition band.

Music.

Prayer—By Rev. A. B. Meldrum, of St. Paul.

Addresses of Welcome—Hon. Conrad Diehl, mayor of Buffalo; Hon. W. I. Buchanan, director general Pan-American exposition.

Presentation of Building—Alexander McDougall, president Minnesota board of managers.

Acceptance—Hon. S. R. Van Sant, governor of Minnesota.

[illegible] Minnesota—H. P. Hall, of St. Paul.

Music.

Addresses—Hon. Rowland B. Mahany, of Buffalo; Hon. Moses E. Clapp, United States senator from Minnesota; Hon. F. C. Stevens, congressman Fourth Minnesota district; Dr. George H. Bridgman, president Hamline University, St. Paul.

Song—"America," the audience.

Return to the Minnesota building for refreshments.

The addresses were uniformly of a high order, and modestly proclaimed the glories of Minnesota, its wealth, resources, prosperity and importance in the economy of our country. The state exposition board, Alexander McDougall, president; John Morton, vice president, and H. P. Hall, secretary, deserve the utmost credit for arrangements, and the Editorial association certainly carried them out in a manner to not only do honor to the state, but to bring it great prominence and advantage.

When the great throng returned to the Minnesota building for refreshments it looked as if the miracle of the loaves and fishes would have to be repeated, but the board of managers proved adequate to the occasion and all were amply supplied, the battalion being given the right of way at the first table.

The Evening Reception.

That evening at Statler's the Minnesota Editorial association extended a reception to the governor and his staff and to the press of Buffalo. It was given in the dining hall, and it may give an idea of the size of this room to know that the reception and banquet following, at which about 500 persons were seated, occurred on one side of the dining hall, which was screened off, while dinner was served to hundreds of the guests of the hotel in the other part, the social function and post prandial addresses and the regular service of the hotel in no way interfering with each other. At the head of the receiving line were President and Mrs. Munro, to whom the guests were presented, who, in turn, introduced them to Gov. and Mrs. Van Sant, the others in the receiving party being the executive committee of the association, Messrs. C. C. Whitney, H. P. Hall, F. J. Meyst and David Ramaley, and their ladies. Opposite, in full dress uniform, were the governor's staff: Gen. C. J. Monfort, Gen. A. A. Ames, Cols. Gustaf Widell, Ira W. Bouch, John Pengilly, E. D. Evans, J. C. Miller, Robert Seng, E. Ozmun, James Elwin, Majors F. W. Betz, M. M. Garser, J. C. Donovan, J. C. Jensen.

Following the reception and banquet, during which the Statler orchestra rendered a musical programme, Mr. Munro, president of the Minnesota Editorial association, who presided, called upon Mr. C. W. Stanton, editor of the Appleton (Minn.) Press to extend a welcome to the Buffalo press and their friends, which he did most royally. Mr. J. B. Ford, of the Buffalo Commercial, president of the Buffalo Press Club, responded eloquently. Other speakers were Col. H. P. Rucker, special commissioner of the Pan-American exposition; H. P. Hall, of St. Paul; Rev. Patrick Cronin, editor of the Buffalo Catholic Union and Times; E. W. Randall, secretary of the Minnesota State Agricultural Society; Rowland B. Mahany, ex-congressman from Buffalo; Benjamin Moreley, of the Buffalo Times; Charles S. Mitchell, of the Alexandria (Minn.) Post-News; Harold J. Balliett, of the Buffalo News; Gov. Van Sant and Rev. A. B. Meldrum, of St. Paul, in the order named. The Buffalo speeches, notably those of Father Cronin and Mr. Mahany, were very fine, and Minnesota sustained its part of the programme to the great credit of the speakers and the state.

Visit Niagara.

Friday morning, the 21st, the editorial party took a reluctant leave of the exposition. We went by boat down the river, a beautiful ride of sixteen miles, to just above Niagara Falls, where we boarded special cars of the electrical line on the Canadian side to Queenstown, and crossing the river there to Lewistown, took the Gorge electric line on the American side back to Niagara Falls. For miles we had the view of the falls, the precipitous bluffs, the rapids and the whirlpool, a view that in its entirety, we believe, [illegible] attractive [illegible] magnificence and grandeur of its landscape, of any in this continent. The various companies owning the boats and electric lines have made a combination round trip rate of $1.75 from Buffalo, and every one should take this ride. At Niagara the editors were extended the courtesy of a ride down the incline railway to the foot of the falls, and liberty to inspect the power house, where the power of Niagara is harnessed for man's uses. Nearly all also visited Goat Island, and some the great paper mill. In the evening an informal dance was tendered the party by the management of the International, Niagara's largest and leading hotel, where we stopped, and Gov. and Mrs. Van Sant did us the honor of leading the march.

At Toronto.

The next day was devoted to a trip to Toronto, and ended the sight-seeing of the excursion. Toronto was the only large Canadian city the editors had not visited in their excursions. We made the Rossin house headquarters and spent the day seeing this, in many ways, the greatest Canadian city. We were received with that lavish and cordial hospitality and good comradeship for which all Canada is so well known to Minnesota editors. Canadians excel in the kindliness of their entertainment, their courtesy to strangers, and the Minnesota Editorial Association having experienced it all the way from Victoria on the west to Quebec, cannot say too much in appreciation. The arrangements for the day had been inspired by the association's old friend, Mr. Will J. White, of the Canadian land department.

Our committee were met at the hotel by a committee of the Canadian Press Association, Mr. John A. Cooper, secretary, Mr. Law and others, and the programme for the day was outlined. The forenoon hours were devoted to inspecting the business district and Toronto's great stores. At noon Mayor Howland extended a formal reception to Gov. Van Sant and staff, Senator Clapp and the editorial party at McConkey's. Following this a delicious luncheon was served in the great dining hall, the health of the king and President McKinley were drunk and "God Save the King" was followed by "America," all joining most heartily in both these national anthems. Mr. J. S. Willison, editor of the Toronto Globe, and ex-president of the Canadian Press Association, presided. First Vice President D. McGillicuddy, who was with us last year, and had come 150 miles to be present; Second Vice President J. Pettipiece, member of parliament; John A. Cooper, secretary, and A. F. Rutter, the king's printer, were also present, representing the Canadian press, while Mayor Howland, Aldermen Cox and others, represented the city.

In an exceedingly graceful address of good fellowship and cordial international comity, Mr. Willison extended a welcome to the city. President Munro called upon Mr. Frank A. Day to respond for the Minnesota editors, which he did most happily, and Gov. Van Sant responded for the state, making one of those apt and forceful little speeches, which have been a feature of this trip. Loud calls for Hall brought out the closing speech, and as always this Minnesota newspaper Nestor delighted every one with his wit and the appropriateness of his remarks.

During the afternoon a trolley ride extended by the city took our party to every point of interest in the city. The magnificent city hall, where, from a tower 290 feet above the street level, the city and the country round and the lake with its shipping can be seen, though miles distant, the handsome parliament buildings in Queen's Park, the University grounds adjoining, and their buildings, the other colleges, parks and public institutions, were all seen, and the residence of the lieutenant governor and other handsome homes were visited. It is a splendid city; this queen of Middle Canada. It has an American way of doing things united with the best characteristics of the English city and the result is that it is bound to excel both in its conduct of municipal affairs and commercially.

Homeward Bound.

It was 11 o'clock, on time to the minute, when the Grand Trunk pulled us out for our return trip home. We breakfasted at Durand and dined at Chicago, and were turned over ahead of time to the Milwaukee to be taken safely back to our beloved Minnesota.

At Chicago occurred one of the happiest occasions of the entire trip. After a fine dinner had been served at the Dearborn street station, Mr. C. W. Stanton, on behalf of the association, in a few words expressing the excursionists' warm appreciation of President Munro and his efforts to make the trip a splendid one, presented him from them, a handsome diamond ring. President Munro amidst great applause, replied gracefully, acknowledging his thanks and his feelings of personal friendship for each member of the association; also he spoke of the labors of the executive committee, whose work, he said, one could not realize until he had served with them.

Mr. Stanton then again arose, saying that the committee had not been forgotten, and amidst welcoming shouts, presented each of them a handsome traveling case. Responses were called for and made by Messrs. Whitney, Hall, Stine and Meyst, while the applause that greeted them testified the ardent feeling each one had for them. It is certainly deserved. The planning of these trips, the securing of concessions and accommodations, the arranging of all details, handling of baggage, providing for the comfort of each member and looking for their personal welfare during the whole outing, entails an amount of executive ability and routine attention that it is hard to realize. As Mr. Statler's manager said: "We know that for the management of this hotel, with its thousands of guests, we have to have a system exact and perfect in every detail, but you people equal it." And Gov. Van Sant and every member of this party spoke of the remarkable smoothness with which our party was handled and the perfect system by which the trip was run. They wondered at it and repeatedly expressed their admiration at the way in which all friction was avoided, and all the members of the party relieved of trouble and worry and left to feel free to the enjoyment of their opportunities to see and learn. It is indeed unequaled by any other organization we have ever seen.

The following resolutions were offered and unanimously adopted:

"Resolved, That the absence of our good friends, Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Barnum, of St. Cloud, whose usual genial presence has added so much to the pleasures of previous trips, has been a cloud upon our enjoyment and that we extend to them the most fervent wishes for the restoration to health of our dear friends."

"Resolved, That this association is again under obligations to the A. N. Kellogg Newspaper Company, the Minnesota Type Foundry Company, the American Press Association and the American Type Founders Company for the design and execution of the beautiful button and badge used for our annual excursion, and the association warmly extends its thanks to the genial representatives of these companies, Messrs. Frank J. Meyst, W. A. Potter, A. L. May and John Brandtjen, gentlemen who are always studious in promoting the welfare of the members of this association.

We reached St. Paul at 6:20 o'clock Monday morning, June 24. So closed this splendid trip; memorable for its pleasure and for the broader view and greater knowledge each one took back to his work in his own community.

900 IN DIRE PERIL

EXCURSION STEAMER STRIKES A ROCK AND SINKS IN TWENTY MINUTES.

MEN PROVE THEMSELVES HEROES

Many Women at First Alarm Jump Overboard and Are Rescued by Cooler Heads of Excursionists and Crew—Believed That All Were Saved—Women and Children in Hysterics.

New York, July 1.—The steamer Mohawk, owned by John H. Starin and used by him in carrying excursionists to Glen Island, struck a rock Saturday afternoon at 5 o'clock just off New Rochelle with 900 passengers on board and sunk in less than twenty minutes. She lies in about forty feet of water between Fort Slocum and Davenport's Neck. It is believed that all of the passengers escaped, although there are a few of them who are yet unaccounted for. The excursionists owe their lives to the coolness of the captain and crew of the sunken vessel and to the action of the men passengers, who bravely helped the women and children to get into life preservers and boats before Making Their Escape.

The passengers were employes of the John W. Green hat factories of Danbury, Conn. About one-half of them were women and children. The excursionists spent the day at the island and had a good time taking in the sights. The boat started back for South Norwalk at 5 o'clock with the band playing. She got well under way and was going up the sound at a good pace when just off Fort Slocum the passengers felt a sudden jar. They did not pay much attention to the shock until the steam from the boiler room came rushing up from below. Then the boat began to pound, and a shout went up from the lower decks that she had struck a rock.

A Panic Was On.

By this time everybody aboard realized that the boat was sinking and a panic was on. People rushed up the companionways to the upper decks and began to tear down the life preservers. The captain and crew ran among them and tried to quiet them. "Don't jump overboard," they shouted. "There is no danger; everybody will have time to get ashore." They succeeded in keeping fairly good order among the men, but most of the women and children were in hysterics, and many sprang overboard. Several steamers and sailboats in the vicinity came quickly to the rescue and took the passengers out of the water. The party was taken to South Norwalk, from which city they went by train to Danbury.

INDIAN GROWTH ON DECREASE.

Blue Book Just Issued Shows Over £18,000,000 Expended in Famine Relief.

London, July 1.—A blue book on India, just issued, shows that £18,390,000 was expended for the relief of famine sufferers during the year 1899-1900. The mortality from the plague for the five years ending March, 1901, was nearly 600,000. The census completed in March, 1901, shows that the increase in population during the last ten years was only 5,000,000 to 6,000,000, instead of the normal 19,000,000. The loss represents deaths from famine and the deaths in consequence of the famine.

DEATH PREFERRED.

Brewery Superintendent Would Not Face a Charge of Shortage.

Chicago, July 1.—Rather than face a charge of being short $1,200 in his accounts W. C. Gross, superintendent of the South side branch of the Wacker & Birk Brewing company, attempted to end his life yesterday by stabbing himself with a pocket knife and sending a bullet into his left breast. The attempt at suicide was made in the basement of the office and at the time Frank M. Hartz, cashier of the company, was waiting in the place to inspect the superintendent's books.

FELL ASLEEP ACROSS TRACK.

Freight Train Cut Body of Engineer Arthur Hart in Two.

Columbus, Ohio, July 1.—Arthur Hart, an engineer, got out of his cab at New Salem, thirty-five miles south of here, to turn the switch to allow a south-bound freight to pass. While waiting Hart fell asleep with his body across the track. The fireman in the cab heard a scream, but when he arrived at the spot Hart was dead.

STEAMER IS LOST.

Goes Down on the North Shore of Lake Superior.

Toledo, Ohio, July 1.—A telegram received here from Fort William, Ont., reports the loss of the steamer Preston, lumber laden, on the north shore of Lake Superior. The message is from Capt. W. J. Harlow, owner of the steamer, and says: "Preston lost; crew all saved; will write."

Ditch Caves in on Two Men.

Fergus Falls, Minn., July 1.—Reports of a serious accident in Legrand, Douglass county say that John Benson and his son, together with a young man named Hjelmer Herbert, were engaged in digging a ditch when the sides of the excavation gave away, burying Mr. Benson, Sr., and Herbert. The younger Benson had climbed out of the ditch a few minutes before.

Butterfield May Die.

Newburg, N. Y., July 1.—Gen. Daniel Butterfield, who has been ill at his home in Cold Springs for about a month, is now rapidly failing. It is believed he cannot recover. He failed considerably Sunday.

Reilly's Battery Is Home.

San Francisco, July 1.—Capt. Reilly's battery of light artillery, which took a prominent part in the war in China, arrived here on the transport Peking. There are four officers and 136 men in the battery.

STRIKERS ARRESTED.

Will Break Up the Fighting End of the Strikers' Troubles.

Thacker, W. Va., July 1.—Detective T. L. Felts, assisted by John Justice, deputy United States marshal, and a posse of six men, went to the Kentucky side of Tug river early yesterday morning and captured nine persons who were charged with terrorizing the miners on the West Virginia side of the river for the past ten days by shooting at all who could not give the proper strikers' sign as they passed along the railroad. They were all brought to this place and held under a heavy guard awaiting the train to take them before a Kentucky judge who remanded them to Judge Jackson at Parkersburg, this state. They were surprised in their sleep with their Winchesters under their pillows and surrendered with but little resistance. Even their guard was captured asleep on duty. It is generally believed that this will break up the fighting end of the strikers' troubles and that their differences will soon be compromised in a satisfactory way to all concerned. Charles Burke, president of the local union of United Mine Workers of America, was arrested by deputy United States Marshal Hufford and Detective Felt and taken to Parkersburg to appear before Judge Jackson on the charge of tearing down the notices of the injunction granted by Judge Jackson.

MARTIAL LAW IN PANAMA.

Considerable Fighting Is in Progress in the Interior.

Kingston, Jam., July 1.—The steamer Orinoco, which arrived here yesterday from Colon, Colombia, reports that martial law has been proclaimed in Panama, owing to a report that the rebel forces are being reorganised. It also appears that considerable fighting is in progress in the interior and that the government is dispatching reinforcements, arms and ammunition to the garrisons in the interior and also to certain coast towns. It is further reported that stringent precautions are taken in Panama in consequence of the fear that the rebels will attack the city. Similar conditions obtain at Colon. The government's alleged cruelty to political prisoners is said to be the cause of the refusal of the Liberals to accept the peace terms.

SHAFTER OUT OF IT.

Goes on the Retired List—Four Regiments Mustered Out.

San Francisco, July 1.—Two important military events occurred at the Presidio yesterday, the retirement of Maj. Gen. W. R. Shafter and the mustering out of four volunteer regiments. Gen. Shafter went on the retired list at noon, when he formally transferred the command of the department of California to Maj. Gen. S. M. B. Young. In the afternoon the Forty-fourth, Forty-eighth, Forty-ninth and Thirty-eighth volunteer regiments were mustered out. The mustering out of the four regiments required the services of eight paymasters. Over $1,000,000 was disbursed.

THUMPED BY STRIKERS.

Three Men Receive a Severe Beating—One in a Dangerous Condition.

Knoxville, Tenn., July 1.—Three of the employes of the Southern railway shops at this place who took the places of striking machinists were enticed out of the city limits last night and badly beaten. One of the injured men is in a dangerous condition. They are Frenchmen who claim they did not know a strike was on when they came to Knoxville. They accompanied a number of men to a saloon. They refused to drink intoxicants, but were induced to cross the river where they were beaten with clubs and cut with knives and then left alone.

LULU KENNEDY SENTENCED.

Verdict Against Woman Who Killed Her Husband Made Effective.

Kansas City, July 1.—Mrs. Lulu Prince-Kennedy was formally sentenced by Judge Wofford to serve ten years in the state penitentiary for the murder of her husband, Philip Kennedy, in January last. She heard the sentence without the slightest display of emotion. After the sentence Chas. H. Nearing, counsel for Mrs. Kennedy, stated that he expected to appeal the case to the supreme court, but that it had not been decided whether she would immediately begin her sentence.

HERMIT ROBBED, THEN HANGED.

Bachelor Recluse Is Nearly Killed by Brutal Thieves.

Lincoln, Neb., July 1.—A hermit bachelor named Wohlenburg was slugged and robbed in his room. Robbers tied his hands and feet and strung him up with a rope about the neck to an iron hook on the wall, leaving him. His cries attracted friends in time to cut him down and save his life, although black in the face from strangling. Two suspects have been arrested.

$1,800 for a Pearl.

Lansing, Iowa, July 1.—This city bids fair to become famous for the many fine pearls found here. One Saturday sold for $1,800. It was found by an old Swede named Benson on the clam bed which produced the famous Queen Mary about a month ago, and although weighing less, 66 grains, is a much finer and more valuable gem. No less than twelve pearls were found here one day last week, but the Benson pearl will probably go down in history as the finest of them all.

Three Negroes Killed on a Train.

Macon, Ga., July 1.—Three negroes who were riding on top of an excursion train between Atlanta and Macon were knocked off by a bridge and killed.

Bishop Potter's Wife Dead.

New York, July 1.—Mrs. Eliza Rogers Potter, wife of the Rt. Rev. Henry C. Potter, Protestant Episcopal bishop of New York, died suddenly yesterday morning. Death was due to heart failure, superinduced by the intense heat.

Dr. Sunderland Dead.

Catskill, July 1.—Rev. Dr. Byron Sunderland, of Washington, D. C., died here of cerebral embolism yesterday morning at the home of his son-in-law, Orin Day, president of the Leners National bank.

YE EDITOR TRAVELS.

He Has a Royal Good Time While the Devil Runs the Shop.

BUFFALO AND TORONTO GIVE WELCOME

The Minnesota Building at the Pan-American Exposition Formally Dedicated by the Scribes and Gov. Van Sant and His Staff.

Rightly is it called the "Rainbow City." Ornate in its architecture, beautiful in its coloring, the Pan-American city delights and satisfies the eye and holds the promise of good fortune to all the Americas. Chicago for its "White City" had the help of all the world. The federal government and the state of Illinois made munificent donations, and all foreign countries were directly interested in that great exposition. But the Pan-American is the creation of Buffalo, and almost unaided this single city, not of the first magnitude in population, has carried to completion one of the very few really great expositions. It has in so doing placed itself in the first rank of American cities in its self-reliance, energy and accomplishment of great undertakings. Its exposition in its beauty and interest for visitors rivals the Chicago fair and wholly eclipses any other ever known in this country.

The "all-American" idea is distinctly carved out in the architecture and the color designs, and as the classic outlines of the Grecian architecture of the "White City" was a distinct triumph for American art, so are the terretted, minaretted buildings and beautiful color schemes of the "Rainbow City." It is unusually restful to the eye and satisfying to the mind. As you enter the grounds over the approach to the triumphal arch and the great quadrangle surrounding the fountains, bursts upon the view, with the graceful lines of the lofty electrical tower marking the far end, you cannot but exclaim, "How beautiful!" To see it in its glory you must see it from this point; the plan evidently contemplates that. At this end, too, you find the ruder and cruder architecture, plainer and less ornate of design and without color, representing the earliest times. The principal arch is indeed a triumph of architecture, but here is no color, no glamor of the creation, but from here on the color begins, as does the intricacy of ornament, until both reach their climax in the electrical tower. It is all a study in southern architecture and is as distinct and true and consistent as was the "White City." You come away with a clear impression, bearing the exact picture in memory, which is harmonious and pleasing and carries the impression of historic completeness.

We wish to say with the utmost earnestness, that no one who, by any reasonable sacrifice, can spend a day or a month at the Pan-American will ever regret doing so.

The Minnesota Party.

The representatives of 150 Minnesota newspapers have just spent nearly a week at the exposition. With us were a hundred ladies, our wives and daughters. With us also were Gov. Van Sant and his party, in all making nearly 300 persons. Every one, without exception, was delighted. We of this western country have had no real conception of the magnitude and completeness of this exposition, nor of its educational value, otherwise tens of thousands would go from this state alone. Every one of the 300 of our excursion has come home to urge every friend he has to go, to see and enjoy.

To all those who may contemplate the trip, we wish to tell the plain, unvarnished tale of this 1901 editorial outing, and to give simple facts that will be most useful to the visitor, saving him many delays, annoyances and considerable expense. We take it that most who will visit the Pan-American from Minnesota will have limited time and limited means. They will wish to see the most they can for their money, with the maximum of personal comfort.

The Route.

First, then, as to your route. You cannot possibly do better than to take the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road to Chicago, and the Grand Trunk from there on. The service on these roads is not excelled in the whole world, nor are there any better equipments, or smoother roadbeds. If you have never realized what a good roadbed means to the traveler, outside of safety to life, just notice as you ride over the Milwaukee and Grand Trunk, that after you reach Buffalo you are as fresh as when you left home. Or, if you started tired, you will reach there rested and refreshed, ready for tramping and sightseeing. You do not have to hang onto your seat all day, nor lie awake all night, to stay in your berth. You can read with ease, watch the landscape with comfort, and sleep as peacefully as in your own bed at home.

The Milwaukee runs five solid passenger trains daily each way between St. Paul and Chicago. It gives you a daylight ride if you wish in chair cars down the Mississippi river, passing Hastings, Red Wing, Winona and La Crosse, a route that for scenic beauty is unexcelled. Its great Pioneer Limited leaves St. Paul at 8:10 p. m. and arrives in Chicago at 9:30 the following morning. It is the pride of the road and the admiration of all railroad men. But just to show what it can do when put to the test, our special was whirled from St. Paul to Chicago in just twelve hours after a run that was as easy and smooth as rubber tires on macadam. This road also is the only one having the block signal system for the entire St. Paul-Chicago route, making collisions impossible. The elegance of its trains, the completeness of its service, the courtesy of its employes and the effort made in every way for your comfort and enjoyment, cost you nothing—they are that much extra for your money. It is a significant fact that no other road ever claims to excel the Milwaukee, the utmost of the pretentions being that they are "just as good." It is the model and its limited train is indeed the "Pioneer." It lead the way and still leads it.

The Grand Trunk.

What the Milwaukee is northwest of Chicago, that the Grand Trunk railway system is to the northern east. Its splendid roadbed insures your ease and safety. It is officered and managed almost wholly by young men, and they have amazed the railroad world by making it the most popular road east of Chicago, and they have done this in just the few last years. They have done it by providing everything the traveling public could reasonably or even unreasonably ask for. Keen and alert they have looked to see where others have lacked and worked to provide that for their road. They handle the large excursion party and the single passenger just the same. Every bit of their knowledge and help is at their service, and every employe looks to see that they are cared for and reach their destination quickly and comfortably. With our party Mr. David Brown, the road's traveling passenger agent at St. Paul, went through to Buffalo and back, personally attending to the train service and the hundreds of little details that conduce so much to the smoothness of such a trip. At Chicago, Mr. Cookson, the assistant to the general passenger agent at that city, met us there and accompanied the train to Buffalo. The Milwaukee road was equally attentive, Mr. J. T. Conley, the general passenger agent, having been with us while on his road.

The Grand Trunk's Chicago depot is known as the Dearborn street station, and is in the heart of the city. It has three splendid trains daily out of Chicago east, and each has a through Buffalo sleeper via Niagara Falls, so that you have no change to make. The first is the New York and Philadelphia train, run in connection with the Lehigh Valley road, one of the great systems of the east. It is a solid train of vestibule cars and runs via Detroit and Mount Clemens, Mich. It may be of more than passing interest to many to know that the Grand Trunk is the only line out of Chicago that will take you to Mount Clemens without change. This train leaves Chicago at 11:30 a. m., reaching Buffalo at 6:15 the next morning, and New York city at 4:30 that afternoon, and runs over a beautiful scenic route through New York and Pennsylvania.

The next train is the famous "No. 4," a flyer and a palace. It leaves Chicago at 3:02 p. m., and is in Buffalo at 8:20 the next morning. The third leaves at 8.15 p. m. and arrives at Buffalo at 4:20 p. m. Also, if you are going beyond Buffalo and wish to stop to see the exposition and Niagara Falls, the Grand Trunk grants a ten days' stopover permit without extra charge at Niagara, on certain tickets, and on all trains and tickets on payment of $1 at the joint agency at No. 30 Exchange street, Buffalo, very near the depot.

Those wishing a little lake trip in connection with their outing, can go to Milwaukee and there take the boat to Grand Haven, where they then take the Grand Trunk, and there is no extra charge for this route over the Chicago route. The Grand Trunk, for those wishing to visit Toronto, Montreal or any point in Canada, is almost the only line, and it offers every inducement to the traveler.

The connections between the Milwaukee and Grand Trunk at Chicago are very convenient. The night train out of St. Paul arrives in Chicago at 9:30, giving two hours, abundant time for a leisurely breakfast and transfer, before taking the 11:30 Grand Trunk. If you have a little business in Chicago, you can do it and take one of the later trains. The daylight Milwaukee makes equally good connections. If you are expecting or hoping to go to Buffalo, or farther east, write for the Grand Trunk Pan-American folder, a veritable work of art, to Mr. David Brown, Jr., Endicott building, St. Paul, who will send it without charge, and give any further information desired.

The Start from Home.

The editorial party assembled on Saturday, June 15 at St. Paul at the Windsor hotel, which for years has been newspaper headquarters in Minnesota, until Gen. Monfort, the proprietor, has a personal acquaintance with practically every newspaper man in the state. Here each of the party was provided with a handsome badge and button, with his or her name attached, which were the gift of the Kellogg Newspaper Company, the American Press Association, the Minnesota Type Foundry Company, and the American Type Founders. The button represents Niagara Falls, and below was a map of Minnesota and the states extending to New York, with the Great Lakes, the traveling editor standing at St. Paul and looking toward a buffalo marking the location of the Pan-American exposition. It all makes a neat souvenir of the trip.

The party, 200 persons, was the largest by nearly 50 persons that has ever gone on one of these editorial excursions, and consisted wholly of members of the state association. Attached to the editorial special train was Gov. Van Sant's special car for the accommodation of himself and Mrs. Van Sant and his staff, Senator Moses E. Clapp and daughter, and State Secretary Hanson, wife and daughter, in all about thirty persons. It was a feature of the trip that the editors should have charge of the dedication of the Minnesota building at the exposition when it was turned over by the Minnesota board of managers to the governor and by him to the exposition managers. The presence of the state executive, the senator and the other officials gave added dignity and prominence to the excursion and was a very pleasant feature, being wholly non-political. Every editor recognized the courtesy of the governor in conferring upon the editorial association the honor of the dedication of the splendid Minnesota building, and all joined in extending to him every courtesy due the head of the state government.

The train consisted of seven sleepers, a day coach and baggage car. After the exceptionally fast run, we were landed at the Dearborn street station, where a splendid breakfast had been arranged for the party by the Grand Trunk officials at Chicago. All the party were seated at once, a large room having been cleared and seated for our accommodation.

The service was by Mr. Fred Harvey, who has charge of the Santa Fe & Frisco lines' dining cars and eating house, and has a national reputation.

Chicago to Buffalo.

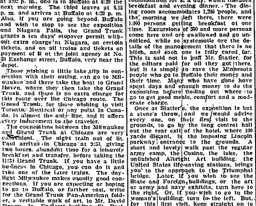
The start from Chicago was made promptly, and we had a delightful ride through the prosperous states of Indiana and Michigan, seeing Valparaiso, South Bend, Cassopolis, Battle Creek, Lansing, and its handsome capitol building, and Durand, by daylight, and passing under the St. Claire river by the Port Huron tunnel, one of the marvels of modern engineering skill. It was at Durand that we had supper. Every one who was on the trip through eastern Canada over the Grand Trunk last year, knew what supper at Mr. Arthur S. Thomas' Durand eating house meant. Everything moves like clockwork. With Mr. Thomas in direct charge, the service is faultless, and the meals we have had there have been as nice and as satisfactory as any we have ever had anywhere, and more could not be said, for on these trips the editors always have the very best. In order that all the ladies of the editorial party might be served at once without delay, the dining room seating but 100, Gov. Van Sant and party were taken to the Richelieu hotel, near by, and were well cared for there. Our stay at Durand was two hours, and Mr. Thomas had an excellent orchestra to help pass the time of waiting; indeed, he neglected nothing, and the editors all endorsed him as a royal good fellow.

Approaching Buffalo in the early morning, the Grand Trunk entered Niagara over its new steel arch bridge, a splendid engineering feat, which three years ago was built to replace the old original suspension bridge, which in its day was considered one of the wonders of the age. From it the traveler gets his first view of the rapids below the falls, and the awe-inspiring scenery of that part of the Niagara river. We reached Buffalo at 8 o'clock.

Statler's Hotel.

When you reach Buffalo walk two blocks to Main street and there take a Main street or Elmwood car to Statler's hotel; that is what we did; it is a ride of about 20 to 30 minutes out there, as Statler's adjoins the exposition grounds. Within half an hour after we had reached the house we were all in our rooms, as we had all been booked and roomed in advance. Statler's is one of the wonders of the exposition. It is but three stories high, yet is the largest hotel in the world, having 2,100 rooms, and it makes it possible for a person of moderate means to visit the great Pan-American. You get a neat, clean room, good meals, promptly and nicely served, and every needed accommodation for $2 a day, which includes breakfast and evening dinner. The dining room accommodates 1,200 people, and the morning we left there, there were 1,000 persons getting breakfast at one time. Excursions of 500 and more persons come here and are swallowed and go unnoticed, while so systematic are the details of the management that there is no hitch, and each one is fully cared for. This is said not to puff Mr. Statler, for the editors paid for all they got there, but it is simply to save the Minnesota people who go to Buffalo their money and their time. Many who have gone have spent days and enough money to do the exposition before finding out where to go to get good meals, comfort and a moderate charge.

Once at Statler's, the exposition is but a stone's throw, and we would advise every one, on their first visit to the grounds, to go by the long central hall out the rear exit of the hotel, where 100 yards distant, is the imposing Lincoln parkway entrance to the grounds. A short and lovely walk past the regular army camp, the Casino, the lake, the unfinished Albright Art building, the United States life-saving stations, brings you to the approach to the Triumphal bridge. Later, if you wish to see the State and Foreign buildings, or the art or army and navy exhibits, turn here to the right. Or, if you wish to go to the woman's building, turn to the left. But, for this first visit, keep straight on to this splendid triumphal bridge, and there you have before you the quadrangle and all the glory of the exposition. After visiting the Minnesota building and registering, spend most of the day in this part of the grounds. Take in the general architectural design of the buildings, and the details and the color scheme, while you listen to the Sousa's band, the finest in this country. As you look to the tower, you will see the various buildings, and, with a map of the grounds, you can sit there, look and listen, place the location of the buildings in your mind, and plan how you will spend your time with most profit and pleasure to yourself. Then you will need this first day to visit for awhile the plaza beyond the electric tower and see its beauties while you hear the Mexican band of fifty pieces, and may hear in the Temple of Music the organ, said to be the largest ever built. Then take a ride on the canal, which circles the grounds, passing through Midway and under the triumphal bridge, which is, with wonderful naturalness, made to resemble a grotto, and we believe you will have spent the day to the best possible advantage.



MINNESOTA BUILDING AT PAN-AMERICAN EXPOSITION.

In the evening just before darkness falls, and after a good dinner at Statler's, take your station at the bridge again, and see the lights turned on. First a tiny red glow, like myriads of fireflies, and then a wonderful burst of light, the grandest electrical display without any question the world has ever seen. Tens and tens of thousands of electric lights outline every detail of every building and a subdued murmur of wonder and admiration runs through the watching multitude.

The Midway.

After that first day work to a plan in visiting the exhibits; they are all well worth seeing and are all now in place. If you wish to start in Midway, take the street cars from Statler's four or five blocks to the first entrance on that side or to the end of the line, both these entrances being direct to that feature.

Through the courtesy of Mr. Louis R. Dennis, who is the press representative of the Dundy Midway Attractions, our party were admitted to all the Midway sights. Each one did not visit all and very many only a few, but we can assure our readers that there is not one fake; all are worth seeing. Midway is more intricate, more of a labyrinth than at the world's fair, where it was just a long, wide thoroughfare. It does not cover so much ground, but in the character and number of its attractions in their uniform excellence, it far excels. The buildings are more substantial, more artistically built, and planned, and the exhibits are more complete. You can spend much or little money here, and can go to all or select such ones as appeal to your individual liking. If you buy anything here, you will find one honest dealer to ten unadulterated swindlers, and generally pay about half what is asked, and you will pay enough. These swindlers are hurting Midway trade, and the honest dealers do not hesitate to say so. But the exhibits are beautiful and a delight to the lover of the odd and foreign.

The Minnesota Building.

Of course, you will visit the Minnesota building, and you will wonder as you see it and the exhibits from the state elsewhere, how the managers have done so much for so little money, and in so short a time.

The building is in colonial style, with high pillars and a spacious front porch covering the entire front. As you enter the building you are in the main reception room, where will be found a register, arranged for visitors to record their names, stating where they are stopping in the city, as well as where they are from, thus enabling acquaintances to find each other. There is also a postoffice, where Minnesota people can receive and send their mail. On the right hand of this reception room is the ladies' parlor, elegantly fitted with easy chairs, lounges, writing desk, piano, etc. On the left hand side of the reception room is the gentlemen's parlor and reading room, which is also finely furnished. Up stairs will be found a commodious smoking and reading room for gentlemen, as well as various other rooms for the use of the employes. Almost the entire wall space of the building, up stairs and down, is occupied by the state educational exhibit. It is universally conceded by visitors that the Minnesota educational exhibit surpasses that of any state in the Liberal Arts building. A notable feature of the furnishings is that they are very largely made from Minnesota grass twine. Every Minnesotan is invited to make this building a haven for rest and information.

In the Agricultural building will be found the Minnesota booth, which stands opposite New York, and is much more massive, and architecturally superior. The display is the most complete, unique and best arranged of any exhibit in the building. Over this booth are paintings made for the occasion, showing the wholesale and milling districts of St. Paul and Minneapolis.

In the Dairy building the model of our new state capitol in butter is nearing completion. It is enclosed in a large plate glass case. The dome and upper portion of the building is already completed, and when entirely finished will be the most novel exhibit on the grounds.

The Minnesota mining booth in the Mining building is one surmounted with paintings showing our great iron mines and the increase of mining and shipment.

In the Manufacturing building is the Minnesota flour booth, which fitly illustrates the claim that Minnesota is the bread and butter state.

Minnesota Day.

The central feature of the editors' visit in Buffalo was Minnesota day, the dedication of the state building. The arrangements and the manner in which they were carried out were a credit to the state, and brought to it more of notice and public attention than the several exhibits even. In addition to the editorial party, the governor and his staff, Senator Clapp, Congressman Stevens, the Rev. M. Meldrum, Secretary Hanson, Deputy Auditor Iverson, State Librarian Nelson, State Printer Whitney, Deputy Secretary Sjoblen and other state officials, there was a brigade of the state troops, 250 veterans of the Philippine contingent, headed by a splendid band. All assembled at the building, and the procession from there to the Temple of Music, where the formal ceremonies were held was certainly imposing. The exposition managers were greatly pleased, and said that it was not only the most elaborate parade of the exposition so far, but, in all the details, the dedication ceremonies set a pace which it would be difficult for other states to equal. Fully a thousand Minnesotans took part and thousands of interested spectators completely filled the large auditorium of the Temple of Music, where President Munro, of the State Editorial association, presided. The program there was as follows:

Presiding officer, W. J. Munro, president Minnesota Editorial association.

Assemble at Minnesota building at 11:30 o'clock, and march to Temple of Music, escorted by Minnesota National Guard and Exposition band.

Music.

Prayer—By Rev. A. B. Meldrum, of St. Paul.

Addresses—Hon. Rowland B. Mahany, of Buffalo; Hon. Moses E. Clapp, United States senator from Minnesota; Hon. F. C. Stevens, congressman Fourth Minnesota district; Dr. George H. Bridgman, president Hamline University, St. Paul.

Song—"America," the audience.

Return to the Minnesota building for refreshments.

The addresses were uniformly of a high order, and modestly proclaimed the glories of Minnesota, its wealth, resources, prosperity and importance in the economy of our country. The state exposition board, Alexander McDougall, president; John Marton, vice president, and H. P. Hall, secretary, deserve the utmost credit for arrangements, and the Editorial association certainly carried them out in a manner to not only do honor to the state, but to bring it great prominence and advantage.

When the great throng returned to the Minnesota building for refreshments it looked as if the miracle of the loaves and fishes would have to be repeated, but the board of managers proved adequate to the occasion and all were amply supplied, the battalion being given the right of way at the first table.

The Evening Reception.

That evening at Statler's the Minnesota Editorial association extended a reception to the governor and his staff and to the press of Buffalo. It was given in the dining hall, and it may give an idea of the size of this room to know that the reception and banquet following, at which about 500 persons were seated, occurred on one side of the dining hall, which was screened off, while dinner was served to hundreds of the guests of the hotel. In the other part, the social function and post prandial addresses and the regular service of the hotel in no way interfering with each other. At the head of the receiving line were President and Mrs. Munro, to whom the guests were presented, who, in turn, introduced them to Gov. and Mrs. Van Sant, the others in the receiving party being the executive committee of the association, Messrs C. C. Whitney, H. P. Hall, F. J. Meyst and David Romuley, and their ladies. Opposite, in full dress uniform, were the governor's staff: Gen. C. J. Monfort, Gen. A. A. Ames, Cols. Gustof Widell, Ira W. Bouch, John Pengilly, E. D. Evans, J. C. Miller, Robert Seng, E. Ozmun, James Elwin, Majors F. W. Betz, M. M. Garser, J. C. Donovan, J. C. Jensen.

Following the reception and banquet, during which the Statler orchestra rendered a musical programme, Mr. Munro, president of the Minnesota Editorial association, who presided, called upon Mr. C. W. Stanton, editor of the Appleton (Minn.) Press to extend a welcome to the Buffalo press and their friends, which he did most royally. Mr. J. B. Ford, of the Buffalo Commercial, president of the Buffalo Press Club, responded eloquently. Other speakers were Col. H. P. Rucker, special commissioner of the Pan-American exposition; H. P. Hall, of St. Paul; Rev. Patrick Cronin, editor of the Buffalo Catholic Union and Times; E. W. Randall, secretary of the Minnesota State Agricultural Society; Rowland B. Mahany, ex-congressman from Buffalo; Benjamin Moreley, of the Buffalo Times; Charles S. Mitchell, of the Alexandria (Minn.) Post-News, Herald; J. Balliett, of the Buffalo News; Gov. Van Sant and Rev. A. B. Meldrum, of St. Paul, in the order named. The Buffalo speeches, notably those of Father Cronin and Mr. Mahany, were very fine, and Minnesota sustained its part of the programme to the great credit of the speakers and the state.

Visit Niagara.

Friday morning, the 21st, the editorial party took a reluctant leave of the exposition. We went by boat down the river, a beautiful ride of sixteen miles, to just above Niagara Falls, where we boarded special cars of the electrical line on the Canadian side to Queenstown, and crossing the river there to Lewistown, took the Gorge electric line on the American side back to Niagara Falls. For miles we had the view of the falls, the precipitous bluffs, the rapids and the whirlpool, a ride that in its entirety, we believe, is the most attractive in the magnificence and grandeur of its landscape of any on this continent. The various companies owning the boats and electric lines have made a combination round trip rate of $1.75 from Buffalo, and every one should take this ride. At Niagara the editors were extended the courtesy of a ride down the incline railway to the foot of the falls, and liberty to inspect the power house where the power of Niagara is harnessed for man's uses. Nearly all also visited Goat Island, and some the great paper mill. In the evening an informal dance was tendered the party by the management of the International, Niagara's largest and leading hotel, where we stopped, and Gov. and Mrs. Van Sant did us the honor of leading the march.

At Toronto.

The next day was devoted to a trip to Toronto, and ended the sight-seeing of the excursion. Toronto was the only large Canadian city the editors had not visited in their excursions. We made the Rossin house headquarters and spent the day seeing this, in many ways, the greatest Canadian city. We were received with that lavish and cordial hospitality and good comradeship for which all Canada is so well known to Minnesota editors. Canadians excel in the kindliness of their entertainment, their courtesy to strangers, and the Minnesota Editorial Association having experienced it all the way from Victoria on the west to Quebec, cannot say too much in appreciation. The arrangements for the day had been inspired by the association's old friend, Mr. Will J. White, of the Canadian land department.

Our committee were met at the hotel by a committee of the Canadian Press Association, Mr. John A. Cooper, secretary, Mr. Law and others, and the programme for the day was outlined. The forenoon hours were devoted to inspecting the business district and Toronto's great stores. At noon Mayor Howland extended a formal reception to Gov. Van Sant and staff, Senator Clapp and the editorial party at McConkey's. Following this a delicious luncheon was served in the great dining hall, the health of the king and President McKinley were drank and "God Save the King" was followed by "America," all joining most heartily in both these national anthems. Mr. J. S. Willison, editor of the Toronto Globe, and ex-president of the Canadian Press Association, presided. First Vice President D. McGillicuddy, who was with us last year, and had come 150 miles to be present; Second Vice President J. Pettipiece, member of parliament; John A. Cooper, secretary, and A. F. Rutter, the king's printer, were also present, representing the Canadian press, while Mayor Howland, Alderman Cox and others, represented the city.

In an exceedingly graceful address of good fellowship and cordial international comity, Mr. Willison extended a welcome to the city. President Munro called upon Mr. Frank A. Day to respond for the Minnesota editors, which he did most happily, and Gov. Van Sant responded for the state, making one of those apt and forceful, little speeches, which have been a feature of this trip. Loud calls for Hall brought out the closing speech, and as always this Minnesota newspaper Nestor delighted every one with his wit and the appropriateness of his remarks.

During the afternoon a trolley ride extended by the city, took our party to every point of interest in the city. The magnificent city hall, where, from a tower 250 feet above the street level, the city and the country round and the lake with its shipping, can be seen, though miles distant, the handsome parliament buildings in Queen's Park, the University grounds adjoining, and their buildings, the other colleges, parks and public institutions, were all seen, and the residence of the lieutenant governor and other handsome homes, were visited. It is a splendid city; this queen of Middle Canada. It has an American way of doing things united with the best characteristics of the English city and the result is that it is bound to excel both in its conduct of municipal affairs and commercially.

Homeward Bound.

It was 11 o'clock, on time to the minute, when the Grand Trunk pulled us out for our return trip home. We breakfasted at Durand and dined at Chicago, and were turned over ahead of time to the Milwaukee to be taken safely back to our beloved Minnesota.

At Chicago occurred one of the happiest occasions of the entire trip. After a fine dinner had been served at the Dearborn street station, Mr. C. W. Stanton, on behalf of the association, in a few words expressing the excursionists' warm appreciation of President Munro and his efforts to make the trip a splendid one, presented him from them, a handsome diamond ring. President Munro amidst great applause, replied gracefully, acknowledging his thanks and his feelings of personal friendship for each member of the association; also he spoke of the labors of the executive committee, whose work, he said, one could not realize until he had served with them.

Mr. Stanton then again arose, saying that the committee had not been forgotten, and amidst welcoming shouts, presented each of them a handsome traveling case. Responses were called for and made by Messrs. Whitney, Hall, Stine and Meyst, while the applause that greeted them testified the ardent feeling each one had for them. It is certainly deserved. The planning of these trips, the securing of concessions and accommodations, the arranging of all details, handling of baggage, providing for the comfort of each member and looking for their personal welfare during the whole outing, entails an amount of executive ability and routine attention that it is hard to realize. As Mr. Statler's manager said: "We know that for the management of this hotel, with its thousands of guests, we have to have a system exact and perfect in every detail, but you people equal it." And Gov. Van Sant and every member of this party spoke of the remarkable smoothness with which our party was handled and the perfect system by which the trip was run. They wondered at it and repeatedly expressed their admiration at the way in which all friction was avoided, and all the members of the party relieved of trouble and worry and left to feel free to the enjoyment of their opportunities to see and learn. It is indeed unequaled by any other organization we have ever seen.

The following resolutions were offered and unanimously adopted:

"Resolved, That the absence of our good friends, Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Barnum, of St. Cloud, whose usual genial presence has added so much to the pleasures of previous trips, has been a cloud upon our enjoyment and that we extend to them the most fervent wishes for the restoration to health of our dear friends."

"Resolved, That this association is again under obligations to the A. N. Kellogg Newspaper Company, the Minnesota Type Foundry Company, the American Press Association and the American Type Founders Company, for the design and execution of the beautiful button and badge used for our annual excursion, and the association warmly extends its thanks to the genial representatives of these companies, Messrs. Frank J. Meyst, W. A. Potter, A. L. May and John Brondtjen, gentlemen who are always studious in promoting the welfare of the members of this association."

We reached St. Paul at 6:30 o'clock Monday morning, June 24. So closed this splendid trip; memorable for its pleasure and for the broader view and greater knowledge each one took back to this work in his own community.

EXCURSION STEAMER STRIKES A ROCK AND SINKS IN TWENTY MINUTES.

MEN PROVE THEMSELVES HEROES

Many Women at First Alarm Jump Overboard and Are Rescued by Cooler Heads of Excursionists and Crew—Believed That All Were Saved—Women and Children in Hysterics.

New York, July 1.—The steamer Mohawk, owned by John H. Starin and used by him in carrying excursionists to Glen Island, struck a rock Saturday afternoon at 5 o'clock just off New Rochelle with 900 passengers on board and sunk in less than twenty minutes. She lies in about forty feet of water between Fort Slocum and Davenport's Neck. It is believed that all of the passengers escaped, although there are a few of them who are yet unaccounted for. The excursionists owe their lives to the coolness of the captain and crew of the sunken vessel and to the action of the men passengers, who bravely helped the women and children to get into life preservers and boats before Making Their Escape.

The passengers were employes of the John W. Green hat factories of Danbury, Conn. About one-half of them were women and children. The excursionists spent the day at the island and had a good time taking in the sights. The boat started back for South Norfolk at 5 o'clock with the band playing. She got well under way and was going up the sound at a good pace when just off Fort Slocum the passengers felt a sudden jar. They did not pay much attention to the shock until the steam from the boiler room came rushing up from below. Then the boat began to pound, and a shout went up from the lower decks that she had struck a rock.

A Panic Was On.

By this time everybody aboard realized that the boat was sinking and a panic was on. People rushed up the companionways to the upper decks and began to tear down the life preservers. The captain and crew ran among them and tried to quiet them. "Don't jump overboard," they shouted. "There is no danger; everybody will have time to get ashore." They succeeded in keeping fairly good order among the men, but most of the women and children were in hysterics and many sprang overboard. Several steamers and sailboats in the vicinity came quickly to the rescue and took the passengers out of the water. The party was taken to South Newark, from which city they went by train to Danbury.

INDIA'S GROWTH ON DECREASE.

Blue Book Just Issued Shows Over £18,000,000 Expended in Famine Relief.

London, July 1.—A blue book on India, just issued, shows that £18,390,000 was expended for the relief of famine sufferers during the year 1899-1900. The mortality from the plague for the five years ending March, 1901, was nearly 600,000. The census completed in March, 1901, shows that the increase in population during the last ten years was only 5,000,000 to 6,000,000, instead of the normal 19,000,000. The loss represents deaths from famine and the deaths in consequence of the famine.

DEATH PREFERRED.

Brewery Superintendent Would Not Face a Charge of Shortage.

Chicago, July 1.—Rather than face a charge of being short $1,200 in his accounts W. C. Gross, superintendent of the South side branch of the Wacker & Birk Brewing company, attempted to end his life yesterday by stabbing himself with a pocket knife and sending a bullet into his left breast. The attempt at suicide was made in the basement of the office and at the time Frank M. Hartz, cashier of the company, was waiting in the place to inspect the superintendent's books.

FELL ASLEEP ACROSS TRACK.

Freight Train Cut Body of Engineer Arthur Hart in Two.

Columbus, Ohio, July 1.—Arthur Hart, an engineer, got out of his cab at New Salem, thirty-five miles south of here, to turn the switch to allow a south-bound freight to pass. While waiting Hart fell asleep with his body across the track. The fireman in the cab heard a scream, but when he arrived at the spot Hart was dead.

STEAMER IS LOST.

Goes Down on the North Shore of Lake Superior.

Toledo, Ohio, July 1.—A telegram received here from Fort William, Ont., reports the loss of the steamer Preston, lumber laden, on the north shore of Lake Superior. The message is from Capt. W. J. Harlow, owner of the steamer, and says: "Preston lost; crew all saved; will write."

Ditch Caves In on Two Men.

Fergus Falls, Minn., July 1.—Reports of a serious accident in Legrand, Douglas county say that John Benson and his son, together with a young man named Hjelmer Herbert, were engaged in digging a ditch when the sides of the excavation gave away, burying Mr. Benson, Sr., and Herbert. The younger Benson had climbed out of the ditch a few minutes before.

Butterfield May Die.

Newburg, N. Y., July 1.—Gen. Daniel Butterfield, who has been ill at his home in Cold Springs for about a month, is now rapidly failing. It is believed he cannot recover. He failed considerably Sunday.

Reille's Battery Is Home.

San Francisco, July 1.—Capt. Reille's battery of light artillery, which took a prominent part in the war in China, arrived here on the transport Peking. There are four officers and 136 men in the battery.

STRIKERS ARRESTED.

Will Break Up the Fighting End of the Strikers' Troubles.

Thacker, W. Va., July 1.—Detective T. L. Felts, assisted by John Justice, deputy United States marshal, and a posse of six men, went to the Kentucky side of Tug river early yesterday morning and captured nine persons who were charged with terrorizing the miners on the West Virginia side of the river for the past ten days by shooting at all who could not give the proper strikers' sign as they passed along the railroad. They were all brought to this place and held under a heavy guard awaiting the train to take them before a Kentucky judge who remanded them to Judge Jackson at Parkersburg, this state. They were surprised in their sleep with their Winchesters under their pillows and surrendered with but little resistance. Even their guard was captured asleep on duty. It is generally believed that this will break up the fighting end of the strikers' troubles and that their differences will soon be compromised in a satisfactory way to all concerned. Charles Burke, president of the local union of United Mine Workers of America, was arrested by deputy United States Marshal Hufford and Detective Felt and taken to Parkersburg to appear before Judge Jackson on the charge of tearing down the notices of the injunction granted by Judge Jackson.

MARTIAL LAW IN PANAMA.

Considerable Fighting Is in Progress in the Interior.

Kingston, Jam., July 1.—The steamer Orinoco, which arrived here yesterday from Colon, Colombia, reports that martial law has been proclaimed in Panama, owing to a report that the rebel forces are being reorganized. It also appears that considerable fighting is in progress in the interior and that the government is dispatching reinforcements, arms and ammunition to the garrisons in the interior and also to certain coast towns. It is further reported that stringent precautions are taken in Panama in consequence of the fear that the rebels will attack the city. Similar conditions obtain at Colon. The government's alleged cruelty to political prisoners is said to be the cause of the refusal of the Liberals to accept the peace terms.

SHAFTER OUT OF IT.

Goes on the Retired List—Four Regiments Mustered Out.

San Francisco, July 1.—Two important military events occurred at the Presidio yesterday, the retirement of Maj. Gen. W. R. Shafter and the mustering out of four volunteer regiments. Gen. Shafter went on the retired list at noon, when he formally transferred the command of the department of California to Maj. Gen. S. M. B. Young. In the afternoon the Forty-fourth, Forty-eighth, Forty-ninth and Thirty-eighth volunteer regiments were mustered out. The mustering out of the four regiments required the services of eight paymasters. Over $1,000,000 was disbursed.

THUMPED BY STRIKERS.

Three Men Receive a Severe Beating—One in a 'Dangerous' Condition.

Knoxville, Tenn., July 1.—Three of the employes of the Southern railway shops at this place who took the places of striking machinists were enticed out of the city limits last night and badly beaten. One of the injured men is in a dangerous condition. They are Frenchmen who claim they did not know a strike was on when they came to Knoxville. They accompanied a number of men to a saloon. They refused to drink intoxicants, but were induced to cross the river where they were beaten with clubs and cut with knives and then left alone.

LULU KENNEDY SENTENCED.

Verdict Against Woman Who Killed Her Husband Made Effective.

Kansas City, July 1.—Mrs. Lulu Prince-Kennedy was formally sentenced by Judge Wofford to serve ten years in the state penitentiary for the murder of her husband, Philip Kennedy, in January last. She heard the sentence without the slightest display of emotion. After the sentence Chas. H. Nenring, counsel for Mrs. Kennedy, stated that he expected to appeal the case to the supreme court, but that it had not been decided whether she would immediately begin her sentence.

HERMIT ROBBED, THEN HANGED.

Bachelor Recluse Is Nearly Killed by Brutal Thieves.

Lincoln, Neb., July 1.—A hermit bachelor named Wohlenburg was slugged and robbed in his room. Robbers tied his hands and feet and strung him up with a rope about the neck to an iron hook on the wall, leaving him. His cries attracted friends in time to cut him down and save his life, although black in the face from strangling. Two suspects have been arrested.

$1,800 for a Pearl.

Lansing, Iowa, July 1.—This city bids fair to become famous for the many fine pearls found here. One Saturday sold for $1,800. It was found by an old Swede named Benson on the clam bed which produced the famous Queen Mary about a month ago, and although weighing less, 66 grains, is a much finer and more valuable gem. No less than twelve pearls were found here one day last week, but the Benson pearl will probably go down in history as the finest of them all.

Three Negroes Killed on a Train.

Macon, Ga., July 1.—Three negroes who were riding on top of an excursion train between Atlanta and Macon were knocked off by a bridge and killed.

Bishop Potter's Wife Dead.

New York, July 1.—Mrs. Eliza Rogers Potter, wife of the Rt. Rev. Henry C. Potter, Protestant Episcopal bishop of New York, died suddenly yesterday morning. Death was due to heart failure, superinduced by the intense heat.

Dr. Sunderland Dead.

Catskill, July 1.—Rev. Dr. Byron Sunderland of Washington, D. C., died here of cerebral embolism yesterday morning at the home of his son-in-law, Orin Day, president of the Leners National bank.

Smiley's watching 'im.

For the benefit of ourselves, the community at large, and other editors who may be similary aggrieved we reproduce the following from the pen of Editor Pease of Anoka Union: About two minutes by the watch each week after the Union's edition is entirely printed, some fellow will take occasion to tell me of some good news item, and if I had any hair on the top of my head, where the hair ought to be, every one would stand on end with righteous indignation. Now I dont care a naughty swear word for items of news after the paper has gone to press, but I do before, and no fellow is a friend of mine who fails to tell me news when it can be used.

The following is a pretty good expression of a man's feelings after one of the accidental happinesses that come to man sometimes. It is from the Le Sueur News:

It is a pitiful mistake, an error sad and grim; I waited for a railroad train, the light was low and dim. It came at last and from the car there stepped a dainty dame; and, looking up and down the place, she straight unto me came. "Oh Jack," she cried "Oh, dear old Jack!" And kissed me as she spake. Then looked again and frightened cried "Oh what a bad mistake." I said: "Forgive me, maiden fair, for I am not your Jack; and as regards the kiss you gave, I'll straightway give it back." And since that night I've often stood upon the platform dim; but only once in a man's whole life do such things come to him.

In the recent supreme court ruling in the Adams and Cunningham cases vs Thief River Falls and the Great Northern railway company one of the principal points touched upon in the case is the liability of local town boards, municipalities in case of accidents where roads are in any way defective. The supreme court holds in substance that they are liable if they have not used the best efforts in their power to make the roads absolutely safe for all kinds of traffic. In this connection we would call the attention of our town boards throughout the county to the ruling of the court and remind them that in case of accidents they may have to answer to charges similar to those cited. Especially is this applicable to the supervisors of River Falls township, who in our opinion should maintain in good condition the road leading to the iron bridge over the Red Lake River at St Hilaire. There is a lot of traffic over that bridge and the road is in dangerous condition. Prompt action may save future trouble.

Drawing the Line.

A good story is told in Missouri at the expense of its once famous governor, Claiborne F. Jackson. Before he solved the enigma of lovelock he had married five sisters in reasonable lapses of consecutiveness. After one wife had been lost, and appropriately mourned he espoused another, and he kept his courting within a narrow circle of his own relatives, for he rather liked the family.

The antiquated father of these girls was almost deaf, and when the governor went to this octogenarian to ask for his surviving daughter the following conversation ensued:

"I want Lizzie."

"Eh?"

"I want you to let me have Eliza-beth."

"Oh, you want Lizzie, do you? What for?"

"For my wife."

"For life."

"I want—to—marry—her."

"Oh, yes. Just so. I hear you, boy."

"I'm precious glad you do," muttered the governor.

"Well," slowly responded the veteran, "you needn't halloo so that the whole neighborhood knows it. Yes, you can have her. You've got 'em all now, my lad, but for goodness' sake, if anything happens to that 'ere poor misguided gal, don't come and ask me for the old woman!"

Jackson solemnly promised that he never would.

Origin of "Whig."

Several reasons have been assigned to account for the word "Whig," universally known to all the English speaking people. By some the word is supposed to be a contraction of a longer one, "whiggamore," which in some parts of England and Scotland, especially Scotland, signifies a drover or herder.

It was in 1679 that the word first became common in the British isles, when the struggle was in progress between the peasantry and the aristocracy to have or not to have the bill passed by parliament to exclude the Duke of York from the line of succession. All who were opposed to placing the duke in the line of succession were derisively called "whiggamores," or "drovers," just as the city dude of today speaks of the "grangers," the "grays," the "chin whiskers" and the "hayseeders."

But Scotch tradition gives altogether a different reason for the existence of the word. It is this: During the early religious wars in Scotland the weakest of the factions used the words "We Hope In God" as a motto. The initials of these words were placed on their banners thus, "W. H. I. G.," and soon all the followers of that clan were given the title of "Whig," which was afterward attached as a party nickname.

Journalistic Errors.

I do not allude to what are obviously mere misprints, such as when The Morning Post announced at the head of its fashionable intelligence that Lord Palmerston had gone down into Hampshire with a party of fiends to shoot peasants, but I refer to blunders due to crass ignorance of a pretentious order. Perhaps the best instance was when one of the "young lions" of The Daily Telegraph in a leading article enumerated the great masters of Greek sculpture as Phidias, Praxiteles and Milo, ignorant of the fact that Milo is not a sculptor, but an island.

The Times was even worse when, mistaking Prussia for Austria, it devoted a whole leader to discussing why Prussia had joined the zollverein. The Saturday Review once explained at great length that the population might be nourished gratuitously on young lambs if killed unweaned before they had begun to crop grass, having therefore cost nothing to feed. Many other instances will doubtless occur to your readers.—Notes and Queries.

A Mixed Wedding Party.

"The college roommate of a friend of mine was engaged to a lady in New York," writes the Rev. D. M. Steele in his article on "Some People I Have Married" in The Ladies' Home Journal. "His people are Congregationalists, but while at Yale he became a Unitarian. Her parents are Roman Catholics, but she was a member of the Ethical Culture society at Carnegie hall. In compliance with her mother's wish he asked five different priests to marry them, but all refused. In despair he came for me. I married them, an Episcopalian, with the ritual service in a Presbyterian chapel. The Roman Catholic brother of the bride and the Congregational sister of the groom were present. This sister acted as one witness; the other witness was a Jewess."

Careful Statement.

"Was this man Dennis an entire stranger to you?" asked the cross examining counsel of a witness in an important case.

"Sorr?" said the witness, whose stupid face was crossed with wrinkles of anxiety, for he had been warned to be cautious and exact in his answers.

The lawyer repeated his question.

"Well, no, sorr," said the witness, with a sudden gleam of enlightenment, "He couldn't be that, for he had but the wan arrm, sorr, but he was a parrtial stranger, sorr. Oi'd niver seen him befoor."—Youth's Companion.

Something Which He Learned.

A soft answer has not only the effect of turning away wrath. It may serve to avenge an injury. Years ago the Rev. J. H. Jones was making a visit in Boston and attended a biweekly conference at Divinity hall. Just at that time he was out of sorts with the east, and his address reflected an acrid mood. Especially did he insist that "They didn't know everything down in Judee or even in Cambridge."

When he sat down, there was a momentary hush, and then the late Dean Everett slowly rose. He began in his usual soft and hesitating tone, "There are doubtless a great many things which Mr. Jones knows and we do not know, but there are also a few things which we know and he does not."

Then followed a pause, during which each man held his breath, for the dean was known to carry on his lips a dagger which sometimes found its unerring way to the hearts of men and things, but after due pause he continued gently:

"And chief among them is how glad we always are to see him."—Youth's Companion.

Betraying Buckles.

General Dubesme was a distinguished French veteran, slain by the Prussians after the rout of Waterloo. He was full of resource and had great skill and presence of mind. At Pescara, when he was in great danger, a large fortress in front and a savage insurrection in his rear, his own common sense saved him.

"Who commands at Pescara?" he asked a soldier.

"There are two."

"What is the grade of the chief in command?"

"A brigadier general."

"His name?"

"De Pietramaggiore."

"His title?"

"A marquis."

"His age?"

"About 70."

"Is he well preserved? Does he keep his color?"

"He is thin and pallid."

"Is his voice strong and manly?"

"It is weak and dull."

"Is he lively, gay?"

"Neither the one nor the other."

"What does he wear on his head?"

"He is powdered, and his hair is done in locks."

"Has he boots and spurs?"

"No; he wears silk stockings, shoes and great buckles."

"Great buckles!" cried Dubesme. "Bring up the guns and begin firing! The place is mine!"

—LONGFELLOW.

Selfishness runs in families.

Every lot of hogs has some "runts."

Everybody thinks drugs are all profit.

Very few people ever get a cablegram.

How do you like the man who is always trying to sell you?

Every time a widower comes to town every old girl's heart flutters.

The only way you can get along with some people is by jollying them.

Some people's parlors are never opened except when there is company.

A girl dressed up to go to church never looks like she does at any other time.

Women can get up an interesting discussion about giving parties, any time.

A girl with a pretty mother is unlucky because she is rarely ever good looking.

When a man starts to wear a straw hat, everybody asks if he is not crowding the season.

Prohibitionists at a convention always patronize a hotel that nobody else ever heard of.

It is instinct which causes a tiny girl to hold up her skirts when going across a muddy crossing.

If you think other people ask fool questions, don't forget that they may think the same of you.

Everybody hauling telephone poles is not building telephone lines. He may be building a pole barn.

A man who works for his father-in-law is just as respectable as anybody, but everybody laughs at him.

The proudest moment in parents' lives is when their first kid is big enough to be sent on an errand.

The locomotive whistle in your own town may not bother you, but have you ever noticed how quickly it wakes you in a strange town.

If a loafer happens to be standing with a lot of working men as the one o'clock whistle blows, it doesn't bother him a bit to see them all go to work.

On last Wednesday night some thieves got in their work on a couple of Red Lake Falls business houses. Joe Paradis had his cash register removed from his saloon and carried off. It was found later—empty. Matt Skele was also called upon and furnished a few dollars before the robbers quit the town.

The Crookston Gun Club's Annual tournament was pulled off last week and was a record breaker. B. Seymour editor of the East Grand Forks Courier carried high honors with an average of 96 per cent. About thirty-five guns took part in the shoot. Attorney W. E. Rowe of Crookston made a record of 92 per cent. Mr. Hirschy, a professional, who travels for the Hazard gunpowder concern, made a record of 96½ per cent but was barred from sharing in the prize money.

E. Peterson, an employe of the Nelson Bros.' saw mill at Blackduck, had his left arm cut off on the big circular saw at the mill on Thursday. He was down in the pit arranging a belt when in some manner he stumbled onto the large and rapidly revolving saw. His arm was entirely severed above the elbow and was hanging in shreds of the clothing when the unfortunate men emerged from the pit and called attention to the accident.—Thirteen Towns, Fosston.

The World's Commerce.

In the swift changes which are taking place in the geography and politics of the world, it is well to remember that the greatest prizes to be won are in commerce, not in war or politics. The total amount of commerce of the world amounts to $18,000,000,000. It makes a change of money and products amounting to almost three millions of dollars every hour of every day of the year.

Another significant and important transaction is the turning of tons of the finest barley and prime hops into "Golden Grain Belt" beer, the purest and best beverage for men or women. If you are run down in health or lacking in energy, you need a tonic and nerve food. Try a case in your home. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex. Thompson, Crookston.

—Julius Pleth, the land man of St. Hilaire wants to buy farm lands—wild or improved, and will pay spot cash for same.

Council Proceedings.

Special meeting of the village council Saturday June 29, 1901.

All members present except Jones.

Meeting called to order by Pres. Ives.

There being no objections, on motion J. W. Peterson, J. J. Soll, J. B. Senate, M. E. Bjerk, P. G. Paradis and Brink Bros., were each granted a license to sell intoxicating liquors for a period of one year commencing on the first day of July 1901, after each paying the sum of $250.00 to the treasurer of school district No. 102 and $250.00 to the treasurer of the village of St. Hilaire and giving a sufficient bond to be approved by the President of the village council.

On motion meeting adjourned.

Attest:—
J. L. JOHNSON, Recorder.
H. E. IVES, President.

—Do you want to sell your farm? Julius Pleth, the land man of St. Hilaire wants to buy it and will pay cash.

—If you want to buy good cheap improved farms call on Gigstad & Burkee.

D. 1901 for the action of said board thereon.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that a hearing of parties interested in the matter of said petition will be granted at the next session of said board commencing on the 8th day of July A. D. 1901 at the office of the County Auditor in Red Lake Falls in said county.

By order of the Board of County Commissioners.
ADAM ZEH,
Clerk of the Board.

It is probably true that almost every man has in him certain qualities which would draw some woman to him, but it is difficult to frame a statement in general terms of "What Women Like in Men." This is the task which a very well-known author, under the nom-de-plume of Rafford Pyke has undertaken in The Cosmopolitan for July in a clever essay which proves him to have made woman the subject of thorough observation and comprehensive study. "The foreign girl," says the author, "marries the man with whom she will be happy, the American marries the man without whom she will be unhappy.

To the Teachers of Red Lake County.

You are hereby notified that the third annual summer school will convene in the high school building in the city of Red Lake Falls Monday, July 8th, at 8 o'clock a. m., and will continue four weeks. Prof. P. J. Kuntz will again have charge of the school and he will ably be assisted by Prof. A. M. Locker, of Wabasha, a specialist in several branches, especially music. This school has been secured upon the promise of a large attendance; it is for your benefit and it is earnestly desired that you make it a success by attending the whole term. Several new features will be introduced into the work this year, among them being the model school taught by one of the teachers. Instruction in music and elocution will be another important factor in the success of the school. Due consideration will be given certificates of attendance both in the fall examinations which will be held immediately after the close of the session, and in my recommendation of teachers for the schools of the county.

You are advised that the law permits you to close your school in order to attend the training school and in the few instances where there is but one or two weeks left of the term, I would suggest that you arrange to have it put into the next years term in order that you may be present the first week. All persons over 15 years of age are eligible to attend, provided they expect to teach. Again I urge you to attend and insist that none will be excused without a good and valid reason.

Yours truly,
FRANK JEFFERS,
County Superintendent.

Rival to Silken Fans.

A man without sense of romance has invented and patented a mechanichal hand fan, and sets it up as a rival of the toy gauze and lace which has been a feminine weapon through untold ages. His fan buzzes and is not beautiful, but it provides a steady drought of cool air.

In appearance it is a cross between an egg-beater and a glove-stretcher. It is made of wood and brass, and he asserts that, in expert hands, it can be made to reach a speed of 8,000 revolutions per minute, and will throw a current of air as far as an electric fan of the same size.

It works by compressing in the hand two wooden handles of a glove-stretcher-like arrangement. A rotchet and two small cog wheels at the end of the arms transmit the force to the blades of the fan, which are miniature electric fan blades. Both of these are detachable, so that the fan may be easily carried when not in use.

The inventor says that he has disposed of 4,000 of his hand fans in a few months. He isn't sanguine of its general adoption by the gentler sex, but he thinks that lots of men would use it in hot weather. Sentiment ought not to play any part in comfort-seeking, he says, but has to admit that it generally does.—New York Sun.

Better Than "Christian Science."

Jetmore, Kans., July 1st.—Mrs. Anna Jones Freeman, daughter of Mr. G. O. Jones of Burdett, and one of the most popular ladies in Hodgeman County, has been a martyr to headache. It has made her life a continual misery to her. She suffered pains in the small of the back, and had every symptom of Kidney and Urinary Trouble.

To-dayshe is as well as any lady in the state.

To-day she is as well as any lady in tirely to a remedy recently introduced here. It is called Dodd's Kidney Pills, and many people claim it to be an infallible cure for Kidney Diseases, Rheumatism and Heart Trouble.

Mrs. Freeman heard of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and almost with the first dose she grew better. In a week her headaches and other pains had gone, and she had left behind her all her illness and days of misery.

A medicine that can do for any one what Dodd's Kidney Pills have done for this lady, is very sure soon to be universally used, and already the demand for these pills has increased wonderfully in Pawnee and Hodgeman Counties, where the particulars of Mrs. Freemans case and its cure are known.

His Final Farewell.

A Billville citizen came to the editor and asked him to write a fitting obituary on the citizen's deceased spouse.

"How old was she?" asked the editor.

"I never heard her say."

"She was gentle and lovable, wasn't she?"

"Well, jest toilable."

"Had bright hopes of the hereafter?"

"Well, to tell the truth, an' nuthin' but the truth, I think the hereafter wuz most too bright to suit her!"

"But you want to say that she is safe in the Promised Land, don't you?"

The citizen thought a moment. Then he said:

"I reckon you'll have to put it down that way; but I was kinder headin' that myself!"—Atlanta Constitution.

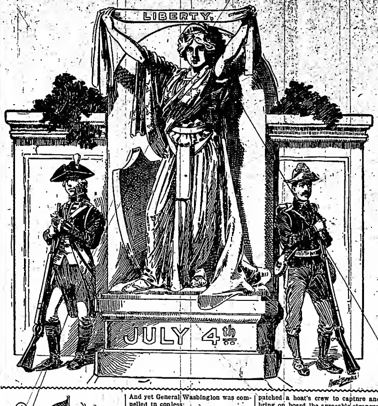
CONSUMPTION



O say, can you see, by the dawn's early light,
What so proudly we hail'd at the twilight's last gleaming—
Whose broad stripes and bright stars, through the clouds of the fight,
O'er the ramparts we watched were so gallantly streaming!
And the rocket's red glare, the bombs bursting in air,
Gave proof through the night that our flag was still there;
O say, does that star-spangled banner yet wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave?

On that shore dimly seen through the mists of the deep,
Where the foe's haughty host in dread silence reposes,
What is that which the breeze, o'er the towering steep,
As it fitfully blows, now conceals, now discloses?
Now it catches the gleam of the morning's first beam,
In full glory reflected now shines on the stream;
'Tis the star-spangled banner; O long may it wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave!

And where is that band who so vauntingly swore
That the havoc of war and the battle's confusion
A home and a country should leave us no more?
Their blood has washed out their foul footsteps' pollution.
No refuge could save the hireling and slave
From the terror of flight or the gloom of the grave;
And the star-spangled banner in triumph doth wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave.

O! thus be it ever, when freemen shall stand
Between their loved homes and the war's desolation!
Blest with victory and peace, may the heav'n-rescued land
Praise the power that hath made and preserved us a nation.
Then conquer we must, when our cause it is just,
And this be our motto—"In God is our trust!"
And the star-spangled banner in triumph shall wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave.

Captain Nathan Hale, A Martyr of the Revolution.

General Washington wanted a man. It was in September, 1776, at the City of New York, a few days after the battle of Long Island. The swift and deep East River flowed between the two hostile armies, and General Washington had as yet no system established for getting information of the enemy's movements and intentions. He never needed such information so much as at that crisis.

What would General Howe do next? If he cross at Hell Gate, the American army, too small in numbers, and defeated the week before, might be caught on Manhattan island as in a trap, and the issue of the contest might be made to depend upon a single battle; for to such circumstances defeat would involve the capture of the whole army.

CAPT. HALE DISGUISED AS A DUTCH SCHOOLMASTER.

And yet General Washington was compelled to confess:

"We cannot learn, nor have we been able to possess, the least information of late."

Therefore he wanted a man. He wanted an intelligent man, cool-headed, skillful, brave, to cross the East River to Long Island, enter the enemy's camp and get information as to his strength and intentions. He went to Colonel Knowlton, commandig a remarkably efficient regiment from Connecticut, and requested him to ascertain if this man so sorely needed could be found in his command. Colonel Knowlton called his officers together, stated the wishes of General Washington, and, without urging the enterprise upon any individual, left the matter to their reflections.

Captain Nathan Hale, a brilliant youth of 21, recently graduated from Yale college, was one of those who reflected upon the subject. He soon reached a conclusion. He was of the very flower of the young men of New England, and one of the best of the younger soldiers of the patriot army. He had been educated for the ministry, and his motive in adopting for a time the profession of arms was purely patriotic. This we know from the familiar records of his life at the time when the call to arms was first heard.

In addition to his other gifts and graces, he was handsome, vigorous and athletic, all in an extraordinary degree. If he had lived in our day he might have pulled the stroke oar at New London or pitched for the college nine.

The officers were conversing in a group. No one had as yet spoken the decisive word. Colonel Knowlton appealed to a French sergeant, an old soldier of former wars, and asked him to volunteer.

"No, no," said he. "I am ready to fight the British at any place and time, but I do not feel willing to go among them to be hung up like a dog."

Captain Hale joined the group of officers. He said to Colonel Knowlton:

"I will undertake it."

Some of his best friends remonstrated. One of them, afterwards the famous Gen. William Hull, then a captain in Washington's army, has recorded Hale's reply to his own attempt to dissuade him.

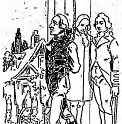
"I think," said Hale, "I owe to my country the accomplishment of an object so important. I am fully sensible of the consequences of discovery and capture in such a situation. But for a year I have been attached to the army, and have not rendered any material service, while receiving a compensation for which I make no return. I wish to be useful, and every kind of service necessary for the public good becomes honorable by being necessary."

He spoke, as General Hull remembered, with earnestness and decision, as one who had considered the matter well, and had made up his mind.

Having received his instructions, he traveled fifty miles along the Sound as far as Norwalk, in Connecticut. One who saw him there made a very wise remark upon him, to the effect that he was "too good looking" to go as a spy. He could not deceive. "Some scrubby fellow ought to have gone." At Norwalk he assumed the disguise of a Dutch schoolmaster, putting on a suit of plain brown clothes and a round, broad-brimmed hat. He had no difficulty in crossing the Sound, since he bore an order from General Washington which placed at his disposal all the vessels belonging to Congress. For several days everything appears to have gone well with him, and there is reason to believe that he passed through the entire British army without detection or even exciting suspicion.

Finding the British had crossed to New York, he followed them. He made his way back to Long Island, and nearly reached the point opposite Norwalk where he had originally landed. Rendered, perhaps, too bold by success, he went into a well-known and popular tavern, entered into conversation with the guests and made himself very agreeable. The tradition is that he made himself too agreeable. A man present, suspecting or knowing that he was not the character he had assumed, quietly left the room, communicated his suspicions to the captain of a British ship anchored near, who dispatched a boat's crew to capture and bring on board the agreeable stranger. His true character was immediately revealed. Drawings of some of the British works, with notes in Latin, were found hidden in the soles of his shoes. Nor did he attempt to deceive his captors, and the English captain, lamenting, as he said, that "so fine a fellow had fallen into his power," sent him to New York in one of his boats, and with him the fatal proofs that he was a spy.

September 21st was the day on which he reached New York—the day of the great fire which laid one-third of the little city in ashes. From the time of his departure from General Washington's camp to that of his return to New York was about fourteen days. He was taken to General Howe's headquarters at the Beekman mansion, on the East river, near the corner of the present Fifty-first street and First avenue. It is a strange coincidence that the house to which he was brought to be tried as a spy was the very one from which Major Andre departed when he went to West Point. Tradition says that Captain Hale was examined in a greenhouse which then stood in the garden of the Beekman mansion.



"I ONLY REGRET THAT I HAVE BUT ONE LIFE TO LOSE FOR MY COUNTRY."

Short was his trial, for he avowed at once his true character. The British general signed an order to his provost-marshal directing him to receive into his custody the prisoner convicted as a spy, and to see him hanged by the neck "tomorrow morning at daybreak."

Terrible things are reported of the manner in which this noble prisoner, this admirable gentleman and hero, was treated by his jailer and executioner. There are savages in every large army, and it is possible that this provost-marshal was one of them. It is said that he refused him writing materials, and afterward, when Captain Hale had been furnished them by others, destroyed before his face his last letters to his mother and to the young lady to whom he was engaged to be married. As those letters were never received, this statement may be true. The other alleged horrors of the execution it is safe to disregard, because we know it was conducted in the usual form and in the presence of many spectators and a considerable body of troops. One fact shines out from the distracting confusion of that morning, which will be cherished to the latest posterity as a precious ingot of the moral treasures of the American people. When asked if he had anything to say, Captain Hale replied:

"I only regret that I have but one life to lose for my country."

The scene of his execution was probably an old graveyard in Chambers street, which was then called Barrock street. General Howe formally notified General Washington of his execution. In recent years, through the industry of investigators, the pathos and sublimity of these events have been in part revealed.

A few years ago a bronze statue of the young hero was unveiled in the New York City Hall Park. It is greatly to be regretted that our knowledge of this noble martyr is so slight; but we know enough to be sure that he merits the veneration of his countrymen.

HEAT IS INTENSE

HOT WAVE EXTENDS OVER A WIDE AREA AND CAUSES MUCH SUFFERING.

HEAT CAUSES NUMEROUS DEATHS

Remarkably High Temperatures Shown by Weather Reports—Poor Prospect of Immediate Relief—Many Deaths and Prostrations in New York—Awful Scorching in Chicago.

Washington, July 1. — Intense heat prevailed here all day and far into the night. The sun shone with relentless fury from a cloudless sky all day and there was scarcely a breath of air to temper the atmosphere. During the afternoon the temperature at the weather bureau was 98 degrees, and it maintained a high record throughout the evening. Reports to the weather bureau from points through the hot wave area show remarkably high temperatures generally, with little or no rainfall, and but poor prospects for any substantial relief in the next forty-eight hours in the eastern part of the country. In the South Atlantic and Middle and East Gulf states there were local rains and thunderstorms yesterday, and in the extreme Northwest cooler weather came from local showers. High temperatures continued in districts east of the Rocky mountains. At New York the maximum, 98 degrees, broke the record there for June, and at Philadelphia the maximum, 98, equaled the highest temperature previously recorded there.

Some of the high temperatures reported at the bureau were the following: Atlantic City, 94; Boston, 92; Chicago, 96; Cincinnati, 96; Davenport, Iowa, 98; Denver, 94; Des Moines, 96; Indianapolis, 94; Jacksonville, 94; Kansas City, 98; Little Rock, 90; Marquette, Mich., 96; Memphis, 90; New Orleans, 94; North Platte, Neb., 92; Omaha, 98; Pittsburg, 94; St. Paul, 90; Springfield, Ill., 98; Vicksburg, Miss., 90; Washington, D. C., 98, and St. Louis, 100.

Many Deaths in New York.

New York, July 1.—The relief from the killing heat of the past week which was promised yesterday in the shape of thunderstorms, did not materialize. Instead, the temperature increased, there was less breeze than the day before, and what little air did stir was surcharged with heat. There was scarcely a cloud all day to shield the city's populace from the sun's beaming rays. As it was Sunday, when the majority of the city's workers were idle, the list of deaths and prostrations from the heat was slightly decreased over that of Saturday. In spite of this fact, however, eleven deaths and nineteen prostrations were reported up to 9 o'clock last night. There were several deaths and prostrations in Brooklyn. Various points throughout New England report extremely high temperature.

Victims of Heat.

Pittsburg, July 1.—Between midnight Saturday and midnight Sunday eleven deaths directly traceable to the effects of heat and fifteen prostrations are recorded. In addition to this many children have succumbed as evidenced by the burial permits issued. In the past eighteen hours fifty-nine permits have been issued, three-fourths of which were for children under four years of age. The normal death rate is sixteen.

CHICAGO ROASTED.

Heat Breaks All Records Since 1872.

Chicago, July 1.—The heat in Chicago yesterday broke all records for June since 1872. For three hours in the afternoon the government thermometer in the weather bureau at the top of the Auditorium tower registered 97. In many places in the street it was 101 and 106. A northwest breeze brought some relief after nightfall, but at 11 o'clock the mercury was again soaring around 90. There was intense suffering throughout the city, especially in the poorer districts and the police ambulances were kept busy picking up victims who had succumbed to the heat. No fatalities were reported, but several of those who were prostrated are in a serious condition.

CIGARETTES START A BIG FIRE.

Boy Smoking in Livery Stable of Alton, Ill., Results in Destruction of Entire Block.

Alton, Ill., July 1.—As the result of a boy smoking a cigarette in a livery stable a whole block of property was burned in Alton, resulting in a loss of more than $50,000. The fire started in the livery stable of Charles Seibold. The John Snyder Clothing company building, with its stock, was lost, a loss of $25,000. The livery stable, a frame building, the storehouse of the George F. Kirsch Packing company, and the residence of Mrs. Dwyar were destroyed.

FOREST FIRE IN COLORADO.

Flames Destroy Several Miles of Timber and Cabins and Tunnel Houses on Mount Baldy.

Breckenridge, Colo., July 1.—A forest fire, which is believed to have originated from sparks from a locomotive, is destroying several miles of timber on the west slope of Mount Baldy, about three miles from here. Scores of cabins and tunnel houses have been destroyed. A force of men is at work trying to prevent the fire from reaching the Mountain Pride concentrating mill and shafthouse, which are well provided with fire hose.

PRO-BOER DEMONSTRATION.

Belgians Start for the British Legation, but Are Dispersed.

Brussels, July 1.—A great pro-Boer demonstration followed the lecture delivered at the Alhambra theater by Andries Dewet, cousin of Gen. Dewet, the Boer commander. The crowd unharnessed the horses from the lecturer's carriage and drew the vehicle to his hotel. After the ovation to the lecturer the crowd started for the British legation, but were dispersed by the police.

Christiania—The officers and crew of the United States training ship Hartford are enjoying their visit in Christiania. H. Bordewich, the United States consul general, gave a coaching party and a dinner to the officers at Holmekoten.

Compelled to Harvest Crops.

Lincoln—Driven to desparation by the sight of their rich fields being ruined for want of harvesters, twenty Osage county farmers held up a westbound Santa Fe train, and compelled a carload of farm hands to work for them.

Like an Englishman.

The Englishman had been listening to several newspaper men who were ridiculing some alleged hits of humor in a John Bull publication, and at length blurted out, angrily:

"You Americans have beastly manners. You are always making fun of our jokes. I'm sure I don't see anything in them to laugh at."—Judge.

She Knew Him.

"All is lost save honor," telephoned the defeated candidate to his wife at 2 a. m.

"Well, you'll have to walk home, then," she answered, "for that won't do you any good on the owl cars."

And nothing but the low, hoarse buzzing of the telephone wires answered her.

HUMOURS

Complete External and Internal Treatment

Cuticura

THE SET

Consisting of CUTICURA SOAP to cleanse the skin of crusts and scales, and soften the thickened cuticle, CUTICURA OINTMENT to instantly allay itching, irritation, and inflammation, and soothe and heal, and CUTICURA RESOLVENT to cool and cleanse the blood, and expel humour germs. A SINGLE SET is often sufficient to cure the most torturing, disfiguring skin, scalp, and blood humours, rashes, itchings, and irritations, with loss of hair, when the best physicians, and all other remedies fail.

MILLIONS USE CUTICURA SOAP

Assisted by CUTICURA OINTMENT, for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, for cleansing the scalp of crusts, scales, and dandruff, and the stopping of falling hair, for softening, whitening, and soothing red, rough, and sore hands, for baby rashes, itchings, and chafings, and for all the purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery. Millions of Women use CUTICURA SOAP in the form of baths for annoying irritations, inflammations, and excoriations, for too free or offensive perspiration, in the form of washes for ulcerative weaknesses, and for many sanative, antiseptic purposes which readily suggest themselves to women and mothers. No amount of persuasion can induce those who have once used these great skin purifiers and beautifiers to use any others. CUTICURA SOAP combines delicate emollient properties derived from CUTICURA, the great skin cure, with the purest of cleansing ingredients and the most refreshing of flower odours. No other medicated soap is to be compared with it for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, scalp, hair and hands. OPEN TO SETTLERS

LAND CEDED BY INDIANS IN OKLAHOMA AT DISPOSAL OF THE PUBLIC.

PROCLAMATION BY THE PRESIDENT

On Aug. 6 the Lands Will Be Thrown Open to Settlement Under the Homestead and Townsite Laws—Must Qualify for Entry by Previous Registration—No Chance for Sooners.

Washington, July 8.—The proclamation of President McKinley opening to settlement the land ceded by Indians in the Territory of Oklahoma was given to the public yesterday. The proclamation covers the cession made by the Wichita and affiliated bands of Indians in accordance with the act of March 2, 1895, and those made by the Comanche, Kiowa and Apache tribes in pursuance of the act of June 6, 1900. The proclamation provides for the opening of the lands in those reservations which are not reserved at 9 o'clock a. m., on the 6th day of August next, the lands to be open to settlement under the homestead and townsite laws of the United States.

The proclamation says that beginning on the 10th inst. and ending on the 26th, those who wish to make entry of land under the homestead law shall be registered. The registration will take place at the land offices at Reno and Lawton. The registration at each office will be for both land districts. To obtain registration the applicant will be required to show himself duly qualified of these lands under existing laws and to give the registering officers such appropriate matters of description and identity as will protect the applicant and the government against any attempted impersonation. Registration cannot be effected through the United States mails or the employment of an agent excepting that honorably discharged soldiers and sailors may present their applications through an agent, no agent being allowed to represent more than one soldier. No person will be allowed to register more than once. After being registered applicants will be given certificates, allowing them to go upon the ceded lands and examine them in order to aid them in making an intelligent selection.

It is explicitly stated that "no one will be permitted to make settlement upon any of the lands in advance of the opening provided for," and the statement is made "that for the first sixty days following said opening no one but registered applicants will be permitted to make homestead settlement upon any of said lands, and then only in pursuance of a homestead entry duly allowed by the local land officers or of a soldier's declaratory statement duly accepted by such officers."

Injunction Will Be Asked.

Oklahoma City, Okla., July 8.—An injunction suit will be brought before Judge Irwin at El Reno in a few days for an order restraining the register of the land office here, the receiver, the surveyors and all other persons from proceeding with the opening of the lands of the Kiowas, Comanche and Apache Indians according to the proclamation of the president and the act of congress under which he proceeded. The suit will be brought by C. Porter Johnson of this city, who has been engaged by Judge William M. Springer to act as the attorney for the Indians who are affected by the opening of the lands. The bill of particulars for the injunction will contend that the lands of the Indians are being illegally and unconstitutionally wrested from them against their wishes.

KILLED HIS WIFE.

Cold-Blooded Deed Witnessed by Pedestrians.

New York, July 8.—Edward Luthy, forty-three years of age, a bookmaker on the eastern race tracks, who lived with his wife and four of her children by a former husband on East One Hundred and Sixty-ninth street, killed his wife by shooting her in the head last evening after she had taken refuge on a fire escape. Then he shot himself. Dozens of pedestrians on Park avenue, opposite the house where the Luthys lived, saw the woman killed and saw her body fall from one landing of the fire escape to the one below. It is thought Luthy contemplated the deed, for he sent the children from their home. Jealousy and a quarrel growing out of a delayed dinner is supposed to have been the cause of the tragedy. Luthy is in a hospital, and though the self-inflicted wound is serious it may not prove fatal. He says his wife tried to shoot him first.

MINERS ATTACK DE SOTO BAND.

Non-Union Men at Dewmaine, Ill., Shoot at Union Musicians.

Carbondale, Ill., July 8.—The De Soto band, which is composed largely of union men, was attacked while en route from De Soto to West Frankfort to play for a celebration last Thursday at Dewmaine by non-union men. Arthur Henry was shot in the head and another man received a flesh wound in the leg. Henry's wounds are not considered fatal.

FATHER'S BRUTAL WORK.

Beats Out His Child's Brains and Fatally Stabs His Wife.

Williamson, W. Va., July 8.—Sylvester Green of McDowell county fatally stabbed his wife and beat out the brains of his child with a rock because the wife refused him money with which to gamble. McDowell escaped.

Duval's Bluff, Ark., July 8. — The steamer Orlando of the Memphis-White River Packet company sunk in the White river twenty-seven miles above Des Arc. The water is over the main deck. No lives were lost.

To Investigate Scandals.

Mexico City, July 8. — A telegram from Rome says the pope will send an ablegate to this country to investigate the recent scandals among the clergy and apply a remedy. One priest has resigned pending inquiry.

HOHENLOHE DIES AT RAGATZ.

Death Comes Rather Sudden, Due to Old Age.

Berlin, July 8. — Prince Hohenlohe, formerly chancellor of Germany, died at Ragatz, where he has been for some time taking the waters with the hope of benefiting his health. Chlowig Carl Victor, prince of Hohenlohe and Schillingsfurst, was born at Rotheaburg March 31, 1819. He was the second son of Francis Joseph, of the line of Walkenburg. In 1845, on the death of his brother Philip Ernest, Chlowig succeeded, with the consent of his elder brother, to the old family seat of Schillingsfurst, and, forsaking the Prussian service, took up his permanent residence in Bavaria. Prince von Hohenlohe's death was generally unexpected here, as he left Berlin several weeks ago apparently in good health, although his increasing weakness was evident. The prince arrived at Ragatz extremely exhausted. His death is attributed to the weakness of old age.

INHUMAN ATROCITIES

Charged Against the Boers by a Newspaper Correspondent.

London, July 8—The Daily Mail gives sensational prominence this morning to mail advices from Vlakfontein which attribute to the Boers inhuman atrocities that the censor would not allow to be described by cable. "A couple of Boers," says the Mail's correspondent, "who were armed with Martinis, walked around among the dead and dying, some they turned over to see if they were dead. If it were otherwise then one or the other of the Boers shot them as you would shoot an ox. I saw four killed in this way. One youngster pleaded for his life. I heard him say: 'Oh, Christ, don't,' and then bang went the rifle. That is what happened." The Daily Mail protests vigorously against the suppression by the censor of such details.

SIX SERIOUSLY INJURED.

Derailing of a Trolley Car Causes a Panic Among Passengers.

Chicago, July 8.—The derailing of a Milwaukee avenue trolley car yesterday which was loaded with a picnic party roused a panic among the passengers, of whom six were seriously injured. The car, when it jumped the track, crashed into a trolley pole in the center of the street and was split in two. The passengers were thrown to the street in a heap and half of the car toppled over on top of them. The injured suffered broken limbs and severe cuts, but it is believed none were fatally hurt.

CHILD KILLED BY TORPEDO.

Bomb Thrown on Porch of Denver Man's House Causes Death of Five-Year-Old Daughter.

Denver, July 8.—A bomb or huge torpedo thrown into the yard at 2021 Curtis street killed Esther Oliver, five years old, who was sitting on the porch. The child's lower jaw was torn away and she lived but thirty minutes after the explosion. She was the daughter of M. O. Oliver, a surveyor. The man who threw the bomb escaped.

Attempt to Kill Wabash Editor.

Wabash, Ind., July 8.—An attempt to kill Will H. Sharpe, editor of the Wabash Star, was made by an unknown enemy, the bullet grazing Sharpe's ear. Mr. and Mrs. Sharpe utilize the upper floors of the Star building for a residence, and, returning late at night, he stood at a window looking out into the street. Three men had followed him and one fired at him through the window and all disappeared.

Dowager Frederick Suffering.

Cronberg, Prussia, July 8. — Prince and Princess Henry of Prussia arrived here yesterday on a visit to the Dowager Empress Frederick. The latter's condition is not so satisfactory. During the last few days she has suffered from severe pains, which prevented her usual drives. The dowager empress, however, spends most of the day on the castle terrace, or under a tent on the lawn.

Two Men Killed in a Fight.

Texarkana, Ark., July 8. — News reached here last night that two men were killed and two wounded in a desperate battle between four or five negroes near Index, nine miles north of here on the Kansas City Southern railway last night. The fight occurred at a dance in Little River county, just over the river from Index.

Two Children Burned to Death.

Louisiana, Mo., July 8.—Donald Nichols and Samuel Taylor, each about five years old, were burned to death, locked in an outbuilding. They had been playing and set fire to a can of coal oil. The door was fastened.

LORILLARD DEAD

MILLIONAIRE TOBACCO MERCHANT PASSES AWAY AFTER SHORT ILLNESS.

LEAVES A FORTUNE OF $25,000,000

Eldest Son of Peter Lorillard, Architect of the Fortune Which Made the Family Famous—First American to Win the Classic English Derby — Wife, Son and Two Daughters Survive.

New York, July 8.—Pierre Lorillard died at 2:10 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The death of Mr. Lorillard took place at the Fifth Avenue hotel, where he was taken from the Deutschland when that steamer arrived from Europe July 4. The members of the family present at the bedside when the end came were Mr. Lorillard's daughters, Mrs. T. Suffern Tailer and Mrs. William Kent and their husbands and Pierre Lorillard, Jr., and wife and also Pierre Lorillard III.

Mr. Lorillard's recent severe illness dated from June 20. He was in England and went to his lodge at Ascot hoping to see his horse David Garrick win the gold cup. He was stricken with an uraemic chill and was sick for a week. He was advised to come to America and boarded the Deutschland, but his condition became graver each moment. His physician, Dr. Kilroy, told him that he did not think he would live to get to New York, but the magnate insisted that he would. He had never thought he could recover since his arrival. The funeral will be at 11 o'clock on Wednesday from Grace church. The interment will be at Greenwood.

Pierre Lorillard was the eldest son of Peter Lorillard, architect of the fortune which made the family name famous. He inherited much of the business ability of his father and marked success attended the commercial enterprises which he planned and executed. At the death of his father he received about $1,000,000 and an interest jointly with his brothers and sisters in the great tobacco house of which his father had been the head. He at once purchased from his brothers a control of the house, and by shrewd management greatly increased his fortune. He built a handsome residence at Fifth avenue and Fifty-sixth street and entertained in princely manner. In 1874 he became interested in the turf. His first great horse was Parole, and with Iroquois, in 1881, he was the first American to win the classic English Derby. He was also an enthusiastic yachtsman, and once raced his Vesta across the Atlantic. He founded, and controlled at the time of his death, the fashionable resort at Tuxedo. He was nearly sixty-eight years of age. He is survived by his wife, son and two daughters. He leaves a fortune estimated at about $25,000,000.

MR. DAMM WANTS DOLLARS.

Boston Music Teacher Objects to Being Shot At.

Boston, July 8.—Peter F. Damm, the music teacher who was shot at by Dr. Sumner Paine on May 29, when he found Paine and his wife together on his return home, has sued Dr. Paine for $10,000 damages. Saturday the grand jury reported and failed to bring in an indictment against Dr. Paine for shooting at the music teacher. Damm in his allegations says that he is a music teacher and was engaged by Paine to give lessons to Miss Paine, his daughter. He states that while giving these lessons to Miss Paine, Paine came in, brutally charging him with adulterous conduct with Mrs. Paine, and then assaulted him with a loaded gun, and that in consequence of Paine's act he has suffered much in mind, body, business and reputation. There is also a rumor of a divorce action to be brought by Mrs. Paine.

DOES GREAT DAMAGE.

Cloudburst Sweeps Over a Portion of Tennessee.

Nashville, Tenn., July 8. — A rainstorm approaching a cloud-burst swept over Lynchburg, Moore county, and its vicinity yesterday afternoon. Mulberry creek, which half-encircles the town, rose ten feet in less than forty minutes, washing away lumber, fences and buildings. The postoffice at County Line had to be anchored to prevent its being demolished. The damage to farm lands was very heavy. Thousands of rails were lost and much wheat in shock swept away. In some instances the growing corn was totally destroyed. On the farm of Mrs. Callie Bobo, whereon threshing wheat was in progress, the thresher and a loaded wagon were carried some distance by the flood. No loss of life has been reported.

THIS IS BETTER.

Cool Wave Prevails East of the Mississippi.

Washington, July 8.—Comparatively cool weather prevailed yesterday over almost the entire country east of the Mississippi river and in the Ohio valley and lake region temperatures were considerably below the average. West of the Mississippi high temperatures continue, and because of the existence of a low pressure in the Northwest predictions are for more warm weather. Weather bureau officials expect that east of the Mississippi river the lower temperatures will continue for a short time at least. In the Middle Atlantic states and throughout New England rain has fallen, but to the west the weather remains remarkably dry.

Edward Park Deacon Dead.

Boston, July 8.—Edward Park Deacon, member of a wealthy Boston family, prominent in society some years ago and who was principal in a sensational shooting affair in Paris, is dead. Mr. Deacon was a victim of brain disease.

HE CARRIED A CANDLE.

Prominent Milwaukee Man Fatally Injured by a Gas Explosion.

Milwaukee, July 8.—William E. Fitzgerald of this city, director of the American Shipbuilding company and president of the Milwaukee Dry Dock company, died yesterday at his summer home at Nagawicka lake from burns received in an explosion of acetyline Saturday night. The gas was escaping from the generator, and, together with his coachman, he went into the cellar to attempt to stop it, taking a lighted candle with them. As soon as they entered the room there was a terrible explosion which tore the clothing from Mr. Fitzgerald and threw him violently against the wall. The coachman was also badly burned, but he was not fatally injured. Mr. Fitzgerald was forty-one years of age and leaves a widow and two children.

SIX JAIL BIRDS FLY.

They Escape on Horses, Including the Sheriff's Animal.

Dickinson, N. D., July 8.—Six prisoners broke out of the county jail early yesterday morning and rode away on fast horses. They took the sheriff's horse among others. McDonald and Hummell, two notorious cattle thieves, are among the number. Every effort possible is being made to recapture them.

NO TRIAL NOW.

Campbell, Who Shot Grundmann and Himself, Is Dead.

Winona, Minn., July 8. — Joe Campbell, who shot William Grundmann and then himself on June 26, died at the hospital here yesterday. The bullet was found back of the left eye. The entire brain was diseased, showing that recovery was not possible.

Ungraded School at Winona.

Winona, Minn., July 8.—At the meeting of the board of education for July it was decided to institute an ungraded school here, and Henry Hacker was engaged to have it in charge. On account of the large number of children in Winona who cannot attend school regularly it is expected that this new school will be overcrowded. Winona is one of the first cities in the state to adopt this plan.

Destroyed at Dassel.

Dassel, Minn., July 8. — Fire destroyed the store of L. Palmersten, with contents. Loss, $5,000; insurance, $3,000. Mrs. J. M. Johnson, millinery, lost $1,500 on stock and household goods; insurance, $1,000. Alex Lundquist, clothing and millinery, $2,500; insurance, $1,800. Frank Rudberg, $1,000; insurance, $450. A. P. Death of a Young Mother.

Langdon, Minn., July 8.—Mrs. John McNamara died at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Counley, in Denmark, after a protracted illness of consumption. Deceased was Miss Mamie Counley, and about twenty-five years of age. She was married to John W. McNamara of Nininger two years ago, who, with twin daughters, aged about fourteen months, survive her.

Says the Child Is Hers.

Benson, Minn., July 8—The girl, Lena Machkovich, who is in jail here charged with the murder of her babe at Murdock June 19, asked to see the county attorney and confessed that she was the mother of the child, but says she does not remember killing it, though she may have done so, as there are so many other things she cannot remember with reference to it.

Postmastership Goes Begging.

Sioux Falls, S. D., July 8. — Lyons, the oldest postoffice in Minnehaha county outside of Sioux Falls and Dell Rapids, is about to pass out of existence. No one can be found who will accept the appointment as postmaster, and it is likely that an order will be issued soon discontinuing the office and directing that patrons of the office secure their mail elsewhere.

Peter Must Return.

Sioux City, Iowa, July 8.—Peter Alborg, a resident of Minnesota, who sought to drown his disappointment in love in bad whisky to the detriment of his mind, is in custody here and will be returned to the state asylum at St. Peter, whence he escaped some time ago.

Drowned in the St. Croix.

St. Paul, July 8.—Mrs. Annie Pust of South St. Paul and Oscar Norris, recently of Independence, Kan., were drowned in the St. Croix river near Rush City. A party of five was crossing the river when the boat capsized. Norris tried in vain to save Mrs. Pust.

New School Principal.

Dell Rapids, S. D., July 8—The school board of Dell Rapids at its last regular meeting elected Prof. J. D. Stout of Iowa Falls as principal of the city schools for the coming year. He is at present president of the Ellsworth college at Iowa Falls.

BANDITS ARE FOXY

LITTLE HOPE OF OVERTAKING MEN WHO ROBBED THE GREAT NORTHERN.

HAVE ELUDED THEIR PURSUERS.

Believed to Be Headed for the "Hole in the Wall" Country, the Most Notorious Refuge of Criminals in the United States, or Hidden in the Intricacies of the Bad Lands.

Anaconda, Mont., July 8. — Special dispatches from a staff correspondent of the Anaconda Standard on the ground are to the effect that there is now little hope of the sheriff's posse overtaking the men who held up the Great Northern express train at Wagner, Mont., last Wednesday. The correspondent has just returned from the section of country where the posses were expected to overtake the robbers. His account is that the pursuers have been outwitted and that the robbers have outwitted them.

There are now two theories presented. One is that the outlaws, who are far better mounted than their pursuers, have already crossed the Missouri river and are well on their way toward the "Hole in the Wall" country in Wyoming, the most notorious refuge of criminals in the United States. The "Hole in the Wall" is a fastness practically impregnable, and capable of being successfully defended by a few men almost Against Any Force.

The region between the point in the Missouri brakes and the "Hole in the Wall" is very sparsely settled, a few scattered cattle ranches being the only evidences of human habitation. Pursuit over this wild section, according to old plainsmen, is virtually hopeless.

The other theory is that the robbers have gained the intricacies of the Bad Lands along the Missouri river near the Little Rockies and are there awaiting the time when the chase shall have grown cold and then seize a favorable opportunity to ford the river at a place where crossing could not be effected by men unfamiliar with the river and its treacherous windings. Every foot of ground is an open book to the robbers, who have used the vicinity as their stamping grounds for years. The officers are still in the field, but it is the opinion of those who are on the ground that the scene of active pursuit must now be transferred to the Yellowstone, Custer or Dawson counties, through one or more of which the robbers must pass to reach the "Hole in the Wall."

CONSTITUTION WINS.

Columbia and Independence Easily Distanced.

Newport, R. I., July 8.—An unqualified victory for the Constitution; an overwhelming defeat for the Independence; a most commendable showing for the old champion—the Columbia—is the record of the first day's contest of the big sloops in the Newport Yacht Racing association's series. From the firing of the starting gun, which sent the yachts off to windward in a light easterly breeze, the Constitution held her rivals. At the turning buoy she was little more than two minutes in advance of the Columbia, while the Independence was hull down to leeward. It was on the home run that the new Herreschoff yacht showed her greatest strength, beating Columbia over eight minutes in the fifteen miles down the wind, and when the new champion of the the America's cup swept across the line the Boston yacht was over seven miles astern.

ENDEAVORERS BUSY.

Great Crowd at Cincinnati for the Convention.

Cincinnati, Ohio, July 8.—Believers in special providences find ample justification in naming this convention of the International Society of Christian Endeavor as a striking instance. With the weather conditions prevailing for the previous ten days it required courage to risk the discomfort that might attack to journeys and to strange domicile in a big city. But yesterday every one of the thousands of strangers in Cincinnati rejoiced in the most perfect weather—a pure and bracing atmosphere, delightful breezes and every possible physical comfort. All the arrangements for the care of the visitors have been happily made and everywhere there was an air of happy thankfulness that gave additional zest to the very interesting meetings.

FIVE YEARS FOR JESSIE.

Miss Morrison Sentenced for the Murder of Mrs. Castle.

Eldorado, Kan., July 8.—Jessie Morrison, convicted of manslaughter in the second degree for the murder of Mrs. Claro Wiley Castle, was Saturday sentenced to five years in the penitentiary in close confinement at hard labor. Miss Morrison took the sentence calmly.

KRUGER WILL NOT COME.

Two Reasons Why He Will Not Visit America.

The Hague, July 8.—Mr. Kruger has definitely abandoned his American visit on account of traveling fatigues as well as the clearly expressed attitude of the United States government.

SNOW IN MICHIGAN.

Fall of the Beautiful in July at Houghton and Calumet.

Houghton, Mich., July 8.—Snow fell here and at Calumet Saturday. The Quincy Hills were white with snow early in the day, but it soon melted.

Fatal Diphtheria.

La Crosse, Wis., July 8.—Miss Marie Kroner, one member of the Kroner family which is down with the diphtheria, died yesterday. She was twenty-three years of age. Two other members of the family are at the point of death.

Children Struck by Lightning.

Sacred Heart, Minn., July 8.—Three children of G. El Agre, a farmer north of town, was struck by lightning. One was killed and the other two were badly hurt.

We are pleased to note that the village council at its last meeting made a handsome donation to the support of the band. There is nothing more attractive to the public, or that advertises a town to better advantage than a good band, and the St. Hilaire Band is a good one.

The latest problem submitted to the people of Evingston, Ill., for solution is: If it takes twenty-four dozen ancient eggs and four bushels of rotten vegetables to drive twenty-one Doweities out of town, how many deceased pussies and defunct bowwows will be required to produce the same effect upon the resident Christian scientists?

The first suicide among the Winnebago reservation Indians in Nebraska in twenty five years occurred last week. Bad Thunder had a row with his squaw and then he took a gun and blew the top of his head off. It is really hard to teach the Indian the white man's ways. The white man would shoot his wife's head off and then swear he had done it in self defence. A white man lent him the gun.

Betty Botter bought some butter;
"But" she said, 'this butter's bitter;
If I put it in my batter
It will make my batter bitter;
But a bit of better butter
Will but make my batter better."
So she bought a bit o' butter,
Better than the bitter butter,
And made her bitter batter better.
So 'twas better Betty Botter
Bought a bit of better butter.

A boy in West Superior has been sentenced to the reform school as the result of attempting to put a cannon fire cracker under the chair of his sleeping father. The boy is fourteen years old. He says that his father generally took two hours for his devotions while the boy could get through in fifteen minutes. On the morning in question the father is alleged to have fallen asleep during his devotions and it was then that the attempt was made to place the monster fire piece under his chair.

The records of the U. S. Land Office in Crookston show that for the year that closed June 30, the volume of business transacted was the largest ever done, and that without a question it will exceed the amount done by any other office in the United States.

The figures, when compiled, will show that the homestead entries number 1,940. The final proofs amount to 843, with 458 cash entries and 444 contests filed.

The total receipts for the year were phenomenal, and aggregate $314,523.46.

There is no question that in this latter particular the Crookston office is ahead of all others.—Crookston Journal.

CHOPSTICK DINNERS.

A FAD WITH WOULD BE BOHEMIANS IN NEW YORK.

Chinese Restaurants There Tolerate a Free and Easy Etiquette, and Everybody Does Just About as He or She Pleases.

In the last few years a surprisingly large number of Chinese restaurants have made their appearance in up town districts in New York. The tawdry outward decorations of red and blue lights and huge gilt Chinese characters are in every case the same. The same, too, are the unattractive entrances, the walls decorated with colored pictures of pretty Chinese girls and marvelous specimens of landscapes, the little tables covered with white oilcloth, the general dilapidation of the establishment. Nothing about them seems attractive, and yet these places thrive, and their number increases with astonishing rapidity. The reason is not far to seek if one is at all familiar with the facts. There are several characteristics of the Chinese restaurant which recommend it highly to certain classes and seem to indicate that its popularity is not a mere fad.

In the first place it should be understood that most of these places are really what they are supposed to be, eating houses carried on under Chinese management. The cooks are invariably true Celestials, and in only a few cases are the proprietors Americans. The food is prepared, therefore, according to the most approved methods of the Middle Kingdom, with the result that in cheapness and savoriness (if you like it) it can easily outclass similar places run by American cooks. The Chinese is a master of the art of making palatable dishes out of next to nothing or rather a little of everything. Not even the French cook can rival him. The insipidity of cheap chop houses and the sameness of the dairy lunch counters are thus escaped by frequenters of these restaurants. Moreover, in spite of appearances the food is prepared in an extremely cleanly manner. No one is debarred from entering the kitchen, and a visit thither sends one back with renewed appetite to the untidy eating room. So many who while possessed of a small share of this world's goods still affect "sportiness" frequent the restaurant for its cheapness and grow to enjoy the highly flavored dishes.

There is also a free and easy atmosphere about the Chinese eating house which attracts many would be "Bohemians" as well as a goodly share of a class below the lowest grades of the city's many graded Bohemia. Visitors loll about and talk and laugh loudly. When the waiter is wanted, some one emits a shrill yell which brings an answering whoop from the kitchen, followed sooner or later by a little Chinese at a jog trot. Any one who feels like it may stroll into the kitchen and try a little pigeon English on the cook. The proprietor will teach anybody to use the chopsticks and roar with laughter over the failures of the novice. Everybody does as he or she pleases within certain very elastic bounds. The limit is reached sooner in some places than in others, for while some of the houses are before midnight at least perfectly well conducted others are of more than questionable respectability. It is curious and interesting to note that under American management the tone of these places is lower than when the Chinese are in sole control.

These new up town places are not so good, either in a moral or a culinary way, as those down in Chinatown. It is usual to speak as if Mott and Pell streets were the city's sink of iniquity, and so they are in some respects, but there are no Chinese restaurants in the neighborhood as disreputable as one or two up town. The clientele of the down town places is above suspicion as a rule. Chinese drop in for their meals, and dwellers from up town come either from curiosity or because they have learned to like good Chinese cooking. Up town the bills of fare are more limited. "Yockaman," "chop suey" and "chowman" are the pieces de resistance. They answer the purpose certainly, for 25 cents' worth of some kinds of chop suey served with rice will make a toothsome dish for two people. Tea is served free of charge, and the quantity is not limited. But no one should judge the Celestials' culinary skill by these up town houses.

Many of the guests in these restaurants come regularly. Frequently men and women come with pails to buy the food and take it home. Negroes are in disproportionately large numbers. They seem to like the Chinese, and indeed the noise in the kitchen reminds one of the similar condition of southern kitchens under negro management. However solemn the Chinese may seem to be in public, he is a cheerful creature in his own kitchen. Talk and laughter, even music during "off" hours, float out to the dining room. All the servants seem ready to break into smiles at the smallest provocation. They are always ready to exchange jests with their patrons, but familiarity never becomes impertinence. The Chinese doesn't care what happens so long as he is left unmolested. He likes everything to be slipshod and merry.—New York Tribune.

Why "Wedding Breakfast?"

"In all my experience of wedding breakfasts," said a guest at a wedding, "I have never understood why the feast was called a breakfast and not a luncheon. Now I have learned. It is from the custom in the Church of England, where the bride and bridegroom always receive the holy communion before the ceremony, receive it fasting and remain fasting until after the wedding, when the meal which is served is really a breakfast."—New York Times.

"THE FRENCH SHORE."

Where Misery, Squalor, Hunger and Cold Rule in Newfoundland.

Misery, squalor and wretchedness, accentuated by an almost ceaseless struggle with hunger and cold, are the portion of the inhabitants of the "North Shore," in Newfoundland. Their little hamlets are perched in the rifts in the almost unbroken hills, and the fierce storms sweep the surface almost to their doorsteps, while for seven months of the year their coast is blockaded with ice and they are cut off from all communication with the outside world.

The only industry is codfishing, and cod is the sole medium of exchange. The people rarely see money, and barter is the system of trading, a quintal of cod being the unit of value. The needs of the fisher folk are only supplied by the itinerant trader, his schooner being laden with provisions, clothing and fishing appliances. Thus have these people lived for generations. They are ignorant, for the means of education are nonexistent, the children being content with what satisfied their fathers. The common objects of everyday life are unknown to them. They have neither horses nor cattle. Only a few of the older folk who have ventured south have any knowledge of these things.

There are no roads and therefore no vehicles. Travel is by boat during the summer and over the ice floes during the rest of the year. The few letters for the clergy and others who can read are conveyed to the settlements by dog teams during the winter, and, save for the fortnightly visit of the mailboat during the period of open navigation, a steamer is never seen by the residents.

With such marvels as electric telegraphs, telephones, and electric light they are of course unfamiliar, and their standard of intelligence is best indicated by stating that it is not unusual to find a justice of the peace who cannot write his own name.—Chambers' Journal.

A Task.

To be honest, to be kind, to earn a little and to spend less, to make, upon the whole, a family happier by his presence, to renounce where that shall be necessary and not to be imbittered, to keep a few friends, but these without capitulation; above all, on the same grim conditions to keep friends with himself—here is a task for all that a man has of fortitude and delicacy.—Robert Louis Stevenson.

Editor C. C. Knappen of Crookston is a witty sort of a cuss and likes to tell a funny story better than most anything. He was at Mentor last week and was entertaining a few of the natives in his favorite way. In order to emphasize a point in his narrative he jumped to a sitting position on top of an empty syrup barrel. The story he was telling hasn't been finished yet. Some syrup of the stickiest kind happened to be on the barrel head and he stuck. Somebody suggested a pair of scissors but Knappen begged off explaining that he had only one pair of pants and it was against his ideas of propriety for a man to walk through the street with such a vacancy as would be caused in that way. The bystanders rolled the barrel and its burden inside the store where they extracted the man from the pants and then separated the wearing gear from the barrel with hot water. He stood up on the train all the way from Mentor to Crookston as he couldn't bear the idea of possibly going through another severing process before he could be removed from the car.

The Fourth: It's Over Now.

The Glorious Fourth of July has come and gone. It rained in the morning. It rained again in the afternoon. It rained again in the evening. Yet we celebrated. We didn't have the howling, hilarious time we have sometimes enjoyed on similar occasions but we celebrated.

A good program for the occasion had been prepared by the committee in charge. The first item on the program was a Grand Parade which had to be abandoned on account of the rain. This was a pity as nearly all of the business men had floats prepared to take part and the various fraternal orders had also some intention of turning out. But it was impossible and as soon as the sun had smiled down for a little while and the streets began to dry, the band entertained the crowd with a few selections. A program of speeches, singing and music was rendered from the veranda of the Hotel Markham which was kindly placed at the disposal of the committee by the accomodating proprietors. Harry Ives presided over this portion of the day's events in his usual dignified way. The Declaration of Independence was read by J. K. Haanay and brief patriotic addresses were made by Rev. Hammond, in the English language, and Rev. Lunde, in Norwegian. Both speakers were well received and heartily applauded. Patriotic vocal selections were rendered by the children's chorus under the direction of Mrs. Bert Mitchell. The little ones acquitted themselves very creditably and reflected great credit on their instructor.

A base ball game which was scheduled to be played between the Thief River Falls and Red Lake Falls teams had to be omitted. Both teams were on the ground but the rain had got there ahead of them and had the floor. In the afternoon the Red Lake Falls team played a game with a picked up nine of locals. It ended in a score of 2 to 4 in favor of the visitors.

Late in the afternoon a program of races was pulled off as follows:

Mens race, 100 yards—Burst 1st Parenteau 2nd. Time 12¾.

Boys race—Jacobson 1st, Knudson 2nd.

Fat mens race, 100 yards—Hokan Johnson, H. O. Jackson. Time, less then 30 minutes.

Sack race—Mitchell 1st, Martin Hoff 2nd. Rag time.

Siamese race (three legged)—Burst and Parenteau 1st, Mitchell and Dainard 2nd. Time, two step.

As the shades of evening came on the fireworks commenced. The display was very fine and contained some beautiful and costly pieces. The management deserves to be complimented on their selections and the successful manner in which this portion of the days amusements were executed.

The Bowery dance given under the auspices of the fire department, was the most successful of the many amusements offered and was liberaly patronized both day and evening—between showers.

NOTES.

Some people made so much noise that a fellow couldn't sleep. Some of them are noising it yet.

Manager Dobner of the Thief River Falls baseball team has received a good many compliments since his visit here the 4th.

"Say, isn't that band fine?" That was an expression heard everywhere during the day. Yes, the band was fine. The boys have been practising up steadily and under the able direction of their new instructor, Mr. Peterson, they have gained wonderfully. During the entire day, rain or shine, they were always ready and willing to render some choice musical selections. To the band is due much credit for the success of the day.

Taps Good Land and Makes Good Roads.

Surveyor Geo. A. Ralph, of Crookston, who has charge of the surveys on all the new ditches to be built in Red Lake county, finished the preliminary work on the River Falls-Wyandotte ditch last week and returned home. He says that the ditch through the towns of River Falls and Wyandotte will drain and convert into good tillage land a tract of country second to none in the valley but which is now practically waste. The dirt taken from the ditch, when graded off will make one of the best roads in Northern Minnesota. The outlet for the ditch is into the creek just south of the Swedish Lutheran cemetery in section eight of River Falls township. It will run seven miles straight east thence south through Wyandotte to the Clearwater river. Mr. Ralph says that the ditch will have a good fall and will be able to carry off all the surface water in good time.

The Early Rising Fallacy.

The old saying, "early to bed and early to rise," when applied to modern ways of living, has its drawbacks. For example, people who make it a rule always to get up at 6 o'clock are not able always to get to bed early, consequently their rule simply makes them lose sleep. Early rising is not necessarily a good thing. Every person should determine the amount of sleep he requires and then should be sure to get it, early or late. If you want to sleep well drink "Golden Grain Belt" beer for it quiets the nerves and relieves the brain. Have a case in your home. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex. The Great Northwests First White Child

One of the most remarkable proofs of the amazing growth of that vast region of our country commonly called the Northwest, with its numerous sisterhood of States and its population of more then seven million people, is the fact that it is only a little more than eighty years since the first white baby was born there. The child was a girl, the daughter of a regular army officer, and she is still living. A fascinating account of her eventful life, the early years of which were spent among soldiers and savages, will appear in an early issue of The Ladies' Home Journal.

Probably you do, for Mme. Qui Vive has a national reputation as an inspiring friend to every woman with a beauty woe. Her "Woman Beautiful" department in the daily and Sunday issue of The Chicago Record-Herald is a perennial source of joyous helpfulness to womankind. Her instructions on complexion ills are interlarded here and there with snappy little epigrams as "cheerers." The weapons she suggests to beauty seekers for the complete annihilation of beauty grievances do not include artificial methods, "factory" frizzes, rouge and other horrors being barred. She gives instructions on correct breathing, what to eat, how to bathe—in brief, how to become a healthy, wholesome woman. No wonder she is popularly known to so many

Merchant Fleets

Leyland Seventh Among the World's Steamship Lines.

The statement made in connection with the announcement of the purchase of the Leyland line by J. Pierpont Morgan, that it was one of Great Britain's greatest shipping institutions, came as a surprise to many people. The name was an unfamiliar one. The Leyland line is only one of several great fleets which have been mobilized to meet the demands of commerce. The fleet of the Leyland line, according to Whitaker, ranks seventh in point of tonnage, that of the Hamburg-American line being first. The Hamburg-American line fleet includes 202 vessels, with a tonnage of 541,083 tons. Of these, however, a large number are river steamers, tugs and lighters. The steamships number ninety-five, with a capacity of more than 500,000 tons. The second fleet in point of capacity also flies the German flag. It is the North German Lloyd line, with ninety-one ocean steamers, having a tonnage of about 500,000. Three British companies rank next—the British India Steam Navigation company, which has more than 100 vessels and a capacity of nearly 400,000 tons, the Peninsular and Oriental, with a fleet of more than sixty vessels and a capacity of over 300,000 tons, and the fleet of Elder, Dempster & Co., ranking fifth not only in point of tonnage but also in number of vessels. A French line, the Messageries Maritimes, occupies the sixth place, although in point of tonnage it does not greatly exceed the Leyland fleet, their respective capacities being given as 247,338 and 245,000 tons. A line flying the Italian flag, the Navigazione Generale Italiana, is placed next, with a tonnage of 233,000 and a fleet of more than 100 steamers. The Union Castle, with 10,000 less tonnage, has forty-one steamers. The next place in the list is accorded to a flag that no one would expect to find among the number, the Japanese. The Japan Mail Steamship company, with its head office at Tokio, has sixty-eight steamers in its fleet. Then follow the White Star and Wilson lines, the former with twenty-four steamers and the latter with eighty-seven vessels, and with respective tonnages of 210,000 and 190,000 in round figures. Of the twelve fleets in this list seven fly the English flag. It is said that of the 400-odd steamships of more than 5,000 tons burden in existence more than 300 are under the British flag. Of these eighteen are in the Leyland fleet, which Mr. Morgan is to control. Should he also get possession of the Atlantic Transport company's fleet the number would be increased by several first-class ships, two of which—the Minnehaha and the Minneapolis—are listed among the half-dozen biggest ships in the world. The gross tonnage of the seventeen ships owned by the Atlantic Transport company is 99,741. Six ships, including two of 13,401 tons each, now building, will add 59,000 tons to the total capacity of this fleet. One is surprised to find that only three of the big trans-Atlantic passenger-carrying lines are in the list of big fleets. It will be observed that the White Star line's fleet in proportion to its tonnage is small in numbers. Eleven of its twenty-four steamers have capacities of above 10,000 tons. It owns the Oceanic, the biggest steamship in the world, and is building the Celtic, launched a few days ago, which will have a gross tonnage more than 3,000 tons greater than that of the Oceanic. Steamship men say that a big steamship is much more profitable than a small one to operate, as it can be handled by a crew much smaller in proportion to its size. Of the steamship companies using American capital, and having their head offices on this side of the Atlantic the one having the largest fleet is a line trading in the West Indies and Mexico—the Munson line. It employs sixty-three steamers, with a total capacity of between 150,000 and 160,000 tons. It owns only eight of these, the others being chartered vessels. It is said to be waiting for the passage of the ship subsidy bill, when it will replace many of these ships with American-built ships. The International Navigation company, which owns the American and Red Star lines, has a tonnage of 137,796, divided among twenty-one steamers, and is building four more, whose aggregate tonnage will be 44,000. The New York and Cuba Mail Steamship company owns seventeen vessels with a tonnage of 60,740.—New York Tribune.

Women Smokers in New York

Many Females Are Now Employed as Clerks in Cigar Stores.

It is not unusual in New York, writes a correspondent, to see women smoking cigarettes in the best restaurants. They are not ostentatious or obtrusive about it, but they smoke right along as a matter of course, with all the nonchalance of the men accompanying them. Not all of them are of the flash sort, either, although the majority of them are women of the theater. They do not often produce their cigarette cases before midnight. But at the petit souper, when all hands around the after-theater tables are more or less mellowed and indisposed to be critical of their neighbors, out come the cigarette receptacles and the ornate wax match boxes, and the women who like that sort of thing get to puffing with all the apparent zest in life. The women who tried this smoking business in the better class restaurants of New York a few years ago were summarily sat down upon by the proprietors of the establishments. They stormed and raved and declared that women were permitted to smoke a clay pipe if they so elected in the best eating houses of London, Paris and Vienna; but the restaurateurs calmly invited them in that case, to repair to Vienna or Paris or London on the earliest available steamer. True for a great many years the frowsy lot of women who move about in the society called "Bohemian" circles of New York have been regaling themselves with tobacco after their dinners at the cheap tables d'hote; but it has only been within the past two years that the really high-grade restaurants have tolerated such a thing.

An American woman with a cigarette in her teeth rarely if ever looks fascinating, or even endurable. She has a difficult time, in the first place to cover up the guilt, not to say the shame, which consciousness of her brazenness produces within her; and, in the second place, she has not the grace in her way of handling the cigarette that the women smokers of over the sea exhibit. As a matter of fact, most of the women who smoke cigarettes in the restaurants look and act just as if they wanted to be bad and day-villish enchanting and they make a dismal hash of it.

And, speaking of women and tobacco, the retail tobacconists of this town have been rapidly replacing their male salesmen with young women during the past year or so. Perhaps one-third of the leading cigar stores on Broadway now employ female clerks. In all cases the young women behind the counter are decidedly and distinctly pretty—indeed, not a few of them are absolutely beautiful. And the prettier the girl in the cigar store the more trade the establishment gets. The cigar dealers have been quick to find out that men rather like to be banded their cigars by young women with roguish eyes and pretty teeth. The dealers have ascertained, moreover, that they sell a better class of goods with young women salesmen in charge than they ever did when their counters were presided over by male salesmen. The dealers attribute this to the fact that no man likes to "show himself up" by purchasing a cheap cigar, say, from a pretty girl with a winsome, baffling smile on her face.

Workmen's Insurance in Germany

The system of workingmen's insurance in Germany is a huge piece of state machinery. The magnitude of the system may be estimated by the fact that it pays out, in one way or another, about 1,000,000 marks (£50,000) a day. The sick workman has no longer to trouble himself as to how he shall obtain money to pay for medical treatment, and what will become of his family should he himself be rendered unfit for work. The workman whose earning power is reduced by an accident connected with his employment now obtains just compensation, and the aged poor have the satisfaction of knowing that although they can no longer work they can still, owing to the insurance system, contribute their share toward the expenses of the household, and are not obliged to depend on the earnings of their children or on ordinary public charity. The system of workmen's insurance has been gradually built up within the last seventeen years, but it is admitted that improvements are required and gaps have still to be filled in.

The Janice Meredith Curl.

Janice Meredith was a vain little creature. If she only knew that she started a fashion and gave her name to a curl, it would suit her far, far nicer than anything else she could show. The Janice Meredith curl presented its credentials to society a few weeks ago, and society, always eager to welcome that which is new and fascinating and well bred, took the little curl up and make it a pet of the monde. It is not such a "little" curl, but it is so feminine, so dainty, smacks so strongly of the silver fitted dressing table that the adjective "little" is applied to it as it is applied to anything essentially feminine. It is really large and well formed and regular, such as Oliver Herford's little girl wears for the little mouse to hide in. And the curl is brought over the left shoulder in a caressing way; it peeps at you around a corner and invites your admiration and your comment. It is distinctly becoming. Then it smacks strongly to the modern girl of colonial days and the early heroines of Jane Austen's novels, who always wore such a curl.

A New Geyser Born.

James King, the winter keeper of the Fountain Hotel, Yellowstone Park, was aroused a short time since by an explosion like that of the blowing up of a powder magazine. The ground shook and trembled, and the household goods rattled. He jumped from his bed and rushed to the window to escape, as he thought, the ruins of the building in an earthquake. It was 5 o'clock in the morning, and about half a mile away he saw a column of hot water and steam ascending high into the air, which in the crisp atmosphere presented a spectacle of prismatic beauty. He then realized that mother earth had given birth to a new geyser. The infant is reported to be the greatest of the hot-water geysers of the Park. It is located in the lower geyser basin, forty miles south from Mammoth Hot Springs.

The Frog's Joke.

'Twas in July; the sun was hot,
The pond was smooth, the air was still;
The pirate's vessel lay becalmed,
Without a breeze the sail to fill;
But soon a plan had been devised
To move the ship without a sail;
A diving frog took down a line
And tied it round a bullhead's tail.

The big fish felt a gentle tug,
Then saw the line and jumped with fright.
He tried in vain to shake it off,
And swam away with all his might,
This way, and that, at race-horse speed,
He crossed the pond from side to side;
But when he went the ship went, too,
And all the frogs enjoyed the ride.

Flora and Her Kittens.

Flora is a Maltese cat without a white hair in her furry coat from the end of her nose to the tip of her tail. She received the name of Flora from circumstances attending her discovery. She was found last summer hiding behind the thick blades of a bed of tiger lilies, a slender, shy young thing with wild yellow eyes and, as her captors were made to know, all claws. She was fed liberally morning and evening at the kitchen door. A bed in a snug box in the woodshed was provided for her. As time went on she became acquainted with the several members of the family and would permit her back to be stroked and her head to be scratched. When the weather became colder her fur thickened and lengthened. She was an out-of-door cat and had never been inside the house. After a time she began to show a great desire to get into the house, and whenever a door was opened it was necessary to close it promptly to prevent her coming in. She forsook the bed in the woodshed and took lodgings elsewhere. She was so careful in her disappearances that no one could follow her. One morning she did not come to her breakfast. The next morning she appeared, and was fed as usual. Two days later, a very cold morning, she came to a side door and mewed piteously. She was taken in. Then this cat that had never before been within the house became a marvel of feline audacity and impudence. She roamed through all the rooms inspecting all the corners. Finally she went into a front room, in which there was a couch. She popped under this, and was with some difficulty dislodged by means of a broom. The next day, watching her opportunity, she dodged in by way of the kitchen, made the tour of the house and again went under the couch. She was coaxed out, the door was opened and she disappeared. Early the following morning a mew was heard at a side door. It was opened and in popped Flora, a kitten in her mouth. How proudly she held her head! Looking neither to the right nor to the left, she traversed three rooms into the one in which was the couch. Under the couch she went. There she left her kitten, and, returning to the door, was let out. Two minutes later she appeared carrying another kitten. She was again admitted, and again, until four kittens had been deposited under the couch. Standing on the porch she seemed in a brown study. Evidently she had lost the count of her kittens. She was let in and having looked them over again set out and soon returned with a fifth. This time there was no hesitancy. She would make sure that none of her offspring was left behind. She set out again. She was followed. It was found that she had made her nest under the steps of a house 200 feet away. She came back this time without any kitten in her mouth. Five was the total and they were all comfortably bestowed under the couch in a room with a good fire. The little mother cuddled her kittens and seemed satisfied. But the kittens were quiet, singularly quiet; all but one and that one apparently the most robust in the lot. He was continually mewing. The door opening upon the porch was left ajar that night so that Flora might go out and come in. The next morning only one kitten was found under the couch. It was the robust one, the one that had made so much noise. He was quiet now. What had happened? Where were the other four kittens? Their place had been cold under the steps and they had been brought to the warmer place too late to save them. They had died in the night and the mother cat had taken her dead, one at a time and carried them away. She is now trying to save the surviving kitten, who is stout and healthy and promising.—Indianapolis News.

Old Aunt Chloe.

"O, mamma! What do you think our teacher told us today? Sit down and let me tell you." And Ruby pulled her mother toward the old-fashioned sofa. For Ruby lived in a quaint little town where most of the houses were small and the furniture quaint, and the people had simple tastes, and time to think of making others happy as well as to enjoy themselves.

"Well, dear, do not talk so fast, and tell mother all about it."

"Well, mamma," said Ruby slowly, "Miss Wistar says that every one of us ought to be useful, and that we ought to make some one happy every day. Don't you think I am too little to work, look at my hands, aren't they too small to do things?" And Ruby stretched her tiny little fingers wide apart, and they were indeed too small to do much.

"But, my dear little girlie," smiled mamma, "there are many ways in which you can make others happy, and help, too, besides working. I saw you help old Mrs. Thorne down the steps and open the gate for her. That was helpful kindness though you did not think of it. Now, dear, try to watch every chance like that, and at the close of each day if you have done even one such act you can feel happy."

"Why, mamma, I am so glad you told me, I never thought that was helpful work. Now I am going to see how many people I can help today."

Just then the door opened and two of Ruby's little friends came in to ask her to go across to the meadow to gather violets. Ruby's mamma gave her permission and soon they were off with their little baskets to the field back of old Aunt Chloe's cabin. As they neared the house Susie said: "Now, let's run, or Aunt Chloe will stop us to thread her needles; she is there in the door with her tiresome, ugly old quilt."

"Yes," said Cora, "I hear her calling. Let's pretend we don't hear."

"Come, honey," the old woman called, in a thin, shaky voice; "come thread old Aunt Chloe's needles so she kin sew, please come, young misses, one of you."

But they ran on unheeding, and began eagerly to fill their baskets—all but Ruby. The sweet-faced violets all seemed to reproach her, she thought of what her mamma had told her, and of her teacher. Suddenly she sat down her basket and sped off to the little cabin. "Here I am, Aunt Chloe; let me thread all your needles, just as many as you want." And Ruby took the needle from the trembling old hand and soon handed it back ready for work to the grateful old woman.

"God bless you, honey! Aunt Chloe gwine to pray for you so long as she lib. You dunno how happy you make an old woman!"

"O! I am so glad I came; I'll come every day, Aunt Chloe, and bring you needles enough to finish your quilt."

Then Ruby went back to her friends and the flowers, when every little violet seemed to smile up at her.

Something About Knives.

All boys have knives in their pockets, but some of them are so dull that they are not of much use either to their owners or to their owners' neighbors. A boy without a knife, as I know from experience, is very miserable and in a poor way to get all the enjoyment out of life. Of course, girls do not use knives so much as boys do, but they frequently have to borrow of their brothers or their friends when they want to sharpen pencils or cut their jumping ropes or gather pussy willows. Do not think I would urge selfishness upon readers, but persons who borrow knives are often very careless with them, losing them or keeping them much longer than they need. What I want to tell you is the very simple thing of how to keep a pocket knife sharp. With a little trouble and patience a knife can be sharpened and kept in good order, but it is surprising how few boys know how to do this. In the first place, if the edge of the blade is badly nicked, or if the sides curve out it should be ground on a grindstone until the nicks all disappear. Be sure to put plenty of water on the stone, so that the heat arising from the friction will not take out the "temper" of the steel. Hold the blade firmly so that the stone will grind from the top of the blade nearly to the edge. When the grinding is done the sides of the blade should curve in. The blade may then be said to "hollow ground." If the stone is allowed to grind to this edge the blade will become too thin and will "nick" easily. Now place the blade in a flat position on a whetstone and grind with a circular motion. Treat both sides in this way till a slight fringe appears on the edge. If the knife does not grind it can be "whet up" in the same way, with the exception of bearing a little more strongly near the cutting edge when rubbing across the stone. Either water or fine oil may be used on the stone, which will remove the fine fringe on the edge and will polish the blade.

Which Hand?

Girls and boys, can you brush your hair with your left hand? Or throw a stone, or use your knife? Or button your shoe? Or catch a ball? Or write a letter? Or do a hundred other things with it you can do with your right hand? If you can't, it is high time you began, for you will find much for your left hand to do if you train it as your right hand is trained, and develop the left side muscles. Somebody once asked in rhyme "Did you ever see a rabbit climb a tree?" and gave as the reason no one had: "Simply couldn't do it, don't you see?" But the real reason was that it did not begin when it was young, or when the world was young. If its home had been in a tree it would have managed to get to it as well as Mr. Squirrel. If you can manage to use your left hand; do not be discouraged; why, your right hand has been training ever since you were a baby and reached out after the sunshine. There is no reason why every one should not be "ambidextrous"—one who uses both hands with equal facility. It would be very confusing if there was no law for the right hand side of the road, and many accidents would result, but this is very different, and you will find it very interesting to learn to write or to drive nails with your left hand. You will make queer work of it at first, but when you are grown up and want to put a screw in a corner, or place a needle in a difficult seam, won't it be a big help; or suppose something happens to that good servant, your right hand, won't you be glad you have a well-trained left hand? Tom Robbins broke his right arm not long ago and he thought it was terrible to have his meat cut for him like a baby, and he splashed his soup and was dreadfully awkward. He started to train his left hand and now can write a beautiful letter, or brush his hair "with both sides." If any left-handed girl or boy reads this, I hope they will please put right in the place of left, and train both hands.—Pennsylvania Grit.

Fighting Flies

This is getting to be about the time of year when the humane man and more especially the woman of tender sympathies takes note of the myriad insect pests of the animal kingdom and seeks for some alleviation from the suffering entailed upon the cattle of the farm. But at the same time there are many decent folks who say they would not see their animals suffer if they could help it, but who are not at all sure that flies cause any very great irritation to cattle and are not convinced that it pays them to go to any great expense or trouble to ward off insect attacks. What they are beginning to figure up is the possible loss of flesh, or milk, or growth, or possible decrease of such commodities as wool, losses which may be properly set down as being the result of fly attacks and constant irritation during the summer months. It must be confessed that they are quite unable to arrive at any definite conclusion as to the amount of loss entailed in actual marketable products when flies are allowed to practice their tactics unopposed nor are they able to set down a figure showing a profit from treatment with various dopes and devices intended for the destruction of flies or their prevention from attacking. This being the case they are very apt to argue that as the fly preventing work does not show a palpable profit it is scarcely worth following year after year and we believe candidly that this would be found true if we were to figure up the expense and bother and time utilized in attempting to smear, or dip, or screen or scrape or blanket, or otherwise protect or treat cattle during fly time with the object of protecting them against insect pests. It then simmers down to almost pure humanitarianism this business of fly destruction or prevention. And surely that is worth all of the trouble and expense, and without any elaborate calculations as to the cost in time and money we think the pleasure of knowing that the poor dumb beasts are more comfortable than they would otherwise be more than offsets the cost and trouble. And there are advantages in fly prevention that are not usually taken into account. For instance it must be concluded that as every animal eats a certain amount of grass and other food daily a certain increment should be expected from food consumed but when flies bother milk is reduced in amount, fat is wasted in fighting and running, lack of peace in summer means wholesale waste of flesh put on in times of peace and plenty during winter time, hides are injured materially by puncture in the best parts, seen where the back has been infested by the "warble" of the insect known as hypodermis bovis and considered from every aspect flies are an abomination and injury and torment to animals that deserve the protection and sympathy and attention of their owners. Fly destruction is then in the opinion of the Farmers Review not to be considered wholly in the selfish light of mere dollars and cents but as a humane matter first and as an economic policy second. Shelters and shades should be supplied in every pasture; screens should be upon the doors and windows of every horse and cattle stable; applications should be made to the backs of cattle by spray pumps, dipping or other methods for the keeping off of flies, and after all is done the work will not be so very difficult nor the expense very great, considering the bliss and comfort and enjoyment of the animals relieved. There are many applications nowadays which may be used for the purpose indicated in the above and of these the cheap tar product sheep dips advertised in our columns will be found easy of application, effective and economic. Other effective applications have been suggested by each agricultural experiment station and bulletins upon the subject may be had from these sources on application. The humane man will stop figuring the cost and consider the comfort of his stock in these days of prosperity, profit and plenty. It is to be hoped that he will prove the truth of this assertion!

Agricultural Notes.

Farm tenantry is doubtless increasing in the United States, and this fact is one with which we must constantly reckon. As a result of tenantry, social conditions become yearly worse in many of our farming communities. The tenant does not feel that he is a fixture and takes little interest in the community. The owners of the land in too many cases prefer for a tenant a man without children, as there are in that case none to increase the district school tax. This is another new problem that must be faced.

American agriculture is slowly emerging from the state of chaos in which it existed during the era of free and cheap lands. Hitherto we have required of the soil but meager harvests; now we are requiring good yields and are learning how to get have been published that are very valuable to the man wishing to grow only the crops suited to each soil.

If there was ever a time when the farmer should be a student that time is now. The whole system of supply and demand is rapidly changing, and the man that does not study the new conditions is sure to be cast aside by the logic of events. He may indeed die before he feels the adverse influence very heavily, but death is the only escape for him.

The Thoroughbred Cross.—We are pleased to know that there is a more general inclination this season among breeders of trotting stock to experiment with the thoroughbred cross than has prevailed since the standard craze swept over the country some twenty years ago, says the American Horse Breeder. This seems to us a sure indication of an improvement in speed in the future. No practical breeder, in fact, no theorist who has studied the subject of heredity, can find any ground for claiming that the introduction of a carthorse cross has ever improved the speed of any horse, no matter what gait he or she may have adopted. All the improvement in the speed ability of the light-harness horse that has ever been effected has come from the speedy, thoroughbred race horse. Increased ability must come from the same source.

Flower tints are popular this season. The new fuchsia shades, wisteria and lilac are among the favorites.

UNIVERSITY OF NOTRE DAME.

Notre Dame, Indiana.

We call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of Notre Dame University, one of the great educational institutions of the West, which appears in another column of this paper. Those of our readers who may have occasion to look up a college for their sons during the coming year would do well to correspond with the president, who will send them a catalogue free of charge, as well as all particulars regarding terms, courses of studies, etc.

There is a thorough preparatory school in connection with the university, in which students of all grades will have every opportunity of preparing themselves for higher studies. The Commercial Course, intended for young men preparing for business, may be finished in one or two years according to the ability of the student. St. Edward's Hall, for boys under thirteen, is an unique department of the institution. The higher courses are thorough in every respect, and students will find every opportunity of perfecting themselves in any line of work they may choose to select. Thoroughness in class work, exactness in the care of students, and devotion to the best interests of all, are the distinguishing characteristics of Notre Dame University.

Fifty-seven years of active work in the cause of education have made this institution famous all over the country.

MAY SOON RETURN

FOREIGN TROOPS MAY AGAIN BE REQUIRED IN THE CHINESE CAPITAL.

TROUBLE IN THE NEAR FUTURE

According to Officers the Outlook Is Not Bright—Gen. Gaselee, Who Commanded the British Indian Troops in Pekin, Leaves for Home—Elaborate Plans to Hoodwink the Emperor.

Pekin, July 15. — Gen. Gaselee, who commanded the British Indian troops here, left yesterday on route to England, traveling by way of Japan, Canada and the United States. There was a special guard of American, German, Italian and Japanese troops at the station and also a number of Chinese police. The presence of the latter was an unusual occurrence. Part of Gen. Gaselee's staff will remain at Tien-tsin with Gen. O'Moore Creagh, who will succeed Gen. Gaselee. The latter, when he arrives in London, will make a personal report of the military and political situations His direction of the movements of the Indian troops was guarded, prudent, safe and diplomatic, he following the British policy in that he was neither excessively lenient, like the Americans, nor severe like the Germans. Many officers anticipate that troubles in the near future will necessitate the return of foreign troops. Col. Alexander of the Sixteenth Bengal Lancers is now in command of the British troops in Pekin. The Sixteenth Bengal Lancers, the Seventh Rajputs, and the Welsh Fusiliers will leave about the middle of August. Only 250 troops will be left as a legation guard.

To Fool the Emperor.

The Chinese officials are making elaborate preparations to save the emperor's face when he re-enters Pekin. All evidence of the destruction wrought by the war along the streets to be traversed by the emperor will be temporarily disguised. Great pagodas will be erected. The Chen Men gate, which was nearly demolished by the bombardment, will be repaired with wood and plaster, painted to resemble stone and the damage to the walls and outer buildings will be similarly masked. Li Hung Chang has deferred the withdrawal of the foreign troops from the temples and palaces not later than Aug. 15. The ministers of the powers have acquiesced and have notified the commanders of their decision. The Americans and British will probably camp near the summer residences of the legations in the western hills until their barracks are completed.

DISSOLUTE BARBER WHIPPED.

White Caps Castigate Bert Potts and Drive Him Out of St. Francisville, Ind., for Abusing His Family.

Vincennes, Ind., July 15.—Bert Potts, a barber of St. Francisville, was taken out by sixty White Caps and given fifty lashes on the bare back. After the castigation he was warned to leave the country and never return on the penalty of death. About six months ago Potts fell into dissolute habits, deserted his family, mortgaged his place and wasted the money. Potts when released started on the run, and it is said he left on the first train for St. Louis.

PLEASURE BOAT BLOWN UP.

Terrific Explosion in Which Two Boys Are Killed and Many Persons Injured.

Sunbury, Pa., July 15.—An excursion boat anchored in the Susquehanna river at the foot of Market street, this city, blew up with terrific force, killing two boys and injuring a dozen other persons, two fatally. One man is missing and many have been killed also.

Winter Wheat in South Dakota.

Sioux Falls, S. D., July 15.—Dell Loomis, a farmer living near Sioux Falls, has been experimenting with winter wheat, which is something new in this part of the country. He pronounces the experiment a success, although his first crop of two acres will not be up to what he hoped owing to his failure to sow enough to the acre.

Fourteen Buckshot Found.

San Jose, Cal., July 16.—Boiling of the remains of Lee Wing, a murdered Chinese, to ascertain if a bullet from Lee Look's pistol had entered his body, has been completed after twenty-four hours. Fourteen large buckshot and one 44-caliber bullet were found when the mass was strained. This bullet is said to fit Look's revolver.

His Boat Capsized.

Eagle Pass, Tex., July 15.—The consulting engineer of the international boundary commission, P. D. Cunningham, was drowned by the capsizing of his boat in a narrow, rocky channel of the Rio Grande about twenty miles below Eagle Pass. He was a native of Nashville, Tenn.

Destroyed by Fire.

Cleveland, Ohio, July 15. — Fire destroyed $60,000 worth of lumber belonging to the Cleveland Sawmill and Lumber company. A Wheeling & Lake Erie trestle in the vicinity of the blaze was burned and trains on that road will enter this city on the tracks of the Valley railroad.

Medal for Admiral Schley.

Memphis, Tenn., July 15.—The Memphis Commercial-Appeal will open a popular subscription for the purpose of procuring a medal to be presented to Rear Admiral W. S. Schley "in recognition of his distinguished services in the sea fight off Santiago in the recent war with Spain."

Many Have Registered.

Washington, July 15.—The official report from Assistant Commissioner Richards at El Reno, Okla., on the registration for the Oklahoma lands Friday said: "Registration here to-day, 5,104—all who applied. Fort Sill, to date, 4,800. Total for three days, 20,422."

Six Persons Drowned.

Savannah, Ga., July 15.—Six persons were drowned while surf bathing at a picnic of the Hebrew Gamahl Hasad at Daufuskie Beach.

Murderer's Body Found.

Dowagiac, Mich., July 15.—The body of Horace Peters, who shot and killed Peter Smith near Sister Lakes, was found last evening by a searching party that has been tracking the murderer for two days. He had shot himself. An old feud existed between the two men for several years.

Aeronaut Fatally Injured.

Springfield, Ohio, July 15. — Paul Hague, known as Prof. Zeno, an aeronaut, was fatally injured at Island Park, falling 200 feet. The parachute failed to open and he fell into a corn field.

Gen. Wood Recovering.

Havana, July 15. — Gov. Gen. Wood, who is suffering from typhoid fever, has recuperated wonderfully and his physicians are confident that he will be able to get up in a few days.

STEYN'S NARROW ESCAPE.

British Surprise Reitz and Make Important Captures.

London, July 15.—The war office has received the following from Lord Kitchener, dated at Pretoria:

"Broadwood's brigade surprised Reitz and captured Steyn's brother and others. Steyn himself escaped in his shirtsleeves with one other man only. The so-called 'Orange River government' and papers were captured."

Lord Kitchener also reports that Scheeper's commando (as announced in the Associated Press dispatches early last week) burned the public buildings in Murraysburg, Cape Colony, and some farm houses. According to further advices from Lord Kitchener the columns under Col. Featherstone and Col. Dixon have reached Zeerust, in the Transvaal. They met with opposition and made some captures. The British casualties were one officer killed and three officers and twenty-four men wounded.

WORK OF INCENDIARIES

Is Indicated in a Series of Fires in San Francisco.

San Francisco, July 15.—A series of fires early yesterday morning indicated that incendiaries were at work. Stables were made the special mark of their torches. Twenty horses were burned. The fires occurred in the same general neighborhood, near Larkin street. At midnight the stable of the San Mateo Dairy company, with its contents, was destroyed. Twelve horses perished. While the firemen were at work an alarm was turned in from a stable on Ellis street, three blocks away. Six horses in the stable were rescued with difficulty. Shortly after 2 o'clock the stable of the Signal Transfer company on Larkin street caught fire. There were fifty head of horses in this stable. Eight of them were burned to death.

HARD FIGHT WITH FIRE.

Necessary to Blow Up Buildings to Check the Flames.

Enid, Okla., July 15.—Four blocks of business houses on the public square were destroyed by fire in less than three hours time by a fire that started after midnight Saturday night. The water supply was inadequate, and it was necessary to blow up buildings with dynamite to check the flames. Owing to the continued drouth, everything burned like matchwood. A light wind was blowing from the southeast and saved the eastern part of town. The total loss is estimated at slightly over $100,000. The insurance will be light.

THROUGH WHIRLPOOL RAPIDS.

Graham Makes His Fifth Successful Voyage.

Niagara Falls, July 15. — About 3,000 people saw Carlisle D. Graham make his fifth successful voyage through the Whirlpool rapids yesterday afternoon. The barrel is made of wood, of an oval shape in that it has a flat head. It is 5 feet 9 inches in length, 11 inches in diameter at the foot and 26 inches at the head. With its 100 pounds of ballast, it weighs 146 pounds. The start was made from the Old Maid of the Mist landing, below the falls. Graham was bruised about the elbows and knees but otherwise was uninjured.

Railroad Tied Up.

Eagle Pass, Tex., July 15.—The engineers and firemen on the International railroad have resigned and business on that road is now suspended. The trainmen requested an advance of wages and it was refused, which is the cause of their action. There is no concerted strike, but all the men are out. The road is a Southern Pacific property and the men are paid in Mexican money and this has greatly depreciated in value, cutting down their wages.

When Did Robbery Occur.

San Francisco, July 15.—Safe Expert Walz has discovered that the time lock on the cashier's vault in the mint from which $30,000 was stolen, does not operate and has been out of order for an indefinite time. This has broadened the scope of the investigation by secret service men, as it is apparent robbery may have occurred at any time between 3 p. m. and 9 o'clock the following morning.

Caused $75,000 Damage.

St. Louis, July 15. — Fire yesterday completely destroyed the two-story iron and wood structure at Eleventh and Mullanphy streets, occupied by the O'Brien boiler works company, doing a damage estimated at $75,000. The building contained a number of valuable riveting machines, and if they shall be found to be damaged the loss may reach $100,000, largely covered by insurance.

Treasurer Bartley Released.

Lincoln, Neb., July 15.—Joseph Bartley, for four years treasurer of the State of Nebraska, convicted of embezzling funds of the state to the amount of nearly $600,000, was late Saturday night released from the penitentiary. Bartley was sentenced to twenty years and had served forty-nine months. Influential friends have worked hard for his pardon for two years.

Children Killed by Explosion.

Louisville, Colo., July 15. — The little five-year-old daughter of Mrs. John Clarkson and the eight-year-old daughter of Jacob Peck, mayor of this place, are dead as the result of an explosion of coal-oil at the Clarkson home. The children in attempting to build a fire in an old stove in an outbuilding poured oil on the flames, causing an explosion.

Conger Starts Back.

San Francisco, July 15.—E. H. Conger, United States minister to China, has arrived, en route to Pekin. Minister Conger will sail next Wednesday on the steamer Nippon Maru.

Emigration From Germany.

Berlin, July 15.—The emigration from Germany by way of Hamburg and Bremen during the first six months of this year reached 112,968 as against 115,370 for the corresponding period of last year.

Baden-Powell Is Ill.

London, July 15.—Gen. Baden-Powell, the Times announces, is suffering from overwork and fever and his medical advisers in South Africa have ordered him to take a complete rest and proceed to England.

ARE FREE AT LAST

YOUNGER BROTHERS ARE GRANTED A PAROLE BY THE BOARD OF PARDONS.

SPENT A LIFETIME IN PRISON

Freedom Is Conditional—Must Remain in Minnesota, Lead Orderly Lives and Refrain From the Use of Intoxicants—Boys Are Pleased and Promise to Merit the Good Will of Friends.

St. Paul, July 12. — The Younger "boys," Cole and Jim, were paroled yesterday morning by the state board of pardons under the new Minnesota law permitting the parole of life convicts that have served twenty years or more. The Youngers have been imprisoned nearly twenty-five years at Stillwater for the murder of Cashier J. L. Heywood of the First National Bank of Northfield, Minn., Sept. 7, 1876. Although the Youngers pleaded guilty, they did so, it is said, to escape the death sentence, from a jury not likely to be discriminating. Heywood was probably killed by the Youngers' notorious associate, Jesse James.

But Gov. Van Sant, Chief Justice Start and Attorney General Douglass, who constitute the board of pardons, explain in a published memorandum that they did not consider the question of nor whether they had been sufficiently punished. The board carried out the wishes of the legislature that passed the parole bill. According to that bill the Youngers were entitled to parole. They had been imprisoned more than twenty years, their conduct in prison had been "almost perfect," and the board of state prison managers had recommended the parole.

The Youngers will be released within a few days to take up civil employment somewhere in Minnesota. The time of the actual release as well as the nature and place of their future employment will not be officially made known. But the brothers' freedom will be conditional only. They must lead orderly lives and refrain from the use of intoxicants their must be approved by the board of state prison managers; they must report monthly to the board; they must not exhibit themselves at dime museums or elsewhere; they must not leave the state, and, finally, they may be again imprisoned at the sole discretion of the board.

The brothers' self-control was reflected in their reception yesterday of the news that they had obtained leave at least to see the outside world. Henry Wolfer, the warden's son, received the announcement by telephone from the state capitol soon after noon. Fifteen minutes later Henry went to the library and informed Jim Younger that he was going to be freed. The old man appeared to be unmoved. But he held out his hand and thanked the Bearer of Good News.

"Of course, I'm pleased," observed Jim, slowly. "It's the difference between life and death."

Over in the hospital building Cole looked up from his work, and appeared to anticipate the messenger, who exclaimed:

"Cole, you've been paroled!"

Cole stared a moment, and then replied in a low tone:

"That's the best news I've had for many a long day. And I can tell you Jim and I will work hard to merit the good will of the people outside. Nobody's going to regret this."

Three times only within a quarter of a century have the "boys" been outside the penitentiary. Twice they went as far as the warden's house. A third time was their transfer to the Washington county jail, when, on Jan. 25, 1884, much of the state prison was destroyed by fire.

GOOD PRICE FOR LAND.

Sales in Northern Counties Bring More Than Appraised Value.

St. Paul, July 12.—The state auditing department yesterday completed its report of the May sales of state land in twelve northern counties. The number of acres sold is 35,236.39, bringing $214,041.64. The appraised value was $192,971.25, which the sales exceed by $21,070.39. The average price per acre was $6.03, which is slightly above the average for state lands.

Elevator Burns.

Wood Lake, Minn., July 12. — On Tuesday night the Crown elevator, managed by W. N. Cayott, burned to the ground. The fire is supposed to have been caused by a hot box, as the manager had been elevating wheat until after 11, and the flames were discovered just after midnight. The building burned so rapidly that the books were not saved, so the exact amount of grain stored is not known.

Accepted Bridge Contract.

Morris, Minn., July 12.—The county board accepted the bid of Hewitt & Co. of Minneapolis for the iron bridge over the Pomme de Terre, between the towns of Tramnas and Morris.

Pistol Was Supposed Unloaded.

Hastings, Minn., July 12.—John and Lawrence, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Furlong of Rich Valley, aged nine and two years, during the absence of their parents, were accidentally wounded by shooting themselves with a revolver. The pistol was supposed not to have been loaded.

Gravel Trains Collide.

Cumberland, Wis., July 12. — Two work trains collided a few miles north of here, smashing the caboose and several gravel cars and seriously injuring George Hoffman of Spooner.

NO NOTORIETY FOR YOUNGERS.

Time of Their Release and Their Place of Employment to Kept From the Public.

St. Paul, July 13. — Cole and Jim Younger will spend the remainder of the week inside the walls of the Stillwater prison, engaged at their usual work and passing through the routine they have become accustomed to through nearly twenty-five years' confinement. They may be released Sunday, and yet it may be a week, two weeks or a month before they breathe outside air. Whenever they are given the freedom specified in the law passed for their benefit, it will be done quietly and secretly. This is Warden Wolfer's decision, and the statement he made last night. "My wish is that they be released without notoriety, as the pardon board desires," said the warden. "This may seem severe upon those interested in everything that happens to the two men, but the prison board, the pardon board and the governor are agreed that it is the wisest course. It is the generally accepted theory that they will not be allowed to live in the cities, but will be taken to some small, out-of-the-way place, where they can make a living without exciting attention.

"NIGGER JEFF" INSANE.

Well-Known Character at Winona Sent to the Asylum.

Winona, Minn., July 13. — "Nigger Jeff," a colored man who has been an inmate of the poor farm of this county for the past thirty years, was adjudged insane here yesterday and committed to the asylum for the insane at Rochester. His right name is Jeff Johnson. He was sixty-two years of age when he was sent to the poor farm and is now ninety-two years old, although he looks little older than he did when he came here from the South. For many years Jeff has been a living barometer for the keepers and inmates of the poor farm, his actions indicating the weather that was to follow.

ROBBERS SURROUNDED.

Caged in Little Rockies and Help Being Rushed to Sheriff.

Great Falls, Mont., July 13.—The outlaws who held up the Great Northern express train on the 3d are surrounded in the Little Rockies, and posses from all over Northern Montana are being rushed to the front. Sheriff Benner of this county yesterday afternoon received the following special from L. A. Foss, agent of the express company at Malta:

"Bring on men, ammunition and guns and all the saddles you can get. We are short of guns and ammunition. Bring nothing but modern guns. Horses are here."

NEW TIMBER INSPECTOR.

Superior Man Gets Appointment for Thirteenth District.

Madison, Wis., July 13. — Gov. La Follette appointed Timothy Atkinson of Superior timber inspector for the Thirteenth district, succeeding J. H. McDonald, whose term expired last April. The inspectors receive their pay in fees for scaling logs.

There is little or no change in Gov. La Follette's condition. He will probably be confined to the house for some time.

Drugged and Robbed.

Woonsocket, S. D., July 13. — The home of Albert Strub, owner of the "Big Store," was broken into and some $12 or $15 in money taken. Mrs. Strub woke up in the night feeling very sick, and found that the family had been drugged and the house rifled. Attempts were made to enter three other houses during the night. There were three rough looking men around town the day before and the sheriff is making an effort to find them.

Red Jailbreakers Caught.

Fergus Falls, Minn., July 13.—Sheriff Sawyer returned from the White Earth reservation yesterday, bringing with him the two Indians who recently escaped from the county jail. They were found hiding in a small shack, and their friends threatened to make trouble if they were rearrested. Several Indians blocked the entrance to the shack and refused the officers admission until the latter presented their guns.

Home From the Philippines.

Stillwater, Minn., July 13.—Edward Moorhead, a son of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Moorhead of this city, who has been absent from Stillwater for many years and during the past two years has served in the United States army in the Philippines, returned home yesterday morning and will remain in the Northwest.

A Mixed Crop Report.

Stewartville, Minn., July 13. — Grain is ripening fast and some barley has been cut. Oats will be a good crop, but the hot winds and chinch bugs have ruined wheat. Corn is all right if the bugs don't take it; but it looks now as if they would get away with it as soon as the grain is cut.

Two Delivery Routes.

Yankton, S. D., July 13.—George Olson, general agent of rural free delivery of mail for the government, is here establishing routes throughout the county. The system will be put in operation as soon as the necessary preliminary work can be finished.

Fatal Kick by a Horse.

Anoka, Minn., July 13.—Edward Larson, a young man twenty years of age, living in Bethel, is dead as a result of a kick from a horse. His family is under quarantine and the funeral has been put in charge of neighbors.

Robbery at Albert Lea.

Albert Lea, Minn., July 13. — Erick Olson and James Jensen are under arrest charged with robbing Lars L. Grefsness of Dana county, Wis., of $600 in cash, a gold watch, a note for $500 and some deeds.

KITTREDGE NAMED

APPOINTED TO SUCCEED KYLE AS SENATOR FOR SOUTH DAKOTA.

WILL SERVE UNTIL MARCH 4, 1903

New Senator Is Flooded With Congratulations—Expresses Appreciation of the Honor and Thanks Friends for Their Assistance and Expressions of Esteem, Which He Will Do His Best to Merit.

Pierre, S. D., July 13.—Gov. Herried has appointed A. B. Kittridge of Sioux Falls to fill the unexpired term of the late United States Senator Kyle. He will serve until March 4, 1903, the date when Senator Kyle's term would have expired.

Since the announcement of the appointment Senator Kittridge has been flooded with telegrams of congratulation from all parts of the state, as well as from many outside points. To a newspaper correspondent the new senator said:

"I am, of course, greatly pleased with my appointment, and wish to thank my friends throughout the state for their assistance and kind expressions of loyalty and esteem since the vacancy occurred and the mention of my name as the successor of Senator Kyle. I shall use my utmost endeavor to perform the duties of senator in such a manner as to reflect all possible credit upon the Republican party and the State of South Dakota."

TWO ARE SHOT—ONE WILL DIE.

Excursion of Waiters' Union Ends in Tragedy.

St. Paul, July 13.—During a row on the wharf at the foot of Jackson street after the return of the waiters' union excursion on the steamer Columbia Edward Rooney, a recent arrival from Duluth, was shot in the abdomen and will die, and Louis Kantrowich was also shot in the lower part of the abdomen and may recover. Edward Henley confesses, it is said, to having done the shooting in self-defense and is under arrest at the central police station. The excursionists returned home at 12:30 o'clock this morning. While down the river several of the passengers are said to have attempted to start a swindling game on the boat. Ed Healey was a member of the committee of management of the union and frustrated the attempts. His action is said to have caused considerable animosity toward him. Witnesses say that some of the disappointed men frequently made the remark that they would "get him" when the boat landed. They started to carry out their designs as soon as the wharf was reached and the shooting resulted.

PALMER LEAVES COUNTRY.

Goes to California to Get Away From Scenes of Trouble.

Sioux City, Iowa, July 13. — Richard Palmer, the Ute (Iowa) banker, who sued Chris Harm, a merchant, for alienation and caused Harm to drown himself and who after the coroner's inquest was sued by Harm's widow for $5,000 for conspiracy to extort money from Harm, came to Sioux City yesterday and departed for California to get away from the scene of his trouble and also it is said to get away from a possible charge of murder that is about to be placed against him by Harm's friends for the alleged causing of his death by his accusations. The First National Bank of Sioux City has been garnished by Mrs. Harm to hold funds due Palmer for purchasing his bank. Mrs. Harm, in her suit, demands $5,000.

STEEPLE PAINTER FALLS.

Dashed to Death by Fall of Several Hundred Feet.

La Crosse, Wis., July 13. — Since leaving La Crosse several years ago nothing has been heard from William N. Lavalle, whose trade was steeple painting. To-day word was received from Calmar, Iowa, that Lavalle had been killed at that place while at work, falling several hundred feet. Later it was ascertained that Lavalle lived at Kendall, Wis., afterward coming to this city to reside. From here he left for Mexico, but nothing had been heard of him since. Upon investigation it was found that he has a brother at Portage and another at Kendall. He also has a sister in the Catholic convent at Frontenac.

STUDY AND WORK.

La Crosse Students Will Tramp and Work in Harvest Fields.

La Crosse, Wis., July 13.—A party of young men, sons of the richest men in the city, and some of them university boys, left for the harvest fields of the West to work as laborers and study sociological conditions. They took no funds and left La Crosse tramp fashion in box cars. They are headed by sons of Rev. McKay, of the First Presbyterian church, and will be gone several weeks.

GRAIN DAMAGE.

Iowa Crop Suffered Greatly From Intense Heat.

Sioux City, Iowa, July 13. — A forecast of the Iowa crop reports indicate that much damage has resulted to grain during the past week from intense heat.

Sentenced to Prison.

Dodgeville, Wis., July 13. — Stewart Jeliffe, alias C. H. Winter, who pleaded guilty to robbing the First National Bank of Mineral Point of $16,000 on May 24 was sentenced to a term of four to ten years, according to deportment. The money was all recovered.

Supposed Smallpox.

Pierpont, S. D., July 13.—Citizens are somewhat alarmed over the appearance of a case supposed to be smallpox three miles from town. Nearly every citizen has been exposed and a rigid quarantine will be established.

TASTE OF LIBERTY

YOUNGER BROTHERS WALK OUT OF THE GATES OF STILLWATER PRISON.

SEE MUCH TO INTEREST THEM

Unnoticed They Walk About the Streets of Stillwater—Electric Car Excites Their Wonder—Entertain Friends at Dinner—Will Remain Warden's Guests Until Employment Is Obtained.

St. Paul, July 15.—At 10 o'clock yesterday morning the Younger brothers walked out of the doors of the Stillwater prison free men for the first time in twenty-five years.

During the morning they walked about the streets of Stillwater unnoticed, for in their civilian garments they were not recognized. At noon they returned to the prison, where they entertained some friends, including several newspaper men, at dinner in the governor's private quarters. The company was waited upon by a Chinese murderer under life sentence. In the afternoon they took a steamboat ride on Lake St. Croix, and last night they slept behind the prison walls—not as prisoners, but more as guests of the warden.

Immediately after chapel service yesterday morning, while Cole Younger, head nurse, was at his accustomed post in the prison hospital, and Jim, librarian and postman, was in the library, each was informed that he was wanted "down in front." They supposed that they were to see visitors in the reception room. But the brothers met a deputy warden, who handed each a suit of civilian clothes and a telescope valise. The brothers put the clothes on without delay, and in company with several newspaper men they Started for the Gate.

On the way the party passed a guard and the prison physician, but neither recognized the Youngers in their civilian suits. Both looked like prosperous business men, and their step was as elastic and they walked as erect as any of the less aged men in the party.

As they emerged from the immense prison gate, behind which they were confined for a quarter of a century, they looked about in a dazed manner, each gave a long breath as though trying to expel the prison air and fill their lungs with the breath of freedom. They did not utter a word, but the expression on their faces showed a feeling which it would be necessary to see to appreciate.

Then with one look back at the grim walls of the prison they started off at a brisk walk toward the city of Stillwater. At the edge of town they caught their first sight of an electric street car. The party stopped while Jim and Cole took a second look at what to them was a marvelous sight. The men asked a number of questions about the working of the cars and discussed the question of electricity as they proceeded down town.

They showed considerable knowledge of this and other modern appliances, but which they had never seen.

Roamed About Town.

For an hour or more the men roamed about the business section of the city and enjoyed the sights with as much enthusiasm as boys who were on their first visit from the farm and were killing time while waiting for the hour when the circus would begin. They made comments upon the appearance of the buildings, the architecture, the evidence of prosperity, and discussed the objects displayed in store windows. The men then returned to the prison, walking the entire distance without showing the least fatigue, and were ushered into Warden Wolfer's private apartments, where an elegant dinner was served and to which Cole and Jim, as well as their friends, did ample justice. The conversation was on books, dress, etc.

Cole, the larger of the two, wore a dark blue serge suit, a blue and white shirt, a white turn-down collar, a gray silk four-in-hand tie and calf shoes. Jim's suit was dark gray, his shirt pink and white, his four-in-hand a blue polka dot. No one would have suspected by the that they had once been notorious outlaws and bank robbers. They appeared perfectly at ease, their conversation was carried on fluently and without hesitation, and in every way they gave evidence of refined feelings.

After dinner a launch was placed at their disposal by Banker Bronson, a member of the prison board, and with Mr. Bronson and a number of friends the Youngers spent the afternoon on Lake St. Croix. Jim was at the helm and at one point steered the little craft near the Wisconsin shore. There was a hearty laugh all around when some one remarked that they were violating their parole by leaving the state without permission.

In the evening they returned to the prison, where several hours were passed pleasantly in the warden's private quarters, where they later went to bed.

The matter of employment has not yet been decided upon, and the men will remain the guests of the warden until positions are selected, which may be several days.

Attempted Suicide.

Sioux Falls, S. D., July 15.—Dexter J. Knapp, one of the most prominent residents of the state, yesterday morning fired a shot into his head with suicidal intent, which will prove fatal. He was three times appointed state fish warden for South Dakota. Prior to coming to this city he was a lumber dealer in Minneapolis. He was fifty-seven years of age.

Bishop Colter Convalescing.

Winona, Minn., July 15.—Word has been received to the effect that Bishop Colter will return from the hospital at Rochester this week. Since passing the danger point the recovery of the bishop has been steady and rapid.

Drowned in Red Lake River.

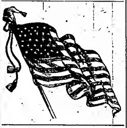
WEDNESDAY, JULY 17, 1901.



Pat Crowe, wanted for the abduction of young Cudahy at Omaha a few weeks ago, has been located again. This time he is in South Africa from where he sent a draft for $250 to an attorney of St. Joseph Mo. The attorney defended "Pat" some years ago when he was on trial for train robbery.

The appropriation made by the village council for the support of the band has been backed up by a generous offer from Julius Pleth, the land man. Mr Pleth offers to pay the instructor's salary for a month after the appropriation has expired. This is another example of Mr Pleth's well known liberality and public-spiritedness and shows his keen appreciation of the band and its competent instructor.

Miss Rebecca Cuyler, stepdaughter of the noted preacher, T. DeWitt Tolmage, surprised a druggist at a Long Island watering place the other day. She was riding a big bay horse and stopped in front of the drug store for a glass of soda. She tapped on the screen door with her riding whip and the druggist jokingly called to her to come in. She did. She rode right through the door and down to the refreshment counter where she had her drink, paid for it, then turned round and rode out again.

It doesn't seem to make much difference where a man may go if he is looking for either a knave or a fool. You can always find some of both in every community. The general inclination of that kind of person is to be either extremely alive to their present individual wants or prodigal in matters pertaining to their own and the public good.

There are a few of these people in this vicinity—we believe they are few—and it seems that the greatest object which presents itself to their contracted minds is how to dodge public improvements. This is particularly true concerning the questions of drainage and good roads. If approached on the subjects of constructing a new ditch or doing some road grading they will set up a howl. The proposed improvement will cost too much for the individual benefit it will be to them; or, perhaps if the country be drained so that new settlers can come in it will raise the price of their hay privileges; or perhaps, if there is danger of their being asked to do some road work, they cry that the road is good enough at present for all they need it for. Their crops are none too good and they can't afford to spend their time and labor in such work when they dont need it—personally.

It is a fact that some people would prefer to hold back the development of the richest parts of this county just because they imagine that they can see a present benefit to themselves under existing conditions. They never stop to consider the increase in values which must follow the work of ditching and road grading. They cannot see the difference which this work must make in their crop production and the marketing thereof. They fail to appreciate progression and their hearts are so small that they could not harbor a kindly feeling towards a new neighbor—if he were to come in and settle on a piece of land improved by good ditching and roadmaking. Such people are a drawback to any community and even experience can hardly educate them.

THE LITTLE OLD SPINET.

Do you see the little spinet standing in the corner there?
Great-grandmother loved to play it when she was a maiden fair.
Sunbeams through the window twinkle, flick'ring on its yellowed keys,
And we almost hear the tinkle of the old time melodies.

Great-grandmother gowned in silk, with high heeled slippers, dainty lace,
Sat there, while a smile of pleasure lighted up her fair young face;
From without the rose scent lingers, drifting on the summer breeze,
While she plays with fairy fingers all the old time melodies.

And the little spinet waits her patiently these long, long years,
Till its mellow voice is broken, harsh, and has the sound of tears,
Yet it seems the sunbeams straying, flick'ring on its yellowed keys,
And her fairy fingers playing all the old time melodies!

—Mary Small Wagner in Optimist.

A CASE OF LAW.

The Decision That Was Rendered by a Basuto Solomon.

Law is a complicated thing, and some of its decisions seem not to be founded in equity. Probably most readers will pass that criticism upon the case recorded below:

Basutoland, being broken and mountainous, was until recently the resort of lions, leopards and other wild animals. Now, however, the hillsides which were once the resort of these savage creatures are the pasture grounds of tens of thousands of cattle. Nearly all dangerous animals have been driven away from Basutoland, but not long ago a leopard appeared on the outskirts of a village. The animal soon became as badly frightened as the villagers and sought safety in flight.

The next morning the inhabitants turned out for a hunt. One of the hunters was climbing a steep rock when he suddenly found himself face to face with the leopard, whose retreat was cut off by the rock itself. Neither the man nor the animal could escape the encounter.

The dilemma was an awkward one, for the climber was unarmed. Realizing his danger, he put forth his hands and in desperation caught hold of the leopard on each side of its jaw, holding it at arm's length and calling for help. The leopard clawed and tore his captor, but the man held on till help arrived, and the beast was speared.

Now came a question of law. By Basuto law the skin belonged to the chief, who must reward one of three claimants—either the man who speared the leopard or the man who held it so that it was possible to spear it or the man who, being warned by the barking of his dog, first discovered the animal in the village.

The Basuto Solomon decided the case as follows: The man who speared it could not have done so but for the man who held it, and the man who held it could not have known of its existence if the dog had not first warned the village; therefore the credit for the killing belonged to the dog, whose owner was entitled to the reward.—Youth's Companion.

Now She Hates Him.

A young man and a young woman lean over the front gate. They are lovers. It is moonlight. He is loath to leave, as the parting is the last. He is about to go away. She is reluctant to see him depart. They swing on the gate.

"I'll never forget you," he says, "and if death should claim me my last thought will be of you."

"I'll be true to you," she sobs. "I'll never see anybody else or love them as long as I live."

They part.

Six years later he returns. His sweetheart of former years has married. They meet at a party. She has changed greatly. Between the dances the recognition takes place.

"Let me see," she muses, with her fan beating a tattoo on her pretty hand, "was it you or your brother who was my old sweetheart?"

"Really, I don't know," he says. "Probably my father."—London Answers.

Rung In Its Third Century.

The bell on historic old St. John's church, in Richmond, where Patrick Henry made his famous speech prior to the American Revolution, rang in the twentieth century. This bell is thus given the distinction of being the only one in this country, with the possible exception of that on old Liberty hall, in Philadelphia, that has rung in three centuries. Old St. John's bell has an interesting history. Many years ago, when the old structure for which it was made was repaired, the bell was removed and sold. Later its last owner presented it to the Virginia Historical society, by which it was restored to the church.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

The members of the State Railroad and Warehouse commission are due to be at Wylie to-day to look into the situation there regarding the depot. There is a big kick made on account of the old shanty placed there and the result of the kick may be that a substantial new depot will be built there by order of the authorities.

Bert Akin, a saloon-keeper of Bemidji, was found dead on Friday last at the Palace Hotel in Grand Forks. He had just sold out his business at Bemidji and was on his way home to visit his mother at Gary, S. D. He had been drinking heavily and a bottle containing some liquor was found in the room. There was also a small vial of quinine.

R. Marotte, landlord of the Grand Central Hotel in Crookston was a visitor here last Thursday. He was in company with V. N. Scott, of the John Berth Co., Milwaukee, who was making one of his periodical business trips. It was Mr. Marotte's first visit to St. Hilaire and he expressed himself as being agreeably surprised to find such a lively town.

The open air concert given by the band Sunday evening was the first effort of its kind and to say that it was a success would be about the mildest way to express it. It was better than was expected and was fully appreciated by our citizens. The St. Hilaire Band will soon be one of the best in Northern Minnesota if its members continue their practice regularly.

W. A. Case returned Monday after an absence of over a month. During his absence he visited the head camp meeting of the M. W. A. at St. Paul, and started new lodges of that order at Black Duck and Teastrike. He contemplates leaving here in a few weeks for Albany, N. Y., where he will make his headquarters in the future while working up the membership of the Woodmen.

—Julius Pleth, the land man wants to buy your farm. Do you want to sell? If so call at his office two doors south of Hotel Markham.

The Thirteen Towns, of Fosston, says that word reached there of a terrible tragedy which happened on the morning of Sunday the 7th inst in the town of Eddy. A Mrs. Maple, whose mind has been weak for some time, went down cellar and cut her throat with a razor. Death ensued almost immediately. Besides her husband she leaves a family of six children all under ten years of age.

Harry E. Ives left Monday for Cass Lake where he will spend a few days visiting and while away some pleasant hours in luring the wily members of the finny tribe from their "deep pellucid lair." The primary object of his visit is to help his father, Hon. Frank Ives, to celebrate the 70th anniversary of his birthday and present him with a fine gold-headed cane as a reminder of the day.

Anna Hestekind, aged 21 years, died on Wednesday last at the home of her parents east of Rocksbury, of consumption. The funeral occurred on Friday afternoon. The deceased was well known in St. Hilaire and was highly respected by all who had the pleasure of her acquaintance. It is said that she was to have been married shortly and had already commenced preparations for the wedding, believing that she would get better.

An exchange says: She was a bright girl and they were at a game of base ball. She had won his enthusiastic heart by understanding the game right off and he loved her even more than if she had been his sister. "It reminds me of the household," said he, "the plate, the batter, the fowls and the flies." "And that reminds me of marriage," she added, "first the diamond when they are engaged, then the struggles and hits when the men go out, and finally the difficulty to get home." And he sat down and thought and thought.

—Julius Pleth, the land man of St. Hilaire wants to buy farm lands—wild or improved, and will pay spot cash for same.

A poor tailor released from a troublesome world and a scolding wife, went to the gates of Paradise. St. Peter asked him if he had been in purgatory. "No," replied the tailor, "but I have been married." "Oh," said Peter, "pass in; that's all the same thing." After the tailor came a fat alderman, and would have gone straight in, too, had not St. Peter blocked the way. "Have you been in purgatory?" asked the saint. "No," answered the alderman, "but what has that to do with it? You have just let my tailor in, and he has not been in purgatory any more than I." "Oh, but he was married on earth," replied St. Peter. "Married!" exclaimed the alderman, confident in his claim; "Well I have been married twice!" "Then go away at once," sternly replied the saint; "Paradise is no place for fools."—Ex.

Drowned While Bathing.

On Friday evening last the treacherous Red Lake river claimed another victim in the person of Sigvald Gjerde who was drowned while bathing. The sad accident occurred at about half past seven in the evening at the lumber company's sorting gap just north of the village.

The deceased was in the employ of the St. Hilaire Lumber Company and worked with the day crew. On Friday evening just after supper he went to bathe with some companions, who were principally boys about fourteen years of age. He was unacquainted with the river and had no thought of the danger. He swam out to the boom and had even got his hand on a log when he was seized with the fatal cramps and sank immediately. No cry came from his lips to warn his companions who saw him go down but did not immediately realize his sad predicament. He came up to the surface again and yet again. A gurgling gasping sound from the poor fellow called the attention of his comrades to his condition and one boy, whose name we have been unable to learn, swam towards him and dived after him but all too late. The unfortunate young man had sunk to rise no more. The alarm was given immediately and many willing hands went to work at once to search for the body. The river was dragged for about two hours before the searchers found the object of their efforts. The body was taken to the village hall where undertaker Holmes took charge of it. Messengers were at once dispatched to the home of his parents, about eight miles east of Angus, in Polk county and the sad news was broken to his parents. A brother of the dead man arrived here on Saturday and took the body home for burial.

Coroner Bellair was notified at once of the accident. He came over from Red Lake Falls to look into the matter and after a close investigation decided that an inquest was unnecessary.

The deceased was 23 years of age and unmarried. He has been working here for a couple of months and enjoyed the respect of all who knew him.

The unfortunate young man had left his clothing on the river bank when he took his fatal bath and while the search for the body was being made some one took his watch from the clothing. No clue to the thief could be found but a close investigation was started. The criminal, probably some boy who did not realize the serious nature of the crime, became alarmed and on Monday the watch was found in the drivers shack where it had been left by the culprit. When found the watch was still running which would prove that it had been worn and wound up since it was missed on Friday night.

The Voice of Matrimony.

Two souls
With but a single thought
Two hearts
That beat as One;
This is my biographic sketch
Which those may read
Who run.
I'll admit I'm pretty hard sledding.
At times.
And some folks don't find me
To be
All their fancy had pointed,
But I'm not in
The paint and fancy supply business.
And shouldn't be held responsible.
If people think I'm an umbrella
That fits anything
I'm put up over,
They'll be mistaken,
That's all.
I'm what I am,
And can't be any ammer
Than I am,
So there.
If people aren't willing
To risk something.
For big winnings,
They'd better pass me
And hunt for trouble
Somewhere else.
There's plenty of it,
Without banging away at me
Every time they drop an egg.
I can be the greatest happiness
Or the greatest misery
On earth,
According to how I'm managed;
And when they take me
For the money that's in it,
I make them earn all they get,
You bet.
All the same, I'm a good thing;
But, being so good,
I don't quite understand
Why they won't have me in heaven,
Do you?

MYSTIC TOILERS SURPRISE.

They Pass the $8,000,000 Mark in Short Time.—Two Years and Three Months After Its Organization it has 8,100 Certificates in Force.

(From Des Moines Daily News:)

If we were looking for the Napoleon of fraternal insurance, both reputation and results would lead us to the office of the Mystic Toilers on the eighth floor of this building. These "Toilers" were set to work April, 1899, under the supervision of Mr. J. F. Taake, the supreme secretary. In this short time this organization has gained over 8,100 members, and its policies represent over $8,000,000, Mr. Taake has had no assistant during this time, but singly and alone has directed the management of this society with the result above stated.

This organization provides for benefits for accidental injuries as well as death, combining the features of accident and life insurance. It is managed on the lodge system, each separate organization being termed a council. It does not discriminate against women they being insured on the same terms as men. The insurable ages are 18 to 50 years. It is worthy of note that old line companies are waking up to the injustice of rejecting women, nearly all of them now following in the wake of fraternal societies on this point. A number of "old liners" that formerly refused insurance to ladies are now getting down on their knees to get them as preferred risks.

The Mystic Toilers have only had ten assessments since it began business and has paid $20,000 benefits.

It is constantly increasing the number of councils, and it offers the best of contracts to insurance men to organize new ones in the six different states comprising its territory.

Its reserve fund is placed beyond the reach of speculation, as it can only be invested in United States government, state, municipal or school bonds, and as provided by the code of Iowa.

With such elements of solidity, with a system of organization that puts in practice the brotherhood of mankind, with a manager without a peer, the future looks bright for the Mystic Toilers.

It Costs Less to Live.

The cost of living in the United States to-day is less than it was in 1860. General commodities, like breadstuffs, sugar, rice, salt, woolen and cotton goods, etc., are considerably cheaper and better made now than 30 years ago. All manufactured goods, with hardly an exception, because of improved processes of manufacturing, are either much cheaper or much better.

The Minneapolis Brewing Company, which produces "Golden Grain Belt" beer, has put into improved quality all the advantages of modern methods of production. Their beer, brewed from the purest barley malt and hops, carefully aged and bottled with perfect cleanliness, is the most healthful of modern beverages. Clear, sparkling and delicious, it is an exceptionally fine drink for family use. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex. Thompson, Crookston.

The Crookston College catalogue for the coming year is just out. It is a very interesting pamphlet showing what progress a private school can have when it meets the demands of the people. Copies of the catalogue may be obtained free by writing to J. C. Sothre, Crookston, Minn.

FAITH of the CHILD

I.

Little one, my little one,
  When first you walked alone,
With eager trust you kept your hands
  Held out to grasp my own—
Toward me was bent each step you took,
And by your anxious, pleading look
  Your faith was sweetly shown.

II.

Little one, my little one,
  Since you are larger grown,
Forgetting to depend on me,
  You run about alone—
Yet when your little troubles rise
Ah, you return with tearful eyes,
  And my protection own.

III.

Little one, my little one,
  In weakness I am prone
To crave His guidance, to depend
  Upon His love alone—
But when my step grows firm I let
My faith lie sleeping and forget
  All glory save my own.

IV.

Little one, my little one,
  Your childish ways have showe
That I am weak, that I am still
  A child, though larger grown;
In weal I boldly cope with men,
  In woe I turn to Him again,
  Afraid to walk alone.

Journal of a Contented Woman.

BY SARAH ROGERS.

(Copyright, 1901, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

November 1—I have decided today to become contented, whatever my earthly lot. I have been so discontented lately that any change will be welcome. And has not Shakespeare said:

My crown is in my heart, not on my head;
Not deck'd with diamonds and Indian stones,
Nor to be seen—my crown is call'd content;
A crown it is that seldom kings enjoy.

So I am going to be contented and wear my unseen crown upon my heart, knowing that few kings enjoy a like privilege.

Fate has made me the only relative of a business brother. Now at the very start in order to explain, if not justify my discontent, this is not in the least what I should have apportioned for myself. I am not even determined that I should have selected a brother as a solitary relative, but if I had, he should have been a distinguished, university bred person, cultured to his finger-tips and president of Harvard, no less, and given to entertaining the greatest litterateurs of the day. What Destiny has chosen for me in the shape of Tom is a handsome, well-groomed, ordinary business man, devoted to the manufacture of silver-plated tableware. The Creighton knives and spoons and forks are the best in the market, as Tom is certainly the very dearest fellow in the world, even though I say I should not have selected him for a brother if I were ordering one. Nor would I have chosen Orton as a place of residence, preferring rather to reside at Cambridge with my presidential brother.

Orton is a mass of factory chimneys which spell out the word commerce every day in the week except Sunday. I have never seen Cambridge, but I imagine it a cloistered, ivy-clad colony of ancient buildings faithfully guarding all the traditions of culture.

A well-groomed, ordinary business man.

And so here is the problem which Destiny has set me, and which I can solve only by putting my invisible crown firmly on my heart.

Orton has one salient advantage; being given over to commerce. It is commercially situated; it is a seaport town. There is a distinct profit for a person who loves sunsets and moon-rises; for a bit out of the town where the factories have not yet penetrated there is a superb stretch between the salt meadows and the sea. One can walk directly into the very heart of the sunset—the changing, mysterious heart of the sunset which has always had a strange fascination for me. What a wonderful picture I saw there the other evening as I took my solitary stroll along the "loud-sounding" sea! It was extreme low tide, and the sand flats lay in long, dark-brown reaches amidst tranquil pools of water which reflected faithfully the thousand brilliant colors of the west. Far out at sea the waves were breaking in a white line against the dark, sharp lines of the sand. A wholesome tang of salt was in the air, which blew in freshly across the wide expanse of delicate sapphire-tinted sea. The sun had disappeared behind a bank or rose-colored cloud, and no words of mine can express the glorious symphony of golds and purples and scarlets and pale-green and radiant blues, which changed and deepened and brightened in the sky, and threw itself deep down into the peaceful beauty of the salt pools, among the long stretches of black sand. Such things must be seen to be appreciated, but no one can look upon such divine loveliness without becoming a better man, I felt as if I had been in church and had heard the angels singing. When the last triumphant note of color had died away in the deep sky and night was settling down tranquilly over the sea and the meadows, I turned back again toward Orton with a feeling that my crown was very firmly lodged upon my heart, and that all Orton couldn't shake it off.

The "loud-sounding sea."

All Orton was probably too busy to try. The factory chimneys were all standing thick and tall and black against the opal sky exactly as I had last seen them when I turned my back upon them for the sunset and forgot them. Little golden tails of fire were flickering and darting from their mouths, and I felt a great and sudden compassion for the thousand toiling men and women who were there at work in those grim, gaunt buildings, so far away from the glories of the sunset. I felt all the sorrier because I knew if by some sudden caprice on the part of the boss a holiday might be theirs, they would not waste it in tamely walking along the meadows by the sea at sunset, but would fly to the bargain-counter among the haunts of men. What would they do with my leisure, my well-to-doness, my certainty of an excellent dinner at the end of my long walk, my solitude, my books, my thoughts? Not one of my beloved ideas would they adopt, and as I looked at the thousand dancing little tongues of flame I seemed to see the toil and sorrow and loss of all those who were less fortunate than I, but who would never know it, and the lust for gold seemed to write itself all over the sky in those flickering flames, and to cry down the glorious wonder of the great sun which had set.

I felt of my crown in order to make quite certain that it was still in my heart, and then I fell into line between the rows of prosaic houses and went prosaically home to dinner. It is so much easier to be prosaic when the sun has gone down and darkness is upon the land, so I was not so shocked as I might have been when Tom told me triumphantly that the silver business was booming awfully, and that an order for three thousand spoons had just come in from Chicago.

PRETTY DUTCH LASSIES.

Girls in Netherlands Exceedingly Comely to Look Upon.

Dutch girls are frequently very pretty and the only criticism an American has to make of them is that they talk rather loud, move decidedly and are perhaps a little masculine in their habits. They usually have fair hair, blue eyes, white teeth and pink cheeks—that is, the Saxon type. The Frisian type is tall and slight, with bright color and a quick, eager look. Some of the best families are descendants of those who came to Holland after the revocation of the edict of Nantes, and they still show their Huguenot blood. These joyous, alert young girls settle down into the sedate matron which every Dutchwoman thinks it her duty to become. They have strong domestic tastes and affections and when married are devoted to their homes, their husbands and their children. They know how to make their homes bright and comfortable. A great deal of luxury is found in houses of the higher classes. Marble halls, painted ceilings and thick carpets, beautiful workmanship and delicate detail are as apparent as of old in the houses of the bourgeoisie, as well as in great mansions. The Dutch lady thoroughly understands household management. She prides herself upon giving excellent food and has a well-appointed linen press, but superfluous prettinesses are wanting. One will see fine old silverware and precious Delft ware at the little dinners she is fond of giving, but there will be no flowers on the table and the guests do not dress for dinner. Ladies at The Hague and among the highest class are as cosmopolitan, as smart and as beautifully turned out as in any society in Europe, but the bourgeois has not much idea of dressing well, and will appear at the breakfast table in dressing gown and slippers, not exactly untidy, but chosen more with a view to the comfortable and the economical than the becoming. A woman who does not marry and who has a little money can lead a very pleasant life.

Japs Find a New Island.

According to the Japan Times a new island has been discovered in the Sea of Japan. From a statement appearing in the Nichi Nichi it appears that the island is situated at a point between Ul-long-do Island, off Korea, and the Oki Archipelago, off the coasts of the San-in-do, the distance from either a, a being 30 miles. No maps ever published contain any reference to the island, which is reported to be about two miles in length and about the same in breadth. It was about a year or two ago that the island was first discovered by a fisherman of Kyushu, who found the waters in its neighborhood full of sea horses.

Girl Babies in France.

While the birth of a girl is not mourned over in France, as in certain oriental countries, still it certainly does not call forth the triumphant joy caused by the advent of a boy. The tiny outfit has been tied up with blue ribbons in expectation of the hoped-for boy; should a girl be born these are changed for pink.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Brewing Beer and Ale.

To brew a barrel of lager beer, one and one-half bushels of malt are used; to brew a barrel of ale, four and one-half bushels of malt are required.

CAREER FOR YOUNG WOMEN.

Each Should Fit Herself for Something as a Vocation.

The strenuous life of today demands that a young woman, no less than a young man, should have definite ideas concerning a career, and that her educational work, and particularly her college training, shall be along the line of preparation for such career. At least, this is the opinion that is entertained by the up-to-date girl and her family, and the number of young girls who are entering the professions or fitting themselves for business life proves that the contingent of the community which believes in professional or business careers for women is a large one and steadily growing. There is one woman in town—a prominent worker in clubs and philanthropic associations—who has carved out a career for herself in a literary way, and is desirous and even anxious that her boys and girls shall have a definite life work. Three of the children have pretty well defined ideas as to what they desire to make their life work, including the elder girl, who is yet at college. The remaining child, the second daughter, has no settled opinions as to her "career," and her mother, in discussing her children's futures with a friend, said recently, in response to her visitor's comment upon the prettiness of this young girl: "Yes, she is pretty, but there it ends. She is just a dear, pretty goose, without any special ability or inclinations, and I suppose she'll have to marry." The tone more than the words conveyed the impression that marriage was the opposite of a desirable career, and the resort only of the girl with mediocre talent, supplemented by considerable personal charm, although the woman who made the observation was the happiest of wives and has never entirely recovered from the effects of her husband's death some years ago.—Kansas City Journal.

DAN DALY'S GOLF STORY.

He Hits Upon Stage Jokes Not Made to Order.

"Stage jokes are rarely made to order," said Dan Daly to a writer in the New York World. "Mine turn up in all sorts of queer ways. In a barroom the other night I heard a fellow say he was going to open a saloon on Broadway. 'Who did you ever whip?' asked the bartender. The next night I worked it into 'The Girl From Up There,' and it gets a bigger laugh than anything else I say. My most successful stage joke—the golf story—came to me by accident, too. One afternoon while lounging about the Casino stage I picked up a scrap of newspaper that had evidently been used to wrap up something. In glancing it over I found the golf story, credited to 'Exchange.' I don't even know what paper it was, as part of the page was torn off. It looked like one of those patent insides used in small towns. The odd thing about it all was that I was never allowed to tell the whole story. You know it goes on to explain that after you hit the ball you walk a mile, and that if you find it the same day you win. At that point the audience thought the climax had been reached and laughed. The first time I tried to finish the story, but nobody heard me and I never tried it again. It would have been useless. The story continues that if you don't find the ball the same day you send your man to look for it the next, and if he finds it, he wins. After awhile I saw that the audience was right and that the story really ended better where they insisted it should. At first, though, it made me pretty mad."

Giants' Kettles in Minnesota.

In the Interstate Park, near Taylor's Falls, Minnesota, has been discovered a singular group of "giants' kettles," or potholes, covering an area of two or three acres and ranging in diameter from less than a foot to 25 feet, and in depth from one foot to 84 feet. They have been bored in exceedingly hard rock, and in many cases they are like wells in shape, the ratio of width to depth varying from one to five up to one to seven. Mr. Warren Upham ascribes their origin to torrents falling through glacial " moulins" at the time when the northern territory of the United States was buried under ice. As with similar pot-holes elsewhere, rounded boulders are occasionally found at the bottom of the cavities.

Modern Art Not Appreciated.

Unless some very marked change comes soon in the position of affairs artists will have cause to remember the present season as one of the worst on record, says a London newspaper. Not for many years have the sales at the art galleries been so disappointing. A daub by a man who has been dead long enough will fetch hundreds or even thousands, while a better piece of work by a living artist will not find a bidder.

Earthquake Swallows a Lake.

An earthquake wrecked several buildings in the town of Aulton, Mexico, and then passed on to Zopothon, where it sported with the waters of a big lake. At first the waters seemed in a state of great agitation, and then they subsided and gradually disappeared. The earthquake had caused a fissure in the bed of the lake, and through this the lake had passed out of sight.

Our Population and Great Britain's.

The Witness Scored.

The cross-examiner was a smart man, whose object was to disconcert the witness and discredit his testimony.

"What did you say your name was?" was the first question.

"Michael Doherty."

"Michael Doherty, eh? Now, Doherty, answer this question carefully. Are you a married man?"

"Oi think so; Oi was married."

"So you think because you got married that you are a married man, do you? Now, tell me whom you married."

"Who Oi married? I married a woman."

"Now, don't you know better than to trifle with the court? Of course you married a woman. Did you ever hear of any one marrying a man?"

"Yes, sir. Moi sister did."—London Spare Moments.

As a Last Resort.

"No," said Mr. Walkindell, impatiently, replied the young woman, "I will not marry you. I have told you so a hundred times before."

"Miss Emily," pleaded the youth, "that is the only thing on which we have ever differed. Won't you agree to arbitrate it?"—Chicago Tribune.

Wonderful Case in Indiana.

Buck Creek, Ind., July 15th.—Mrs. Elizabeth Rorick of this place had Rheumatism. She says: "All the doctors told me they could do nothing for me." She was very, very bad, and the pain was so great she could not sleep at night.

She used Dodd's Kidney Pills, and she is well and entirely free from pain or any symptom of the Rheumatism.

"Are you still using Dodd's Kidney Pills?" was asked.

"No: I stopped the use of the Pills some time ago, and have not had the slightest return of my old trouble. I am sure I am completely and permanently cured."

Many in Tippecanoe county, who have heard of Mrs. Rorick's case and her cure by Dodd's Kidney Pills, are using the Pills, and all report wonderful results.

Floored the Politician.

A good story is going around about a certain well known politician. For a long time he has been in the habit of buying an evening paper from the same newsboy. One evening, however, by some chance, he had not with him the necessary penny for his accustomed purchase, and intimated as much to the youthful news vendor.

"Never mind," replied the other, "you can pay me for it to-morrow."

"But, my boy," replied the politician, solemnly, "perhaps I may not be alive to-morrow."

"Well," answered the boy, simply, "if that is so, it will be no great loss after all."

The legislator looked at him, gasped, and passed on in silence.—Exchange.

Queer Tongue-Tripping in Court.

Lawyers often make queer slips of the tongue. The other day one in the supreme court said to a witness:

"Now, consecrate your mind on that." Of course, he meant concentrate, and the witness understood him and tried to do as he was requested.

Another lawyer, in asking a witness as to a certain dance, said:

"Did you pi-rute?"

After some explanation the witness learned that he meant "pirouette."

Still another lawyer, in all earnestness, told the court that he would have to ask an adjournment of his case, "because my client is suffering from bivalvular fracture of the heart."

The court thought this disease sufficient cause for granting the application.

Resume of the News.

Fresh Reliable Brief

Washington Notes.

Civil government has been suspended and a drastic campaign planned in four Philippine provinces.

A majority of the naval board of construction has reported plans for the largest battleship in the navy.

The first representative of the Japanese army accredited as military attache at Washington has arrived in that city.

The interior department has authorized the general land office to make a thorough survey of Wing Cave, in South Dakota.

Officials who have had in charge preparation of the Philippine tariff estimate that it will bring a revenue of $18,000,000 the first year.

The excess of exports over imports for the past fiscal year amounts to $664,900,011, and is higher than the best previous year by $49,467,335.

For one year more Americans will be eligible to appointment in the postal service of the Philippines. After that none but natives will be appointed, with the exception of a few important places.

The controller of the currency has authorized the First National Bank of Elk Point, S. D., to begin business with a capital of $25,000. The officers named are George R. Freeman, president, and H. B. Beckwith cashier.

The public printer has just completed 15,000 bound copies of the dedication of the Chickamauga and Chattanooga National Military Park, an illustrated edition ordered by congress. It will be distributed by senators and representatives.

A Japanese newspaper just received at the navy department, Washington, says that Dr. Hatoyma, a member of the Japanese diet and a prominent jurist, will leave Japan in September for the United States to receive the degree of LL. D. from Yale.

Independent Cuba will begin business with a bonded indebtedness of only $122,100, resulting from the clause in the new constitution pledging the Cuban republic to the payment of the bonds issued by authority of the revolutionary government during the war with Spain.

Unfortunate Happenings.

Two St. Paul trainmen were injured in a wreck near Rush City.

The Ohio Valley express was run into by a loose engine, and two men were killed and one fatally injured.

A conductor on the Missouri, Kansas & Texas mistakes his orders, and a collision results with the death of five men and serious injury to three others.

Mrs. William Martin and her three daughters of Marietta, Ohio, are in a critical condition from eating poisoned pie. The pastry was made from canned pumpkin.

An explosion occurred at the Cyttorp powder works at Nora, Province of Orebro, Sweden, wrecking seven buildings. Four persons were killed and a number injured.

A tiny needle which may have been imbedded in the flesh of Mrs. Gerald Harshford of New Decatur, Ala., for many years, has finally resulted in her death. Mrs. Harshford was about twenty-eight years old.

A fire at the West India docks in London destroyed a number of huge sheds and their contents. The amounts of the damage done is estimated at from £100,000 to £250,000. Sugar and timber warehouses were involved in the conflagration.

The consulting engineer of the international boundary commission, P. D. Cunningham, was drowned by the capsizing of his boat in a narrow, rocky channel of the Rio Grande about twenty miles below Eagle Pass, Tex. He was a native of Nashville, Tenn.

Reeves Bros.' boiler works at Alliance, Ohio, were completely destroyed by fire. The loss is estimated at $100,000, with $40,000 insurance. Alfred Ditmore, an employe, was caught by falling debris and perhaps fatally injured. About 175 men are thrown out of employment.

A toy balloon enthusiastically waved by a small boy caused a runaway in Lincoln Park, Chicago, while the park was crowded with pleasureseekers. Mary Walsh, wife of E. P. Walsh, of the Union News company, was severely injured and the lives of scores of women and children were imperiled.

A terrible explosion shook Toronto, Ohio. A boat load of nitroglycerine exploded in midriver about a mile distant. The owner of the boat had just returned to it after a visit to a fishing camp on Brown's island when the explosion occurred, leaving no trace of boat or man. The cargo of 240 quarts of nitroglycerine was en route to the oil fields. The report was plainly heard ten or twelve miles distant.

Foreign.

Three Americans were sentenced to prison for robbery in China.

Extreme heat continues through Denmark. Several deaths due to heat were reported.

Inventor Santos-Dumont predicts that a voyage around the world will be made in his own balloon.

Thirteen Polish students are on trial at Posen charged with belonging to secret political societies.

Reports from Germany show that thousands of men are out of employment and are barely keeping body and soul together.

Johannes Coetze, caught with Marais, the rebel, who was hanged July 10 at Middleburg, was publicly executed for treason in Craddock.

GLARE OF OLD SOL

PREVIOUS HIGH RECORDS FOR HEAT ARE ALL EXCEEDED.

AND THERE IS NO HOPE OF RELIEF

Practically the Entire Country Covered by the Hot Wave—Temperature Line of 100 Degrees Includes the Entire Great Corn Belt—No Indications of Any Relief in Sight—Much Suffering.

Washington, July 22.—A hot wave of unusual, and in places record-breaking intensity, is again prevalent over the central western part of the country, and is spreading eastward and northward. The Central West reported extraordinarily high temperature line, 100 degrees, yesterday, including the States and Territories of Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, Iowa, Missouri, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois. Last night at Chicago, at 7 o'clock, the temperature was 100 degrees, exceeding by several degrees anything ever before recorded at that of the day. A serious feature is the showing made in the States of Iowa, Missouri and Kansas, where the temperatures have been 90 degrees or over for a period of over a month. For eighteen days of this time the thermometer at Kansas City registered 100 degrees or more. Weather bureau officials do not care to make any prediction as to the prospects of relief. They say that none as yet is in sight. The seriousness of the situation to the crops is increased by the lack of rain, none of importance having fallen in the corn belt for three days and there apparently being no prospects. The rain which gave a practical relief to the states of the corn belt during the past week was not by any means general in character, but a succession of thunder showers affording temporary relief to the overparched ground and grain. The relative high barometer in the southeast section of the country shows a persistent continuation of warm southerly winds and there appears to be no prospect of a change until the appearance of a high barometer in the Northwest, where a low pressure now has full swing. Such relief of a local character as is held out in the meantime, it is stated, will be due to local thundershowers, which always accompany periods of protracted heat.

Madison, Wis.—Yesterday was the hottest day known to the official record here. The government thermometer at Washburn observatory registered a maximum temperature of 101 degrees.

Burlington, Iowa — Frightful heat prevailed here and all over Southeastern Iowa yesterday. The maximum here was 110, accompanied by a hot wind. Reports from the state show: Chariton, 107; Fairfield, 108; Ottumwa, 110; Murroy, 110; Middleton, 113. Corn is reported to be faring badly.

Dubuque, Iowa—All high temperature records dating back forty-eight years were broken yesterday. The maximum was 106. There were a large number of prostrations.

Keokuk, Iowa—The weather bureau station thermometer registered 107 here yesterday afternoon, 2 degrees above the previous record of July 10, and 3 above any previous record for thirty years.

Twin Cities Scorched.

St. Paul, July 22.—Saturday was the hottest day on record in the Twin Cities. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon the thermometer registered 101.2 in St. Paul and 101 in Minneapolis. Great suffering resulted, although no casualties were reported. There were a number of prostrations in Minneapolis. Sunday was not so warm. The maximum temperature reached was 96.

Records Broken at Chicago.

Chicago, July 22.—All heat records since the establishment of the weather bureau in Chicago thirty years ago, were broken yesterday, the government thermometer registering 103 degrees. Down on the street it was 3 to 5 degrees hotter, and to add to the suffering, a hot, stifling wind, like a blast from a furnace, blew all day from the southwest. Prostrations were numerous and police ambulances were kept busy taking care of persons who were overcome on the streets.

Day of Prayer in Missouri.

St. Louis, July 22. — Yesterday, the day that Gov. Dockery designated for fasting and prayer to God that the present drouth might be broken in Missouri, all records for hot weather in St. Louis were smashed, the weather bureau thermometer on the customhouse registering 108 degrees in the shade. On the streets and in exposed places the mercury went many degrees higher. The record broken was that of 106, made in the early eighties.

FOUR PERSONS KILLED.

Carriage Is Struck by an Express Train.

Lebanon, N. H., July 22.—A carriage containing James Goodwin of Hinsdale, Mass.; William Thurston of Percy, N. H.; Thomas Burns of Winooski, Vt., and Eddie McCabe of Lebanon, was struck by the Montreal express on the Boston & Maine railroad shortly after midnight and all four were instantly killed.

Private Gets a Fortune.

New York, July 22. — Through the death of an uncle, Boyd Prince, a private in the Eighty-fourth company, coast artillery, stationed at Fort Hamilton, has come into possession of a fortune of $50,000. Most of the fortune consists of real estate in Hutton county, Ind. He has applied for his discharge from the army.

Two Boys Killed.

Indianapolis, July 22.—While seven boys ranging in age from 15 to 18 were sitting on the track in the shadow of a box car yesterday a switch engine with a cut of cars struck the car which dashed into the group. Two of the boys were killed and three injured.

Patti to Tour England.

London, July 22. — It is announced that Mme. Patti will make a tour of England during the coming autumn. William Lavin, the American singer, will accompany her.

FREE TRADE WITH PORTO RICO.

Proclamation Will Be Issued by the President July 25.

Canton, Ohio, July 22.—Gov. Charles H. Allen of Porto Rico reached Canton from Washington yesterday, attended services at the First M. E. church with the president, and spent the remainder of the day at the McKinley home until 10:40 last night, when he left for the East. He goes from here to Washington, thence to his home in Lowell, Mass., and from there he hopes to go to the Maine woods for a vacation. His mission here yesterday was to present to the president the resolution passed by the Porto Rican legislature, providing a system of local taxation for the island such as under the act of congress entitles the island to free trade with the United States. The president's official acknowledgement of the receipt of this resolution will be made July 25, the anniversary of the landing of American troops in Porto Rico, when a proclamation will be issued declaring free trade between the United States and Porto Rico.

"The question of my return to Porto Rico has not been determined," said Gov. Allen. "I went there at the request of the president, and when he is through with me he will doubtless let me know. I have not resigned."

Gov. Allen is well pleased with the conditions in Porto Rico and anticipates a bright future for the island.

DISORDER AND DISTRESS

Likely to Follow the Opening of the Kiowa-Comanche Lands.

Fort Sill, Okla., July 22. — Disorder and distress will, it is feared, follow the actual opening of the Kiowa-Comanche opening on Aug. 6. It is now estimated that fully 150,000 people will have registered for a chance to secure one of the 13,000 claims to be awarded by lottery when the registration booths close on July 26. Thousands of persons now on the reservation who are neither mechanics nor artisans and who have little or no money announce their intention of locating around Lawton if they fail to win a claim. Campers who came in prairie schooners by the thousands generally brought with them provisions sufficient only to last five or ten days. Continued drouth has caused the water to be restricted and for days a hot wind has blown over the prairies and the temperature has averaged over the hundred-mark. With these conditions before them many are already beginning to grumble, and when this is followed by disappointment over failure to draw a lucky number, the hope that bore many up will doubtless give way to more serious conditions.

BOYS IN A RIOT.

Hold Officers Powerless for Over Two Hours.

Indianapolis, July 22. — While 10,000 people were crowding under the trees at Fairview Park last night a riot broke out between the Biggalos, a local crowd of white boys and some colored boys. The whites chased the colored boys into the main pavilion, and when the officers of the park had surrounded them the Biggalos fired several shots and stoned and beat the crowd. The officers were powerless for two hours and called on the governor for a company of militia. Failing to get aid from the governor aid was sought from the sheriff. Charles Daniels, a bystander, was shot through the neck and may die. Two others were badly beaten with clubs and a dozen or more women and children were hit by club and stone. A quarrel between the whites and colored boys caused the riot.

PASSENGERS SERIOUSLY INJURED.

Cable Car Wrecked While Running at Full Speed.

Chicago, July 22. — Nine passengers were seriously injured and several others bruised in the wreck of a Madison street cable car yesterday. The train was running at full speed when the grip car was suddenly brought to a stop because of a defective cable rope. The trailer bounded from the track, rose skyward and crashed with terrific force into the rear of the grip car. The shock was of such force that passengers were thrown from their seats, several landing in the street headforemost and others falling against the seats and sides of the car.

THIS LOOKS QUEER.

English Squadron to Visit Italian Waters Very Soon.

London, July 22.—Though not officially admitted an important conference will shortly be held by the British and Italian naval officers in regard to various Mediterranean questions. The conference is part of the program of the visit of a British squadron to Italian waters where peculiar privileges will be granted to the Englishmen. Both governments desire to arrive at an understanding through their naval representatives which will cover all eventualities, including probably a precise declaration in regard to the Italian interests in Tripoli.

Blocked With Ice Floes.

St. John's, N. F., July 22.—The whaling steamer Home, which arrived here yesterday from Labrador, reports that the coast is blocked with ice floes, especially the northern part, where the floes are impenetrable. This will greatly delay the Peary relief steamer Erik, which counted on arriving at Turnavik, Northern Labrador, and landing the last mail for the Arctic circle early.

Firemen's Strike Collapses.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 22.—The stationary firemens' strike has practically collapsed. At a conference here yesterday committees were appointed to wait on the coal companies and if the strikers are taken back the strike will be declared off.

Injured in a Runaway.

Dubuque, Iowa, July 22.—A. B. Cummins, Republican candidate for governor, had his shoulder dislocated and his body cut and bruised by being thrown from a buggy in a runaway Saturday night.

Martinelli Officiated.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 22.—Cardinal Martinelli yesterday dedicated St. Josaphat's church in the presence of more than 4,000 people. The edifice had been in process of construction for five years.

RELIC THAT CURES

NEW YORK CHURCH THE SCENE OF SOME WONDERFUL MIRACLES.

CROWDS VIEW RELIC OF ST. ANNE

Five Thousand Persons Kiss the Sacred Relic in the Church of St. Jean Baptiste — Man Suffering From Locomotor Ataxia Feels Confident of Cure—Priest Tells of a Remarkable Cure.

New York, July 22. — A continuous stream of men, women and children poured into the Church of St. Jean Baptiste, in East Seventy-sixth street, all day yesterday for the purpose of viewing the relic of St. Anne, which is now on exhibition there. It is estimated by the priests that more than 5,000 persons kissed the relic during the day.

Late in the afternoon a pale-faced man drove up to the church in a runabout. He was accompanied by two other men. Slowly and painfully the two friends of the sick man helped him to the sidewalk. He was so crippled with locomotor ataxia, apparently that without the services of the companions he would have fallen. They led him down into the crypt where the relic was on exhibition, and made their way to the rail behind which stood gray-haired Canon Petit with the Sacred remnant of St. Anne. When they arrived there the and kissed the case in which the relic is inclosed, and then the canon rubbed it on his stricken limbs. This done, he hobbled slowly back to a pew with his face almost glorious in its faith; and there he prayed and waited for the cure he so longed for. An hour he spent there and then his friends returned for him. When he arose he was still a cripple, but he was not discouraged, for he said that he felt better, and he got back into his carriage apparently satisfied with his visit.

Canon Petit said that in the morning there was really a remarkable cure. He said that a child was brought in by its mother. On one of its legs it wore an iron brace. After the little one kissed the relic and the case bearing had been rubbed on its limbs the mother removed the brace, he said, and the child was able to walk out of the church alone. The feast of St. Anne will occur on July 26 and the relic will be on exhibition in the church until that time.

SITUATION UNCHANGED.

Strikers Say Everything Is Satisfactory to Them.

Pittsburg, July 22. — The important event in the strike history of the day is the organization of the tube millworkers at McKeesport. The word from there is that after long and arduous work Assistant Secretary Tighe of the Amalgamated association succeeded in organizing 175 men of the National Tube Works company. At the meeting twenty-five skilled men from each of the departments were initiated into the mysteries of the Amalgamated association, and Mr. Tighe claims that within forty-eight hours enough more of the workmen will be secured to keep the entire plant closed down, affecting 9,000 men.

From Wellsville nothing has been received here except word that the situation is unchanged, and the strikers say everything is satisfactory to them. It is believed, however, that an attempt will be made to-day to put men to work there from other points, the ten men from Vandergrift, who are said to be at East Liverpool ready to go in early in the day being the principal men relied upon for the purpose. While the strikers say they will not commit any overt act there is an uneasy feeling manifest throughout the entire valley, and no one is willing to anticipate the result of the proposed attempt to put these men at work.

When seen last night President Shaffer expressed himself as being more than satisfied with the week's result.

SERIOUS CONFLICT EXPECTED.

Revenue Officers Go Into a Wild Country After Moonshiners.

Nashville, Tenn., July 22. — Reports from Monterey, Tenn., near which place an internal revenue raiding party was ambuscaded by moonshiners Saturday morning say excitement in that district is at a high pitch. The natives seem to have generally sided with the moonshiners and Collector Bell deemed it advisable to take his posse to Cookeville to await the reinforcements which leave here this morning. Every deputy collector and deputy marshal in the district has been summoned to join in the raid which is contemplated. The moonshiners have boasted they will not be taken alive, and as they are well armed and fortified in the mountains, a serious conflict is expected. The force will invade a wild country, inhabited by hardy and desperate people, almost universally hostile to the "revenue men" on general principles.

DISCOURAGES DIVORCES.

Criminal Prosecution Is to Follow Violations of Any Law.

Richmond, Va., July 22.—Rev. Dr. Richard McIlwaine offered a resolution in the constitutional convention which, if engrafted in the organic law of the state, will have a far-reaching effect on the subject of divorces. It makes the commonwealth a party in all divorce cases, and provides for the prosecution of either party, to such proceedings if it be shown that they have been guilty of any offense.

Forest and Prairie Fires.

Denver, July 22. — Destruction by forest and prairie fires is reported from different points directly attributable to dry conditions of grass and timber from the long dry spell. Cattlemen here are becoming alarmed at the shortage of water in the streams.

Pioneer Merchant Dead.

Chicago, July 22.—Henry King Elkins, a pioneer lumber merchant of Chicago, and one of the first directors of the board of trade died yesterday after an illness of nearly a year.

SWEPT BY FLAMES

BUSINESS SECTION OF CAMBRIDGE, MINN., DESTROYED BY FIRE.

LOSS WILL REACH OVER $60,000

Fire Started Near Midnight and Raged for About Four Hours—Had a Good Start When Discovered and the Buildings Were an Easy Prey—Guests of the Hotel Had Plenty of Time to Escape.

Cambridge, Minn., July 21. — Fire swept the business portion of this town Thursday night and inflicted an aggregate loss of over $60,000. The fire is supposed to have started in the rear of Presley's drug store at 11:15, and it was 3 o'clock in the morning before the flames were brought under control. The losses are:

Merchants hotel, loss, $12,000; insurance, $8,000. P. O. Peterson, loss, $12,000; insurance, $5,000. Pressley's drug store, loss, $4,000; insurance, $3,000. Alfred Smith, general store, loss, $9,000; insurance, $4,000. H. G. Johnson, general store, loss, $11,000; insurance, $5,000. Lounard's saloon, loss, $5,000. Satterlund's jewelry store, loss, $2,000. C. L. Johnson & Co., clothing store, loss, $3,500.

Several barns were also destroyed and at times it seemed as if the flames would extend to every building in the place. The fire had obtained a good start before being discovered, and the buildings were an easy prey.

The hotel had only been erected about two years ago by Sheriff Gillispie, and was run by his brother-in-law, W. J. Robbers, who owned the furniture, on which he had recently let the insurance run out. The hotel was thoroughly modern in every respect and a favorite with travelers. The guests had plenty of time to escape and saved most of their effects.

DOCTOR EATS SMALLPOX PUS.

To Support His Theory That the Disease Is Not Contagious.

Menasha, Wis., July 21.—Dr. Rodermund of Appleton caused a sensation here Thursday and it was thought that the smallpox scare caused by him in his home city and Milwaukee a few months ago was about to be repeated. He was called in consultation on the case of a child supposed to have smallpox. He is said to have broken open some of the postules of the child's body and swallowed the pus. The board of health was seriously considering the question of quarantining him when it was discovered that the child was ill with chickenpox and not smallpox.

LARGE SALE OF TIMBER.

Most Important Deal in Recent Years.

Washington, July 20.—A contract for the important sale of timber on Indian reservations made within the past few years was approved at the Indian office yesterday and will go to Secretary Hitchcock for final ratification. It is the sale of approximately 50,000,000 feet on the Lac Court d'Oreille reservation of the La Pointe agency, Ashland, Wis., to George C. Bateman of Belle Plaine, Minn., on his bid of an average price of about $2 a thousand for the standing timber.

BRIDGE COMPLETED.

Narrows at Devils Lake Successfully Bridged.

Devils Lake, N. D., July 21. — After untiring efforts and surmounting great obstacles a bridge across the lake at what is known as the narrows has been completed. The event was celebrated by 1,500 Indians crossing yesterday from the reservation for the purpose of taking part in a grand celebration at the Chatauqua Saturday, "Fargo day." A special train to accommodate the Fargoites will be run.

A NORTHFIELD JOKE.

Some Humorous Person Pulls Out the Soldiery.

Northfield, Minn., July 21.—Some wag with a playful turn of mind faked a telegram to Capt. Sumner of Company D from "Col. Bobleter" ordering the Second regiment to get ready to go to Walker to fight red men. The excitement for a time was terrific, but the boys finally got "next" and, failing to see the humor, are threatening to make it very warm for the person who got out the telegram.

BIG FIRE AT TOWER.

Ten Buildings Destroyed, Including a Hotel.

Duluth, Minn., July 21—Advices from Tower, eighty miles north, report a serious fire there yesterday morning that destroyed ten buildings, including a hotel, butcher shop and saloon; others were dwellings. No estimate has been received on the loss, but only two were insured.

Harvesting Is Under Way.

Miller, S. D., July 21.—Barley harvest began northeast of here and is promising. Albert Helzerling will begin wheat harvest to-day. He says it will surely yield fifteen bushels per acre.

Indianian Buys a Morris Store.

Morris, Minn., July 21.—Bert Hall of Indiana has bought from O. R. Simensen the Acme confectionery and cigar store on Atlantic avenue.

Corn Shortage.

Des Moines, Iowa, July 21.—The corn crop will be 25 to 40 per cent short in Iowa, though rains within a week will change this estimate some.

Preparing for the Veterans.

Dubuque, Iowa, July 21.—Adjt. Gen. Byers is in the city looking after the arrangement of Camp Henderson, where on Tuesday the Forty-ninth and Fiftieth regiments of the Iowa National guard will go into encampment.

DAKOTA WHEAT CROP.

With the Present Conditions the Yield Will Surpass All Expectations.

Fargo, N. D., July 21.—With present conditions the wheat yield of the state will surpass the most sanguine expectations. Wild claims of thirty or more bushels per acre are being made in many localities. Owing to the fact that the wheat is just now in the milky stage and will soon be in the dough stage, there is no possibility of accurately stating the yield. A day or two of hot wind would do untold damage in shortening the yield and damaging the grade. Unless hurried along by too hot weather the wheat harvest will not begin for a week or ten days on the higher lands and not before two weeks in the valley proper. A quantity of barley has already been cut and some oats will be harvested this week.

GOLD EXCITEMENT.

Rich Veins Claimed to Be Found in Wisconsin.

La Crosse, Wis., July 21.—A valuable vein of gold has been discovered by Matt and Louis Monti of Genoa on the farm of J. P. Allen in the town of Webster, about two miles from the avalanche on the west branch of the Kickapoo, Vernon county, this state. For some time copper has been mined in the vicinity, but gold had not been looked for until accidentally discovered by men at work in the mines. Samples have been sent to Chicago and are said to be the second best ever received there. Chicago capitalists have made large offers for the mine, but the present owners will work it themselves, having refused all offers to sell.

BLINDNESS NO BAR.

Minnesota Man Taking the Examination Before Illinois State Board.

Chicago, July 21.—Frederick Farmer, a blind man from Spring Valley, Minn., is taking an examination before the state board of health in this city for a certificate as an osteopath practitioner in Illinois. Mr. Farmer is thirty-one years old and a graduate of the American School of Osteopathy of Kirksville, Mo. The questions are dictated to him and are answered by writing on a typewriter with raised type. Great aptitude is shown by Mr. Farmer in manipulating the machine and correcting mistakes. The examining physicians also report that he has shown remarkable ability in the rapidity and correctness with which he answers the examination questions.

WITHOUT FIRE PROTECTION.

Defective Intake Pipes Leave La Crosse in a Serious Condition.

La Crosse, Wis., July 21.—The government harbor work has stirred the sand in the Mississippi to such an extent that, together with a defective intake pipe, the big Holly pumps are clogged and stopped, leaving the city without fire protection except from the little auxiliary pumps. All fire steamers are pressed into service to protect emergencies. It will take twenty-four hours to make repairs.

ASYLUM QUARANTINED.

Smallpox Breaks Out Among Insane Inmates.

Kalamazoo, Mich., July 21.—Dr. Henry H. Schaberg, city health officer, yesterday established a strict quarantine against the Michigan insane asylum, where twenty-nine cases of smallpox and varioloid were discovered. The disease was brought into the institution by a female nurse who recently visited her home.

TROUBLE ADJUSTED.

Freight Truckers Strike and the New Men Also Went Out.

Sioux City, Iowa, July 21—The freight truckers in the warehouses of the Omaha road quit work after demanding an increase of pay from $1.50 to $2. New men were hired, who worked twenty minutes. The warehouse work came to a standstill, but the trouble has been adjusted without any increase in wages.

HARVEST HANDS WANTED.

Rich Yields Reported From Morris and Vicinity.

Morris, Minn., July 21. — Barley and oats are being harvested and the crops are fine ones. Haying is about finished and the stacks are many. Some early flax is also being cut. The wheat harvest will begin in earnest next week. There are not enough men in sight to attend to it.

HARVEST AT NIGHT.

Farmers Plan to Avoid the Extreme Heat of the Day.

New Richmond, Wis., July 21.—If the present intense heat prevails harvesting will be done here between sundown and sunrise. Four horses dropped dead in the harvest field in this vicinity yesterday. Farmers are planning to suspend work entirely during the daytime.

DULUTH'S TORRID WAVE.

Temperature Goes Up Thirty Degrees in Three Hours.

Duluth, Minn., July 21. — The hot wave has the head of the lakes in its grasp and yesterday between 10 a. m. and 1 p. m. the temperature shot up 30 degrees. It registered 61 at 10 and 92 at 1. The maximum for the day was 96.

Consumed by Flames.

Crookston, Minn., July 21. — A barn containing three horses, a large amount of feed, harness and machinery, and belonging to Ben Champagne, a farmer living near Russia, was entirely destroyed by fire. Its origin is unknown.

Kasson Woman's Suicide.

Kasson, Minn., July 21.—Mrs. Warren Pond, living three miles east of this village, in a fit of temporary aberration of mind, committed suicide by hanging herself in a barn during the absence of her family.

The third volume of the text book of the naval academy gives Admiral Schley anything but a good record before Santiago.

GLARE OF OLD SOL

PREVIOUS HIGH RECORDS FOR HEAT ARE ALL EXCEEDED.

AND THERE IS NO HOPE OF RELIEF

Practically the Entire Country Covered by the Hot Wave—Temperature Line of 100 Degrees Includes the Entire Great Corn Belt—No Indications of Any Relief in Sight —Much Suffering.

Washington, July 22.—A hot wave of unusual, and in places record-breaking intensity, is again prevalent over the central western part of the country, and is spreading eastward and northward. The Central West reported extraordinarily high temperature line, 100 degrees, yesterday, including the States and Territories of Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, Iowa, Missouri, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois. Last night at Chicago, at 7 o'clock, the temperature was 100 degrees, exceeding by several degrees anything ever before recorded at that of the day. A serious feature is the showing made in the States of Iowa, Missouri and Kansas, where the temperatures have been 90 degrees or over for a period of over a month. For eighteen days of this time the thermometer at Kansas City registered 100 degrees or more. Weather bureau officials do not care to make any prediction as to the prospects of relief. They say that none as yet is in sight. The seriousness of the situation to the crops is increased by the lack of rain, none of importance having fallen in the corn belt for three days and there apparently being no prospects. The rain which gave a practical relief to the states of the corn belt during the past week was not by any means general in character, but a succession of thunder showers affording temporary relief to the overparched ground and grain. The relative high barometer in the southeast section of the country shows a persistent continuation of warm southerly winds and there appears to be no prospect of a change until the appearance of a high barometer in the Northwest where a low pressure now has full swing. Such relief of a local character as is held out in the meantime, it is stated, will be due to local thundershowers, which always accompany periods of protracted heat.

Madison, Wis.—Yesterday was the hottest day known to the official record here. The government thermometer at Washburn observatory registered a maximum temperature of 101 degrees.

Burlington, Iowa.—Frightful heat prevailed here and all over Southeastern Iowa yesterday. The maximum here was 110, accompanied by a hot wind. Reports from the state show: Charlton, 107; Fairfield, 108; Ottumwa, 110; Murray, 110; Middleton, 113. Corn is reported to be faring badly.

Dubuque, Iowa—All high temperature records dating back forty-eight years were broken yesterday. The maximum was 106. There were a large number of prostrations.

Keokuk, Iowa—The weather bureau station thermometer registered 107 here yesterday afternoon, 2 degrees above the previous record of July 10, and 3 above any previous record for thirty years.

Twin Cities Scorched.

St. Paul, July 22.—Saturday was the hottest day on record in the Twin Cities. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon the thermometer registered 101.2 in St. Paul and 101 in Minneapolis. Great suffering resulted, although no casualties were reported. There were a number of prostrations in Minneapolis. Sunday was not so warm. The maximum temperature reached was 96.

Records Broken at Chicago.

Chicago, July 22.—All heat records since the establishment of the weather bureau in Chicago thirty years ago, were broken yesterday, the government thermometer registering 103 degrees. Down on the street it was 3 to 5 degrees hotter, and to add to the suffering, a hot, stifling wind, like a blast from a furnace, blew all day from the southwest. Prostrations were numerous and police ambulances were kept busy taking care of persons who were overcome on the streets.

Day of Prayer in Missouri.

St. Louis, July 22.—Yesterday, the day that Gov. Dockery designated for fasting and prayer to God that the present drouth might be broken in Missouri, all records for hot weather in St. Louis were smashed, the weather bureau thermometer on the customhouse registering 108 degrees in the shade. On the streets and in exposed places the mercury went many degrees higher. The record broken was that of 106, made in the early eighties.

FOUR PERSONS KILLED.

Carriage Is Struck by an Express Train.

Lebanon, N. H., July 22.—A carriage containing James Goodwin of Hinsdale, Mass.; William Thurston of Percy, N. H.; Thomas Burns of Winooski, Vt., and Eddie McCabe of Lebanon, was struck by the Montreal express on the Boston & Maine railroad shortly after midnight and all four were instantly killed.

Private Gets a Fortune.

New York, July 22.—Through the death of an uncle, Boyd Prince, a private in the Eighty-fourth company, coast artillery, stationed at Fort Hamilton, has come into possession of a fortune of $50,000. Most of the fortune consists of real estate in Hutton county, Ind. He has applied for his discharge from the army.

Two Boys Killed.

Indianapolis, July 22.—While seven boys ranging in age from 15 to 18 were sitting on the track in the shadow of a box car yesterday a switch engine with a cut of cars struck the car which dashed into the group. Two of the boys were killed and three injured.

Patti to Tour England.

London, July 22.—It is announced that Mme. Patti will make a tour of England during the coming autumn, William Lavin, the American singer, will accompany her.

FREE TRADE WITH PORTO RICO.

Proclamation Will Be Issued by the President July 25.

Canton, Ohio, July 22.—Gov. Charles H. Allen of Porto Rico reached Canton from Washington yesterday, attended services at the First M. E. church with the president, and spent the remainder of the day at the McKinley home until 10:40 last night, when he left for the East. He goes from here to Washington, thence to his home in Lowell, Mass., and from there he hopes to go to the Maine woods for a vacation. His mission here yesterday was to present to the president the resolution passed by the Porto Rican legislature, providing a system of local taxation for the island such as under the act of congress entitles the island to free trade with the United States. The president's official acknowledgement of the receipt of this resolution will be made July 25, the anniversary of the landing of American troops in Porto Rico, when a proclamation will be issued declaring free trade between the United States and Porto Rico.

"The question of my return to Porto Rico has not been determined," said Gov. Allen. "I went there at the request of the president, and when he is through with me he will doubtless let me know. I have not resigned."

Gov. Allen is well pleased with the conditions in Porto Rico and anticipates a bright future for the island.

DISORDER AND DISTRESS.

Likely to Follow the Opening of the Kiowa-Comanche Lands.

Fort Sill, Okla., July 22.—Disorder and distress will, it is feared, follow the actual opening of the Kiowa-Comanche opening on Aug. 6. It is now estimated that fully 150,000 people will have registered for a chance to secure one of the 13,000 claims to be awarded by lottery when the registration booths close on July 26. Thousands of persons now on the reservation who are neither mechanics nor artisans and who have little or no money announce their intention of locating around Lawton if they fail to win a claim. Campers who came in prairie schooners by the thousands generally brought with them provisions sufficient only to last five or ten days. Continued drouth has caused the water to be restricted and for days a hot wind has blown over the prairies and the temperature has averaged over the hundred-mark. With these conditions before them many are already beginning to grumble, and when this is followed by disappointment over failure to draw a lucky number, the hope that bore many up will doubtless give way to more serious conditions.

BOYS IN A RIOT.

Hold Officers Powerless for Over Two Hours.

Indianapolis, July 22.—While 10,000 people were crowding under the trees at Fairview Park last night a riot broke out between the Biggalos, a local crowd of white boys and some colored boys. The whites chased the colored boys into the main pavilion, and when the officers of the park had surrounded them the Biggalos fired several shots and stunned and beat the crowd. The officers were powerless for two hours and called on the governor for a company of militia. Failing to get aid from the governor aid was sought from the sheriff. Charles Daniels, a bystander, was shot through the neck and may die. Two others were badly beaten with clubs and a dozen or more women and children were hit by club and stone. A quarrel between the whites and colored boys caused the riot.

PASSENGERS SERIOUSLY INJURED.

Cable Car Wrecked While Running at Full Speed.

Chicago, July 22.—Nine passengers were seriously injured and several others bruised in the wreck of a Madison street cable car yesterday. The train was running at full speed when the grip car was suddenly brought to a stop because of a defective cable rope. The trailer bounded from the track, rose skyward and crashed with terrific force into the rear of the grip car. The shock was of such force that passengers were thrown from their seats, several landing in the street headforemost and others falling against the seats and sides of the car.

THIS LOOKS QUEER.

English Squadron to Visit Italian Waters Very Soon.

London, July 22.—Though not officially admitted an important conference will shortly be held by the British and Italian naval officers in regard to various Mediterranean questions. The conference is part of the program of the visit of a British squadron to Italian waters where peculiar privileges will be granted to the Englishmen. Both governments desire to arrive at an understanding through their naval representatives which will cover all eventualities, including probably a precise declaration in regard to the Italian interests in Tripoli.

Blocked With Ice Floes.

St. John's, N. F., July 22.—The whaling steamer Home, which arrived here yesterday from Labrador, reports that the coast is blocked with ice floes, especially the northern part, where the floes are impenetrable. This will greatly delay the Peary relief steamer Erik, which counted on arriving at Turnavik, Northern Labrador, and landing the last mail for the Arctic circle early.

Firemen's Strike Collapses.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 22.—The stationary firemens' strike has practically collapsed. At a conference here yesterday committees were appointed to wait on the coal companies and if the strikers are taken back the strike will be declared off.

Injured in a Runaway.

Dubuque, Iowa, July 22.—A. B. Cummins, Republican candidate for governor, had his shoulder dislocated and his body cut and bruised by being thrown from a buggy in a runaway Saturday night.

Martinelli Officiated.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 22.—Cardinal Martinelli yesterday dedicated St. Josaphat's church in the presence of more than 4,000 people. The edifice had been in process of construction for five years.

RELIC THAT CURES

NEW YORK CHURCH THE SCENE OF SOME WONDERFUL MIRACLES.

CROWDS VIEW RELIC OF ST. ANNE

Five Thousand Persons Kiss the Sacred Relic in the Church of St. Jean Baptiste — Man Suffering From Locomotor Ataxia Feels Confident of Cure—Priest Tells of a Remarkable Cure.

New York, July 22.—A continuous stream of men, women and children poured into the Church of St. Jean Baptiste, in East Seventy-sixth street, all day yesterday for the purpose of viewing the relic of St. Anne, which is now on exhibition there. It is estimated by the priests that more than 5,000 persons kissed the relic during the day.

Late in the afternoon a pale-faced man drove up to the church in a runabout. He was accompanied by two other men. Slowly and painfully the two friends of the sick man helped him to the sidewalk. He was so crippled with locomotor ataxia, apparently that without the services of the companions he would have fallen. They led him down into the crypt where the relic was on exhibition, and made their way to the rail behind which stood gray-haired Canon Petit with the Sacred remnant of St. Anne. When they arrived there the and kissed the case in which the relic is inclosed, and then the canon placed it on his stricken limbs. This done, he hobbled slowly back to a pew with his face almost glorious in its faith, and there he prayed and waited for the cure he so longed for. An hour he spent there and then his friends returned for him. When he arose he was still a cripple, but he was not discouraged, for he said that he felt better, and he got back into his carriage apparently satisfied with his visit.

Canon Petit said that in the morning there was really a remarkable cure. He said that a child was brought in by its mother. On one of its legs it wore an iron brace. After the little one kissed the relic and the case bearing had been rubbed on its limbs the mother removed the brace, he said, and the child was able to walk out of the church alone. The feast of St. Anne will occur on July 26 and the relic will be on exhibition in the church until that time.

SITUATION UNCHANGED.

Strikers Say Everything Is Satisfactory to Them.

Pittsburg, July 22.—The important event in the strike history of the day is the organization of the tube millworkers at McKeesport. The word from there is that after long and arduous work Assistant Secretary Tighe of the Amalgamated association succeeded in organizing 175 men of the National Tube Works company. At the meeting twenty-five skilled men from each of the departments were initiated into the mysteries of the Amalgamated association, and Mr. Tighe claims that within forty-eight hours enough more of the workmen will be secured to keep the entire plant closed down, affecting 9,000 men.

From Wellsville nothing has been received here except word that the situation is unchanged and the strikers say everything is satisfactory to them. It is believed, however, that an attempt will be made to-day to put men to work there from other points, the ten men from Vandergrift, who are said to be at East Liverpool ready to go in early in the day being the principal men relied upon for the purpose. While the strikers say they will not commit any overt act there is an uneasy feeling manifest throughout the entire valley, and no one is willing to anticipate the result of the proposed attempt to put these men at work.

When seen last night President Shaffer expressed himself as being more than satisfied with the week's result.

SERIOUS CONFLICT EXPECTED.

Revenue Officers Go Into a Wild Country After Moonshiners.

Nashville, Tenn., July 22.—Reports from Monterey, Tenn., near which place an internal revenue raiding party was ambuscaded by moonshiners Saturday morning say excitement in that district is at a high pitch. The natives seem to have generally sided with the moonshiners and Collector Bell deemed it advisable to take his posse to Cookeville to await the reinforcements which leave here this morning. Every deputy collector and deputy marshal in the district has been summoned to join in the raid which is contemplated. The moonshiners have boasted they will not be taken alive, and as they are well armed and fortified in the mountains, a serious conflict is expected. The force will invade a wild country, inhabited by hardy and desperate people, almost universally hostile to the "revenue men" on general principles.

DISCOURAGES DIVORCES.

Criminal Prosecution Is to Follow Violations of Any Law.

Richmond, Va., July 22.—Rev. Dr. Richard McIlwaine offered a resolution in the constitutional convention which, if engrafted in the organic law of the state, will have a far-reaching effect on the subject of divorces. It makes the commonwealth a party in all divorce cases, and provides for the prosecution of either party to such proceedings if it be shown that they have been guilty of any offense.

Forest and Prairie Fires.

Denver, July 22.—Destruction by forest and prairie fires is reported from different points directly attributable to dry conditions of grass and timber from the long dry spell. Cattlemen here are becoming alarmed at the shortage of water in the streams.

Pioneer Merchant Dead.

Chicago, July 22.—Henry King Elkins, a pioneer lumber merchant of Chicago, and one of the first directors of the board of trade died yesterday after an illness of nearly a year.

SWEPT BY FLAMES

BUSINESS SECTION OF CAMBRIDGE, MINN., DESTROYED BY FIRE.

LOSS WILL REACH OVER $60,000

Fire Started Near Midnight and Raged for About Four Hours—Had a Good Start When Discovered and the Buildings Were an Easy Prey—Guests of the Hotel Had Plenty of Time to Escape.

Cambridge, Minn., July 21.—Fire swept the business portion of this town Thursday night and inflicted an aggregate loss of over $60,000. The fire is supposed to have started in the rear of Presley's drug store at 11:15, and it was 3 o'clock in the morning before the flames were brought under control. The losses are:

Merchants hotel, loss, $12,000; insurance, $8,000. P. O. Peterson, loss, $12,000; insurance, $5,000. Presley's drug store, loss, $4,000; insurance, $3,000. Alfred Smith, general store, loss, $9,000, insurance, $4,000. H. C. Johnson, general store, loss, $11,000; insurance, $5,000. Leonard's saloon, loss, $5,000. Satterlund's jewelry store, loss, $2,000. C. L. Johnson & Co., clothing store, loss, $3,500.

Several barns were also destroyed and at times it seemed as if the flames would extend to every building in the place. The fire had obtained a good start before being discovered, and the buildings were an easy prey.

The hotel had only been erected about two years ago by Sheriff Gillispie, and was run by his brother-in-law, W. J. Robbers, who owned the furniture, on which he had recently let the insurance run out. The hotel was thoroughly modern in every respect and a favorite with travelers. The guests had plenty of time to escape and saved most of their effects.

DOCTOR EATS SMALLPOX PUS.

To Support His Theory That the Disease Is Not Contagious.

Menasha, Wis., July 21.—Dr. Rodermund of Appleton caused a sensation here Thursday and it was thought that the smallpox scare caused by him in his home city and Milwaukee a few months ago was about to be repeated. He was called in consultation on the case of a child supposed to have smallpox. He is said to have broken open some of the postules of the child's body and swallowed the pus. The board of health was seriously considering the question of quarantining him when it was discovered that the child was ill with chickenpox and not smallpox.

LARGE SALE OF TIMBER.

Most Important Deal in Recent Years.

Washington, July 20.—A contract for the important sale of timber on Indian reservations made within the past few years was approved at the Indian office yesterday and will go to Secretary Hitchcock for final ratification. It is the sale of approximately 50,000,000 feet on the Lac Court d'Oreille reservation of the La Pointe agency, Ashland, Wis., to George C. Bateman of Belle Plaine, Minn., on his bid of an average price of about $2 a thousand for the standing timber.

BRIDGE COMPLETED.

Narrows at Devils Lake Successfully Bridged.

Devils Lake, N. D., July 21.—After untiring efforts and surmounting great obstacles a bridge across the lake at what is known as the narrows has been completed. The event was celebrated by 1,500 Indians crossing yesterday from the reservation for the purpose of taking part in a grand celebration at the Chatauqua Saturday, "Fargo day." A special train to accommodate the Fargoites will be run.

A NORTHFIELD JOKE.

Some Humorous Person Pulls Out the Soldiery.

Northfield, Minn., July 21.—Some wag with a playful turn of mind faked a telegram to Capt. Sumner of Company D from "Col. Bobleter" ordering the Second regiment to get ready to go to Walker to fight red men. The excitement for a time was terrific, but the boys finally got "next" and, failing to see the humor, are threatening to make it very warm for the person who got out the telegram.

BIG FIRE AT TOWER.

Ten Buildings Destroyed, Including a Hotel.

Duluth, Minn., July 21—Advices from Tower, eighty miles north, report a serious fire there yesterday morning that destroyed ten buildings, including a hotel, butcher shop and saloon; others were dwellings. No estimate has been received on the loss, but only two were insured.

Harvesting Is Under Way.

Miller, S. D., July 21.—Barley harvest began northeast of here and is promising. Albert Heinzerling will begin wheat harvest to-day. He says it will surely yield fifteen bushels per acre.

Indianian Buys a Morris Store.

Morris, Minn., July 21.—Bert Hall of Indiana has bought from O. R. Simensen the Acme confectionery and cigar store on Atlantic avenue.

Corn Shortage.

Des Moines, Iowa, July 21.—The corn crop will be 25 to 40 per cent short in Iowa, though rains within a week will change this estimate some.

Preparing for the Veterans.

Dubuque, Iowa, July 21.—Adjt. Gen. Byers is in the city looking after the arrangement of Camp Henderson, where on Tuesday the Forty-ninth and Fiftieth regiments of the Iowa National guard will go into encampment.

DAKOTA WHEAT CROP.

With the Present Conditions the Yield Will Surpass All Expectations.

Fargo, N. D., July 21.—With present conditions the wheat yield of the state will surpass the most sanguine expectations. Wild claims of thirty or more bushels per acre are being made in many localities. Owing to the fact that the wheat is just now in the milky stage and will soon be in the dough stage, there is no possibility of accurately stating the yield. A day or two of hot wind would do untold damage in shortening the yield and damaging the grade. Unless hurried along by too hot weather the wheat harvest will not begin for a week or ten days on the higher lands and not before two weeks in the valley proper. A quantity of barley has already been cut and some oats will be harvested this week.

GOLD EXCITEMENT.

Rich Veins Claimed to Be Found in Wisconsin.

La Crosse, Wis., July 21.—A valuable vein of gold has been discovered by Matt and Louis Monti of Genoa on the farm of J. P. Allen in the town of Webster, about two miles from the Avalanche on the west branch of the Kickapoo, Vernon county, this state. For some time copper has been mined in the vicinity, but gold had not been looked for until accidentally discovered by men at work in the mines. Samples have been sent to Chicago and are said to be the second best ever received there. Chicago capitalists have made large offers for the mine, but the present owners will work it themselves, having refused all offers to sell.

BLINDNESS NO BAR.

Minnesota Man Taking the Examination Before Illinois State Board.

Chicago, July 21.—Frederick Farmer, a blind man from Spring Valley, Minn., is taking an examination before the state board of health in this city for a certificate as an osteopath practitioner in Illinois. Mr. Farmer is thirty-one years old and a graduate of the American School of Osteopathy of Kirksville, Mo. The questions are dictated to him and are answered by writing on a typewriter with raised type. Great aptitude is shown by Mr. Farmer in manipulating the machine and correcting mistakes. The examining physicians also report that he has shown remarkable ability in the rapidity and correctness with which he answers the examination questions.

WITHOUT FIRE PROTECTION.

Defective Intake Pipes Leave La Crosse in a Serious Condition.

La Crosse, Wis., July 21.—The government harbor work has stirred the sand in the Mississippi to such an extent that, together with a defective intake pipe, the big Holly pumps are clogged and clopped, leaving the city without fire protection except from the little auxiliary pumps. All fire steamers are pressed into service to protect emergencies. It will take twenty-four hours to make repairs.

ASYLUM QUARANTINED.

Smallpox Breaks Out Among Insane Inmates.

Kalamazoo, Mich., July 21.—Dr. Henry H. Schaberg, city health officer, yesterday established a strict quarantine against the Michigan insane asylum, where twenty-nine cases of smallpox and varioloid were discovered. The disease was brought into the institution by a female nurse who recently visited her home.

TROUBLE ADJUSTED.

Freight Truckers Struck and the New Men Also Went Out.

Sioux City, Iowa, July 21—The freight truckers in the warehouses of the Omaha road quit work after demanding an increase of pay from $1.50 to $2. New men were hired, who worked twenty minutes. The warehouse work came to a standstill, but the trouble has been adjusted without any increase in wages.

HARVEST HANDS WANTED.

Rich Yields Reported From Morris and Vicinity.

Morris, Minn., July 21.—Barley and oats are being harvested and the crops are fine ones. Haying is about finished and the stacks are many. Some early flax is also being cut. The wheat harvest will begin in earnest next week. There are not enough men in sight to attend to it.

HARVEST AT NIGHT.

Farmers Plan to Avoid the Extreme Heat of the Day.

New Richmond, Wis., July 21.—If the present intense heat prevails harvesting will be done here between sundown and sunrise. Four horses dropped dead in the harvest field in this vicinity yesterday. Farmers are planning to suspend work entirely during the daytime.

DULUTH'S TORRID WAVE.

Temperature Goes Up Thirty Degrees in Three Hours.

Duluth, Minn., July 21.—The hot wave has the head of the lakes in its grasp and yesterday between 10 a. m. and 1 p. m. the temperature shot up 30 degrees. It registered 62 at 10 and 92 at 1. The maximum for the day was 96.

Consumed by Flames.

Crookston, Minn., July 21.—A barn containing three horses, a large amount of feed, harness and machinery, and belonging to Ben Champagne, a farmer living near Russia, was entirely destroyed by fire. Its origin is unknown.

Kasson Woman's Suicide.

Kasson, Minn., July 21.—Mrs. Warren Pond, living three miles east of this village, in a fit of temporary aberration of mind, committed suicide by hanging herself in a barn during the absence of her family.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 24, 1901.

The most remarkable Minnesota hot-weather story yet told is related by a St. Cloud paper, it being no less than the explosion of a woman's eye from the excessive heat the other day. The eye belonged to Mrs. T. H. Fowler, of St. Cloud, and expanding from the high temperature suddenly gave way, the jagged edges somewhat damaging the human socket, and Mrs. Fowler, it is understood, was obliged to consult a St. Paul oculist. The paper explains that the eye was a glass one which, however, does not detract from the interest of the incident.

The mailing of dunning postal cards is a practice that the government officials have to contend with from time to time. A recent issue of the postal guide contains an article by the Postmaster General relating to postal dunning cards mailable where the writer has not made a threat. A dunning postal card may contain on its back a bill and not mention the fact that a collector has called several times for the money, but where no threat is made and the intention has been only to secure the attention of the person receiving it, and not the public, it is mailable.

One of the most widely known of the popular preachers of the day is Reverend Geo. H. Hepworth, whose parish embraces the great constituencies of the Sunday Chicago Record-Herald and the Sunday New York Herald. A simple religion is that of this eminent clerical writer who preaches every Sunday to a congregation vastly greater than any ever accomodated in any temple of worship. Downright earnestness and sincerity, and a spirit of the broadest tolerance characterize this famous newspaper preacher. Read his editorial sermons in the Sunday issues of The Chicago Record-Herald and judge for yourself.

T. M. Roberts, of the well known Minneapolis Supply House, has gone bankrupt and his immense business is now in the hands of his creditors. His liabilities, it is said, will reach to about $700,000, and his assets, as estimated, to not more than half that amount. The cause of the failure can only be guessed at.

We are creditably informed that several of the farmers in this vicinity had shipped their wheat to T. M. Roberts and have so far received no returns from their shipments.

Some time ago a number of our people were victimised in a similar manner by a Duluth concern.

What an ideal fishing place this neighborhood must seem to be for outsiders on the lookout to catch suckers. How eagerly some of them bite at the smooth bait offered them by an unknown party while they pass by the square dealings of local men who are ever willing to treat them right. They forsake the home market, where they can be sure of honest treatment, and throw themselves, their their families and their substance into the hands of unscrupulous tricksters who will certainly give them the worst of it sooner or later.

After all perhaps it is a good thing for the community at large. The sucker is a low-grade fish anyway. But it does not seem right for that kind of individual to sponge favors at home and squander their substance in other places leaving the home man loser as well as themselves.

An Ounce of Prevention.

"As you went out," whispered the observing boarder, "I saw you pick up something from the floor, tear it in a dozen pieces and throw it in the range. Was it a love letter?"

"No," responded the practical boarder. "It was a little booklet telling how to prepare prunes in 99 different ways. I was afraid it might fall into the hands of the landlady."—Philadelphia

Queer Indian Beliefs.

There is an odd feature in the theology of the small Indian tribe of the Bella Coola, which inhabit British Columbia in about latitude 52. They believe that there are five worlds, one above the other, and the middle one is our own world, the earth. Above it are two heavens, and under it are two underworlds. In the upper heaven is the supreme deity, who is a woman, and she doesn't meddle much with the affairs in the second world below her. The zenith is the center of the lower heaven, and here is the 'house of the gods, in which live the sun and the rest of the deities.

Our own earth is believed to be an island swimming in the ocean. The first underworld from the earth is inhabited by ghosts who can return when they wish to heaven, from which place they may be sent down to our earth. If then they misbehave again, they are cast into the lower of the underworlds, and from this bourne no ghostly traveler returns.

The Bella Coola are sun worshipers, for Senex, the sun, the master of the house of gods, who also is called "the father" and "the sacred one," is the only deity to whom the tribe pray. Each family of the Bella Coola has its own traditions and its own form of the current traditions, so that in the mythology of the tribe there are countless contradictions. When any one not a member of a clan tries to tell a tradition which does not belong to his clan, it is like a white man trying to tell another's joke—he is considered as appropriating the property right which does not belong to him.

Hard Ducks to Kill.

The screaming walloon is a hard duck to kill. Its hide is very tough and is thickly covered with feathers and down. Besides the bird is a great diver, one of the kind that used to "dive at the flash" when hunted with the old arm that flashed when fired. It is of very little value for table use, being so tough. The only way to manage it at all is to skin it and parboil it in a big pot with plenty of water. The negroes make caps of walloon skins.

"They are great ducks for diving," says a well known Tred Avon river progger.

"They can dive quicker, go down deeper, remain under water longer and come up farther away than any other duck that frequents our waters. I remember once I succeeded in killing a walloon, and, being short of game for the table, I determined to cook my bird. I got a negro to skin it, giving him the hide for his trouble. After being cleaned we put it in a great pot full of water and under it kindled a hot fire. After awhile I wanted to see how the cooking of my duck progressed and lifted the top off the boiling pot, but there was so much steam escaping I could not see into the pot and struck a match over it. The blamed walloon, sir, dived at the flash of the match. It disappeared and has never been seen since."—Baltimore Sun.

A Lesson to Humorists.

One cannot safely assume in these days that there is any region in which such and such a journal is not read. Recently a certain humorist needed a rest and went and stopped in a cottage in a remote village by the sea. His sitting room opened on the kitchen, where his landlady, a woman widely esteemed as a person of great acumen and a maker of phrases, was wont to receive the neighbors. He listened and put both landlady and neighbors into some amusing sketches which were promptly published in a London magazine. A month or two went by. Then one afternoon he came back to the cottage to meet and cower before an indignant matron, who told him, among other things, that he had one hour in which to pack his traps and quit the village. She was not going to have an eavesdropper in her house, and she added a significant hint to the effect that the people of the village were of the same opinion and might be betrayed into an attempt to give a forcible demonstration of their views.—London Post.

Now They Are Married.

A bashful young man went three times to ask a beautiful young lady if he might be the partner of her joys and sorrows and other household furniture, but each time his heart failed him, and he took the question away unpopped.

She saw the anguish of his soul and had compassion on him. So the next time he came she asked him if he had thought to bring a screwdriver with him.

He blushed and wanted to know what for.

And she, in the fullness of her heart, said she did not know but that he would want to screw up his courage before he left.

He took the hint and the girl.—Pearson's Weekly.

The Jaw of an Otter.

You can find an example of nature's adaptation of the jaw to use in the case of certain carnivora, like the otter—a big weasel that has acquired aquatic habits. The jaws of such beasts are so fixed in the sockets that dislocation is impossible. In some instances you cannot, even after the animal is dead, separate the jaw from the head. This arrangement is evidently designed to enable the beast to bite to the greatest advantage without danger that the chewing apparatus will come loose.

Cause of Thought.

"You look thoughtful tonight, Smith," remarked Brown as he stretched himself on two chairs.

"Yes," said Smith. "I have just got a note from the landlady."

"What does she say?"

"She says that I must pay my board at once, or her daughter will sue me for breach of promise. I'm thinking what I'd better do."—Tit-Bits.

His Spelling System.

Dobbs met his friend Turner in the train. They were both going to Birmingham and stopped at the same hotel. Turner registered his name "E. K. Phtholognyrrh."

Dobbs, noticing it, exclaimed, "Here, what are you using such a foreign, outlandish name for?"

"I am not assuming any foreign name," replied Turner.

"What kind of a name is it, then?"

"That is my identical old name, and it is English too—pronounced 'Turner.'"

"I can't see how you make 'Turner' out of those 13 letters; besides, what is your object in spelling that way?" asked Dobbs.

"Well, you see, nobody ever noticed my name on the register when I wrote it 'Turner,'" the latter explained, "but since I commenced writing it 'Phtholognyrrh' I set them all guessing. It is, as I said before, English spelling. 'Phth' is the sound of 't' in 'phthisis,' 'olo' is the sound of 'ur' in 'colonel,' 'gn' there is the 'n' in 'gnat,' 'yrrh' is the sound of 'er' in 'myrrh.' Now, if that doesn't spell 'Turner' what does it spell?"—London Standard.

Optimism.

When the optimist was dispossessed and thrown, along with his household impedimenta, into the cold street, he chuckled furiously.

"Why do you laugh, my friend?" inquired a passerby.

"Because I have just now been emancipated from toil," replied the optimist. "For years my life has been one long struggle to keep the wolf from the door. But now that I have been deprived of the door I no longer am compelled to toil. Sweet, indeed, are the uses of adversity!"

Then the optimist walked off, whistling gayly, into the sunshine.—New York Sun.

Dr. Josiah Oldfield, author of a new book on "The Death Penalty," says that he wrote to all the bishops of the Church of England for their opinions on the subject, and not one of them favored the abolition of capital punishment.

Col. Charles Denby, former minister to China, is said to have a knowledge of the Chinese language and literature equaled by but few persons in this country. He speaks one higher sort of Chinese dialects almost as a native and reads the language quite as well as he does English.

Prosper D'Epinay, the Parisian sculptor, who for years past has done most of his work at Rome, has just completed a plaster model of John Paul Jones, who is represented standing beside an anchor, with drawn sword, as if about to leap upon the deck of an enemy's ship at the head of a boarding party.

When asked the other day as to the question he raised concerning the syntactical number of the United States, ex-Secretary John W. Foster said: "I think, after all, the best answer is that of the cartoonist: 'Between ourselves the United States are plural, but between ourselves and any other nation the United States is singular.'"

FRAGMENTARY PHRASES.

Pity is akin to love, but it is a poor relation.

It is something to make people cry, more to make them laugh, most to make them think.

Necessity is called the mother of invention, but it is the cruel stepmother of the fairy tales.

Preachers don't realize how much religion the pews need to make them partner with the pulpit.

It is easy enough to forgive when you are quite sure it is the most provoking thing you can do.

It is hard for a man's pride to think that he has not enough brain to do more than attend to his own business.

Being hated is often useful. Many a man has failed in love, politics and business because there was no one to abuse him at the right time.

There is no such thing as a "harmless flirtation," and we all know it. That is why we are always trying to find one.—Lippincott's Magazine.

No man should ever make excuses to a woman who loves him. Let him say he is sorry and loves her, and she will make the excuses, and accept them, too.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

Ammonia painted over woodwork will darken it.

It may not be generally known that a sprig of parsley with a dash of salt taken after one has eaten onions will entirely remove the disagreeable odor from the breath.

Here is an Australian breakfast dish: Boil and mash some potatoes, place part of them on a dish well spread with butter, salt and pepper; cover with the contents of a tin of lobster or salmon, then spread the remainder of potatoes over, and place in the oven till nicely browned. Pour over melted butter flavored with anchovy.

Cut half-inch slices of bread into diamonds or rounds. Remove the centers to the depth of one-quarter inch, brush with butter and brown them in the oven. Chop cooked spinach very fine and add two tablespoonfuls of butter, one fourth teaspoonful of salt and pepper to taste. Serve it in the bread boxes with a sprinkling of grated yolk of egg on top.

Use hard soap in washing clothes. In boiling white clothes add a tablespoonful of turpentine to the water to assist in the whitening process. Boiled starch is much improved by the addition of salt or a little gum arabic dissolved. Another hint in reference to starch is that the iron will not stick in ironing if the starch has been mixed with soapy water.

IT IS A MISTAKE.

Not to yield in immaterial matters.

To endeavor to mold all dispositions alike.

To look for perfection in our own actions.

To expect uniformity of opinion in this world.

SCHOOL AND COLLEGE TOPICS.

According to President Frederick Star, of the University of Chicago, a man who parts his hair in the middle displays unmistakable evidence of a degenerate instinct.

Vanderbilt university has conferred the medal of oratory, the highest honor at its disposal, on Charles Yon Marshall, of Soo-Chow, China. He made a strong plea for his native country, which, he argued, was destined to take her place among the great nations of the world.

A majority of the students at Berea college, Kentucky, are mountain girls, who until their arrival there had little or no opportunity to learn modern culinary methods. Education in this branch is being carefully imparted, under the supervision of an expert graduate of Pratt institute, Brooklyn.

Material of All Kinds Being Shipped on Rush Orders from This Country.

Shipments of cars, locomotives, rails and steel for railroad bridges to Ecuador have commenced in enormous quantities. The heavy orders are from the South American railroad, which is being built across the Andes from the port of Guayaquil to Quito, the capital, about 300 miles. As more than a hundred miles of this road into a new land has now been put in active operation and 40 miles additional soon is to be opened, the railroad has placed rush orders with American manufacturers for large amounts of steel rails, bridges and cars.

The Carnegie plant has begun a shipment of 40,000 tons of steel rails. Two 65-ton locomotives, equipped with drivers for mountain grade have also been started.

The American Bridge company is under contract to rush 20,000 tons of steel bridge material. A certain car company has begun shipments on a contract for 300 flat, box and stock cars, and a Wilmington firm is building passenger coaches, parlor cars and a director's car for the same road.

Coach Goes to Mount Vernon.

Through the efforts of Mrs. E. B. A. Rathbone, vice regent for the state of Michigan of the Mount Vernon Ladies' association, the historic old state coach used by George Washington when he rode to New York city to take the oath of office as first president of the United States will be preserved for future generations among the other relics at Mount Vernon on the Potomac. This information was announced by Augustus Frey, who has owned the coach for several years, and recently came to the conclusion that it would look better at Mount Vernon than it has stored in his barn. It is understood that Mr. Frey gave the coach to the association.

The coach, once rich with decorations and embroidered upholstery, has lost much of its elegance and is now but a shadow of the suggestion of the elegance of the period. For years it was used by Gen. and Mrs. Washington about Mount Vernon.

Express Cars on Street Railways.

It was announced the other night that the New York Electric Vehicle and Transportation company has acquired control of the Metropolitan Express company, formed in Albany a few weeks ago, and that a system of baggage and parcel exchange will be opened in connection with the Metropolitan Street Railway company. At the time the Metropolitan Express company was formed Frank H. Platt appeared as an incorporator of the company, and all sorts of rumors were afloat as to the object of the company. It now develops that under his direction a contract was made with the Metropolitan Street railway, by which it would carry express cars over all its lines, except on Broadway. The cars will connect with the lines of the Union Railway company, running to Mount Vernon, New Rochelle and other points.

Gives Brain Room to Grow.

One of the rarest operations known to modern surgery was performed the other day upon Isidor Levine, the [illegible]-year-old son of Adolph Levine, of New York city. It is known as Lannelongue's operation, and consists in cutting away a part of the skull to give the brain room for development. Little Isidor Levine had been deranged all his life. His parents lived in Nashville, Tenn., but came to New York two years ago in the hope that physicians there could help their son.

No treatment ever benefited him. Dr. Gottlieb made a careful study of the case and came to the conclusion that the boy's brain was normal, but that it was being cramped by a deformed skull. He found that the skull was smaller on the left side than on the right, and located the trouble on that side of the brain. An operation was necessary.

Baldwin Tests Balloons.

Evelyn Baldwin, the arctic explorer, made a balloon ascension from Quincy, Ill., with his cousin, Samuel Baldwin. They ascended to a height of about two miles and landed safely near Hull, 20 miles south of Quincy. The explorer went on from Hull to St. Louis, and then out to Kansas to say good-by to his parents. He sailed from New York for Norway to join the expedition. The Baldwin brothers, of Quincy, have made 30 balloons for the arctic explorer, which he will use in the far north for scientific observations in the upper atmosphere. He came to Quincy to get the balloons, and as he had never been up in one before, Sam Baldwin took him up to teach him how to regulate the great gas bag.

Tree Freshman on Flagstaff.

Howard Blakeslee, of Detroit, the freshman class president, was caught at three o'clock the other morning near the top of the 150-foot flag pole that came to Ann Arbor college from the world's fair, attempting to affix his class flag to the highest point on the campus. Warden Arndbeuser noticed a dark object on the pole, and yelled for it to come down. Superintendent of Grounds Reeves and a boiler-room contingent were attracted to the spot, and as the unknown refused to come down, they sat in a circle at the foot of the pole smoking cigars and pipes.

At last Blakeslee became exhausted, and slowly slid to the ground, where he was identified. The halyards of the pole had been cut and a big freshman flag was confiscated.

Satisfactorily Explained.

He was waiting on the street corner, and as she got off the street car he lifted his hat and stiffly saluted:

"'Deevenin, Miss Wharton!'"

"'Deevenin, Mistah Carr!'" she replied, with her nose in the air.

"Miss Wharton," he continued as he swallowed at the lump in his throat, "when yo'r sister dun tole me yo' was at de candy pull wid dat low down pusson named Jackson I couldn't skasely believe it."

"Mistah Carr," she replied as her nose went still higher, "when Linda Smith dun tole me dat yo' wanted her to help yo' git up a cake walk I lost my breff fur five minits."

"Miss Wharton, I 'lows no woman to trifle wid my heart."

"And I 'lows no man to trifle wid mine, Mistah Carr."

"Under de circumstances, Miss Wharton, it will be better dat we meet as strangers."

"Dat's me, Mistah Carr."

"But, as life will have no more charms fur me, Miss Wharton; as each succeedin day would only add its burdens to my grievin heart, I will hang myself in de wood shed tonight."

"An' I will take pizen, Mistah Carr. Sooner dan live on feelin dat no one lubs me I will destroy myself."

"Who doan' lub yo'?"

"Yo' doan'."

"Who said so?"

"Yo' did."

"Miss Wharton—Maggie—I nebber axed dat Linda Smith to git up a cake walk wid me."

"Mistah Carr—Moses—I didn't go to de party wid dat pusson named Jackson."

"Den I won't hang myself."

"Den I won't take pizen."

"Maggie!"

"Moses!"

And a cuckoo clock in the nearest house struck the hour of 7 in joyful exultation, and all was love and peace.—Washington Post.

Bismarck as a Lover.

From "The Love Letters of Bismarck," just published by Harpers, this extract from a letter to his wife is taken:

"I married you in order to love you in God and according to the need of my heart and in order to have in the midst of the strange world a place for my heart, which all the world's bleak winds cannot chill and where I may find the warmth of the home fire to which I eagerly betake myself when it is stormy and cold without, but not to have a society woman for others, and I shall cherish and nurse your little fireplace, put wood on it and blow and protect it against all that is evil and strange, for next to God's mercy there is nothing which is dearer and more necessary to me than your love and the homelike hearth that stands between us everywhere, even in a strange land, when we are together."

Fints.

Tess—Mr. Sophie seems to be very attentive to you. I suppose congratulations will soon be in order.

Jess—They're in order now.

Tess—Really?

Jess—Yes. I rejected him last night.—Philadelphia Press.

In a joint session lasting three hours the Porto Rican assembly unanimously passed the free trade resolution. The assembly hall was crowded with spectators and cheers greeted the announcement that Governor Allen had signed the resolution.

FOR THE CHILDREN

A Famous Game of Ball.

In 1763, on the 4th of June, loyal British subjects everywhere were celebrating King George's birthday. Over here in America at Fort Michilimackinac, overlooking the beautiful strait of Mackinac, the English soldiers were invited by the Ojibwas and the Sacs to watch a game of ball they were to play that afternoon. The Indian game was the same that is now known as lacrosse in Canada. Glad to celebrate the holiday in some way, many of the officers and soldiers readily accepted the invitation, and not more than half of them remained at the fort.

It seems a little strange that the soldiers should have responded so promptly to the invitation, for they knew that the Indians were very hostile to the English. Their sympathies were with the French, who had originally occupied the fort, and they were influenced, too, by the Canadians, who regarded the English as rivals in the fur trade.

The game took place on the plain in front of the fort. In the crowd that gathered to watch it were many soldiers without arms, many blanketed squaws, many Canadians and a number of Indian chiefs and warriors. There were two goal posts at opposite ends of the plain, and each side tried to defend its goal and drive the ball.

All at once the ball was thrown high into the air and fell very near the pickets of the fort. Then in a moment the Indians changed from interested ball players into the fiercest of warriors. Apparently in pursuit of the ball, they rushed toward the gate and, before the English could realize what was happening, had entered the fort.

The blanketed squaws had been concealing hatchets and muskets all this time, and these they handed to the Indians as they ran after the ball. Some of the Indians fell upon those who had gathered outside; others attacked those on the inside. A massacre such as the Indian alone is capable of followed, and thus by a clever ruse the important military post at Mackinac passed from the possession of the English into the hands of the Indians.

Duke.

A few years ago we owned a huge dog by the name of Duke, writes Josephine Maguire to the Philadelphia Ledger. He was a wise old fellow and loved to play with children. He would allow my little 4-year-old brother to pull his hair and sit on him. The dog would not show the slightest annoyance. One moonlight night we were all sitting on the front piazza except my mother, who had gone up stairs to put our little brother to bed. She remarked as she came down again that we had better come in and have some music, as it was getting cooler. Some hours after that we were annoyed in the middle of the game by Duke scratching on the piazza floor and otherwise behaving as no dignified old dog should. We paid no attention to him, but he commenced barking and scratching again. At last my brother walked out, and Duke went on ahead, wagging his tail and looking behind him. Down at the very foot of our garden was a small river, and there my brother found our little brother lying on the bank fast asleep. The wee toddler had walked out in his sleep, as my mother had left the door open. Of course she was frightened when she saw my brother come in with the child whom she had put to bed some time ago. Duke was a much petted dog after that, and many offers were made to buy him, but we all said that we would not sell him for his weight in gold.

A Baby Canary's Music Lesson.

In the account of a pair of canaries and their offspring which is published in The Ladies' Home Journal Florence Morse Kingsley tells how the oldest baby bird, as soon as he had learned to flutter from one perch to another and to reach for a seed and crack it, was put into a cage by himself and hung out on the veranda near the father bird, who was named Wee Willie Winkle and was a superb singer. Then the baby bird's education began. First, he learned to jump fearlessly into his china bathtub and flutter his wings and get himself gloriously wet, just as father did. Next, he cuddled himself up to a delightfully comfortable little bunch on his perch and listened attentively while Wee Willie Winkle sang his wonderful song. The second week we heard a funny, sweet little chirping and gurgling. It was the young canary. One day he trilled a little trill, and the next day he had learned three new gurgles, and the day after that he wove the trills and the gurgles together and added a longer trill on a higher key. In six weeks' time we were asking, "Is it Wee Willie Winkle who is singing or the baby?"

At Twilight.

A rocking horse, with a painted mane,
All battered and broken with play,
Was left with a fuzzy woolen dog,
Just at the close of day.

"If I were a thoroughbred, my friend,"
Said the horse with the painted mane,
"I'd have a pedigree to reach
To Boston and back again!

"My master would feed me on sugar and salt;
Of riding he'd never tire,
And I shouldn't be left to stand like this,
Alone by the nursery fire!"

"And if I were alive," said the fuzzy dog,
"I'd like to have you know,
There'd not be a purer Skye than me
In all of the kennel show.

"I'd wear a collar of silver bells,
With a ribbon of beautiful blue,
And I'd sleep on a cushion of softest silk
And not in a stable, like you!"

The nursery fire was burning low
When a wee little man in white
Came pattering in at the open door
To kiss his toys good night.

He tenderly hugged his painted horse,
"You know I love you!" he said.
Then he gathered the dog up close in his arms
And carried him off to bed!

PEOPLE OF THE DAY

Honored With Carnegie.

The Marquis of Dufferin, who with the marchioness has been very prominent of late in English royal circles, was honored by the Glasgow university the other day. The university conferred upon him the degree of LL. D. Andrew Carnegie was a recipient of the same honor at the same time. Others similarly honored were General Sir Archibald Hunter, General Ian Hamilton and three Glasgow women. This was the first time a woman received the degree from Glasgow. The occasion was a memorable one, as the university was celebrating the four hundred and fiftieth anniversary of its foundation, and delegates were present from all over the world.

MARQUIS OF DUFFERIN.

Joe Jefferson's "Horse."

Many of Joseph Jefferson's amusing sayings are quoted by James S. Metcalfe in the account in The Ladies' Home Journal of a visit paid to the veteran actor in his winter quarters at Palm Beach, Fla. He uses a tricycle for the short journeys possible about that place. Once as he dismounted from it he remarked: "My horse is like David Harum's; he'll stand without hitching. And he's better than a bicycle because he doesn't have to have anything to lean up against." On another occasion when caught in a rainstorm and the wind made it difficult for one rain coat to keep both the actor and his companion dry Mr. Jefferson said philosophically, not complainingly: "I don't mind being wet all over, because then you don't notice any one place. But this being wet in spots kind of calls your attention to them."

Mrs. Wu Goes Home Alone.

Mrs. Wu, the wife of the Chinese minister, has left Washington. It is announced that she will go to San Francisco and there take a steamer to China, where she will remain for the summer. Mr. Wu did not accompany her, and one of the jokes that are going the rounds of the diplomatic set is that he was afraid to go home for fear the powers that be have not taken kindly to the suggestions he has made regarding various reforms for China. Mr. Wu does not intend to stay in Washington during the hot spell, but he is telling his friends that he hopes to be able to make himself comfortable at some of the American resorts. Mrs. Wu was accompanied by a good sized retinue.

Eugene Field's Daughter to Marry.

Chicago announces the engagement of Miss Mary French Field, daughter of the late Eugene Field, to William C. Engler. Miss Field, called "Trottie" by her intimates, is probably the best known young woman in Chicago. Soon after the death five years ago of her gifted father she became a public reader, presenting the works of her father so entertainingly as to become widely popular throughout the country.

MARY FRENCH FIELD.

Mr. Engler is a Marylander who has lived in Chicago for several years and has made his home for the past six months at the Field residence in Clarendon avenue. He is secretary of a big manufacturing concern and is popular in North Shore social circles.

The marriage is to be celebrated in the fall.

Miss Beveridge Angry.

Miss Kuehne Beveridge, the sculptress, who was made to pay $165 duty on her baggage by the customs officers when she arrived at New York the other day, has sailed away for London, vowing she will never again come to this country because of her treatment by the customs officers. Miss Beveridge will remain only a short time in London, but will go on to South Africa, where she intends to make her home.

Secretary at Seoul.

Gordon Paddock, the young New Yorker whom President McKinley recently named for the post of first secretary of the American legation at Seoul, Korea, went from New York to Washington the other day to report before going to his new post of duty. Friends gave him an elaborate "stag" dinner at the Union club by way of a godspeed.

Sunday's Ball Game.

The people of St. Hilaire and vicinity were treated to a fine exhibition of the national game on Sunday. The Thief River Falls team, being composed of a lot of jolly good fellows, came down to show us what a good ball team looked like and they did. They weren't after blood, nor money, they simply came here to entertain us by playing a game with nine picked up locals. But the game developed into more than a pleasure trip and was really one of the best games played in this county in a long while.

S. C. Knonf umpired the game and as a general thing his rulings were satisfactory. There was a little howl started a couple of times but the umpire would never give in—which is one of the best traits in an umpire.

The game was hotly contested and ended up with a score of 8 to 6 in favor of the picked up nine of St. Hilaire. Yes, its a fact, the Indians got scalped when they didn't expect it. They put up a game fight but couldn't gain the victory. The batteries were: For Thief River, Nason and Murphy; for St. Hilaire, Wall and O'Neill.

All of the boys played ball but the special features of the game were the batting of Wall, O'Neill and Lachapell for the locals. Wall made three three-baggers. O'Neill landed a home run and a two base hit. Lachapelle made two of the latter.

O'Neill skipped over third base without touching when he made his home run and was called out. That was one time when the umpire heard some kicks. One of the visitors was called out at second and got hot and quit the game. Then there was another uproar. But such things will happen and it don't seem just right for folks to get mad over trifles like that when there is nothing at stake.

Taken all in all the game was a fine one and the visitors not only played good ball but proved that they are first-rate fellows.

Alderman J. E. Morrissey and architect E. Strassburger, of Crookston were here Saturday on their way home from Thief River Falls. They visited the Falls to be present at the opening of bids for the construction of the new brick hotel there. The bids were all a little higher than the architects estimate and so the contract was not awarded. They say however that the hotel will be built just the same. The plans and specifications have been modified somewhat and new bids will be received by the projectors.

A terrible calamity is reported to have overtaken John Benson, a farmer who resides in Marsh Grove township near Middle River.

During the thunder storm of Sunday last, his house was struck by lightning and burned to the ground with all its contents. The same stroke also struck and instantly killed his wife and her infant child, 2 years of age. It has been impossible up to this time to secure further information of the sad event.—Thief River Press.

Japan's Creator.

Count Ito Hirobumi has been called the creator of modern Japan. Forty years ago Japan had the same systems, customs and laws that had been handed down for thousands of years. To-day it has the best quarantine service in the world, one of the best modern armies, a system of schools nearly as good as our own and shows correspondingly great improvements in other departments. For these achievements Japan is indebted to Ito more that to all other men combined. Ito, like Diaz and Cecil Rhodes, is a man who has risen through his own nerve. He has absolute confidence in himself and fears no obstacles. Such confidence and nerve come with good health. Good health comes after drinking "Golden Grain Belt" beer, for it is brewed from the purest barley malt and hops. It is an ideal family drink. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex. Thompson, Crookston.

From the window of the chapel softly sounds an organ's note,
Through the peaceful Sabbath gloaming drifting shreds of music float,
And the quiet and the firelight and the sweetly solemn tunes,
Bear me dreaming back to boyhood and its Sunday afternoons;

When we gathered in the parlor, in the parlor stiff and grand,
Where the haircloth chairs and sofas stood arrayed, a gloomy band,
Where each queer oil portrait watched us with a countenance of wood,
And the shells upon the whatnot in a dustless splendor stood.

Then the quaint old parlor organ, with the quaver in its tongue,
Seemed to tremble in its fervor as the sacred songs were sung,
As we sang the homely anthem, sang the glad revival hymns
Of the glory of the story and the light no sorrow dims.

While the dusk grew even deeper and the evening settled down,
And the lamp-lit windows twinkled in the drowsy little town,
Old and young we sang the chorus and the echoes told it o'er
In the dear, familiar voices, hushed or scattered evermore.

From the windows of the chapel faint and low the music dies,
And the picture in the firelight fades before my tear-dimmed eyes,
But my wistful fancy, listening hears the night wind hum the tunes
That we sang there in the parlor on those Sunday afternoons.

A Jest of Fate.

BY MAUDE E. LEONARD.

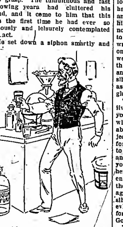
(Copyright, 1901, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

The man was in a brown study. Apparently he was engaged in a difficult experiment in his laboratory for his hands moved automatically among the chemicals. Liquids met, mingled and were separated deftly, but in reality he was entirely ignorant of what his sensitive fingers were doing, for his mind was busily engaged otherwise.

He was a well-built man, and his profile spoke of strength, with its slightly aquiline nose, deepset eye, and closely trimmed beard. That the mouth hidden by this same beard held doubtful curves and a curious droop was a fact naturally unknown to most persons. When Dr. Packard chose to address a meeting of scientists his auditors always were aroused and listened. For he had a brain. Whether he was troubled by a heart was something women liked to speculate about. Those who had solved the question discreetly hid their dearly bought knowledge, for women do not parade their hurts.

In the face of this, it is somewhat remarkable to understand that at the moment when he was so aimlessly puttering about in his mechanical work with lackluster, introspective eyes, Dr. Packard's brain was in reality entirely occupied with a woman. She had come out of the past so far back that the halo of mystery was beginning to adorn her memory, and because he was a son of Adam Dr. Packard found this uniquely attractive. She needed some such softening nimbus, he reflected, with a touch of sardonic humor, for she must be forty years old—it was over twenty years since he had left that miserable small town in the west when opportunity had stretched out a finger to his restless grasp. The tumultuous and fast following years had cluttered his mind, and it came to him that this was the first time he had ever so seriously and leisurely contemplated his act.

He set down a siphon smartly and smashed it as he reflected what a fool he had been. At nineteen he had married Bessie Crowell. She was a waitress in the railroad restaurant and alone in the world. She had been pretty, of course, and she was good. As to her spelling he was not so sure. Carefully he pieced out his boyish recollection of her. He knew precisely what her type would have degenerated into in the time which had passed. With the uncompromisingly accurate knowledge of the mature man he could see her as she undoubtedly was after the lapse of twenty years. She was fat and wore broad, flat shoes with the buttons off. Her gowns were of the dreary, nondescript wools stupid women affect, and her waist went by courtesy. Her hair—it had been brown and roughly curly—was thinning and shiny and screwed into a tight knot. Her complexion was coarse and oily, and she was gross, stolid and entirely repellant to a man of fastidious tastes. Her mind had never risen above the gossip of the store and corners. As this picture grew, so correspondingly faded the idea which as a just man had attacked him, that he had done wrong in running away from her. It was with a sort of pride he recollected in all these years he had never failed to send regular remittances back to her and the child. For there had been one, but it had not appealed to his restless youth and still slumbering emotions of fatherhood. His lawyer relieved him of the delicate task of forwarding the allowance to Bessie, Mrs. Abbott. When he ran away he had changed his name to Packard and she had never traced him, though his invaluable legal man had once carelessly conveyed to him the impression that a vindictive and spasmodic search for her strangely missing husband was now and then made by his client's beneficiary, Mrs. Abbott. Packard had thanked his legal man gravely without vouchsafing any information concerning the recalcitrant husband to his expectant legal man, and had gone to his club to offer up thanks that his trail was covered.



The other held poison.

Dr. Packard, the scientist, the favored, the admired by the lovely and gracious women of society and by men of affairs—what had this man in common with the hot-headed boy of a quarter of a century before, whose name was Abbott and who had been a fool? She could never find him.

She had never heard such a laugh.

With a short sigh Dr. Packard set down the retort he held and reached for the glass of water he had drawn some moments before. The day was warm and he was thirsty. He drank every drop before he emerged from his mental wanderings and stood blinking as one whose sleeping eyes have opened suddenly on a glare of light. Then he stumbled, sat down, and stared stupidly at the empty glass. Two feet away from where it had stood was another glass similar in shape, filled with a colorless liquid. One of those glasses had held water, the other had been filled with a solution he had made of a peculiar, colorless, tasteless poison. And he had drunk one of them.

There was a dampness on his forehead. If it was the poison he had swallowed he was a dead man inside an hour. Then of a sudden he squared his shoulders and laughed harshly with relief. Hastily he reached for the other glass—he could test its contents and the suspense would be over. As he grasped it his trembling hand shifted, the glass slipped into the sink and the contents disappeared down the drain.

The man groaned. It had come on him so suddenly, he had awakened to the everyday world so abruptly he had not had time to get his balance. He was not in a normal condition to face such a catastrophe and he sat clutching the table edge with starting eyes and a ghastly face. He did not want to die—he would not! A blind panic had him fast as he realized there was no use calling for help. No one could save him. With nerves tingling he sat waiting for the first twinge of pain, his imagination lending hideous aid to reality. In a few minutes everything would be ended for him if it was the poison he had swallowed and something of his old, dominating will came back as he rapidly adjusted his point of view. Stubbornly his thoughts returned to Bessie Abbott but not with contemplative leisure this time. She loomed a solemn fact in the life he had suddenly become separated from and the idea of a full expiation seized him and was insistent. With the odd notion growing he rose and wavered toward his desk in the next room and wrote hurriedly. There was really no one else with so good a claim on his wealth and the child, young man by this time—he still thought of him as an alien, disinterestedly—might possibly make some use of prosperity even as he had done. With livid face he glanced over the unblotted letter.

"You could never have found me living," it ran, "but it is my whim you should profit by my death. It will give New York something to talk about and wonder over. I do not object adding to the gayety of nations for I know the devil of ennui. Come to the address at the top of this sheet and take possession. Everything is yours. I must confess I rarely remembered you till today, when strangely enough you have been much in my thoughts. They say the mind of the aged reverts to scenes of youth—possibly in my case forty is old. It is evidently sufficient in fate's judgment for in half an hour I shall be dead. Goodby."

The brutality of the few words seemed to revive him and stop the dull pricking that was stealing over his body. Methodically he sealed, addressed and stamped the envelope, walked out and handed it to the postman who at that moment was unlocking the mailbox. Then he came back to the laboratory and shut the door behind him. There was no longer in his mind any doubt as to which of the glasses he had emptied for his hands were cold, he trembled as with an ague and numbness stole over his brain. He could not think. He wandered around the room with protesting despairing tread and when his knees gave way beneath him he fell gasping to the floor and the waves swept over him.

• • • • •

Hours later those working over Dr. Packard who had been found on the floor of his laboratory were rewarded by the flicker of his eyelids and presently he spoke. It was the usual inane question of those coming out of the depths.

"You are in your own room," briskly answered the physician at his right, a personal friend. Dr. Packard was trying to think as the waves which had submerged him receded. "I was poisoned," he breathed in a puzzled way.

His friend's face broke into the humoring smile given remarks made by the feeble and incompetent. "Nonsense," he said soothingly, "you've been in the most extensive and all-pervading faint I ever saw but you weren't poisoned, man—what put that idea into your head? You're dreaming! And what do you mean by keeling over in such a reprehensible way? You were working too long without food and rest, that's what ailed you!"

It was some minutes later that Dr. Packard remembered the letter.

He laughed once; shortly, abruptly, before he turned his face toward the wall. But the trained nurse at his side jumped. She had never heard quite such a laugh in all her experience. And she never wanted to hear it again.

IN LONLY LABRADOR.

Hunters Who Have Just Heard of Victoria's Death.

Reports are reaching civilization of the operations of the past winter in the interior and upon the coast of Labrador. The season was, generally speaking, a mild one, and the fatalities among the Indians fewer than usual. A good supply of furs was secured, but none of such peculiar value as some of those taken during the preceding winter. The highest price paid for a single skin of last winter's catch was $300, which was for a black silver fox, the king of all the fur-bearing animals of Labrador. Exactly double that amount was paid for a skin of the same variety, a very noble specimen, about a year ago. Prices in general are scarcely so good at present as they were this time last year. Marten skins, which have brought as much as $25 a skin, sold this spring for from $15 to $18. Traders are especially proud of the otters and minks which they obtain from Labrador, which have fur of a peculiar fineness and luster. The hunters from the interior of Labrador had not heard of the death of Queen Victoria until they emerged from the woods a few days ago. No mail matter can reach them during the winter. Even the residents along the coast had only six mails from autumn till spring, and these had to be conveyed over the snow by dogs, on sleighs, for want of proper roads and other means of conveyance. The oldest living settler upon the coast is Philip G. Touzel, who went there from Jersey nearly fifty years ago, and for more than twenty years was the only settler. He visited civilization the other day, after a long stay in his dreary home. He is a most interesting character, a quaint old-world figure. He is the only Protestant in Sheldrake, where he resides, even his own children being Roman Catholics, but he possesses the confidence of the eighteen families of the place to such an extent that he is their doctor, minister, lawyer and postmaster.—New York Sun.

Davies Too Much for the Boys.

A gray-haired alumnus of Columbia, on from a western state for the graduating exercises, chatted of the days when he was at Columbia. "There was Prof. Davies," said the old collegian. "We fellows used to like him as well as it was possible for a college boy to like a professor of mathematics. One winter, I recollect, the members of my class, myself among the rest, had found considerable amusement and relieved ourselves of class work by burning asafetida, pepper and other unpleasant things in the various class rooms. We tried the trick with Professor Anthon, who taught Greek, and with Prof. Nairne, who occupied the chair of moral philosophy. At last some of the bolder spirits suggested that we transfer our attentions to Prof. Davies. Well, I remember that morning. It was bitter cold, and all of the outlets of the room were closed to keep the warmth within. We were on hand early, and had several fat lumps of asafetida smoking away when the professor came. He walked to the desk and laid his hat and coat on it. Then the odor struck him. He hesitated a moment, and then walked slowly to the door, locked it, and put the key in his pocket. 'Now, gentlemen, we will enjoy this together,' said he, as he returned to his seat. Then he got back at us. The mathematics he threw at us would have filled a set of mathematical books from the primary arithmetic to the calculus. And all the time the asafetida was smoking, for he would not let us remove it. When we got out of that room after two hours we were wiser and more discreet boys, and you can bet we played no more tricks on the author of Davies' Legendre."—New York Times.

Reforms That Were Expensive.

About three-quarters of a railroad's receipts come from the freight department. The passenger department supplies nearly all the rest, the income from mail, express and other privileges being comparatively small. Carrying passengers is a simple matter, or would be, if state legislatures did not now and then take a hand in prescribing added specifications for railroad passenger service. In Ohio a law was passed decreeing that the height between the platform and the lowest steps of passenger coaches should not exceed 12 inches. This cost the railroads nearly $100,000, and the reform led to the abolition of a number of flag stops where the passengers had been quite willing to scramble up off the ballast.—Ainslee's Magazine.

Insects Are Born but to Die.

The life of a perfect insect is usually very brief. Of all the myriads of butterflies and moths, bees and wasps, flies and beetles, which make up one of the most marked features of the summer, the vast majority will die before the season is over. A mere handful will survive into next year, while few, indeed, are those that will live to see a second summer. The duration of the larval stage is much longer. The dragon fly nymph, as it is called, lives eleven months in the water. The perfect insect that emerges from it has only a few weeks, at most, of sunshine and the upper air. There are flies which live only for a single day taking in that time no food, having, indeed no mouths by which to take it

Secretary Bracken of the state board of health recently consulted Assistant Attorney General Donahower relative to his power to issue a general order requiring the vaccination of children throughout the state. In the opinion of the assistant attorney general it lies within the power of the state board to issue such an order when any infectious disease reaches the stage of a general epidemic. Mr. Bracken believes that smallpox has reached so nearly the proportions of an epidemic that such a step will be necessary to prevent its further spread. No order requiring a general vaccination has yet been issued by the secretary, but one is expected to appear shortly.

The state drainage board met recently in the office of Gov. Van Sant to consider methods for applying the money appropriated by the last legislature for the drainage of state lands. The commission appointed George Ralph of Crookston engineer of the commission. When he reports for instructions the petitions for aid will be put in form to enable the commission to know how much land it is necessary to drain. Petitions have been received from Aitkin, Norman, Beltrami, Red Lake, Wadena, Marshall, Roseau and Polk counties asking for a share of the $25,000 available this year. The commission has not yet decided whether it will make a personal inspection of the land to be drained.

A number of editors of country journals appeared before the state tax commission at the capitol recently to urge upon that body to increase the allowance to newspapers for the publication of tax lists. The price now is 12 cents per description. The publishers claim some descriptions are so lengthy that the price is much below justifiable rates. Other states pay much more, and the commission is asked to increase the rate in Minnesota. The editors who appeared before the commission included C. F. McDonald of the St. Cloud Times, W. G. Joubert of the Litchfield News-Ledger, Julius Smoll of the Redwood Gazette, W. G. Hayes of the Sleepy Eye Dispatch and A. N. Dore of the Elk River Star-News.

The state forestry board has instructed the executive committee to appear before the tax commission and request that it recommend in its report that all lands forfeited for delinquent taxes be turned over to the board to be used for forestry purposes. If the board secures these lands and a suitable appropriation from the legislature for the work, it will reforest the land and hold it as a permanent state domain. When the trees have grown to a marketable size the state will then sell them at a proper price and replant the land. The state will then command a growing revenue from its forestry domain.

The forestry board has been trying to get donations of cut-over land for forestry purposes. The board secured the promise of 17,000 acres but, as yet only 1,000 have come into its actual possession. The board instructed the executive committee to procure lists of lands that were turned over to the forestry board under the act passed April 13. This includes all land sold for delinquent taxes prior to 1891 that had not been redeemed or sold and are not agricultural lands.

Assistant State Labor Commissioner Hammond will appear before the statute revision commission in a few days to ask its aid in revising the state labor laws. There are on the statute books, he says, a large number of acts for the protection of labor which, through their erratic construction, are practically void. One of the laws he cites is the ten-hour law passed in 1878 and amended in 1895, making ten hours a full working day. The law says that "any stockholder or overseer, employer, clerk or foreman who shall compel any person or shall permit any child under fourteen years so employed," to labor more than ten hours shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and subject to a fine.

The commissioner has not tried to enforce the law. He has taken the position that no case could be brought into court that would hold, as no employer of labor can compel a man to work for him except under contract. Manufacturers that work their men over the lawful time do not order the men to work; they put it in the form of a request, though the men know that a refusal to work would be likely to mean discharge. Were the wording of the act "permit any person or child under fourteen," Mr. Hammond says the commission could enforce the law.

PLUNGES TO HIS DEATH.

Worried Over Business Matters a St. Paul Printer Suicides.

St. Paul, July 20.—A man, supposed to be Warren J. Woodbury, publisher of the Minnesota White Ribboner, the official organ of the W. C. T. U., jumped to his death from the high bridge at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The leap was made at the time scheduled in a letter written by Woodbury to his brother, Albert G. Woodbury. Despondency over business affairs, his relatives say, was probably the cause. The body has not been recovered.

Heat and Crops.

Morgan, Minn., July 20.—Hot weather still continues and farmers' crops have been considerably damaged. Oats and barley are being harvested. The hay crop is the best for years.

Miller, S. D., July 20.—Showers and cloudy weather here are doing wonders for crops, and big yields are now assured in many instances.

Huthven, Iowa, July 20.—While watching a boat race on Frost Island lake a large crowd of men and boys received an unexpected ducking by the sudden collapse of one of the piers.

Discovered by Accident.

The passengers scarcely gave them a passing glance as they entered the car. He took a seat by the window, just like a long-time married man, while she sat on the aisle. It was part of a shrewd plan. After two stations had been passed, he began to read a newspaper, and let her ask questions twice before he answered. This was a strain, but they were trying to establish a record.

Suddenly he jerked forth his handkerchief to mop his brow, and with it came many grains of rice. Some fell in the aisle, and some fell on the passengers about them. In an instant the couple became the target of half a hundred searching eyes. She blushed prettily; he looked like a sheep.

The careless flirt of the handkerchief did the business, and, as further simulation became useless, they held each other's hands during the remainder of the journey.—Ohio State Journal.

It Was All the Same.

The moment he stepped into the hotel office it could be seen that he had been "out with the boys." His step was uncertain and his hand unsteady. He stepped to the stenographer's desk and started to dictate to the young lady who presided over the machine. His dictation ran:

"My (hic) dear wife (hic): I will not be home to-night (hic) as I am going to Kaukaukano (hic)."

"How do you spell 'Kaukauna?'" asked the stenographer.

"Don't you know how to spell Kaukauna?"

"Dont you know how to spell (hic) Kaukauna?"

"No, I do not, answered the young lady.

"Then (hic) make it Green Day."—Morietta North Star.

New French Bullet.

For some time past secret experiments have been conducted at the Chalons Musketry school in Paris with a new bullet—whether for the newly-invented rifle by the Italian, Lamacchia, or for adaptation to the Lebel, is not known. What is certain is that one of the bullets has been stolen, and that a man belonging to the electrical section of the engineers has been arrested. The bullet is described as being of copper.—Exchange.

Johnson at Work Again.

Racine, Wis., July 22nd.—John Johnson of No. 924 Hamilton street, this city, is a happy man.

For years he has suffered with Kidney and Urinary trouble. He was so broken down that he was forced to quit work. Everything he tried failed, till a friend of his recommended a new remedy—Dodd's Kidney Pills. Mr. Johnson used them, and the result surprised him. He was as well as ever he was, completely cured, and working away every day.

His case is regarded by those who knew how very bad he was, as almost a miracle, and Dodd's Kidney Pills are a much talked of medicine.

Why Augustus Didn't.

Pretty Angelina Swizzleblossoms had fallen from her wheel and sprained her wrist, and Augustus Bloomengarten, her manly escort, was kneeling by her side, endeavoring to bind a handkerchief around the disabled member.

"Rubber neck, rubber neck," yelled a near-by newsboy at a passing wheelman, who turned to look back at the pathetic scene.

"But her neck isn't hurt, don't you know," replied the astonished Augustus. And the newsboy went and pounded his head against a lamp post.—Los Angeles Herald.

ST. MARY'S ACADEMY,

Notre Dame, Indiana.

We call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of St. Mary's Academy, which appears in another column of this paper. We do not need to expatiate upon the scholastic advantages of St. Mary's, for the catalogue of the school shows the scope of work included in its curriculum, which is of the same high standard as that of Vassar and Bryn Mawr, and is carried out faithfully in the class rooms. We simply emphasize the spirit of earnest devotion which makes every teacher of St. Mary's loyally strive to develop each young girl attendant there into the truest, noblest, and most intelligent womanhood. Every advantage of equipment in the class rooms, laboratories and study rooms, every care in the matter of food and clothing, and exceptional excellence of climatic conditions—all these features are found at St. Mary's, in the perfection of development only to be obtained by the consecration of devoted lives to educational Christian work, in a spot favored by the Lord.

Eccentric.

The Witness—I consider the defendant eccentric. I watched him on one occasion, and noticed that he carefully read the same newspaper all through twice.

The Witness—Yes. He said he was color-blind.

The Court—What did he mean by that?

The Witness—He said he couldn't tell a newspaper that was read from one that wasn't.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A JUDGE'S WIFE

CURED OF PELVIC CATARRH.

She Suffered for Years and Felt Her Case Was Hopeless—Cured by Pe-ru-na.

MRS. JUDGE McALLISTER.

Mrs. Judge McAllister writes from 1217 West 33rd st., Minneapolis, Minn., as follows:

"I suffered for years with a pain in the small of my back and right side. It interfered often with my domestic and social duties and I never supposed that I would be cured, as the doctor's medicine did not seem to help me any.

"Fortunately a member of our Order advised me to try Peruna and gave it such high praise that I decided to try it. Although I started in with little faith, I felt so much better in a week that I felt encouraged.

"I took it faithfully for seven weeks and am happy indeed to be able to say that I am entirely cured. Words fail to express my gratitude. Perfect health once more is the best thing I could wish for, and thanks to Peruna enjoy that now."—Minnie E. McAllister.

The great popularity of Peruna as a catarrh remedy has tempted many people to imitate Peruna. A great many so-called catarrh remedies and catarrhal tonics are to be found in many drug stores. These remedies can be procured by the druggist much cheaper than Peruna. Peruna can only be obtained at a uniform price, and no druggist can get it a cent cheaper.

Thus it is that druggists are tempted to substitute the cheap imitations of Peruna for Peruna. It is done every day without a doubt.

We would therefore caution all people against accepting these substitutes. Insist upon having Peruna. There is no other internal remedy for catarrh that will take the place of Peruna. Allow no one to persuade you to the contrary.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O.

Homes for Our Ambassadors.

A report comes from London that the United States government is looking at a London house, with a view to buying it for the residence of its ambassador. The report ought to be true, though, possibly, it is not. The duty of buying houses in foreign capitals for his ambassadors and ministers is one that Uncle Sam has neglected unconscionably long. It is so clearly sensible and expedient that it is surprising that it was not done long ago; but, for that matter, it is surprising that the ambassadors' salaries have not been increased. Possibly the necessity of providing a safe and permanent home for the American legation at Peking will serve as a precedent for acquiring real estate in other capitals; but whenever the houses are bought, adequate provision should be made for the support of our representatives who are to live in them. The labor of finding and hiring a furnished house in a foreign city ought not to be imposed any longer upon our ambassadors. It wastes time and strength and thought, which are needed for other, more important uses.—Harper's Weekly.

Resume of the News.

Fresh Reliable Brief

Washington Notes.

Fred C. Squires, confidential clerk to the secretary of war, has resigned to accept a position with the National Asphalt company. He came to Washington with Gen. Alger and served the secretary in a confidential and responsible capacity during the Spanish war.

The secretary of war has approved the recommendation of Gen. Chaffee looking to the division of troops of the army into brigades wherever they are assembled in sufficient numbers to permit this style of formation. The tendency of the new order is to place the army on a much better basis for operations on a large scale than under the present system.

Assistant Secretary Spalding has taken steps to refund immediately the duties collected on goods imported from Porto Rico from the date of the ratification of the Spanish treaty and the approval of the Foraker act. It is expected that warrants covering the amounts thus far proved will be issued within a day or two. These aggregate about $458,000.

Secretary Root has directed the promulgation of an order creating a board of army officers to investigate the whole subject of changes in the military posts throughout the country. This board will consider proposed changes in headquarters, the establishment of military posts and also the proposed establishment of four permanent posts for military maneuvers.

A United States general committee to promote interest in and to pass on exhibits for the international exhibition of modern decorative art to be held in Turin next year under the presidency of the duke of Aotsa, has been formed at New York, and it extends an invitation to communicate with it to architects, artists and manufacturers who desire to exhibit their work.

Crimes and Criminals.

A mob at Elkins, W. Va., lynched a negro who had mortally wounded the chief of police.

Joe Benish of Walker, Iowa, shot his sweetheart, Miss Fannie Glersha, and then shot himself. He will die. The girl will recover.

Mrs. Selma Breler of Milwaukee, according to the coroner's jury, came to her death from injuries at the hands of her husband, John Breler. He is held on a charge of murder.

John, alias Louis, McDowell, arrested for alleged fraudulent attempt to secure jewelry from several firms, claiming to be Senator Hanna's son, was turned over to the St. Louis authorities on requisition and sent to St. Louis.

Rev. J. B. Dusman, postmaster at Goshen, Ohio, attempted suicide by shooting, and probably fatally wounded himself. He formerly was active as a minister in the United Brethren church. It is supposed he became unbalanced during the recent intensely hot weather.

Chief Wilkie of the secret service has received a number of bank notes printed from the original plates from the State Bank of New Brunswick, N. J., over fifty years ago. A bank went out of existence some time in the '59's, and it was supposed that the steel plates from which its notes were printed were destroyed.

Greek and Austrian railway graders met at Sydney, Neb., in deadly combat. Six Greeks were wounded and one Austrian was killed. After a drunken row the Austrians attacked the Greeks with knives, revolvers and clubs and completely routed them, after severely wounding six of their number. Raba Lubovic, an Austrian, was killed.

Mary Schufhizer, wife of Michael Schufhizer, a farmer living west of Indianapolis, was shot and seriously wounded by Herbert Sickinger, a farm hand, who then turned his revolver on Schufhizer, inflicting a slight wound. An old grudge is supposed to have led to the shooting. Farmers turned out in large numbers, but Sickinger is still at large.

Clarence Davis, aged seventeen years, in Cincinnati shot and seriously wounded his stepfather, William Weideburch. Davis had separated from his young wife, and, after having attempted suicide on three different occasions, yesterday shot at his stepfather four times. He was disarmed and arrested before he could shoot at other members of the family.

Foreign.

A Paris doctor claims the height of a person may be increased by the proper application of electricity.

Emperor Francis Joseph will return a royal visit to the king of Italy after a period of eighteen years.

Queen Victoria's portrait by Benjamin Constant is refused admission to any of the royal collections.

Prof. Koch and others of the tuberculosis congress cite American methods as models for the rest of the world to follow.

The British congress on tuberculosis, for the prevention of consumption, has opened in London with the duke of Cambridge as president of the association.

The University of Berlin receives 1,500,000 marks for benevolent purposes under the will of Dr. Virlind, the Berlin composer, who died in Wiesbaden last month.

Benjamin Baldwin, who claims he was "chief constable for California" for twenty-five years, has been arrested in London on a charge of begging. He was discharged.

The London county council has voted to send a tramway manager and an electrical engineer to the United States to investigate street railways, especially the "shallow" underground lines of the Boston system, which it is proposed to construct there.

A sensation has been caused in Rome by the alleged theft of a painting of the Raphael school from the Church of Santa Sabina. The picture represents the Madonna of the Rosary. It was painted by Sassoferraio. It is rumored that the theft was instigated by an American woman, who had vainly offered to buy the picture at any price.

Accidental Happenings.

Two men lost their lives in the grand rush to get homes in Oklahoma.

A. B. Cummins, candidate for nomination for governor of Iowa, had his shoulder dislocated in an accident.

The Wilcox handle factory at Lebanon, Ind., one of the largest industries of the kind in the state, was totally destroyed by fire, involving a loss of $10,000.

Destruction by forest and prairie fires is reported at Denver from different points, directly attributable to dry condition of grass and timber from the long dry spell. Cattle men are becoming alarmed at the shortage of water in the streams.

Fire in the Union block in Taunton, Mass., caused a loss of $150,000. Among those damaged are Hack's Publishing company, H. Dwyers Hardware company, H. Taskell, jewelers; H. Hepburn, undertaker; A. A. Barker, druggist, and Charles Barnard, tailor.

While seven boys, ranging in age from fifteen to eighteen, were sitting on the track in the shadow of a box car at Indianapolis a switch engine with a cut of cars struck the car, which dashed into the group. Two of the boys were killed and three others injured.

Frank Hanoh of Escanaba, Mr. Mosslock of Milwaukee and Jim Woodin, the latter aged thirteen, were drowned in Doan lake at Floodwood, eight miles south of Republic, Mich. Details are meager, but it appears they were fishing on a raft. The bodies were recovered.

People Talked About.

The French zoologist, Henry LaCaze Luthiers, is dead. He was born in 1821.

Dr. Alston Ellis of Hamilton, Ohio, has been elected president of the Ohio university.

Dr. Edward Morley, brother of the Rt. Hon John Morley, the well known Liberal member of the house of commons, is dead.

Former Congressman Simon J. Schermerhorn died at his home in Rotterdam, N. Y., from apoplexy. He was seventy-three years old.

J. D. Eckman, manager of the joint rate inspection bureau in Indianapolis, is dead. He was known among railroad men all over the country.

Henry King Elkins, a pioneer lumber merchant of Chicago and one of the first directors of the board of trade, is dead, after an illness of nearly a year.

John Downer, the builder of many of New York's famous structures and master builder for the last twenty-five years for the Astor estate, died suddenly of heart disease in New York.

Robert Folger Westcott, father-in-law of ex-Capt. O. M. Carter, U. S. A., and head of the Westcott Express company, died suddenly at Richfield Springs, N. Y.

Sybil Sanderson, the singer, has made a contract with Maurice Grau for a tour of the United States. She will sail from London for New York on Sept. 20, and will make her first appearance in San Francisco.

The Hungarian violinist, Kubelik, has been engaged by Daniel Frohman for an American tour, commencing in New York in December next. Mr. Frohman has guaranteed that Kubelik's share of the proceeds of the tour shall not be less than $100,000.

Frederick S. Williams, city editor and founder of the Sunday Times and a well known Indiana politician, died at Lafayette, Ind., aged fifty-three. He served as chief clerk in the office of the third auditor of the United States treasury during President Cleveland's administration.

The transport Thomas sailed from San Francisco for Manila, via Honolulu, with the 500 teachers who are going to accept positions in the schools in the Philippines.

H. Phelps Whitmarsh, civil governor of Benguet province, Luzon, has been exonerated of the charges against him by the civil commission. On account of the impossibility of continuing together, the resignation of Sheerer, secretary to Gov. Whitmarsh, has been accepted.

The Wisconsin Traction, Light, Heat and Power company has filed, at Appleton, Wis., a $3,000,000 first mortgage on all its properties, in favor of the Milwaukee Trust company. The mortgage is for the "acquisition of various properties at Appleton and to make improvements and extensions."

An official mandate has been handed down by the Kentucky court of appeals ordering a new trial for Former Secretary of State Caleb Powers, convicted of complicity in the shooting of Gov. William Goebel. It is probable the trial will come up at the October term.

CROPS ALL RIGHT

ALL DOUBTS AS TO EXISTING CONDITIONS OF GRAIN CROPS SET AT REST.

CORN FAILURE OFFSET BY WHEAT

Telegraphic Reports From Three Hundred Points in the Corn and Wheat-Producing States of the Great West Dispel Rumors of Disasters—Wheat Grades Higher Than Expected.

Chicago, July 29.—All doubts as to the existing condition of the great Western grain crops on which the general prosperity of the entire country during the coming year will largely depend are set at rest by the following telegraphic reports from the largest producing states.

Each correspondent of 300 points in the corn and wheat belts was instructed to ignore all reports or rumors of disasters in other districts, but to send an accurate estimate of the percentage of a full crop of corn and wheat likely to be harvested in his own immediate district.

As to corn, the most important single crop in the country, the results are summarized below. Table showing indicated average percentage of corn yield in 300 districts of the eight principal corn-producing states, based on accurate reports of special correspondents:

States—	Average percentage of full crops (indicated)	Last year's crops (bushels)	This year's crop (indicated)
Illinois	59	261,170,223	152,033,113
Iowa	62	305,859,248	189,632,167
Kansas	30	161,570,430	48,161,189
Minnesota	65	31,771,709	20,600,369
Missouri	30	180,710,401	54,213,121
Nebraska	48	210,430,064	101,006,430
North Dakota	42	381,184,039	160,107,000
South Dakota	71	32,418,819	23,017,261

Corn crop last year, 2,105,102,516 bushels.

Value of last year's corn crop, $751,220,034.

Average price of corn per bushel of the farm last year, 35 cents.

Indicated average yield, based on reports from eight principal producing states, 49 per cent of maximum crop.

Crop will not much exceed 1,200,000,000 bushels.

This indicates a corn crop for the coming year—although conditions may be slightly improved if hard rains come in the next fortnight—of a little more than 1,200,000,000 bushels. Last year's crop was a bumper—2,105,102,576 bushels, worth to the farmer an average of 35.7 cents a bushel, or $751,220,034—a stupendous sum to divide among American farmers.

A loss of 900,000,000 bushels—burned up by this year's unprecedented hot wave and drouth—would mean a loss of over $350,000,000 to the farmers at last year's prices. But corn was selling at 13 cents a bushel higher yesterday than on the same day last year, so that a crop of 1,200,000,000 bushels would be worth at this year's prices $156,000,000 more than last. The actual loss to the farmers at the worst will be $200,000,000.

The reports show that this loss will be partly offset by a wheat crop even larger and richer than any one has estimated. It will far exceed last year's crop of 552,229,505 bushels, worth $323,515,177, an average of 62 cents a bushel. All the reports indicate that this year's wheat, wherever threshed, grades higher than expected. As Western farmers have carried over a vast quantity of corn from last year's crop, and this year's wheat crop will partly compensate them both in quantity and value for the shortage in corn, the dispatches clearly indicate that 1901 will not be known as a year of crop failures, although of corn this will be the poorest crop in eleven years.

The drouth is broken. From nearly every part of the sun-scorched territory reports came last night of heavy rains and cooler weather.

NEW BATTLESHIP MAINE

Successfully Launched Before a Large Crowd.

Philadelphia, July 29.—The battleship Maine, designed to be bigger, stronger and faster than her namesake whose shapeless mass still lies in the harbor of Havana, was successfully launched from the yards of the William Cramp Shipbuilding company Saturday. One of the largest crowds that has ever seen a warship leave the ways at Cramps' yards was on hand and patriotism ran wild as the ship left her cradle.

REJECTED LOVER'S DEED.

Throws Carbolic Acid in the Face of the Lady.

Muncie, Ind., July 29.—Peter Tillbury, an ironworker, called at the home of Kate Phinney last night and threw carbolic acid into the face of Mrs. Mary Torrey, a guest, destroying her eyes and burning her neck and arms frightfully. The man had pleaded with the woman to marry him for years. She has become a raving maniac.

REFORM IN CHINA.

New Foreign Office Recognized in an Imperial Edict.

Shanghai, July 29. — An imperial edict just issued recognizes the new Chinese foreign office, which replaces the old tsung li yamun. Prince Ching is appointed minister in charge. The new office is made the leading one of the seven boards which now constitute the federal government.

Mad Mullah Routed.

Aden, Arabia, July 29.—In a fight between the Mad Mullah and the British July 17 the former was routed, losing 70 killed. The British casualties were Lieut. Fredericks and 12 men killed and Lieut. Dickson and 20 men wounded.

Firebugs in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, July 29.—Fire of incendiary origin destroyed the mills of Henry Schwade in the northeastern section of the city. The loss is estimated at $150,000; fully covered by insurance.

GREAT DROUTH BROKEN.

General Visitation of Showers in the Corn Belt.

Washington, July 29.— Yesterday's weather bureau advices from the great corn belt were the most encouraging that have come to hand for the past forty days, showing, in the opinion of the forecasters, that the great drouth has been broken by a general visitation of showers in many portions of that section, and with a prospect of their continuation to-day. Coincident with the fall of rain have come reduced temperatures. With few exceptions the temperatures reported were not abnormally high, no maximums of 100 degrees being reported. West of the Mississippi river they were generally in the neighborhood of 90 degrees. The forecasters, while not making any specific predictions as to the effect of the rain on the crops, express the opinion of those crops which have not been irreparably ruined will be benefitted by the breaking of the drouth. The late crops naturally will be helped the most. The reports show that during the past twenty-four hours showers were quite general in the corn belt and were heavy over much of the state of Iowa and over the part of the corn belt not visited by rains, including Western Nebraska, Southern Missouri and Oklahoma. To-day there will be showers throughout the corn belt region except in its extreme western portion and Southern Indiana and Southern Ohio, and they will continue generally on Tuesday in the Ohio and Middle Mississippi valleys. There have also been showers and thunderstorms in the northern tier of states from New England to the Dakotas, in Northern New Mexico, North Arizona and Southern Utah and on the west gulf coast.

INDIANS TAKE A HAND.

Demand Homesteads Under an Old Law.

Oklahoma City, Okla., July 29.—Keo Tuck, a Sac Indian, has given notice at the land office at El Reno of his intention to file upon land adjoining the townsite of Lawton, which has been the principal town in the Kiowa and Comanche reservation. This is probably the most valuable tract of the entire reservation to be opened. The application is made under a section of United States land laws passed in 1887, which gives every homeless Indian the right to go to any part of the public domain and to make entry for any tract of land that is not in possession of a homesteader. The section has never been repealed, and the right of the Indians who have no allotments or who were omitted from the tribal rolls, is one that they can exercise at any time, so it is stated. With Keo Tuck were sixty members of the Sac and Fox tribe who propose to enter filings, and attorneys throughout the country are said to be searching for other Indians who have not secured possession of homestead tracts. It is believed there are 500 in the two tribes who can secure choice claims in advance of ones who have registered by simply making their filings. The plan is to select lands they desire and then go into court and ask for a restraining order to prevent the registers and receivers from accepting filings on the tracts selected. This will, if successful, give the Indians time to perfect their title to the best quarter-sections of land in the new country.

BATTLE WITH KIDNAPPERS.

Boy Is Rescued by His Father After a Running Fight.

Williamsport, Pa., July 29. — A bold attempt at kidnapping was made last night at the village of Mantoursville, four miles south of here. James, the thirteen-year-old son of William Ebner, hotelkeeper, was the victim. The boy had gone to a woodshed for kindling, and on his return was seized by four men, who had been loafing about his father's hotel all evening. One of them stuffed a wad of cotton into the lad's mouth while running toward a strip of woods that led to the river. James succeeded in getting the gag out of his mouth before they had gone very far and shouted for help. Ebner heard the boy, and, grabbing a rifle from back of the bar, he started in pursuit. Then followed a running fight in the dark. Finally the father heard the boy shout that he was free, and a moment later father and son were reunited. The kidnappers escaped by swimming the river.

Capsized in a Squall.

Detroit, Mich., July 29.—The News-Tribune, a naptha launch used to deliver newspapers to the residents of the Lake St. Clair flats, capsized about two miles north of the lightship last night during a sudden squall. Miss Maud Randall of this city, one of the four passengers, was drowned. The captain and the other passengers were rescued.

McKinley Grants a Pardon.

Washington, July 29.—The president has granted a pardon to John F. Johnson, former president of the State National Bank of Logansport, Ind., who was convicted of misappropriating funds of the bank and other violations of the national banking act. He was sentenced to ten years in the penitentiary.

Treaty of Reciprocity.

Kingston, Jam., July 29.—In view of the fact that free trade has been established between Porto Rico and the United States the Jamaican government is being urged to further and negotiate a treaty of reciprocity with the United States.

Admiral Irwin Dead.

Washington, July 29.—Rear Admiral John Irwin, retired, died at his residence last night after an illness of several months, due to a complication of diseases. He was sixty-nine years of age. He leaves a wife, son and daughter.

Struck by a Train.

Akron, Ohio, July 29. — A carriage containing W. G. Matson, his wife, son and daughter, was struck by an Erie train at Old Forge last night. The boy and horses were killed. The girl and her mother were dangerously hurt.

Drowned While Bathing.

South Haven, Mich., July 29.—Walter Bryce Hutton of Chicago, auditor of the Illinois Steel company, belonging to the United States Steel trust, was drowned at Sleepy Hollow while bathing.

PATCH UP STRIKE

FIGHT BETWEEN STEEL WORKERS AND EMPLOYERS MAY BE SETTLED.

HOLD CONFERENCE WITH MORGAN

Renewal of Negotiations Between Conflicting Interests May Result in a Settlement of the Strike This Week—If Negotiations Fail the Fight May Become More Bitter Than Ever.

Pittsburg, July 29.—The strike of the steel and tinworkers of the Amalgamated association against the United States Steel corporation will probably be settled this week. The conference held in New York Saturday between the officials of the United States steel corporation and President T. J. Shaffer and Secretary John Williams of the workers' organization has resulted in paving the way for a renewal of negotiations between the conflicting interests.

It is said that a basis for such a conference has been arrived at. This basis is still locked up in the minds of the officials of the two organizations and will not be divulged until later in the week. If the basis shall prove satisfactory to the general executive committee of the Amalgamated association the conference between the association and the manufacturers will proceed at once. If, on the other hand, the basis is not what the Amalgamated association will permit to be considered as negotiable grounds, the strike will be continued with the same vigor as at present, and with indefinite time for its ending. President Shaffer and Secretary Williams of the Amalgamated association returned from New York yesterday. They spent many hours in conference with the leading officials of the steel trust, had evaded all New York reporters and came home with hopes for of the present contest. In Pittsburg little was known of the conference, but the greatest interest in the outcome was shown among the manufacturers. Secretary Williams was found at his home last evening. He promptly admitted that he had been with President Shaffer in New York and had seen J. P. Morgan, but as to what had taken place there he said with firmness that he was pledged to secrecy and could not talk. Additional information regarding the New York meeting of the industrial leaders was afterward gathered from reliable sources. It was stated that the two Amalgamated officials left Pittsburg Friday night, and reaching New York they went direct to the private office of Mr. Morgan. The meeting between the Pittsburg men and Mr. Morgan lasted five hours. During the conference, President C. M. Schwab and Judge E. H. Gray were present most of the time. Another conferee was Mr. Dawkins, one of Mr. Morgan's partners. The Amalgamated officials talked almost entirely with Mr. Morgan and President Schwab. They went over the grounds on which the strike began and discussed a settlement basis. It is believed that before the end of the week the mills will all be ready to run again, providing repairs shall be completed that have been undertaken since the strike began. Should the whole project fail of coming to an amicable end, however, the fight promises to be more bitter than ever.

SHOT INTO THE CROWD.

One Man Fatally Wounded and Another Seriously.

Cleveland, Ohio, July 29.—In a row at Forest Park Otto Seefried, manager of the park, is claimed to have shot into the crowd that was raising a disturbance and injured Thomas Murtagh, probably fatally, a bullet going through his abdomen. Edward Yarnham was shot in the knee, but is not seriously injured. A squad of policemen from the Broadway station found Seefried inside the engine house with a revolver in his hand. A number of persons surrounded the engine house and were in an angry mood over the shooting. The policemen dispersed them and sent Murtagh to St. Alexis hospital, where he lies in a dying condition.

MAKES DASH FOR LIBERTY.

Negro Murderer Is Killed While Attempting to Escape.

Monticello, Fla., July 29. — Simon Williams, colored, condemned to death for the murder of Deputy Sheriff Hawkins and sentenced to hang Aug. 8, made a dash for liberty yesterday afternoon. After a desperate fight in which Deputy Sheriff Kilpatrick was badly wounded by Williams with his own pistol, the negro fled but was shot to death. Officer Kilpatrick's wound is in the groin. His condition is critical.

DEAD OR ALIVE.

Cuban Government Offers Reward for Capture of Bandit.

Havana, July 29. — The government has offered a reward of $1,000 for the capture, dead or alive, of Linn Lima, a bandit who has been operating in the Matanzas and Havana provinces. There has been for the last three months a standing reward of $500 for Lima's head.

Will Employ Thousands.

Pittsburg, July 29. — The summer shutdown of the pressed glassware factories of the American Flint Glass Manufactory association ended Saturday and a general resumption will take place to-day. The resumption will give employment to 5,000 skilled and 15,000 unskilled workmen.

Heavy Rains in Texas.

Dallas, Tex., July 29.—The drouth has been broken by heavy rains in approximately 20 per cent of the cotton-growing districts. The rains have fallen regularly for the last four days over the extreme northern and southern rims of the cotton belt.

Railroad Bridge Destroyed.

Carbondale, Ill., July 29.—Fire yesterday destroyed a bridge on the Galena division of the Illinois Central railroad, completely tieing up all traffic pending a rebuilding of the structure.

LEAVES NORTH DAKOTA.

Ex-Gov. Fancher Will Locate Permanently in California.

Fargo, N. D., July 29. — Despite the reports sent out from Jamestown that ex-Gov. Fancher had recovered his health and would again be a factor in North Dakota politics, he is distinctly out of it. The latest advices are that the California climate is so nearly what he needs that he has decided to go into business in Sacramento and follow the illustrious example of so many of his predecessors in getting out of the state. Seven men have occupied the gubernatorial chair in this state. One ex-governor is a resident and the present executive is still here. John Miller, the first executive, is in the grain business at Duluth. Andrew H. Burke is a special land agent out West. Eli C. D. Shortridge was in the wheat business at Duluth. Roger Allin farms near Grafton, Frank Briggs is dead. Fred Fancher will become a Californian and Frank White is holding down the executive job.

FIREMAN LOSES HIS HEAD.

He Leaps From His Engine and Sustains Serious Injuries.

Larimore, N. D., July 29.—Yesterday morning as the Great Northern flyer was approaching Petersburg, a small station twenty miles west of here, a freight was standing on the siding with the tail lights burning. Fireman William Prinderville, thinking that the freight was on the main line and expecting a collision, jumped from the engine. He struck on his back and sustained severe injuries. He was brought to this city. He has been an employe of the Great Northern for a number of years.

ELECTRICAL STORM.

Considerable Damage Is Done by Lightning.

New Richmond, Wis., July 29.—A severe electrical storm passed over this section. Lightning struck Banker J. W. McCoy's residence, setting it on fire, but it was promptly extinguished. The residence of James J. Collins was struck and considerably damaged. A barn on the Beebe farm south of the town was struck and burned to the ground with contents. Standing grain was flattened to the ground by heavy wind, accompanied by rain.

Wheat in Good Shape.

Fergus Falls, Minn., July 29.—Unless more rain falls harvest will begin in earnest all over Otter Tail county immediately. A little grain was cut last week, but the heavy rains put a stop to the work. The total rainfall since the heated term broke has been 2.49 inches here, and the showers were accompanied by considerable wind which has lodged the grain in many places, oats in particular being down to such and extent that many fields will have to be cut with scythe and used as fodder. Wheat is in better shape and farmers as a rule are looking for a fine yield.

Shoots His Sister.

Glenwood, Wis., July 29.—Ray Flemming, the ten-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Flemming of this city, in company with his five-year-old sister, entered the office of Dr. P. A. Beeba during the latter's absence, and observing a target pistol hanging on the wall above his head, mounted a chair, took the pistol, and, pointing it at his sister, pulled the trigger, shooting her through the head, cheek and shoulder. The victim is seriously injured but may recover. The boy did not know that the pistol was loaded.

School Land for Sale.

Fargo, N. D., July 29.—The board of appraisement on school lands has completed its work and finds there are forty-two pieces in this county that will be ready for sale Oct. 1. All are full quarter-sections except one. None of the land can be sold under $10 and the valuation is placed from that figure up to $30. Over the state there is much valuable school land to be sold this fall, and in some of the newer counties it will go rather cheaply.

Bombarded by Lightning.

Fergus Falls, Minn., July 29. — The residence of John Rosengren was struck by lightning, four or five bolts literally shooting through the walls, tearing their way like cannon balls. One of the bolts struck the bed on which Mr. Rosengren's two little boys were sleeping and cut a hole fully a foot in diameter through the mattress, but neither of the boys were hurt. Mr. Rosengren was stunned by the shock and the house is almost a wreck.

Brakeman Killed.

Two Harbors, Minn., July 29.—E. T. Vanhook, a brakeman on the Duluth & Iron Range road, was killed. His train was backing up and he was on the rear end of the caboose when the train broke in two, setting the air brakes and throwing Vanhook onto his head. The caboose passed over his fact, horribly mutilating it. He was about twenty-five years old and has been married only six months. His relatives live at Rochester, Minn.

Escape Was Easy.

Williston, N. D., July 29.—John Skiffington and Frank Kalley, two men held here on a charge of burglary, broke jail and made good their escape. They pried the doors open. The bricks around the locks were picked out with a chair round.

Barn and Contents Burned.

Pine Island, Minn., July 29.—A large barn owned by S. C. Jewell was struck by lightning and burned. There was seventy tons of hay and ten calves in the barn. The loss is about $2,500; partly covered by insurance.

Pierced by Lightning.

Mabel, Minn., July 29. — Lightning struck the Oarnes church, a large Lutheran edifice three miles northwest of town, burning it to the ground.

Bullet Through His Heart.

Parker, S. D., July 29.—Elmer Loomis committed suicide at his boarding house by shooting himself through the heart with a revolver. It is thought the extreme heat affected his mind. He was an old resident.

Church Burned.

Canton, Minn., July 29. — During a storm the barn of Ed Storks was burned, with 150 tons of hay and a lot of oats. The house of Perry patterson was struck. The Newburg church was struck and burned.

DAMAGE BY STORM

NORTH DAKOTA GETS A TOUCH OF WEATHER THAT WAS NOT WANTED.

TORNADO STRIKES ONE TOWN

Wheat Is Badly Tangled Up by the Wind and Harvesting May Be Delayed Several Days—Some Damage to the Crops—Church, Store and Other Buildings Blown Down—Corn Badly Lodged.

Fargo, N. D., July 29.—A heavy rain and wind storm prevailed yesterday afternoon over a good part of the state. The greatest damage is reported at Tappen, 125 miles west of Fargo, where it amounted to a tornado. A church, a store, some dwellings and some barns were blown down and the Northern Pacific depot was unroofed. The crop in the path of the storm, which was several miles wide, was totally destroyed.

In the Red River valley rain fell from the national boundary line all the way down the state line. In the northern part there was not much wind, but around Fargo and over in Minnesota there was quite a heavy straight wind which has lodged the grain some, but just how seriously it is impossible to determine at this time. The damage was made worse by the fact that the wind changed its direction during the storm and tangled the grain. The wind attained a velocity of nearly forty miles and blew for an hour. The rainfall was 1.60 inches and will make it impossible for binders to be put in the fields for several days. Many farmers had planned to begin harvest to-day or to-morrow. The grain is so heavy and so nearly matured that it is a matter of speculation whether it will straighten up, and harvesters may be able to operate only in one direction. Estimates of the damage from different sections are conflicting. A warm day or two may straighten much of the lodged wheat. Corn was badly lodged.

PLAGUE VISIT PREDICTED.

Scourge Will Sweep the American Continent.

Milwaukee, July 29. — Dr. Walter Kempster, who was sent abroad by the Harrison administration to study the origin and spread of plagues and scourges, and Dr. Y. O. B. Wingate, secretary of the state board of health here, both sustain Dr. John N. Hertz, secretary of the Indiana state board of health, in his startling contention that the bubonic plague will sweep the American continent. Dr. Hurtz claims that the plague will cross the continent, and two of Milwaukee's eminent physicians who are most qualified to speak on the subject, agree with him. Dr. Kemster said yesterday:

"Yes, I believe Dr. Hurtz is right. I feel that we will have to tackle the plague here. It is noticeable that the bubonic plague, like the cholera, when it once starts on its rounds, usually belts the globe. Already the scourge is in California and New York, and I am convinced that it will eventually reach Chicago where conditions are ripe for its reception, and then Milwaukee."

CHICAGO THIEVES NERVY.

They Hold Up a Paymaster in Broad Daylight.

Chicago, July 29. — Three masked men entered the cold storage warehouse of A. Booth & Co at noon Saturday, held up the paymaster and his assistant and left with $600 of the firm's money. It was one of the most daring robberies that the police have had to deal with for several years. At the time the men entered the building there were more than 100 workingmen on the premises, and for this reason it is held by the detectives that the men who were concerned in the hold-up were familiar with the affairs of the place.

BURNED BY ACID.

Serious Result of a Wrestling Bout Between Boys.

La Crosse, Wis., July 29. — Freddie Green, aged fourteen, son of Walter Green of Onalaska, while carrying a bottle of carbolic acid in his coat pocket, wrestling with a friend. Green was thrown to the ground, the bottle broke and the acid ran over the boy's body, burning him frightfully. The boy may not recover.

BOTH INJURED.

Fight Between a Tolltaker and a Pedestrian.

La Crosse, Wis., July 29.—In a fight at the Mississippi river wagon bridge Frank Bakaloros, the tollkeeper, was fatally stabbed in the back and William Warneck was shot through the wrist. Warneck attempted to cross without paying toll. Both are under arrest.

Lucky Find of Pearls.

La Crosse, Wis., July 29.—While fishing in the Mississippi river a few miles below the city Otto Goetze of this city found a clamshell which he opened, and to his surprise found that it contained twenty-five pearls. One was taken to a jeweler and was said to be valued at $100, while the rest were smaller and less valuable.

Peculiar Accident.

Calumet, Mich., July 29.—A peculiar accident occurred to Stephen Kazmiczezah, a drill boy employed in the mines. The young fellow was sitting near his home when a box containing 100 caps used in blasting under ground exploded, fracturing his hip, left side and shoulder. He is now at the hospital in a precarious condition.

Work on New Elevator.

Hoffman, Minn., July 29.—Work has commenced on the new elevator which will be independent. This will make two independent elevators here. Crops are damaged from 10 to 15 per cent, according to soil. Flax is poor.

Rear-End Collision.

Brainerd, Minn., July 29.—There was a rear-end collision on the Minnesota & International between two log trains headed south. The rear engine jumped the track and ditched several cars. No one was hurt.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 31, 1901.

It seems too bad that any business man who had located in our midst should be obliged to leave for any other place because the public, or a portion of it at least, would prefer to patronize some peddler. Some of our business men do this thing who would be the first to howl if the people were to buy from peddlers handling goods in their line. The peddler should not be the legitimate competitor of the man owning a business establishment. He should be suppressed by a high license—if it can be done. If not, he should be suppressed by lack of patronage. It is not an evidence of a progressive community to allow a condition of things which will prevent new business enterprises from locating in it. Patronize your home merchant all time. You will find that it pays in the long run. The kind of trading that makes store buildings stand idle is not the progressive kind, and if it is continued we may expect to see more of them empty soon.

oooooo

The future only can show whether the next Congress will take action to cripple the great trusts or monopolies, but the evidence against them is now growing so strong that the Republicans will not dare to fail to do something. The steel trust is now offering to deliver Bessemer steel billets in 1,000 and 2,000 ton lots to English buyers at $25 per ton, the price charged to domestic consumers at its mills. This is $3 a ton less than the prevailing price for British made billets, although the steel trust must pay rail transportation at both ends, ocean freight and insurance, which amount to about half the price received from the British buyer on delivery. The trouble with the steel trust is that its capital stock amounts to $1,000,000,000 in addition to $304,000,000 of 5 per cent bonds, making a total of $1,104,000,000. The total valuation of all the stocks and bonds of the constituent companies which were merged in Mr. Morgan's consolidation was only $713,077,200, about half the amount on which the trust now pays dividends. This explains why the foreign buyer fares so much better than the home buyer. Mr. Morgan and Mr. Schwab have reversed the process of figuring the cost of manufactured articles. They figure backward from the amount they need to pay dividends instead of forward from the items of cost that enter into actual production.

Filthiest Place in the World.

Port-au-Prince, the capital, is—by consent of all who have had opportunity of comparing it with other cities—the filthiest place in the world. The town was laid out by the French, and the streets are wide. It is only their great width that makes them passable, for the roadway before his dwelling is every householder's rubbish shoot, and slab sided pigs and starveling dogs perform all the sanitary offices for the town of Port-au-Prince save in the rainy season, when a heavier storm than usual comes to flush the open drains. In consequence the populace live in an atmosphere of combined cesspool and ash pit, which by all the laws of hygiene should produce chronic plague.

The free and independent negro leads the life that most nearly approaches his ideal. They have a proverb in the country that "only white men, Black women and asses work," and there is truth in it. The black man lies around all day sleeping in the sun. His utmost effort is to play dice or watch a cockfight, but sleep is his favorite occupation, and he can do that better than anything else. In the country districts the old plantations have long since slipped back into the luxuriant overgrowth of the forest. In town any trading done is by the women and by foreigners. Undisturbed by the white man, to whom he is insolent, the town bred negro is pacific enough. The only exertion demanded of him is to avoid the attentions of the police.—Chambers' Journal.

STORIES OF LINCOLN.

THE TINY SOLDIER WHO ASSISTED AT THE PUBLIC LEVEE.

Old Abe's Narrative About How the Flat Bottomed Boat Went Aground and How She Got Safely Back Into the Ohio River.

On one occasion a little drummer boy, securing leave of absence, accompanied a sergeant to a public levee that "Old Abe" was holding at the White House. They went early, and when President Lincoln appeared and the handshaking began they were not long in reaching him.

The tall man, almost a giant in physical proportions, looked down with an amused smile at the tiny drummer boy, who appeared hardly 10 years of age. Grasping the little fellow's right hand, the president suddenly reached out his left, swung the boy off his feet and set him gently down on a small table beside him.

"Aha, my little soldier," he said, laughing, "you shall help 'Uncle Abe' review this line today, and if your superior officer objects, why, I'll prolong your leave of absence!"

Lincoln asked the boy his age, place of residence, regiment and where he was on duty. Then, as some of the more important officers of the army or navy, members of congress or of the executive departments chanced to pass in the line, the president would gravely introduce his young assistant, with whom they were required to shake hands as well as with himself.

When the reception was over, President Lincoln took the boy into his private apartments and introduced him to Mrs. Lincoln. After entertaining him at luncheon he dismissed him with a brief note to the commanding officer of the hospital where he was then stationed telling why the boy's leave of absence had been extended.

Lincoln's geniality and willingness at all times to hear or to tell a good story were conspicuous traits, not always agreeable to some of his able but worried and irritable advisers.

On one occasion a sergeant had a squad of men at work unloading supplies from an Ohio river steamboat that in some mysterious manner had made its way from the interior to the coast waters of Virginia. It was a flat bottomed boat, drawing not more than three feet of water when loaded and hardly dampening its plank bottom when light. It was propelled by a horizontal stern wheel, driven by a small upright engine. Boats of that type were common on the Ohio, which runs almost dry at some seasons. They were known as "Pittsburgers" and were fabled to navigate freely in a heavy dew.

The sergeant's men were hard at work carrying rations ashore from this craft when suddenly they stopped and sent up a lusty cheer. A little tuglike steamer had pulled up alongside, and from it stepped a tall, awkward man dressed in rusty black and wearing a napless silk hat. The sergeant recognized the president and saluted.

"Your boat is well named, sergeant," said the latter gravely.

The soldier was puzzled. He did not know that the steamer had a name and said so.

The president took him by the arm and led him back on the tug. There the stern of the "Pittsburger" loomed above them, and on its dirty white surface in tarnished gilt letters a yard long appeared the single word, Mist.

"Yes," said Lincoln, "it's very well named indeed, sergeant. All those boats need is a mist, and they'll run anywhere.

"Years ago," he continued, "I was attending court in Cairo, Ills., when the Ohio was so low that all the water there was between its banks was what had spilled over from the Mississippi. Those 'Pittsburgers' were passing and repassing all the time. One night there came up a little shower that raised the level maybe a half inch. One of 'em got out of the channel, slid ashore and grounded in the mud right beside the courthouse.

"It was there the next morning, and I remarked to a brother attorney that that boat was aground to stay. He was from 'Egypt' and knew more about 'Pittsburgers' than I did. He merely smiled and said, 'You wait and see.'

"There came on another shower that afternoon. I heard an engine puffing and looked out of the courthouse window. Maybe you'll think I'm exaggerating, but there was that boat steaming down the road toward the river, and in two minutes she was back in the Ohio, just as the shower was over.

"I expressed my surprise to the judge, but he said that was nothing. If the shower hadn't come up in time, the captain would simply have hired a boy with a sprinkling pot to go ahead. They're great boats, sergeant. Likely as not this one got here by coming across country."

President Lincoln repeated this extravagant story without the ghost of a smile. During its recital Secretary Stanton and Generals Halleck and Sherman—the last named having run up the day before from his march through the Carolinas—who were with the party, had approached the president. General Sherman smiled broadly, but Stanton looked annoyed. The president caught his glance and, with a wink at the others, said, "But maybe you've heard this before, Stanton."

"Very likely I have," the secretary grimly responded, "but I would suggest, Mr. President, that General Grout is awaiting us."

The gleam of amusement left the kindly man's eyes. He gravely turned and shook hands with the sergeant and then strode after his companions as they made their way ashore.—Roe L. Hendrick in Youth's Companion.

Four Bears at a Shot.

A number of years ago Mr. Withee was presented with two fine hounds, and, wishing to try their training and their grit, he took them out to do a little bear hunting.

The first morning Withee let the dogs out for a run while he was getting the breakfast, expecting them to be back in a short time. When breakfast was over, the dogs had not returned, so, taking his gun, Mr. Withee started out in the direction they had taken. After travelling about a mile the faint barking of dogs could be heard, and it was then plain why the dogs had not returned. They had scented game and were in pursuit. The sound of the barking led him far up the side of a mountain, and soon he came in sight of the dogs standing around the upturned roots of a tree.

Mr. Withee crept up cautiously until within about 15 feet of a cave that was near by, and then a black, shaggy head could be seen just above the roots. Taking good aim, he fired his .44 caliber and awaited results. After several minutes he went up to the cave, and what he saw there gave him a shock from which he has never recovered. Two bears lay dead, and two more were so stunned that a few quick passes with a knife settled them.

For the four bears Mr. Withee received $20 bounty, $27.50 for their hides and $42 for the bear oil, making $89.50 for one day's hunt.—Maine Woods.

All For Love.

It was a runaway match. The young couple had nothing to live on but love, and they grew thin on it, for the butcher, baker, etc., heartlessly refused to barter any of the necessaries of life for a bit of love, and the landlady wouldn't accept even a large slice of it for rent.

At last they were reduced to such extremities that starvation stared them in the face. When starvation does this, it, so to say, "puts you out of countenance."

"Oh, George," wailed the young wife, "what shall we do? I am so hungry!"

"Alas, I know not, darling!" he sighed fondly but sadly, toying with her luxuriant tresses.

"But I know, George!" she suddenly exclaimed after a pause. "Sell my hair!"

"What!" he almost shouted, with a horror stricken face. "Sacrifice your lovely golden locks! Ruthlessly cut off the greatest ornament a woman can possess? Never! Never! I will starve first!"

"But, George," she assured him, "it does not require cutting off. See!"

And she detached the glistening 3 guinea switch from her head and laid it in his hand.

That night the young couple supped luxuriously, but still he was not happy.—Pearson's Weekly.

Lighting Up the Coliseum.

The Romans have the hideous habit of periodically lighting the Coliseum during the tourist season with Bengal lights and, what is more amazing still, usually succeed in making a financial success of it, although no one was ever known to go twice.

There is the additional abomination in these days of a big brass band and a chorus of 100 voices in an invocation to the Flavian amphitheater. The effect is tremendous, but somewhat stunning to those who are accustomed to their Coliseum empty and flooded with peaceful moonlight, where pictures from the past rise with the clearness of second sight, and no sound is heard but one's own breathing or the song of the nightingale. Contrast with such a scene the red, blue and yellow Bengal lights, the smoke, the confusion, the hundred shrieking throats and the clang of the brazen instruments! Imagination shrinks and curses the Roman of today with whom such a thing is possible. But is it his fault? As I said before, it is a great financial success, and the Italians certainly do not patronize it. Query, Who does?—Rome Letter in Pall Mall Gazette.

How They Broke Up.

An amusing story is related in "Canadian Savage Folk" of the manner in which an adjournment was taken by a mass meeting. A missionary who had started a school among the Indians met with opposition, and the meeting had been called in support of the rival scheme.

There were several speakers who denounced the school in existence. We replied vigorously, showing the efficiency of the school and denouncing in turn the methods adopted by the opposition. An Indian chief produced some specimens of work done at the school, and several speakers supported the work as it was being done. The climax was reached when a gentleman rose and said:

"I move the whole thing bust!"

The chairman put the motion.

"It is moved and seconded that the whole thing bust!"

The audience sprang to their feet and, waving hats, yelled "Busted!" and made for the door. Thus ended the first and last opposition in that matter.

An opinion has been rendered from the attorney generals office to the effect that the expense incurred in preventing the spread of smallpox should be borne by each county, but the cost of caring for persons afflicted with the disease should be borne, when possible, by the individuals themselves; and when they are unable to pay, by the county of residence; or, if the patient be non-resident, by the state.—Brainerd Tribune.

An Intricate Language.

The intricacies of the English language are well illustrated in the definition of a sleeper.

A sleeper is one who sleeps. A sleeper is that in which the sleeper sleeps. A sleeper is that on which the sleeper runs while the sleeper sleeps. Therefore, while the sleeper sleeps in the sleeper, the sleeper carries the sleeper over the sleeper under the sleeper until the sleeper which carries the sleeper jumps the sleeper and wakes the sleeper in the sleeper by striking the sleeper on the sleeper, and there is no longer any sleeper sleeping in the sleeper on the sleeper.—The Classmate.

—If you are looking for a good smoke, why call for the "J. B."

The question "whether are we drifting" comes to us in a new form from the pencil of a paragrapher, who views with alarm the tendency to comfort one's self by reducing the visible supply of clothing. Here's his plaint:

"The shirt waist man and the net waist girl go hand in hand to-day, and the people all year after year keep throwing their clothes away. The coat and vest are laid to rest and where is the fleecy shawl? Clothes get thinner and fewer—what will be the end of it all? Oh, what will the shirt waist man take next from the things he has to wear? And what next will the net girl throw off the shoulders bare? The shirt waist man and the net waist girl go rollicking down the way. Have we started the trend that is going to end in the old fig leaf some day?"

—Julius Pleth, the land man of St. Hilaire wants to buy farm lands—wild or improved, and will pay spot cash for same.

To cure a cough in one day, take the Imperial cough syrup. Guaranteed to cure. For sale at the new Drug Store.

Thief River Falls—Badly Hurt.

A couple of serious incidents happened in this county last Sunday. They could hardly be designated as accidents as the disastrous results would seem to indicate that the diabolical deeds had been perpetrated with malice aforethought. The Thief River Falls base ball players and their backers were the victims and they got horribly mashed. The first disaster happened right here in St. Hilaire. They played a game of ball with the Red Lake Falls Selects and got beat. Score 16 to 10. Then the Selects accompanied them home to their own grounds and repeated the dose—only more so. The score in the second game was 7 to 1. Red Lake Falls won both games—easy.

Thief River Falls had a battery imported specially from Minneapolis for the occasion. Red Lake Falls had scoured all over the reservation for players and succeeded in capturing one long geared individual who gave his name as Olson and a smaller one who meekly lisped that his name was Bailey as additions to their old star team.

Well, the story is short. The Minneapolis battery failed to batter but battered all over the field in both games while Olson and Baily, picked up in the wilds, battered the other batters to a batter.

The following final scores shows that the Thief River outfit didnt play very fast ball.

1st game: Hits R. L. F. 24, T. R. F. 14. Errors R. L. F. 3, T. R. F. 9. Struck out by Thoele 10, by Clark 4. Bert Mitchell umpire.

2nd game: Hits R. L. F. 12, T. R. F. 2. Struck out by Olson 17, by Clark 13. Errors R. L. F. 7, T. R. F. 3. Karl Hanson umpire.

NOTES.

As a "rooter" Bob Fritz is working up a reputation equalled by none.

Smiley and Schmidt came to St. Hilaire Monday to recharge their battery—so 'tis said.

The Thief River fans had megaphones as big as claim shanties, but there is dents in them now.

It is suspected that Staples is the man who discovered the Thief River Falls battery. Dont mention it to him now.

Old timers claim that ever since John Morgan came from Canada he never was known to win a bet. Up to and including last Sunday his luck had not changed.

The Red Lake Falls boys got the victory.

The Thief River Falls boys got whipped.

But the St. Hilaire boys got most of the money. See?

OUR BELOVED.

Requiescat in Pace.

Those New County Ditches.

The board of county commissioners of Red Lake County are in session at the present time and among the most important of the many items which must pass under their consideration is the reports of the viewers on the various new county ditches which, it is proposed, shall be constructed in this county this fall or as soon as possible.

That these ditches will be constructed immediately admits of little doubt as the viewers in their examinations have met with practically no opposition to the project.

Surveyor Geo. A. Ralph, of Crookston, who has charge of all this work, is of opinion that the work will be commenced as quickly as the necessary legal preliminaries can be gone through with. Mr. Ralph and his surveying crew have worked incessantly to finish the preliminary surveys in order that his report as well as that of the viewers might be entirely ready for the consideration of the board at the present meeting. Mr. Ralph speaks in the highest terms of the work done by the viewers and says that the preliminary work will cost less than any other work of the kind ever done in this part of the country, because the men chosen for the work have done their work promptly and conscientiously. There has been no unnecessary delays which might help to swell the expenses.

Asked as to when the proposed ditching work could be finished Mr. Ralph said that if the season continued open late in the fall, as it has sometimes done, and the contractors pushed the work with all possible haste, it would be done before December 1st. If it should prove impossible to finish this fall he says that the contractors will be forced to leave the ditches in such condition that they will drain off all the water that my drain into them from the territory traversed. It has often been the case in such work as this that the ditches have been left in such a condition as to be practically useless until fully completed. In the case of these Red Lake county ditches they will be useful all the time when there is surplus water to be removed whether they are finished or not.

Bees and Alfalfa.

The introduction of alfalfa into Kansas has made the state richer by one million dollars, and the honey bees that feed on alfalfa have added another million. A peculiar thing about this grain is that some insect must distribute the pollen in order to produce the seed. The bee is the best insect to do this and therefore it is as valuable to the alfalfa as the alfalfa is to the bee. More valuable to man than alfalfa and bees is "Golden Grain Belt" beer for it brings them health and happiness. Brewed from the purest barley malt and hops, it is nourishing and palatable, the safest for summer use. Order of your dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

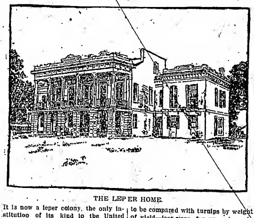
A LIFE OF HARD SACRIFICE.

Louisiana's Melancholy Leper Colony on the Banks of the Mississippi.

There is a place behind the levee on the east bank of the Mississippi eighty miles above New Orleans that the river boats pass in the early morning long before the passengers leave their berths, so it is not pointed out as one of the sights of the river. Perhaps it would not be pointed out, anyway, as it could hardly be expected to enhance the attractiveness of the route. The lazy plantation negro, passing it on the river road, "gets a gait on" his mule, because of a superstitious dread, and to those even, who fear only the material, the eerie atmosphere brings a shudder. The character of the place is little known, except to the creoles of Iberville, the parish in which it lies, and to the steamboatmen who bring supplies to it. An uninformed person would suppose it was only one of the several deserted plantations to be seen along the Mississippi, relics of Louisiana's "'fo de wah" glory, though a larger and grander ruin than the others. Such it was until 1894, when put to its present use.



THE LEPER HOME.

It is now a leper colony, the only institution of its kind in the United States.

The identity of those confined at the institution is maintained a profound secret and few outsiders are allowed to enter the place. A permit, by no means easy to obtain, must be presented before a visitor is admitted. The most tragic cases at the institution are two young girls, both of them beautiful, cultured and members of prominent Louisiana families. Not a mark has yet appeared upon the face of either—but they wear gloves, always. When the writer visited the inclosure these girls were sitting in the garden reading to several children and old men. A sister introduced the writer to the girls without mentioning their names. Both talked cheerfully and without reference to their terrible fate. Their cases are, of course, hopeless, all leprosy cases are.

FRONT VIEW OF A LEPER COTTAGE.

Life in the settlement is by no means as terrible for the most of the lepers as one might suppose. Many of them are perfectly able to do a good day's work, but no labor is required of them. What work they do is done of their own free will. Many of them take a great pride in their gardens. For recreation the liveliest of them play croquet and even lawn tennis; while those who are partly incapacitated carve wooden ornaments and crochet. They have all sorts of indoor games, and friends keep them supplied with reading matter. Complaining, petulance or rebellion against their fate is almost unknown among these unfortunates. They await the inevitable end with a quiet and touching patience, treating each other with unfailing sweetness and tenderness. They are a devoutly religious body. Marriage, of course, is not permitted among them. The children of the settlement were all legally assigned there with one or the other of their parents. Though leprosy is more prevalent among the negroes than among the whites, there are but seven negro inmates of the colony. There has been but one escape from the inclosure; that of a lad who scaled the fence and got safely away. About a month after he had gone the sisters received a letter thanking them for all their kindness and informing them he was on his way to the Sandwich Islands, where there was more scope for those of his affliction.

Products of Ireland.

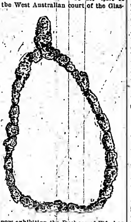
Potatoes have ceased to be the principal root crop of Ireland, if they are to be compared with turnips by weight of yield—last year, for example, only about 1,842,000 tons, against 4,426,000 tons of turnips. Nor was the potato acreage, though twice as great as that of the heavier root, nearly the largest given to any crop. That of oats was larger by 450,000 acres. The Irish product of oats was much greater than the Scotch and Welsh put together, and amounted to 504,000,000 bushels, against 73,500,000 bushels raised in England. What has to be deplored nowadays in Irish agriculture is not dependence on a single crop, but a general tendency to a shrinkage in area of all arable land. In spite of an increase of 46,000 acres devoted to mangel wurzel and beet, this shrinkage has been one of the 32 per cent since 1855. The distinctively Irish crop of flax has lost ground since 1870 to the extent of nearly 75 per cent. Land either becomes meadow, or more largely, goes out of cultivation. In these circumstances it is gratifying to see that a rally to flax last year was rewarded by an exceptionally fine harvest. As compared with the year before, the area given to it was 35 per cent greater, and the yield 42 per cent greater. Much more than as much honey was also produced as the average weight for ten years back.

Scotland's Friend, the Salmon.

It has been said that more laws have been passed for the protection of the salmon than for that of any other living creature save man himself, says a Dundee newspaper. But, then to Scotland the salmon is worth a good deal. The rental of the Tay alone runs to over £20,000 a year. Indeed, the amount paid to Scotland lairds for the privilege of catching the salmon, and his lesser kinsman, the trout, is believed to be considerably over £100,000 a year. And the benefit to Scotland does not end here. Sportsmen must live. They usually live well, and have to pay well.

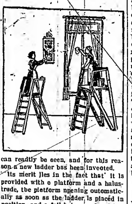
NECKLACE OF NUGGETS GIVEN TO A DUCHESS.

In commemoration of her visit to the West Australian court of the Glasgow exhibition the Duchess of Fife has been presented with a necklace of virgin gold nuggets. The necklace, which was presented by H. W. Venn, president of the royal commission of Western Australia for the Glasgow exhibition, is inclosed in a sandalwood casket inlaid with Australian woods. The nuggets are of flake gold and to the necklace is added a pendant of gold-veined crystal. The inscription on the box runs: "Presented to H. R. H. Princess Louise, Duchess of Fife, on behalf of the government of Western Australia, by the West Australian royal commission to the Glasgow International exhibition, 1901, as a souvenir of the exhibition, and of the visit of her royal highness to the West Australian court on May 3, 1901."



LADDER WITH A PLATFORM IS INVENTED FOR WOMEN.

That the ordinary stepladder is neither safe nor convenient for women can readily be seen, and for this reason a new ladder has been invented.



Its merit lies in the fact that it is provided with a platform and a balustrade, the platform opening automatically as soon as the ladder is placed in position, and a fall being rendered impossible by the balustrade, which surrounds the platform. Furthermore, this ladder can be fitted with a large table board on which can be placed kitchen utensils or other articles necessary for cleaning purposes. If windows have to be washed or walls to be cleaned the work can be done with perfect safety and convenience.

In other respects the ladder is constructed in the ordinary manner, and it is so light that it can easily be transported from place to place.

The Button-Hook Has Vanished.

What has become of the buttonhook? Once upon a time every other man you met would have a buttonhook on his key-ring, and few careful chaps would have one in some handy place in his desk for emergencies. That was because men were wearing button shoes. But that day is past and the button-hook has vanished, presumably because button shoes are no longer popular.—Washington Star.

HOW A HORSE STEALS HIS COMRADE'S OATS.

There is a clever postoffice horse in Brooklyn which for some time past has been getting double rations, and will probably continue to do so until the postoffice men discover his trick. From the substation at the corner of Ninth street and Fifth avenue are sent out a number of mail collecting carts through the surrounding district. When the horses drawing these carts come in they are driven up in front of the station to stand until it is time for another collection. While thus standing they are fed. On the curb in front of each horse is placed a bag of oats. None of the horses are tied, for standing is a part of their business.

This is when the horse with a double appetite has his opportunity to perform a skillful maneuver at each meal. He waits until all the rations are distributed, then, paying no attention to his own allotment, he begins slowly to back. Slowly but surely he backs into the horse below him, which in turn pushes back further and further, until in a few moments the clever horse in front who started the backward procession is standing in the place of his neighbor in the rear with his head at the animal's feedbag. Then he begins to eat ravenously, finishes his neighbor's oats as soon as possible, and steps nimbly back to his own place, eats his own oats, and settles contentedly for a stand-up nap with a well-fed air of placid innocence.

But the horse at the end of the line suffers. That is no affair of the clever inventor of the scheme, however.

The Composition of the Mantels.

The mantel used in the Welsbach light is made of a combination or mixture of two rare earths, known as thoria and ceria, and to produce the proper effect they must be combined in a definite proportion, says the Philadelphia Record. If combined in equal quantities they give practically no light, the mantel merely becoming red hot. The effective combination is 99 per cent of thoria and one per cent of ceria. Why this very slight addition of ceria to the thoria should so enormously increase the light is not yet thoroughly understood. It has been found that a mantel made wholly of either earth will give only about one-eleventh as much light as one made of the proportions just named.

LET HIS CROPS ROT IN THE GROUND EVERY YEAR.

The Atlanta Constitution reports the death of L. N. Calvary, a curious character, near Fayetteville, N. C. Calvary was found dead of heart disease in his home. His age was 70. He lived alone. His body was found sitting in a chair. He was the most eccentric man in all North Carolina. He came there thirteen years ago from Newburg, N. Y., bought 100 acres, started a vineyard, built a large house, which he handsomely furnished. He worked on his vineyard and truck farm steadily, but never made a shipment. Each year's harvest was allowed to rot. He worked ten hours a day, timing himself as if working for hire. He recently returned from New York, where he had his bank account. In his house is much fine silverware. He had $300 on his person when found. He sold a twelve-acre vineyard on the Hudson River for $12,000.

Examining Horses for Soundness.

When handling the head of a horse under inspection feel if the bone of the lower jaw is thicker on one side than the other, as an enlargement at this place indicates osteo-porosis, an incurable disease of the bone. Next dilate the jugular vein by pressing upon it with the finger in the jugular groove to determine whether it is intact or not. Sometimes the vein has been severed when "bleeding" and this constitutes unsoundness as the animal cannot get his head down to graze without falling. Examine the poll back of the ears for "poll evil" and the ears for abscess or running sore. Pass the hand down along the mane to see that there is not a chronic skin disease at the roots of the hair or a sore where the collar comes. The withers are next examined for "fistula" or the evidences of an old attack indicated by scars or the loss of some of the bone of the spines at that place. Examine the shoulders for collar boils or fibroid tumors caused by bad fitting collar. Now look at the elbow of the near side for "capped elbow" (shoe boil), then pass the hand down the leg, examining carefully under the knee for high and low splint, osslets, bowed tendon, etc., and lower down for injuries or enlargements at the ankle joint or for evidences of interfering. The foot should be next very carefully inspected. First look for side bones at the seat of the lateral cartilages, then for quarter cracks, sand cracks, thrush, corns, seedy toe, dropped sole, contracted heels, stone bruise, quittor, ringbone, coronitis, etc. Now stand erect and examine the back, the place where the saddle presses, the point where the surcingle comes, the loins, to see if they are strong and the coupling short. Stoop now and look to see if the horse has been cleanly castrated and that a running sore or a tumor are not present in the scrotum or a rupture at either that point or the navel. If mare see that the udder is free from abscess or shows no signs of pregnancy. Next examine the hind leg in a manner similar to the process of viewing the fore limb. Commence at the stifle joint and look for dropsical swelling, looseness when in motion, signs of blistering or firing. Come down the leg to the hock and examine for spavin (bog and bone) and behind the hock for curb, while at the same time the point of the hock is seen to be free from callous or "capping" indicative of a post kicker. Examine tail to see if it is carried straight, if it has been docked, if there is a false tail attached (this is not uncommon in the cities). If a mare lift the tail and look for a tear of the perineum which constitutes a "gill flirt" and was caused by rupture of the tissues at a difficult labor. The same examination will serve to show if the mare is afflicted with leucorrhoea or has a cancer of the vagina, or polypus. The condition of the anus should also be examined for here are to be found evidences of worms if present or paralysis which is sometimes present and constitutes an unsoundness. In examination of the hind leg it should also be remembered to look for string halt and at the foot making a search for ringbone, thrush, evidences of interfering, over reaching, speedy cut, knuckling, etc. Having seen to all of these things next drive the horse and see how he behaves under all circumstances, is not a shyer, tail switcher, balker, stumbler, rearer, runaway, kicker, etc. If he passes all of this examination it then remains to test his wind. Take him out of the harness to halter. Place him broadside to a wall, then suddenly pretend to strike him with a whip and if he is windbroken he will grunt. This is but a partial test and it is necessary to next hitch him up and give him a gallop on soft road or with wheels locked, then suddenly stop him and note if he wheezes, whistles or roars, has "thumps" or pants inordinately. These few hints about testing horses for soundness will, we think, impress the necessity of care and help those who have horses to buy.

Inspection of Export Dairy Products.

An Associated Press dispatch from Washington, D. C., says:

The agricultural appropriation set for the current fiscal year authorizes the Secretary of Agriculture in his discretion to apply the law for the inspection and branding of live cattle to dairy products intended for exportation, the purpose being to enable exporters of dairy products to give foreign buyers the assurance of certification by the government of the United States of the purity, quality and grade of dairy exports.

Secretary Wilson has decided to exercise the authority conferred on him by establishing in the customs districts of Boston, New York, Chicago and San Francisco a system of inspection of dairy products, but first will have experts in those districts gather all possible data in order that efficient regulations may be drafted for the conduct of this new service. A beginning will be made in a tentative way with the purpose in view to bring about a practical and an honest system by which all persons may be properly protected.

It is stated at the department to be "probable that at an early date the owners or shippers of products for export may, upon application, have the same marked and certified as to purity and quality, provided they are above minimum grade, yet to be fixed."

Cows differ as to the variation in the flow of milk at different milkings, some varying little, while other vary comparatively much. The same is true in regard to the per cent of fat. The milk of some cows seems to be influenced more by the feed than is the case with others.

Had a Right to a Deal.

According to reports, strenuous efforts are to be made to suppress gambling frauds on the ocean steamers. It is said to have attained disgraceful proportions. The victims are many, and the card-sharpers are bold and defiant. This recalls a story which old Capt. Judkins, of the Cunard line—in his day the most famous of Atlantic captains—used to tell. There were stringent rules against gambling on the Cunarders, but there was another company that was most lenient in the matter.

One day a hot game was in progress on one of the boats of the latter line. There were several lookers-on, among them the ship's captain, who had come in for a moment. Another bystander noticed that one of the players, while dealing, dealt himself cards from the bottom of the pack and fortified himself for four aces. Shocked at the fraud, the bystander looked at the captain; but the captain gave no sign of having seen the trick. Pulling him away from the table, the bystander said:

"Did you see that, captain?"

"See what?" was the retort.

"Why, that fellow dealt himself four aces!"

"Well, wasn't it his deal?"—New York World.

New Buildings Surprised Him.

R. S. Fuller of Boston, a relative of the late George A. Fuller, head of the firm of builders of the same name, said recently that the erection of steel frame skyscrapers in this city is away in the lead of building in Chicago. Mr. Fuller is now staying at the Waldorf. He formerly lived in Chicago. "The scope of this kind of work here is marvelous," he continued. "Whole blocks are being torn down to make way for more modern constructions. Then, too, I have seen gangs of men pulling down a dozen private houses to make way for one apartment house. This appears a common occurrence. The city is being transformed. No one can appreciate the fact better than an outsider who comes here at different intervals."—New York Tribune.

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch revives the story that negotiations for the consolidation of the leading photographic dry plate factories of the United States and Europe, with a capital of $30,000,000, are pending.

General Secretary White, of the Garment Workers of America, announces that the strike of his fellow craftsmen is practically ended, except in the cases of several firms against whom the garment workers have grievances.

James F. Grinstead, who was nominated for mayor of Louisville, Ky., in the Republican primary, July 16, announces that he will not accept the nomination because of dissatisfaction over the way the primary was conducted.

More than half the horses in Chicago are said to be afflicted with grip. Animals in the stables of both rich and poor have a high fever and violent fits of coughing. The epidemic started in New York and attacked Chicago two weeks ago.

Beginning Oct. 1, women will have as good a right to enter the freshman class of Rush Medical college, Chicago, as men. This innovation has been brought about by the recent action of the trustees and faculty of the college, which decided to admit women for the first two years' work.

Miss Katherine D. Elwas, niece of the governor of Bermuda, has written letters, now in possession of Robert B. Roosevelt of New York, showing the needs and conditions of the Boer prisoners. Mr. Roosevelt suggests that it might be desirable to appoint a committee to investigate this matter.

Work on the naval branch of the Young Men's Christian association, being erected in New York city by Miss Helen Gould, at a cost of $425,000, as a memorial of her parents, has been delayed by a fight between the Amalgamated Societies of Plumbers and Gas Fitters of New York and the Plumbers union of Brooklyn.

United States Senator Clark of Montana is in San Francisco, in connection with the construction of the Salt Lake, San Pedro & Los Angeles railway, which, he says, will be completed as rapidly as possible. He confirmed the truth of a recent statement that he is negotiating for a rich copper-mining concession in Siberia.

The steamship companies which do business between New York and Porto Rico have so many applications for freight space that they will be unable to supply the demand without chartering extra vessels. The rush is due to the fact that much merchandise has been held back for the resident's proclamation of free trade with Porto Rico. It is said this merchandise aggregates $6,000,000 in value.

Directors of the American Malting company are charged with having unlawfully used over $1,000,000 for the purpose of booming stock.

FALL IN BATTLE

DESPERATE ENCOUNTER BETWEEN VENEZUELANS AND REVOLUTIONISTS.

HEAVY LOSSES ON BOTH SIDES

Venezuelans Are Victorious After Twenty-eight Hours' Fighting—Twenty-five Battalions of the Colombian Army Assist the Rebels—Invaders' Lose 900 Men, the Government Losing 300.

Caracas, Venez., Aug. 5.—The Venezuelan government announces that a force of invaders under Gen. Rangel Garbiras, including twenty-five battalions of the Colombian army, was repulsed by the government troops and compelled to fall back across the frontier after twenty-eight hours' fighting July 28 and 29. It is officially asserted that the invaders lost 900 men, the government troops losing 300. The government has sent reinforcements to the frontier.

Confirmed From Curacoa.

London, Aug. 5.—The Reuter Telegram company has received the following dispatch, dated Aug. 4, from Curacoa: "A dispatch from Caracas says that 6,000 revolutionists were defeated, after thirty hours' fighting, July 29 and July 30, with a loss of 800 men, the government loss being 300."

TIGHTENS HER GRIP.

Russia Freezing Onto All She Gets in China.

London, Aug. 5.—The Times publishes the following dispatch from Pekin, dated Aug. 2:

"The draft of the protocol proposes that the new tariff shall come into operation Oct. 1.

"Russia is displaying renewed activity in Manchuria and is strengthening her grip on Niu-chwang. It is expected that Li Chen Fong, son of Li Hung Chang, will be appointed Chinese minister to Russia to continue the baneful policy inaugurated by Li Hung Chang.

"It is reported that the French intend to build a railway from Paoting-fu to Tien-tsin direct, with or without Chinese consent."

TIPS ON THE DECLINE.

Therefore Pullman Porters Will Demand More Pay.

Chicago, Aug. 5.—Stirred because Pullman porters of St. Louis have organized a union, the autocrats of the sleeping cars who live in Chicago have decided to go their rivals a step better in an association of their own. They have decided to style themselves the Railway Men's Mercantile League of Chicago. The men assert their trouble lies in the fact that there has been a rapid and steady decline in the amount and frequency of tips and they must have more salary under the new conditions.

STEAMBOATMEN ARRESTED.

Charged With Setting Fire to the Steamer City of Minneapolis.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 5.—Harry Critchfield, engineer of the steamer Ida Mack, and John Eberhart, fireman of the same, were arrested at Quincy on the charge of setting fire to the steamer City of Minneapolis, on which they were formerly employed, about three weeks ago while the steamer was lying in Quincy bay. The men were brought to Springfield and lodged in jail.

New Liquid Gas Discovery.

Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 5.—An important scientific discovery has been made by Walter Scott, the inventor, in studying the nature of his new liquid gas. He has succeeded in liquifying it at pleasure and in producing it by cold chemical process. He can also compress it so that a quantity can be placed in a bottle and by placing a pipe with a gas burner on top, the tap may be turned and a brilliant light will result, just as though the regular gas of commerce were being used.

Growing Fat Without a Stomach.

Chicago, Aug. 5.—Strong and well and growing fat on three good meals a day, yet without a stomach, is the record of Karl Kruger, in whom, say physicians, Chicago has one of the strongest living anatomical specimens. Mr. Kruger's stomach was taken out in an eighty-minute surgical operation on April 20 last, and since then his health has improved steadily. Previously he had been starving with cancer of the stomach.

Actress Fatally Shot.

Omaha, Aug. 5.—Mrs. Millie Lighthawk, an actress known by the stage name of Millie Allen, was fatally shot here yesterday by That Brookie, who turned his revolver on himself, sending a bullet through his heart. Mrs. Lighthawk is dying in Clarkson hospital, with no chance for recovery, according to the physicians' report. Jealousy is said to have been the motive for the deed.

"Paramount" Blount Seriously Ill.

Macon, Ga., Aug. 5.—News has been received in this city that ex-Congressman James H. Blount, who was sent to Hawaii by President Cleveland as commissioner paramount at the time of the revolution in the islands, has suffered a stroke of paralysis and is in a critical condition at his country home near here.

Equips Panama Warship.

Panama, Aug. 5.—The new minister of war, Gen. Alban, who has been in Colon for the last few days getting ready the equipment of the warship Namouna, has returned to Panama.

A $60,000 Blaze.

Dallas, Tex., Aug. 5.—The plant of the Max Hahn Packing company was burned last night. The loss, $60,000, was total. Nolan Brothers, wholesale butchers, had the use of one of the cooling rooms, which was full of meat.

Insane Man Runs Amuck.

Moscow, Idaho., Aug. 5.—Dr. W. W. Watkins was shot and instantly killed while riding in his buggy in the street, and two others were shot and badly wounded by William. Steffen, who is believed to be insane. He was killed.

DEATH IS VERY NEAR.

Dowager Empress of Germany Is Nearing the End.

Hamburg, Aug. 5.—The empress, Crown Prince Frederick William, Prince Eitel Frederick and Prince August William arrived at Cronberg, where the Dowager Empress Frederick is lying dangerously ill at a late hour last night. Other royal personages who have arrived are Prince Adolf of Schumburg-Lippe, Prince and Princess Frederich Carl of Hesse and the crown prince and princess of Greece. Emperor William has not yet arrived at Cronberg. He was expected at 5 o'clock this morning. Prof. Renvere the specialist wired his majesty to come in all haste. The following bulletin concerning the condition of the illustrious patient was issued during the afternoon:

"The external disease from which her majesty is suffering, and which for years has slowly been increasing, has in the course of the last few weeks extended to the internal organs. Her majesty's strength is diminishing rapidly owing to inability to take sufficient nourishment. She is conscious and at present without pain."

-o-

London, Aug. 5.—King Edward left at 5 o'clock this morning for the bedside of his dying sister.

OIL KILLS MOSQUITOES.

Successful Test Is Made at Camp Jackson, New Orleans.

New Orleans, Aug. 5.—The only place in New Orleans free from mosquitoes is the United States barracks, Camp Jackson. This is in the lower end of the city, in one of the worst mosquito districts of Louisiana, where the mosquitoes are so large, so fierce and so numerous that very few soldiers were kept there during the summer. Capt. John T. Martin, who is in command, began the oil treatment long before the war department issued the order giving officers authority to use crude petroleum in the effort to rid the various posts of mosquitoes, and there is not a mosquito at the barracks. Capt. Martin declares that the oil will not only prevent the hatching of mosquito eggs, but kill the grown mosquitoes.

"I have corralled several thousand mosquitoes," he said, "and tried the oil on them, and it invariably killed them. Just as soon as they get the fumes they go off some place and die, and they die very quickly."

ANOTHER NEGRO LYNCHED.

Mob Still Pursuing Suspects of the Taliferro Murder.

New Orleans, Aug. 5.—The Picayune's Carrollton, Miss., special says: Your correspondent has just learned that the armed mob which has been in the Taliferro neighborhood for two days looking for Sallie Layton and others, some time during Saturday night killed Will Price, the negro who worked for Mr. Taliferro and lived within 200 yards of his residence. He was found dead in the road on Mr. Duke's place yesterday morning some distance from any trees or anything to which to hang any one, with a rope around his neck and mutilated by gunshots. It is understood that the mob has quit work now and gone to their homes. No arrests have been made of the parties who engaged in the lynching.

CHANCE FOR A LYNCHING.

Bloodhounds and a Mob After a Negro Murderer.

Shelby, N. C., Aug. 5.—Chief of Police Jones was shot and instantly killed by Jim Lowery, a negro employed at the South Carolina & Georgia depot at 1 o'clock yesterday morning. Jones, with a warrant charging Lowery with selling whisky without a license, went to serve it. Lowery ran, firing at Jones, the bullet taking effect in the lung. Jones followed and caught him as he struck a lamp post. In the scuffle Lowery fired again, the bullet going through Jones' heart. Four bloodhounds and over a thousand people are on the negro's trail. One of the bloodhounds was shot by the fleeing negro. It is quite likely that if the negro is caught he will never reach jail.

FAILS AGAIN.

Guide Rope of Santos-Dumont's Balloon Catches in a Tree.

Paris, Aug. 5.—M. Santos-Dumont, the Brazilian aeronaut, made another unsuccessful attempt yesterday afternoon to win the prize of 100,000 francs offered by M. Deutsch of the Aero club for a dirigible balloon. He started from the grounds of the Aero club, the Parc d'Aero station at St. Cloud, and headed for the Eiffel tower. When over Longchamp the guide rope caught in a tree. M. Santos-Dumont got clear, but, finding he could not cover the course within the time limit, he returned to St. Cloud eight and one-half minutes after the start, having covered about half the distance to the Eiffel tower.

WRECKED ON A ROCK.

British Torpedo Boat Destroyer Goes Down.

London, Aug. 5.—The British torpedo boat destroyer Viper struck a rock off the Island of Alderney, in the English channel, and is a total wreck. There was no loss of life. The Viper was the only vessel in the British navy fitted with turbine engines. During her speed trials in May and June she attained 30 1-2 knots and was pronounced capable of doing 31 knots.

FRAUDS ALLEGED.

Fifteen Election Judges and Ten Clerks Indicted in Chicago.

Chicago, Aug. 5.—Indictments were returned by the grand jury yesterday against fifteen election judges and ten clerks of election for alleged violations of the law at the presidential voting last fall. The indictments are the result of the investigation of the acts of the election boards in five precincts.

Farmer Loses His Home.

Benson, Minn., Aug. 5.—While John M. Troseth, a farmer living about 8 miles south, was in town with his family his house and contents were consumed by fire and it was only with difficulty neighbors saved the granary.

Burned by Firebugs.

Hastings, Minn., Aug. 5.—The elevator of P. H. White at Keating's Crossing, three miles this side of Prior Lake, was burned, supposed to have been of incendiary origin. It contained about 4,000 bushels of grain.

TO STAND OR FALL

FATE OF UNIONISM TO BE DECIDED BY THE GREAT BATTLE NOW ON.

IT WILL BE A FIGHT TO A FINISH

All Union Men in the Employ of the United States Steel Corporation Will Be Asked to Join the Strike—Every Peaceable Means Will Be Employed to Win a Victory—No More Conferences.

Pittsburg, Aug. 5.—"Within a week every union man and every union man at heart in the employ of the United States Steel corporation will be asked to join in the strike now being waged by the Amalgamated association. We must settle whether unionism is to stand or fall. There will be no more conferences with the United Steel corporation unless the meeting is asked for by the officials of that corporation. The Amalgamated association will not request a peace meeting."

This and several other significant statements were made last night by President Shaffer, of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin-workers, upon his return from the fruitless conference with J. Pierpont Morgan and others in New York.

It is now a fight to a finish between the great billion-dollar steel trust and organized labor. Mr. Shaffer says that he is ready to employ every peaceable means within the power of man to win a victory. No quarter is to be given and none will be requested. The entire management of the battle has been placed in the hands of President Shaffer. He has absolute power to call out every man who is connected with the organization and he intends to do it. He is satisfied with the progress of the fight to date. He finds that none of his battle lines have been broken. Promise is made by Mr. Shaffer that the trust will find the Amalgamated association is strong in many of its mills.

Mr. Shaffer, Secretary Williams, B. I. Davis, M. F. Tighe and John Chappelle of Wellsville, came from New York last evening. The president and advisers did not appear to be the least cast down.

IT COST HIM HIS LIFE.

Two Men Try to Reach the Surface by Unusual Means.

Scranton, Pa., Aug. 5.—Men were lowering steam pipes into the Oxford mine of the Lackawanna company by means of the air shaft. At the bottom was a force of men to care for the pipes. These included James McLaughlin and Anthony McNulty. At noon, instead of going out by means of the cage at the main shaft, McLaughlin and McNulty proceeded to execute a deed of daring by ascending by means of the chain by which the steam pipes were lowered. They attached a plank to the chain and astride of it began their ascent, unheeding the warnings of their companions.

The brother of McLaughlin and a companion remained at the bottom, positive that one or both of the reckless fellows would be killed. In a few minutes a body came crashing down the shaft and dropped almost at their feet. Bending over, McLaughlin looked into the face of his brother. The man was already dead. Half way up the air shaft McLaughlin's head struck a platform and he fell. McNulty saved himself by holding on to the chain. When he reached the top he was so dazed and terrified that it was fifteen minutes before he could be induced to release his grip on the chain.

TENNESSEEANS WALK.

No Effort Is Made to Run Street Cars in Knoxville.

Knoxville, Tenn., Aug. 5.—The Knoxville Traction company made no effort to run cars to-day, believing that trouble might result with thousands of men idle for the day. Traffic, however, will be resumed to-morrow. There is a faint hope that the strike may be settled to-morrow. A proposition has been secured from General Manager Howell of the traction company, upon which the men will vote at 10 o'clock. The proposition is that, while the union will not be recognized, the men will be taken back as vacancies occur, married men to be given the preference.

GOLD MAGNET.

An Invention of a Resident of San Benito County, Cal.

Salinas, Cal., Aug. 5.—F. M. Mecartea of San Juan, San Benito county, claims to have invented a method of making a magnet which will attract gold and silver. During the week he gave an exhibition. The magnet used was a common steel chisel drawn down to a point. To this gold and silver shavings adhered tenaciously. The method is kept a secret.

STEAL THE SAFE.

Burglars Make Sure of Securing the Contents.

Milwaukee, Aug. 5.—Burglars early this morning entered William Cheeseman's hotel in West Allis, loaded a heavy safe on a wagon and drove away without being seen. The safe contained about $100.

Broomcorn Burned.

Evansville, Ind., Aug. 5.—The large warehouse belonging to the broomcorn trust, and filled with broomcorn, was destroyed by fire, entailing a loss of $150,000. Insurance, $110,000.

Building Falls.

Holland, Mich., Aug. 5.—A three-story building in process of construction for A. C. Binck and J. Vandawerp collapsed. Four men were seriously injured, none seriously.

Soldier Kills His Wife.

Charleston, S. C., Aug. 5.—Private Louis Haggerty, Tenth United States artillery, killed his wife and then blew out his own brains in his quarters at the government barracks on Sullivan's Island. Jealousy was the cause.

Two Children Burned to Death.

Mancelona, Mich., Aug. 5.—Two little girls, aged 3 and 2 years, daughters of George Simmns, were burned to death Saturday night. They were left with two older boys and the house caught fire, the boys escaping.

TOWN SPROUTS UP IN A NIGHT.

Ten Thousand People Flock to Lawton, Okla.

Fort Sill, Okla., Aug. 4.—A town of 10,000 people to be known as Lawton has grown up just outside the Fort Sill limits within a night. Following the close of the land lottery at El Reno thousands of homeseekers who drew blanks started for the three points picked out by the federal government for townsites in the new country, namely, Anadarko, Hobart and Lawton. A majority of the people favored Lawton, which is twenty-five miles inland, and last night thousands were camped in and about the proposed townsite awaiting the sale of lots on Aug. 6. Already Lawton has 400 temporary business houses, including a grocery firm and a newspaper, and three streets have been laid out. A national bank has been projected. Every form of gambling known on the frontier is being run wide open, side by side with fake shows of various descriptions, and to add to the picturesque scene a thousand Comanche Indians have pitched their tents near by.

FOUR FATALLY INJURED.

Collision on a Trolley Line Caused by an Open Switch.

Springfield, Ohio, Aug. 4.—The Dayton, Springfield & Urbana trolley car scheduled to arrive here from Dayton at 9:30, crashed into a coal car which stood on an open switch near Donnellsville last evening. Fourteen persons are lying in the Mitchell-Thomas hospital seriously hurt. Four are believed to be dying, and many others, whose names could not be learned, went to their homes with injuries which were considered too slight to record. The cause of the wreck was an open switch. A car had passed the switch all right forty minutes previously, and upon examination after the disaster it was found that the switch had been opened and locked, and it is believed to have been intentionally done.

HICCOUGHED FOR MONTHS.

A Russian Girl Has Wasted to a Mere Shadow.

New York, Aug. 4.—Mary Blumberg, a twenty-year-old Russian, was taken to the German hospital yesterday to be treated for hiccoughing. She landed here sixteen months ago, and last fall she was seized with a fit of hiccoughing. It clung to her and she went to nearly every hospital in Brooklyn in an effort to be cured. As the result of constant hiccoughing she has wasted to a mere skeleton. Yesterday a Hebrew society had her taken to the German hospital, but she could not be cured there, and the society will send her South.

DECLINES A DECORATION.

Unprecedented Action by an Officer in the British Army.

London, Aug. 4.—There is a curious announcement in the Gazette to the effect that King Edward has accepted the resignation of Maj. Karrie Davis of the Companionship of the Bath, that officer expressing the wish that he might be permitted to serve his majesty without any reward. Maj. Davis received the decoration for conspicuous services in South Africa, especially in connection with the relief of Mafeking. Such a retrocession of a decoration is unprecedented.

ROOSEVELT AT COLORADO FETE.

Talks to 50,000 at Quarter-Centennial Celebration.

Colorado Springs, Aug. 4.—Vice President Theodore Roosevelt was the attraction at the quarter-century celebration yesterday yesterday, at which a crowd of 50,000 gathered. Mr. Roosevelt, in opening an extended address, declared that with the exception of the admission to statehood of California, no other event emphasized in such dramatic fashion the full meaning of the growth of our country as did the incoming of Colorado.

PLOTTED AGAINST NAPOLEON.

Gomes Returns From Exile After Forty-Three Years.

Naples, Aug. 4.—Gomez, an accomplice of Orsini in the plot against the life of Napoleon III. in 1858, arrived here yesterday. He was condemned to death like Orsini, but the sentence was commuted to transportation for life. He was pardoned a short time ago. When he was condemned Gomez was twenty-five years old. Now, after forty-three years of convict life on Devil's Island, he is sixty-eight years of age and hale.

WILL SOON RESUME.

Straightening Out the Affairs of the Corn King's Company.

Chicago, Aug. 4.—Attorney Goodwin, who is in charge of the George H. Phillips company, which temporarily suspended business on the board of trade, informed Mr. Phillips that overnight developments in straightening out the accounts indicate that the firm will be in shape to resume business Monday.

Great Is Cresceus.

Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 4.—Cresceus, champion of the trotting turf, added more laurels to his fame yesterday by trotting a mile in 2:02 1-4, reducing by half a second his own world's record of 2:02 3-4, made at Cleveland last Friday. The first half was trotted in 59 3-4, the first time that the distance has been covered in less than one minute by a trotter. The time by quarters was :29 3-4, :59 3-4, 1:30 1-4 and 2:02 1-4.

Found After Long Search.

Chicago, Aug. 4.—Walton Lippa, son of John W. Lippa of this city, disappeared six years ago, and, although search was made for him all over the country, it was not until last Saturday that he was found in an orphan's home at Berne, Ind. He has been brought home.

Three Convicts Escape.

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 4.—Three convicts escaped from the state penitentiary before daylight yesterday morning and have not been captured. They are Page, horse stealing; Adair, burglary, and Denny, grand larceny.

S. D. Farmhouse Burned.

Woonsocket, S. D., Aug. 4.—The large two-story house on the farm of W. G. Atkins, who lives at Manchester, Iowa, was burned. The place was occupied by James Hall. The loss is said to be about $2,000.

JUDGE IN TROUBLE

SENSATIONAL CHARGES REGARDING THE "MINNIE HEALY" CASE.

WOMAN INFUENCES DECISION

Mining Property in Montana Valued at $10,000,000 Was Awarded to F. A. Heinze on Payment of $100,000—Attorneys Charge That the Judge Was Influenced by a Woman in Heinze's Employ.

Butte, Mont., Aug. 4.—Sensational charges were made yesterday in the district court by the attorneys representing the Amalgamated Copper company against Judge E. W. Harney, who recently decided the noted Minnie Healy mine case in favor of F. A. Heinze by which the latter was given the ownership of the property, valued at $10,000,000, upon the payment by him of about $100,000.

It is charged that Harney was influenced in his decision by a woman, Mrs. Ada Brackett, past the middle of life and not attractive, who was in the employ of Heinze, it is alleged, for that purpose. The charge against Harney is contained in an application for an extension of time in which in suport of a motion for a new trial, it being alleged that the judge was unluckily influenced in his decision. An application to the judge personally for more time was refused yesterday, hence the formal application and affidavits were put on record. Judge Harney has a family. He admits, according to affidavits made by a number of persons, that his relations with Mrs. Brackett were friendly and that he knew she was employed by Heinze for the purpose of endeavoring to influence him in the decision, but that he would not be and was not influenced by her. Several letters that passed between the judge and Mrs. Brackett while the Minnie Healey case was on trial have been intercepted and copies of them are attached to the application.

The attorney and other witnesses make affidavits that during the trial Judge Harney was almost constantly intoxicated, that he frequently visited the room of Mrs. Brackett and that she took him out driving.

POTATO PATCH A GOLD MINE.

Minnesota Crop Expected to Yield $16,000,000.

St. Paul, Aug. 4.—It is estimated that with the average yield of 200 bushels to the acre, 20,000 car loads of potatoes will be shipped out of the State of Minnesota. Estimating 500 bushels to the car and figuring at the prevailing price of $1 a bushel, the total amount realized from potatoes in Minnesota will be $16,000,000. This will be in addition to the amount consumed at home. Minnesota vegetable farmers are this year the willing victims of circumstances. Favored by rains that have come at critical times, they have watched and tended a bountiful crop, for which the whole country waits with unclasped purses. This state has a corner on the market, not of its own making.

OLD GLORY FLIES IN CANADA.

Crowds Attend American Day at the Winnipeg Exposition.

Winnipeg, Aug. 4.—Fifteen thousand visitors came from North Dakota and Northern Minnesota to attend American day at the Winnipeg exposition. Beautiful weather and gaily decorated surroundings made the visitors thoroughly enjoy the day. The Stars and Stripes floated from the city hall alongside Union Jack and "Old Glory" was conspicuous on many buildings. A beautiful spectacle at night was the siege of Tien-tsin, the British and American troops entering the walled city together aroused the audience of 30,000 spectators in the grandstand at night to the highest pitch of enthusiasm.

CANADA'S WHEAT CROP.

Yield in Manitoba Estimated at 42,000,000 Bushels.

Toronto, Aug. 4.—The Toronto Agent of the Northern Elevator company, which has large ramifications in the Canadian Northwest, has received a dispatch from the company's buying agent in Manitoba, saying: "The wheat crop is damaged by rust and heat. I estimate now 42,000,000 bushels. There will be lots of shrunken grain."

Burglars Avoided Postoffice.

Marshalltown, Iowa, Aug. 4.—Burglars effected an entrance to the general store of A. E. Medhus in Dunbar, blew open the safe and secured $35 in currency, a number of time checks and some old coins. The village postoffice, located in the same room was not molested. No clue has been obtained as yet.

Store Burned.

Hutchinson, Minn., Aug. 4.—Fire started in Theodore Schuneman's general store and damaged his stock to the extent of about three-fourths of its value. The stock was valued at $4,500 and the insurance carried was $3,000. The building, owned by the Odd Fellows, was damaged but little.

Ball Player Fatally Injured.

Denver, Colo., Aug. 4.—At midnight Fred Jevne, an old-time ball player and who has been umpiring in the Western league games here this week, fell from a third-story window of the Victoria hotel and was probably fatally injured.

Ore Records Broken.

Two Harbors, Minn., Aug. 4.—Ore shipments from this port during the month of July were 1,005,600 tons, which beats all records, and is probably the record for the ore shipping ports of this country.

Wheat Shrunken.

Bigstone, S. D., Aug. 4.—The first wheat was threshed here yesterday. It was from high ground, yielded eight bushels to the acre and was badly shrunken. It was from the farm of William Churchill.

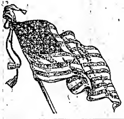
WEDNESDAY, AUG. 7, 1901.



Once more are the crowned heads of Europe plunged into mourning. The Dowager Empress Frederick, of Germany, died on Monday evening. Her death was somewhat sudden, as at 4 o'clock in the afternoon her physicians reported no change in her condition. During the day Emperor William and her Majesty's other children spent all the time in her sick room.

John Gleason, ex-county auditor of Polk county, was last week appointed as a member of the state Board of Appeals vice Alex. McKinnon, whose term has expired. Mr Gleason takes hold of the office at once. Mr. McKinnon will engage in the grain business at Minneapolis, and all who know him well will wish him success.

All of the other editors in Norman county are jumping onto Charlie Ward, of the Norman county Index, because he received $50 for services rendered as deputy county auditor and failed to "divvy up". That's right boys. Soak him hard. Fifty plunks is too much for any country editor to have all at once. Give him a double dose and make him cough it up.

In speaking of the crop prospects in Marshall county this year the Warren Register says: In some favored localities the yield will exceed 20 bushels to the acre, but there are some unfortunates whose wheat fields will yield next to nothing. Flax will not average over half a crop, and may not exceed one-fourth. Wheat harvest has already begun at several points and will be general throughout the county next week.

Throughout Red Lake county the crops this fall will be better than the average, on the whole. In some places the heavy rains of July have destroyed a large portion of the crop, and in such places the yield will be, of course, correspondingly light. The new ditches to be constructed by the county will be a safeguard against such calamities in the future in the localities which they will drain and everybody should give these ditching propositions all the aid they can. Ditching will make it easier for road work and we hope that within another year nearly all the people of Red Lake county will travel on good graded roads.

Editors who receive complimentary tickets to county fairs, and other places, are often looked upon as deadheads, but the managers of the Woodford (Ill.) county fair, who had some experience in such matters, had the following printed on the complimentary tickets used: "This ticket has probably been paid for ten times by the paper to which it is issued. It will be honored in the hands of man, woman, or child, white, black, red or yellow, who favors the association by presenting it. It is good for entrance and grand stand, and bearer, if driving, will be entitled to pass teams free. The association recognizes the fact that its splendid success is due to the notices so freely given by the press, and, while we cannot render an equivalent in cash, we return our grateful thanks."

How She Rules Him.

"Skinpflint's wife certainly has remarkable success in managing him. I wonder how she does it."

"When he undertakes to deny her anything she really wants, she threatens to sue him for divorce."

"Does he care so much for her, then?"

"Oh, no. It's not that; but he figures that it is cheaper to let her have her own way than it would be to either defend the suit or pay alimony."—Chicago Post.

STANDARD TIME.

To Ascertain and Promulgate It Is a Costly Task.

"What time is it?" Few questions are more common than this, and yet each day the United States government goes to a great expense in giving it an official answer. To ascertain the instant when it is noon on the seventy-fifth meridian and to send that information all over the country is a great and a costly task. The astronomical observatory in Washington computes the true time, which is thence transmitted by electricity to every important city and town.

About five minutes before the Washington noon the telegraph companies cut off all their regular business except on lines where they have more than one wire. They then connect all important points, from which there may be numberless ramifications, with an electric wire going into the great clock in the observatory so that all over the country its tickings may be heard. For the ten seconds just before 12 o'clock there is silence, which is broken by the "noon beat." Regular business is then resumed.

In some cities the wires connect with a time ball which drops with the noon beat. The time ball in Washington over the state, war and navy department building is three feet in diameter and can be seen from all parts of the city. Crowds frequently gather about to see it fall, a distance of 21 feet, high in the air. The man whom some of the spectators suppose to be dropping the ball is merely there to hoist it again to its place.

In the building beneath are 23 clocks which are each day automatically corrected by it. An electrical device "sets" them, placing hour, minute and second hands exactly vertical at the instant the ball drops. The hands that are too fast are pushed back, and those that are slow are thrust forward.

Although Washington is on the seventy-seventh meridian, the noon hour is for convenience computed for the seventy-fifth, the time standard for the eastern part of the United States. In the central belt, which is governed by the ninetieth meridian, the signal from Washington means 11 o'clock. In the Rocky mountain belt it is 10 o'clock, and on the Pacific coast line it is 9.—Youth's Companion.

FEASTED ON SPARROWS.

A Diet That Did Not Agree With the Crane.

"Some time ago I had occasion to observe an interesting change in the habits and temperament of a crane which had been picked up in the swamps of Arkansas," said a gentleman from one of the towns on the Mississippi river, "and the change was startling too. The crane was placed in a small park which was literally filled with English sparrows. These pests did not like the visitor from the lowlands, and they made daily assaults on the poor bird. The crane was a pretty fowl, long, slender, pure white and with the stately stride of a tragedian. The sparrows would systematically swoop down on the crane in droves, and the attacks were fierce and vicious.

The crane stood the assaults with indifference for awhile, but finally the fowl from the swamps figured out a method of retaliation, and it was effectual. In some way the crane learned that sparrow was a pretty sweet morsel. From the time she learned it she feasted on sparrows. She would slip up cautiously on these pesky twitterers and throw her yellow beak out like a gig. She never missed the mark. She always landed a sparrow, and a singular part of the thing is that she would swallow them whole, feathers and all. But the crane would always dampen the bird by dipping it in one of the water basins of the park.

"The diet evidently did not agree with the crane, and she became a trifle droopy and showed signs of indisposition. She finally died, and the keeper of the park believes that the crane's death was caused by a severe case of indigestion brought on by eating sparrows."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Saved the Dog.

Some time ago there was a shipwreck at St. Margaret's bay, England, and the life line brought sailor after sailor to shore amid the cheers of the rescuers. At last only the captain remained on board. The line was ready, the signal was given, but the answering jerk did not come. Again and again for a quarter of an hour the question passed along the rope without reply. At last, when hope was nearly dead, the signal came, and the captain was hauled dripping ashore. He picked himself up, drew a small, wet, quivering dog from his breast pocket and set it tenderly down. Then he looked round and said in simple apology. "I couldn't find the little brute anywhere!"

Parson Brownlow.

Parson Brownlow, the famous preacher, editor and patriot, is described by Dr. William E. Barton, author of "A Hero in Homespun," as the very incarnation of east Tennessee's rudeness, strength and exalted love of country and of right. "Ef hit warn't that he's a preacher," says one of the characters, "you wouldn't know, sometimes w'ether he's a-prayin or a-quotin Scripter chapter an varse or jus' plain everyday sorter cussin." Brownlow wrote to Secretary Benjamin at Richmond: "Just give me my passports and I will do for your Confederacy more than the devil has ever done. I will quit the country."

Out of an average annual loss to the world's shipping of 2,172 vessels 94 are completely missing and never heard of again.

Obeying Orders.

General Harney was an officer of the old school, a strict disciplinarian who took no excuses for hesitation in obeying orders. When he was on his way to Mexico, when the United States was at war with that country, he engaged teams to transport the baggage and placed in charge of them a Texan named Carter. The streams were all up, and Carter had much trouble, but whenever he tried to modify the general's requirements he was cut short with the admonition, "All you've got to do is to obey orders."

Says Noah Smithwick in his recollections called "The Evolution of a State:"

They camped one night near the Nueces river, which Carter found to be impassable. He said nothing about it to the general, and the next morning the order was given to move on. Carter started with the wagon train and halted at the river, which was absolutely impassable. Harney came blustering up.

"Didn't you know that river was up?" he demanded.

"Yes, sir," meekly replied the wagon master.

"Why didn't you tell me?"

"You didn't ask me, sir. You said my business was to obey orders. You ordered me to hitch up and move on, and I did it."

"You did quite right, sir. Turn round and drive back to camp."

If the general had been "done," he was not going to show it.

Mr. Hare's Fountain of Youth.

Mr. John Hare, the eminent English actor-manager, said that the most delightful compliment he ever received was from Mr. Gladstone. It was a double ended compliment. Whichever way you took it it was satisfactory.

Mr. Hare earned fame playing old men's parts, his character as Mr. Goldby in "A Pair of Spectacles" being a good example. Added to this was a horror of having his picture taken.

Mr. Gladstone had never seen a picture of the actor, but he knew him well behind the scenes as well as before the footlights. The premier's favorite play was "A Pair of Spectacles," and he always went behind the scenes to chat awhile with the actor. The really old man and the made up old man would sit there and talk in the most delightful way for an hour after the show.

One day the Earl of Rosebery had Mr. Gladstone to dinner and he also invited his friend, John Hare. The actor came in smooth shaved, looking about 35. He was presented to Mr Gladstone, and the prime minister shook his hand most cordially and said

"My dear sir, I am very, very glad to meet you. I know your father very very well. Splendid actor! Fine old man!"

It took the whole evening for the earl and Mr. Hare to convince him that this son was really the father.—Saturday Evening Post.

An Educational Mistake.

Whether or not a college education is advantageous depends entirely upon the ability of the recipient to absorb and utilize such an education. Unfortunately such a view of the case is seldom considered by parents and guardians who are inclined to send their children to college simply because it is considered the proper thing to do. Consequently we find throughout the country thousands of young men who have passed through college acting as cheap clerks, bookkeepers or even as car conductors and restaurant waiters. Having learned no mechanical trade for which they may be adapted and being unfitted by nature for a profession, they go through life discontented with their lot and vaguely believing that the world owes them better treatment because they have gone through college.—Los Angeles Times.

The Appeal to the Record.

Little Tommy returned sore and trembling from the torture room.

"Doesn't your papa ever thrash you?" he asked his chum, who is the son of a cabinet minister.

"I should say not!" replied the other loftily. "Every time he threatens to cane me I read him an extract from his great peace at any price speech in which he said: 'These barbarians are like wayward children, but have we on that account the right to take away their heaven sent privilege to do as they please? Let us treat them as we would our own wayward children—plead with them, beseech them, but never coerce them with either gun or rod.'"

"That's a good deal to remember," remarked Tommy.

"Yes, but now he's got so used to it that he drops the cane as soon as I start."—London Answers.

Kicked by a Horse.

On Monday evening an accident, which was almost fatal occurred at August Swenson's place a short distance east of here. A little daughter of Mr. Swenson's about eight years old was leading a horse to water and the animal, in a playful streak, kicked and striking the girl in the forehead. Dr. Blomburgh was called at once to attend to the injured child. An examination showed that the skull had not been broken but there was an ugly gash which it required several stitches to bring together. The wound was carefully dressed and no very serious results are expected. The little girl might easily have been killed and this accident should prove a warning to parents not to allow their young children to be in too close proximity with horses.

A Credit to Red Lake County.

Red Lake county has the honor of being the first in northern Minnesota to carry off a prize in the state markings of cheese.

The prize winner lives at Terrebonne and his name is H. Clement. In the monthly state scoring contest Clements cheese exhibit was marked first out of thirteen contestants. His mark was 96½. Clement is a Canadian who recently came to Minnesota and began making cheese at Terrebonne about the first of June.

The second prize for the month went to A. W. Parkins, of Stanton, Goodhue county, with a mark of 96.

A few local sports who were enjoying a quiet game in one of the saloons the other night were suddenly disturbed by a violent rattling of empty glasses standing on the back bar. As there was no person near the glasses at the time, they naturally wondered at it, and one or two of them being a little superstitious they decided to break up the meeting and swear off. After all the circumstance is easily explained. Of course there was lots of spirits on the back bar.

Some black hearted cuss swiped a fine watch from Jack Philips on Monday. Phillips works nights at the Hotel Markham and sleeps during the day. The thief entered his room and deftly removed the timepiece while he was sleeping. The police throughout the country have been notified and supplied with an accurate description of the watch and the party suspected of stealing it. The watch is a handsome gold one and has the owners initials "J. A. P." inside the case.

Entertaining Fiction.

One advantage of reading a serial story in a daily newspaper is that an installment of convenient length is received every day that does not consume an undue amount of the reader's time. An installment of a high-grade serial story appears in every issue of The Chicago Record-Herald—a popular feature of that enterprising Chicago daily. Every issue contains also a short illustrated humorous story on the editorial page. Readers of The Chicago Record Herald can depend upon a never-failing source of pleasant entertainment in the notaworthy fiction that is always to be found in its columns.

Italian Girls and Their Photographs.

Italian girls, unlike most of their American sisters, are generally unwilling to have their photographs published, and even when their consent is obtained their relatives may object. In arranging, for instance, for pictures to illustrate the article on "What Girl Life in Italy Means," in The Ladies' Home Journal for August, the agent of that magazine had with much difficulty at last secured the photographs of some very pretty Italian girls with their permission to publish the pictures without their names, simply as types of Italian girlhood. Before the photographs had been mailed, however, a jealous lover, three still more jealous brothers, and a pair of angry fathers withdrew the young ladies' given permission, and the photographs were, of course, at once returned. After further fruitless efforts the hope of getting any pictures had almost been abandoned when, by a happy chance, the good offices of Prince Ruspoli, Lord Mayor of Rome and head of the Municipal schools, were enlisted, and the attractive photographs that illustrate the article were finally obtained.

An Agricultural Experiment.

The professor of agriculture at Tuskegee, Booker T. Washington's industrial institute for colored people, has recently made some interesting experiments in "feeding the soil." He measured off two acres side by side. On one he put $7 worth of fertilizer, and the other was left as it was. The fertilized acre produced 400 bushels of good potatoes, while the other acre produced only 40 bushels of very poor ones. If it pays so well to feed the land, how much better it will pay you to properly feed yourself. Take "Golden Grain Belt" beer regularly with your meals. It strengthens because brewed from pure barley malt and hops. Have a case in your cellar. Order of your dealer or be supplied by Alex. Thompson, Crookston.

About Bemidji Whiskey.

Out at Bemidji a few days ago a justice of the peace from Cass county was arrested early in the morning while trying to kindle a fire in a barn. He was taken before Justice Martin and discharged, the judge giving the following as reason for dismissing the case:

"Mr. Wilson, this is certainly a very peculiar case. You have the appearance of an honest man, and the story you tell in connection with this matter bears evidence of the truth. I do not believe that you entertained any criminal purpose or felonious intent, still if you had succeeded in touching a match to those shavings, it might have put a different phase on the case. But I feel like taking a charitable view of the matter. I know what some Bemidji booze is and since you are not in the habit of indulging, the strangest feature is that your illusions were not more pronounced, both in number and character. We have had instances here when a few drinks made the imbiber imagine that he was the czar of all the Russias, the shade of Daniel Webster, the double of Chauncey Depew, the Saga of Buzzards Bay, the only herd of trained elephants extant, the only guy that ever disturbed the pebbles on the beach; that he was not only President McKinley's confidential adviser, but Mark Hanna himself; that J. Pierpont Morgan and Jim Hill were but lesser constellations in the financial world in comparison with himself, that he was Jesse James II, Frank Dalton, Toms Bixby, ex-Sheriff Jake Nygaard and even the mayor, village council, police force and judiciary of Bemidji. We have some boozerine here, a few drinks of which would jar loose the fangs of the devil and disjoint his caudal oppendage. You can't tell me anything about it, my boy, I know whereof I speak. A few drinks would make a leopard change its spots. You may go.

—Do you want to sell your farm? Julius Pleth, the land man of St. Hilaire wants to buy it and will pay cash.

Fire broke out yesterday morning in the stables of the lumber company at Thief River Falls and the building was completely destroyed. There were twenty head of horses in the stable at the time the fire started, but they were all safely led out. Weiner's confectionery and Ulstad's boarding house were badly scorched, and the west approach to the bridge is damaged considerably. The loss will be about $3,000, partly covered by insurance.

GOOD · OLD · DAYS

I wish that I had known the days
  When everything was right;
When singers sang the sweetest lays
  And intellects were bright;
When there were ne'er a fool or scamp
  Life's sweetness to alloy,
When all things bore perfection's stamp,
  When grandsire was a boy.

I listen with uncovered head,
  Although it causes pain,
To learn how for true bliss has fled,
  'Twill ne'er return again.
The little pleasures that we know,
  Alas! How soon they cloy,
Compared to those of long ago
  When grandsire was a boy.

Ah, there were actors in that time,
  And mighty statesmen, too,
And orators whose words would chime
  E'en to the echoing blue.
The railway, with its clang and hiss—
  I'd spurn the idle toy
Could I but know the days of bliss
  When grandsire was a boy.

Why must we plod with patience great
  And only find at last
How vain it is to imitate
  The glories of the past!
And as I think on days agone,
  This question will annoy:
"Why has this world kept running on Since grandsire was a boy?"

The Path of Joy.

BY ELIZABETH CHERRY WALTZ.

(Copyright, 1901, Daily Story Pub. Co.)

"I am dead tired of everything."

She looked out of the window as she said it and the haggard look on her face proved that she meant it. Life had been rather hard on her. The prettiest of the debutantes three years before, she had not been one of those who married after their first season. Only envious people said it was Amante's fault. A great many said it was because the girl desired and expected too much of her suitors, disdaining wealth and position and looking for the realization of an ideal.

Suddenly something had happened. She had met a man to whom she had been attracted and he—well, he had hardly noticed her, his entire time and attention taken up with a girl whom Amante had never considered a possible rival.

In her misery—for real misery it was—Amante despaired. She slept little and arose one morning with an utter disgust for life. Something, something must happen to ease the dull anguish she felt or she would die.

As she leaned from the window in the late spring sunshine she heard voices across the lawn at the servant's gate. Thomas, the pompous coachman, was expostulating with a slender girl who stood there. She was evidently a gypsy. The morning sun shone on her brown face and lit up her large sombre eyes. Thomas was evidently refusing her admittance as in the line of his duty.

Then a shrill voice came across to Amante's ears:

"Let me in! I would go to my sister. My sister is in trouble and she waits for me there. Let me in!"

Amante's heart gave a strange stir and impulse. She hurried into the hall where the whitecapped maid was dusting.

"Go down to the gate and tell Thomas to let that woman in. She seems in trouble. I will come down and see her in a few moments."

So, picturesque in a purple and gold kimona, Amante hurried down to the porch a few moments later, a mystical butterfly herself with subtle perfumes in the folds of the sinuous silk and with her dusky hair in picturesque disorder.

On the steps sat a woman creature younger than herself, a being of sunburn, of wandering, of untrammelled life; a girl who, with equal chances, would have been as beautiful, as mystical. She was slim and her ragged gown was opened at a throat bare and brown. Her eyes held a wonderful light. The two looked at each other and the gypsy woman spoke:

"You are my sister and in sorrow. Come with me and I will take you to your joy. See, I will lead you to a happiness."

"Go Away With You?"

"How did you know?" faltered Amante, "I never said—"

The gypsy caught her hand quickly and pressed it to her breast.

"We know. 'Tis the pain of love. I will lead you to joy. You shall have your heart's desire—if you will only trust me."

"Where?"

"To the north. That is all I know. You shall be my sister and I will lead you to joy. Have you the courage?"

"Go away with you! How could I?"

But in her blood was a wild clamor for freedom and for change. She changed from red to pale.

"Listen," whispered the gypsy still holding a hand in both her own, "listen! You shall only be ten days with us to gain joy. It is written in the stars. Then—" and she leaned over and whispered—"then, my sister, life is yours."

Amante was red enough now. She deliberated. Suddenly the fascination of the adventure swept her from her moorings.

"I will go," she whispered, "I will meet you tomorrow at noon across the river."

It seemed a sudden resolve to Amante's father, this one of visiting her married sister in Chicago, but he was used to her caprices and only insisted on seeing her safely off. He would have been horror-stricken to have known that she alighted at the station across the river and telegraphed to the baggage master at Chicago to hold her trunk. Then she deliberately walked to the river bank and there met Zorel whose beautiful eyes shone with welcome. An hour later two gypsy girls instead of one were strolling about the streets, their heads tied up in gaudy handkerchiefs and gayly purchasing provisions for their journey north.

"Am I Alive?" She Whispered.

The gypsy family consisted of a grizzled old man, his son and a fat wife, Zorel, their daughter and other children, and an old man or two. The women and children rode in the great covered wagon, the men on their horses or ponies. The men traded horses and the women told fortunes and sometimes sold a coarse lace. The first day it was romantic enough, but the life soon tired Amante. Where was the path of joy? How was this existence to bring her heart's desire?

She questioned Zorel, who waited on her with a blind devotion that seemed to displease the mother. Only the grandfather shared Zorel's admiration and devotion.

Amante did not lack courage. She questioned Zorel on the fourth night as they crept to sleep in the wagon bed.

"Where is the path of joy, Zorel? What will happen?"

Zorel's eyes took on their mystical rapture.

"Ahead—it is plainer day by day. Today I see smoke and fire—but it is there."

"Do the others see it, Zorel?"

"Only the old father—Daddy—he sees it clearly. The rest do not see things. Too much beer they drink and not read the stars. But I have not lied to you, my sister."

On the sixth day the old man rose up after his evening meal with a great cry. He spoke some wild words in a strange tongue. Amante clutched Zorel's hand.

"O, yes," said Zorel putting her arm about her," the stars were right, my sister. The time of trial comes, and through it runs the path of joy."

* * * * * * *

The train ran at a terrible speed through the burning prairie, mile after mile. The passengers half stifled, pressed their faces against the panes. At length it seemed about to emerge when the conductor saw ahead on an abandoned road, a covered wagon with wild racing horses and several men on horses and ponies.

"Gypsies running from the fire!" he cried and looked back. The wind was driving on a wall of flame. There was no escape for these people in that lonely place, no water course, no plowed field.

It was the work of a moment to give the stop signal, but it took longer to back the train. The passengers were alarmed and the men crowded from the parlor car. One of the first out was a fine and athletic southerner with red cheeks and a proud head.

"The gypsies, the gypsies!" cried the conductor, "they are racing for life. We must save them."

The train backed towards the roaring flames. The gypsies looked back, saw and understood. The men jumped from their horses that went wildly onward. The women and children tried to climb the embankment, but sank down exhausted in the thick smoke. The southerner saw two girls clinging to each other and jumped towards them. A few seconds later he heard a voice crying:

"Save my sister! save my sister!"

In the dense smoke he clutched at a form. Again the voice cried:

"Take her, she is yours! Go on. I can follow."

A moment later the train was away as on the wings of the wind. The gypsies were lying on the floor of the baggage car and the parlor car.

It was in the latter that Amante opened her eyes from a dead faint. She looked into the face of Morris Allison. Zorel was tenderly smoothing back her hair.

"Am I alive?" she whispered.

The young man shuddered as he drew about her some of the proffered wraps of the passengers.

"Thank God you are!" he said, "if it is really you. How came you here and in this awful plight?"

He chafed her small and now browned hands and helped to gather up the fallen, and luxuriant masses of dark hair. There was a new meaning in his voice, an impulse in his tenderness. Both women felt it subtly.

"How was it," he repeated, "how came you here?"

But Zorel, with eyes that burned his soul, smiled at him and answered.

"It was decreed."

BELIEF IN REINCARNATION.

Writer Reads it in the Faces of Men and Women.

Strange as it may seem, there are millions of people to-day who believe that the spirits of men and women return to earth after death and are born again into new bodies. The following is an extract of an article recently written for a leading magazine by a believer in the reincarnation theory: "A boy went to school. He was very little. All that he knew he had drawn in with his mother's milk. His teacher (who was God) placed him in the lowest class, and gave him these lessons to learn: Thou shalt not kill. Thou shalt do no hurt to any living thing. Thou shalt not steal. So the man did not kill; but he was cruel, and he stole. At the end of the day (when his beard was gray—when the night was come), his teacher (who was God) said: Thou has learned not to kill. But the other lessons thou hast not learned. Come back to-morrow.

"On the morrow he came back, a little boy. And his teacher (who was God) put him in a class a little higher, and gave him these lessons to learn: Thou shalt do no hurt to any living thing. Thou shalt not steal. Thou shalt not cheat. So the man did no hurt to any living thing; but he stole, and he cheated. And at the end of the day (when his beard was gray—when the night was come), his teacher (who was God) said: Thou hast learned to be merciful. But the other lessons thou hast not learned. Come back to-morrow.

"Again, on the morrow, he came back, a little boy. And his teacher (who was God) put him in a class a little higher, and gave him these lessons to learn: Thou shalt not steal. Thou shalt not cheat. Thou shalt not covet. So the man did not steal; but he cheated, and he coveted. And at the end of the day (when his beard was gray——when the night was come)), his teacher (who was God) said: Thou hast learned not to steal. But the other lessons thou hast not learned. Come back, my child, to-morrow.

"That is what I have read in the faces of men and women, in the book of the world, and in the scroll of the heavens, which is writ with stars."—Berry Benson, in The Century.

Lightning Strikes Through Feathers.

The popular idea that feathers are a non-conductor of electricity, laboring under which delusion many people scary about lightning climb under feather beds, even in summer, was exploded in a very remarkable manner during the recent heavy thunderstorm. While the storm was at its worst a bolt of lightning struck the center of the public square of a country town and struck a rooster which was running across the opening. It hit him square on the head and of course killed him instantly and also burned all the feathers off his back and sides.—Baltimore American.

Imitation of Wood Carvings.

The Germans are imitating wood carvings in plaster, bronze and other material by a new process which is said to be superior to all other methods in the fact that it produces perfectly the fibers and pores of the wood models. These are usually made of porous oak, and the new plan is to cover them quite thickly with a solution of 2 per cent. collodion, which, when it dries, leaves the usual porous appearance of the wood unaltered, while it renders the model oil-proof. The casting is then proceeded with in the usual way.—Philadelphia Times.

Abolishing Cruelty to Animals.

At a recent meeting in London of the Humanitarian league for the purpose of presenting Rev. J. Stratton with a testimonial for his work in abolishing the royal buckhounds, letters from George Meredith, Thomas Hardy and Frederic Harrison were read, all favoring the abolition of sports that were attended with cruelty to animals.

Population and Cattle Supply.

While twenty states made gains on the number of cattle for 1900, yet only two states had a greater number of cattle than in 1892. There were 10,155,176 more cattle in 1892 than in 1900, and while we are losing these 10,165,176 cattle we are increasing our population 10,500,000 for these eight years, as our population was 65,451,000 in 1892 and 75,000,000 in 1900. We thus had 828 cattle for each 1,000 inhabitants in 1892 and 585 cattle per 1,000 population in 1900, being a loss of 241 cattle per 1,000 population, or about 26 per cent of a reduction on our ratio.

To maintain our present ratio of cattle in 1903, when our population will reach 80,000,000, we should have 48,800,000 cattle, or a net gain of 1,000,000 annually. Our average annual decrease for these eight years on cattle was 1,270,600.

In 1892 the number of cattle was 54,057,000; population, 65,450.00; ratio, 825; in 1900 number of cattle, 43,902,000; population, 75,000,000; ratio, 585. The above includes all cattle.

In 1920 at our present increase, our population will reach 100,000,000 and even to have 500 cattle per 1,000 population our cattle must increase 6,000,000 and to maintain our present ratio we must have in 1920 58,500,000 head of cattle.

When we begin to gain about 1,000,000 annually, we are getting in a position to simply maintain our ratio on cattle, and when our increase is only 500,000 annually we are preparing to have only 500 cattle per 1,000 in 1920.

The lowest price of meat cattle occurred in 1891, being $14.76 per head, against $14.78 per head in 1900. The lose in number has been more than made up in price, being $18 in value per inhabitant, against $14 in 1892.

A view by states is perplexing. For while Ohio gained 80,000 and Iowa 28,000 for 1900, Illinois lost 59,000; Indiana 19,000, Kentucky 50,000, Tennessee 50,000, Missouri 80,000, Texas 188,000 for 1900. Every southern state is losing at about the same rate for 1900 for the past eight years on cattle.

So when the agricultural department issued its stock bulletins for 1901, announcing less than 44,500,000 cattle of all kinds, 45,300,000 for 1892, the farmers can depend on the ratio to be still on the decline on cattle.—William Adams in Indiana Farmer.

Foundation of Colt Training.

It is important to know that the pivotal point of action of the colt is the center of his body, in opposite directions, writes Dr. J. C. Curryer in The Farmer. In other words, whatever happens at the front end of the colt impels him backwards, and that at the rear induces forward movements. For when the rope at his flank is suddenly brought into action (when he thought he would pull his head out of the halter) the movement is so promptly reversed that he seems to wonder what in the world had happened at the other end. As an illustration of this law, it is a well-known fact, that if a horse gets his front foot over a bar or other object (if not more than six inches above the ground) and feels the pressure on the back part of his leg, he will go backwards and pull his foot off or get loose; when he could by a forward movement easily step over the object. It is also well known that if a horse attempts to go through a narrow door, or other passage, which presses him on both sides, after getting beyond the center of his body, he cannot be induced to back out, but goes on through if it breaks his hips down. To further and easily demonstrate this law of the actions of the horse, we have only to take up one of his front feet and carry it forward to the straining point and he is seen to go backwards for relief, then carry the same foot backwards beyond the center of his body and he as naturally goes forwards for his liberty. Operations with the hind feet produce the same actions in relation to the center of his body.

Now what does this all mean to the educator and trainer of colts for useful mature horses? Does it not indicate to the handler during colthood that he, as well as the colt, should understand all the duties to be performed and just how to execute the movement? Does it not mean that the educator of the colt for his (the colt's) future usefulness, should not only always make the lessons in accordance with good common sense, but "horse sense" as well? These two fundamental senses should always be in harmony. But where they work in opposition difficulties and mischief without and are almost sure to follow, and usually the good character of the colt is injured. On account of being a mute he cannot plead his own cause. When we stop and consider that the horse never performs even the most trivial duty for us that he has not been taught to do, and the great variety of services he willingly and cheerfully executes for us when he has been instructed how to do them; then is it not a plain and important proposition (as his life, like that of man, is one of duties to be performed) that he should have a finished education, a training commensurate with the successful execution of each requirement?

One Way to Keep Apples.

The following way of keeping apples can hardly be considered according to the rules, but we publish it as a small scrap of evidence on a big matter. At a meeting of Minnesota horticulturists George Andrus read a paper on "A Good Way to Keep Apples in a Common Cellar." Pack the apples carefully in a barrel or box, keep them moist by pouring water on the cellar floor and upon the apples themselves. The fruit should be protected from light and air. The air draws the moisture from the apples, and so will paper, if the apples are wrapped in it. Mr. Andrus says in this way he has kept Tollman Sweets ten months, Willow Twigs twelve months, Golden Russets thirteen months, and they were just as fresh as when taken from the trees. The best success he ever had in keeping apples was one spring when the water flooded his cellar. The water was two and one-half inches deep. This method is certainly worth trying in a small way, but is such an innovation that it will be best not to risk too much in the first trials.

Lived in Cranberry Crate.

The police have taken under their care a colored boy nine years old, whose home for the last two months has been a cranberry crate. The lad is Eddie Ray, whose father and mother died two years ago. He had no relatives. Up to two months ago, until he was turned out, he lived with a family in No. 4 Newark street.

The boy slept in various places until he discovered a cranberry crate in the areaway of a building formerly known as the Plaza hotel in Washington street. Nobody discovered him there until a few days ago, when members of the salvage corps, which is just across the street saw his woolly head sticking out of the crate at dawn.

They informed the police, who found the lad in the crate early this morning, and took him to the police headquarters. He seemed overjoyed at the change in his fortunes and ate ravenously. How he was able to exist during his career in the streets is a mystery.—Newark Special to New York Press.

Why He Wanted It Kept Quiet.

One of the officers in a certain English volunteer regiment is much disliked by his men. One evening, as he was returning home, he slipped into some deep water. A private in his regiment, however, happened to see him, and, after some trouble, succeeded in pulling him out. The officer was profuse in his thanks and asked his rescuer the best way he could reward him.

"The best way you can reward me," said the soldier, "is to say nothing about it."

"Why, my dear fellow," said the astonished officer, "why do you wish me to say nothing about it?"

"Because if the other fellows knew I'd pulled you out, they'd chuck me in."—Exchange.

Need of Hats.

"Yes," said the woman who likes to befriend the milliner, "if you wish to be really comfortable, always keep two hats on hand and wear them alternately. If you wear a hat much of the time you will find it is a great relief. Different hats rest upon different parts of the head, and so, even though the hats may both be light, it will be found that a change will be very agreeable."—New York Times.

Pavements of Glass in Paris.

A new material for pavements is announced in Paris. It is called ceramo-crystal. In front of the Lycee Condorcet, in the Rue du Havre, on a section of the Alexander III. bridge, and in the stations of Vincennes and Porte-Maillot of the Metropolitain, this new kind of glass pavement is being tried. The company at the back of the enterprise is to have a five-years' trial, and if, at the end of that period, the experiment is voted a success, the city of Paris will adopt the new material for almost general use. The glass pavement is the invention of M. Garcher, who has his factory at Carne (Tarn.) It is an amalgam of broken glass subjected to high temperature and compression. It has been successfully tried in Geneva and Lyons.

It Pays to Read Newspapers.

Cox, Wis., Aug. 5th.—Frank M. Russell of this place had Kidney Disease so badly that he could not walk. He tried Doctor's treatment and many different remedies, but was getting worse. He was very low.

He read in a newspaper how Dodd's Kidney Pills were curing cases of Kidney Trouble, Bright's Disease and Rheumatism, and thought he would try them. He took two boxes, and now he is quite well. He says:

"I can now work all day and not feel tired. Before using Dodd's Kidney Pills I couldn't walk across the floor."

Mr. Russell's is the most wonderful case ever known in Chippewa county. This new remedy—Dodd's Kidney Pills—is making some miraculous cures in Wisconsin.

MEMBER OF CONGRESS FROM SANDWICH ISLANDS

Cured of Catarrh of the Stomach by Pe-ru-na.

CONGRESSMAN R. W. WILCOX,
Delegate to Congress from Hawaii.

Hon. Robert W. Wilcox, Delegate to Congress from Hawaii and the Sandwich Islands, in a recent letter from Washington, D. C., writes:

"I have used Peruna for dyspepsia and I cheerfully give you this testimonial. Am satisfied if it is used properly it will be of great benefit to our people. I can conscientiously recommend it to anyone who is suffering with stomach or catarrhal troubles."
—R. W. Wilcox.

All over this country are hundreds of people who are suffering from catarrh of the stomach who are wasting precious time, and enduring needless suffering. The remedies they try only temporarily palliate the distress, but never effect a cure. Remedies for dyspepsia have multiplied so rapidly that they are becoming as numerous as the leaves of the forest, and yet dyspepsia continues to flourish in spite of them all. This is due to the fact that the cause of dyspepsia is not recognized as catarrh.

If there is a remedy in the whole range of medicinal preparations that is in every particular adapted to dyspepsia, that remedy is Peruna. This remedy is well nigh invincible in these cases.

Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O., says:

"In my large practice and correspondence I have yet to learn of a single case of atonic dyspepsia which has not either been greatly benefited or cured by Peruna."

No one suffering with catarrh of the stomach or dyspepsia, however slight, can be well or happy. It is the cause of so many distressing symptoms that it is a most dreaded disease. Peruna acts immediately on the seat of the trouble, the inflamed mucous membranes lining the stomach and a lasting cure is effected.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O.

Diplomacy a Fine Art.

Diplomacy is a fine art, and in its successful practice much depends upon the observation of social conventions. Some of the most successful diplomats seem to spend the most of their time at dinners and parties, apparently doing nothing but enjoying themselves, but in reality serving well their countries. In truth, the reputation of a country at a foreign court, and oftimes its welfare in important issues, depends largely upon the social abilities of its minister, for the man who is popular socially is very likely to drive a better bargain than his unsociable brother. This is well understood at Washington, and the selection of a chief for one of our foreign embassies depends in no small part upon his social culture.—Woman's Home Companion.

The News Of the Week

From Washington.

An army war college will be established in Washington.

Consul Stowe says South African affairs are in a poor condition.

Washington officials show that the work of the powers in China has just begun.

Men and women engaged to teach in the Philippines may be required to sign a contract not to marry.

The war department has directed the commanding officer at Jackson barracks at New Orleans to issue 500 rations to destitute people who were driven into Fort Philip by the recent gulf storm.

Days of "cold feet" for the members of the national house of representatives are numbered. The handsome new maple floor overlaying the tiled air chamber is now completed and ready for polishing and replacing of the seats and desks.

The navy department announces that the European squadron of American war vessels will rendezvous at Geneva, Italy. The cruiser Chicago, now at Southhampton, will proceed south to that port, where she will meet the cruiser Albany and the gunboat Nashville, now at the Seichelle islands.

The war department will soon hold a competitive examination to fill twenty-one vacancies in the veterinarian service of the army. Veterinary surgeons receive $1,500 a year, the pay of a second lieutenant of cavalry and 10 per cent increase for each period of five years' service.

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Taylor has selected the site for the public building at Seattle, Wash. The site is the one offered by Crawford & Canover, and is the southeast corner of Union and Third streets. Its dimensions are 130x140 feet and the price to be paid is $14,781.

Accidental Happenings.

The entire town of Landessville, Ind., was destroyed by fire.

Four people were killed and twelve others injured in a collision between an electric car and a train in Chicago.

The steamer Golconda was struck by a cyclone near Paducah, Ky., and twenty-five persons were drowned.

At Berkeley, Cal., fire destroyed Niehaus Bros.' planing mill, together with three acres of buildings. Loss, $150,000.

An explosion of molten metal in a blast furnace at Youngstown, Ohio, killed three men and injured eleven others.

Oliver Nealy, an electric light man, was electrocuted at Lincoln, Neb., while connecting up the lighting wires which run into the new Methodist church.

In a freight wreck on the Pittsburg & Western railroad at Moravia, Ohio, Fireman Philip Powell of Canton, Ohio, was killed and Brakeman W. S. McCurdy probably fatally hurt. Engineer Hillard of Bennett was seriously hurt.

As a result of an alleged wrong solution being administered to two inmates of the National Soldiers' Home hospital at Marion, Ind., by mistake Daniel Carranthers, aged sixty-five, and Thomas Pinkerton, aged ninety-one, are dead.

The naphtha launch Delora, owned by S. S. Edgar of St. Louis, blew up on Little Traverse bay, Harbor Springs, Mich. The occupants of the launch were badly burned about the face and arms and were rescued by the steamer Lora A. Cumming.

Destructive storms in Berkshire county, Lower Vermont, and in Eastern New York culminated in a destructive cloudburst. North Adams suffered great loss from the cloudburst, the damage being estimated at $500,000. John Fitzpatrick was drowned.

Miss Ida Hine, daughter of Charles Hine of St. Mary's, while walking in her sleep stepped out of an open window and fell to the ground, a sheer descent of thirty feet. She was not seriously injured, although very much frightened and rather hysterical over her rude awakening.

"BOB" EVANS DEAD

PROMINENT MINNEAPOLIS POLITICIAN PASSES AWAY SUDDENLY.

THE WHOLE STATE IS SHOCKED

Asthmatic and Other Serious Affections From Which He Had Suffered for Years the Cause of His Death—Causes Universal Sorrow—Prominent Leader in the Ranks of the Republicans.

Minneapolis, Aug. 26.—Robert G. Evans, United States district attorney, and a man thoroughly well known and highly esteemed throughout a great commonwealth, died suddenly at the family residence, 2030 Queen avenue south, Minneapolis, yesterday morning. Mr. Evans' death came with a suddenness that was startling. The community in which he has lived for seventeen years was shocked by the information that "Bob" Evans had been summoned by death only four months after his beloved wife had passed to the great beyond. The most intimate friends of Mr. Evans had known of his severe physical troubles, and these were not as greatly surprised as were the many thousands of citizens that knew him only by reputation, but who knew him sufficiently to appreciate what an excellent citizen had passed away.

Suffered for Years.

Mr. Evans was forty-seven years old. He had been troubled for years with asthmatic and other serious affections. Mr. Evans returned only a few days ago from Lake Ida, near Alexandria, Minn., where, with Senator Charles M. Fairbanks, Congressman F. C. Stevens, Congressman Loren Fletcher and others he had spent the greater part of a week in fishing. The outing seemed to do him good, for at a dinner given at the Minneapolis club Thursday he was especially jovial. Then on Saturday evening he was with a company of friends at the same club, and participated in a dinner with his characteristic jollity and good cheer. He went home about 11 o'clock Saturday night. His sleep was not sound, and he a number of times during the night. Shortly after 7 o'clock he was taken seriously ill. With great effort and evidently with great pain Mr. Evans managed to reach the bedchamber of his daughter. Miss Evans realized only too well her father's condition. He could not speak to his child, but the agonized look was sufficient. Anxious for fresh air he made another heroic struggle and managed to reach the front veranda. Mr. Evans had hardly passed through the front doorway when he fell seemingly lifeless. Medical aid was hastily summoned by the neighbors, but there was nothing that medical science could accomplish.

Arose From His Bed

Mr. Evans was born in Troy, Ind., March 18, 1854. He was admitted to the bar in 1876. Later he practiced his profession in Vincennes until 1884, when he Removed to Minneapolis.

His first law copartnership here was with Judge Daniel Fish. For more than a dozen years Mr. Evans was a member of the law firm of Keith, Evans, Thompson & Fairchild. His great and absorbing interest in political affairs, and his energetic and zealous participation in city, state and national campaigns brought him conspicuously to the front. He was appointed United States district attorney about four years ago. He had been talked about as gubernatorial timber for many years, but never saw his way clear to making an effort for the nomination.

Mr. Evans yielded to great pressure last winter when he entered the famous senatorial race that resulted in the selection of Moses E. Clapp.

CONDUCTOR BLUNDERED.

Fourteen Persons Seriously Injured in a Collision.

Indianapolis, Aug. 26.—Fourteen persons were more or less seriously injured in a collision between a Greenfield interurban car and a train on the Belt railroad yesterday. The conductor motioned the motorman to come ahead at the crossing. A freight engine with a dozen cars was approaching and as the electric car reached the center of the track the freight cars struck it and threw it to one side. The electric car was practically demolished. The motorman was badly injured.

DAM BREAKS—FOUR DROWNED.

Creek at Mauch Chunk, Pa., Turned Into Raging Torrent in a Short Time.

Philadelphia, Aug. 26.—Reports received in this city state that the heavy rains which have fallen almost incessantly during the past week throughout the state have resulted in the most disastrous flood experienced in many years. At Mauch Chunk the storm was attended by four fatalities. Jesse Struthers, a prominent citizen of Mauch Chunk, and three boys named McCafferty, McGinley and Johnson were standing on a bridge spanning Mauch Chunk creek when the supports collapsed and the four were precipitated into the water and drowned. The stream had become a raging torrent by the bursting of a dam a half mile above the borough line. The creek is fifteen feet above its normal mark, and the towns in Carbon county along its course have suffered much damage. Bridges, culverts and arches are destroyed and the loss to the borough and to the property holders will be many thousands of dollars. Business is at a standstill.

HE SAVES HIS PLAYMATE.

Boy Rescues His Chum From Instant Death at the Cost of His Own Life.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Aug. 26.—Ten-year-old Henry Schweitzer Saturday gave his life to save his playmate, nine-year-old Freddie Disque. The two lads were playing on the Central railroad tracks after the heavy rainstorm, making a little dam between the ties to form a lake of the rainwater. Disque was kneeling by the dam and Schweitzer was carrying clay to it when an engine dashed around a sharp curve near them. Schweitzer jumped out of the way, and then, seeing that Disque, with his back to the engine, did not know his danger, he sprang back on the track and with a violent shove rolled Disque clear of the rails. Before he could recover himself the engine was upon him and he was cut to pieces.

TO PREVENT AN UPRISING.

Number of Soldiers in Manila to Be Increased.

Manila, Aug. 26.—In the city of Manila there are now less than 1,000 effective soldiers and it has been decided to increase this number by four companies of infantry. The official reason for the increase is that the guard duty is too heavy for the present force. As a matter of fact, however, there is a feeling that although there is no apparent prospect of trouble, nevertheless in the event of an uprising in the future, such as is always possible among Malays, it would be better to have a sufficient body of troops available for such an emergency. Gen. Chaffee says he considers the city of Manila to be perfectly orderly, and he can see no prospect of an uprising. Commissioner Wright thinks the people "extremely peaceable." He is satisfied that, although among a certain class there is some discontent on account of the land tax which is not yet understood, this class is not likely to foment trouble.

FILIPINOS COME IN.

Insurgent Colonel With Seventeen Officers and Thirteen Men Surrenders.

NEITHER RIDE NOR SHOOT.

Some of Kitchener's Soldiers Have Heart Disease—Others Are Cripples.

London, Aug. 26. — Commenting on and airing the scandal of the inefficiency of many of the yeomanry sent to South Africa, which was referred to in a report by Lord Kitchener a few days ago in which he said many of them could neither ride nor shoot, the St. James Gazette says: "Many of these yeomen are street loafers who are physically unfit for service. Some of them have heart disease; some have varicose veins; some are cripples and some are nearly blind. Do the home authorities realize this? Are they going to punish officers who allow disease-ridden rapscallions to join the army?"

BOERS ARE ACTIVE.

Several Sharp Skirmishes Have Occurred Recently.

London, Aug. 26.—South African dispatches show that the Boers continue active in Cape Colony. Sharp skirmishes have occurred near Uniondale, only a day's ride from the sea, while Commandant Schapper's commando is threatening the important town of Oudtshoorn, thirty miles from the Indian ocean.

In Brussels it is asserted that Commandant General Botha has ordered the Boer commanders in future to retain all captured British as hostages in case Lord Kitchener carries out the threats of his latest proclamation.

BURNED AT STAKE

SIX THOUSAND PEOPLE WITNESS THE HORRIBLE FATE OF A NEGRO.

DIED AS STOLIDLY AS A STOIC

Negro Who Criminally Assaulted and Shot to Death a White Woman Is Taken From the Officers and Put to Death Near the Scene of His Crime—Fiend Laughs as He Makes a Statement.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Aug. 26.—Harry Noles, the negro, who criminally assaulted and shot to death Mrs. Charles Williams, wife of a prominent farmer near Winchester, Tenn., last Friday, was captured early yesterday morning at Water Tank, near Cowan, Tenn. He was taken to Winchester by his captors and placed in the county jail. Sheriff Stewart made haste to try to barricade the jail and protect the prisoner. Soon an angry mob of several hundred men gathered but Assistant Attorney General Matt Newhittaker appeared and made a speech to the crowd. He appealed to them to assist him in allaying excitement and upholding the majesty of the law. He promised to reconvene the grand jury to-day to promptly indict the negro and have him speedily tried, assuring them that his conviction and legal execution was a foregone conclusion. This appeal was supplemented by Judge J. J. Lynch, Capt. W. P. Tolley, Joseph M. Littleton, Foster Ramsey and others. No sooner had their appeals been made than several hundred citizens from the neighborhood where the crime had been committed, came up and augmented the crowd to thousands. They swept forward upon the jail, overpowered the sheriff and his deputies, took the prisoner and started for the scene of the crime, twelve miles distant, at 10:15 a. m. The mob was orderly but determined. It seemed that the whole population for miles around had turned out to see the Fate of the Wretch.

A procession three miles in length followed the mob to the Williams home. Arriving at a point near the scene of the crime the negro was placed on a stump and given a chance to make a statement. He mounted the stump stolidly, and laughed as he began his statement. He said:

"Tell all my sisters and brothers to meet me in glory. I am going to make that my home. Tell my mother to meet me where parting will be no more."

He was then asked if any one else was implicated in the crime.

Noles stated emphatically that there was no one else implicated but himself.

"Why did you kill Mrs. Williams?" he was asked.

"I just done it because I had nothing else to do," he said.

He finished his statement at 1:30 p. m. He was taken from the stump, carried to a tree near by, bound with chains and his body saturated with oil. At 1:40 a match was applied and instantly the quivering body was enveloped in flames. Fence rails were pitched about the burning body and soon life was extinct. The negro made no outcry at any time and died as stolidly as a stoic. There were no disorderly scenes about the burning body. At least 5,000 people witnessed the horrible fate of the negro. Many remained until nightfall, augmenting the blaze until the body was entirely consumed. They then departed for their homes quietly.

LEAPS OUT DIES.

Sister-in-Law of Millionaire Walsh Killed in Runaway.

Kansas City, Aug. 26.—Mrs. S. N. Lee, thirty-two years old, a sister-in-law of Thomas Walsh, the Colorado millionaire, was killed in a runaway accident here. Her coachman dismounted from the carriage to adjust the harness and the horses took fright and ran away. Mrs. Lee and her seven-year-old son leaped from the carriage. She fell backward, fracturing her skull, but the boy escaped. Mrs. Lee was the wife of a railroad contractor and prominent in society.

DOWAGER CENSURES ABUSES.

Kwang Su's Mother Issues Sweeping Edict—Men of Talent in Demand.

Washington, Aug. 26.—The state department has received by mail from Mr. Squires, charge d'affaires at Pekin, several edicts issued within recent months by the empress dowager urging upon the officials of China every exertion to secure men of talent for conducting government affairs and also censuring the abuses which have grown up under the old administration.

WRECKED BY A WASHOUT.

One Man Killed and Three Others Seriously Injured.

Columbia, S. C., Aug. 26.—The Florida & Metropolitan limited of the Seaboard air line was totally wrecked seven miles south of Cheraw, S. C., due to a sand bank washout. The fireman was crushed to death and three other train men seriously injured. The passengers escaped with a severe shaking up.

Burned by a Mob.

Birmingham, Ala., Aug. 26.—A small grocery store and dwelling at Thompson's Springs, near here, occupied by Miles Brooks, a negro, was burned by a mob early yesterday. Brooks is alleged to have written an improper letter to Mrs. Cutcliff, a white woman. Twenty shots were fired into the building but the negro had left the house and no one was hurt. A search is being made for Brooks.

Japan Makes a Protest.

London, Aug. 26.—"Japan has lodged a protest in Washington," says a Times Tokio dispatch, "against the system of medical inspection at Hawaii, declaring this is incompatible with friendly intercourse between the two peoples."

Bad Feeling Ends in Murder.

Macon, Ga., Aug. 26. — J. C. Merryweather, a baggagemaster on the Georgia, Southern & Florida railway, shot and killed Will Freeman, a negro porter on the same train yesterday near Valdosta. Bad feeling existed.

The State Day by Day. News of Interest.

NATIVES ARE FEWER.

A Majority of Minnesota Voters of Foreign Extraction.

An interesting feature of the latest census bulletin on Minnesota is the table showing the distribution of the state's new citizens. Among males of voting age, the foreign born exceed the native born, having 51.4 per cent of the total. Only 20.6 are native born of native parents, while 27.1 are native born, but with one or both parents foreign born. The remainder, .9 of 1 per cent, are colored, and with the exception of a few Chinese and Japanese, are native born Indians and negroes.

An analysis by congressional districts shows the foreign born exceed the native born in three districts, the Seventh, Eighth and Ninth, leaving out a large number of "unknown," probably for the most part foreign born.

The following table shows the number of males over twenty-one in each county and congressional district, divided into: Native whites, native colored, foreign born naturalized, foreign born who have taken out first papers, and "unknown." Comparison with the map will show that the foreign born population predominates in the new counties of the north and west. The Eighth district, which includes the iron range, has a very large proportion of aliens.

Grouping the two divisions of native born under one head, and the three divisions of foreign born under another, the following is the summary by congressional districts:

District—	Native Born.	Foreign Born.	Unknown.
First	34,489	19,745	4,004
Second	23,975	18,048	3,508
Third	33,190	20,455	2,615
Fourth	34,942	26,053	4,840
Fifth	37,901	29,212	4,275
Sixth	26,946	23,734	3,335
Seventh	21,656	24,503	3,600
Eighth	20,294	32,806	3,643
Ninth	16,675	29,784	3,831

The figures plainly show the inequality of the recent congressional apportionment. The number of qualified voters in each district in June, 1900, was as follows:

District—
First	49,252
Second	40,572
Third	40,735
Fourth	53,523
Fifth	56,431
Sixth	45,694
Seventh	40,700
Eighth	39,579
Ninth	38,386

Where Negroes Are Scarce.

Fifteen Minnesota counties have no negro voters. They are Benton, Cook, Cottonwood, Houston, Isanti, Kittson, Lincoln, Marshall, Mille Lacs, Murray, Sibley, Swift, Todd, Wadena and Yellow Medicine.

The following counties have no colored population of school age, between five and twenty years: Becker, Beltrami, Benton, Big Stone, Carlton, Carver, Chippewa, Chisago, Douglas, Grant, Houston, Itasca, Jackson, Kanabec, Kandyohi, Kittson, Lake, Le Sueur, Lincoln, Lyon, McLeod, Marshall, Martin, Mille Lacs, Mower, Murray, Nicollet, Norman, Pine, Pope, Renville, Rock, Roseau, Scott, Sherburne, Sibley, Todd, Traverse, Wabasha, Wadena, Yellow Medicine, in all, 41.

The following counties have no colored population whatever: Benton, Houston, Kittson, Lincoln, Marshall, Mille Lacs, Murray, Sibley, Todd, Wadena and Yellow Medicine.

The item, "other colored," is found in most of the counties. This head includes Indians, Chinese and Japanese.

STRICT LAW NEEDED.

For the Regulation of Fraternal Societies in This State.

Insurance Commissioner Dearth, in his annual report on the life insurance business done in Minnesota, says the laws covering fraternal insurance are a disgrace to the state.

Since the bill introduced last winter for the regulation of these societies failed of passage, the department has been flooded with applications from all manner of societies from every section of the country. Many of these fraternal companies, he says, are anything but sound, and the only way in which they can be made safe is to enact a law providing that they shall charge a premium rate, which, at 4 per cent interest, will create a fund sufficient to mature the face amount called for by the policy at the time of its certain maturity, with a sufficient loading to meet necessary expenses. The mortality cost of a fraternal society, he holds, is bound to equal that of any old line company, and the only saving possible for the fraternal company is its expenses.

He recommends a law compelling all life companies to charge a rate based upon a standard table of mortality, with an interest rate that will give assurance that the protection furnished is reliable.

Assessment, life and accident business in Minnesota decreased last year from $11,000,000 in force to $3,900,000. This is exclusive of fraternals.

The sick benefit societies are said to be the worst class of offenders against good business policy. The commissioner says that several of these companies are reporting to the office, which, should they meet with a death loss, would not be able to pay it in full even if the entire proceeds of a year's assessment were available. He recommends that the societies should not be allowed to issue a death indemnity policy in excess of $1,000 at the most.

It is recommended that the laws governing assessment life insurance companies be repealed altogether, making it impossible to organize this class of companies.

EXHIBITORS WASTING NO TIME.

State Fair Displays to Be On the Grounds Early.

Preparations have been made at the state fair grounds to receive this week much of the machinery and heavier displays that will be shown at the coming annual exposition.

An additional force of workmen will be put on immediately as an advance guard to the army of employes that will be required while the fair is in progress. The fact that the number and variety of exhibits is to be unusually large this year has prompted many manufacturers of machinery not to delay getting their exhibits in place. The state fair management will adhere to its announced policy that every exhibit must be in place and open for inspection at 8 o'clock on the morning of the opening day of the fair.

The superintendents of divisions will will spend the remaining days before the opening in gathering up the loose ends and mapping out their program for fair week. The erection of the new agricultural building gives much more space and makes it necessary to rearrange the allotment of space that obtained last year. Representatives of the three national cattle shows that will be held in connection with the fair will be here within a few days to look out for the interests of their organizations.

The live stock parade arranged for Friday of fair week was in the nature of an experiment last year, but it was so well received that it will be repeated this year. The representation of thoroughbred cattle will be much larger this year, and there has been a substantial increase in the number of exhibitors of thoroughbred horses.

The state fair grounds will be policed daily and the race course will be given the finishing touches between now and Sept. 1. The track is now in splendid condition, and, with favorable weather, should make possible the breaking of several records.

Grand Labor Day Ball.

Fargo, N. D., Aug. 22. — His friends local unions have arranged to give a grand Labor day ball, the receipts of which will be contributed to the steel strikers' fund. The members of the typographical union are the prime workers in the movement and have the hearty co-operation of the other unions.

Nordstrom Must Hang.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 22.—J. T. Snyder, Nordstrom will in all probability be hanged in the garret of the Kings county courthouse next Friday for the murder of Willie Mason nearly ten years ago. A last appeal for a stay of proceedings has failed. Nordstrom, for the first time in his ten years' imprisonment, broke down and wept yesterday.

The following from a little paper out west is straight to the point: It is reported that one of our fastidious young ladies kneads bread with her gloves on. The incident may be somewhat peculiar but there are others. The editor of this paper needs bread with his shoes on; he needs bread with his shirt on; he needs bread with his pants on, and, unless some of the delinquent subscribers pay up, before long he will need bread without a d——d thing on.

Among some Superb photographs of "The Handsomest Laces in America," which occupy a double page in The Ladies' Home Journal for September, is shown an exquisite handkerchief valued at $1,200. When one closely examines the web-like film, and the remarkable detail of the dainty design, this sum seems none too much to pay for such a piece of work. Its making doubtless occupied the greater part of one woman's life. The handkerchief is now the property of the Drexel Institute in Philadelphia, to which it was presented by the widow of Geo. W. Childs, the famous journalist and philanthropist. The other laces shown on this page are owned in New York and Boston, most of them being included in the collection loaned to the Metropolitan Museum of Art by Mrs. Astor. This collection is valued at the enormous sum of $62,000.

Advice From the Box.

On one occasion in the fifties an amateur dramatic performance was given in San Francisco for the [illegible] t of some deserving charity. [illegible] the performers was the late [illegible] Farrar McDermott, the poet, and in a box was Mr. Mills. The play was some classic piece, and the acting was so bad that what should have been a tragedy became a farce. In the last act McDermott dropped his sword and, stooping awkwardly, picked it up. There was a titter in the audience, which increased as the luckless performer asked, "What shall I do with this envenomed blade?" From the banker's box came in a queer stage whisper, "Stab yourself, Hugh, and be done with it!"—Frank Leslie's Monthly.

"Well, never mind, my dear," he said cheerfully. "We can easily afford another dog."—Exchange.

AFTER THE BATTLE.

A VETERAN'S STORY OF A TASSELED TURKISH FEZ.

The Gruesome Incident in Which He Participated at the Second Battle of Manassas—A Brave Boy and His Dying Request.

"Whenever I see a tasseled Turkish fez," said a Confederate veteran whose attention had been attracted by a smoking cap of that pattern in a Canal street window, "I am reminded of a curious and rather gruesome incident of my campaigning days. It was on the morning after the second battle of Manassas," he continued in response to a request for the story, "and several of us from my company had gone over to the field in the hope of picking up a few things that we badly needed and for which the dead had no further use—waterproofs, for instance, and sound canteens.

"During the previous day's engagement you may remember that a regiment of freshly recruited New York zouaves held the crest of a hill and were charged and almost annihilated by Hood's brigade. They were mowed down like ripened grain and fell so thickly that their corpses literally carpeted the earth. I dare say it was as awful a slaughter, considering the number engaged, as occurred anywhere in the course of the war.

"Well, we hadn't gone very far when we came to this hill and began to get among the dead men. The poor fellows had been mustered into service less than a week before, and they were said to be the most gorgeously uniformed military troop ever organized. They wore scarlet Turkish trousers, blue jackets embroidered with gold bullion braid and purple fezes with long pendent tassels.

"Being just from the outfitters, all this fine regalia was perfectly fresh and new, and somehow or other it added to the ghastliness of the spectacle on the hillside. The corpses were in all sorts of strange postures, and their fantastic costumes gave them an air of horrible grotesqueness that I couldn't begin to describe in words.

"However, to come to my point, I had picked up a fez to carry away as a relic and was about to leave the spot when I happened to notice a much handsomer specimen on the head of a little zouave stretched out, stiff and stark, a few yards away, with a handkerchief over his face. I stepped up to make a 'swap,' but had barely touched the tassel when a low, sweet toned voice under the handkerchief said, 'Please don't!'

"For a moment," continued the veteran, "that unpleasant protest, coming from what I had supposed to be a corpse, made my hair bristle on my head. Then I lifted the handkerchief and was shocked to see the delicate, refined features of a boy not over 15. He was pale as death and evidently desperately wounded, but he looked at me calmly. 'My God,' I exclaimed, 'what a lad you are to be here!' 'I'm afraid I'm dying unless I have help,' he replied. 'Do you think the surgeons will be around pretty soon?' 'The Lord knows!' I groaned, for the boy's courage touched me to the heart. 'Your surgeons have all run away, and we only have a few, with more wounded than they can attend to.' 'Then I guess all I can do is to lie here quietly and die,' he said in the same gentle voice. 'Can you get me a little water before you go?'

"I took his canteen and hurried down to a branch at the foot of the hill, where the first thing I saw, by the way, was the corpse of a zouave floating in a pool. I went up the stream far enough to get out of the horrible death zone, filled the canteen with pure water and was soon back at the boy's side. I gave him a drink, and he thanked me. 'Is there nothing else I can do?' I asked awkwardly, because I knew our company was under early marching orders that morning and that it would be impossible for me to linger much longer. 'Nothing at all, thank you,' he replied. 'No message to anybody?' 'No; nothing, thanks.'

"I turned away most reluctantly and had gone only a few yards when I heard his thin voice calling me back. 'Excuse me,' he said, 'but I want you to accept this as a present,' and he handed me his fine purple fez. 'No, no,' I exclaimed, greatly embarrassed; 'I couldn't think of taking it. When I started to a little while ago, I thought you—you—' 'Thought I was dead, of course,' he interrupted. 'Well, I soon will be, and that other fez will do me just as well. Please put it on my head and take mine.' I saw that he would be hurt unless I did as he desired, so I took the fez and went away.

"In less than half an hour our company was on the march, and, needless to say, I never heard anything more of the little child zouave. He was badly wounded and undoubtedly died where I left him. I kept the fez a long time," added the veteran, "but it was finally lost, with other odds and ends, in the general confusion following the war. I'd give some money for it today."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

The Good Effects of Apple Eating.

The apple is such common fruit that few are familiar with its remarkable efficacious properties. Everybody ought to know that the very best thing they can do is to eat apples just before retiring for the night. The apple is an excellent brain food, because it has more phosphoric acid in easily digested shape than any other vegetable known. It excites the action of the liver, promotes sound and healthy sleep and thoroughly disinfects the mouth. That is not all. The apple agglutinates the surplus acids of the stomach, helps the kidney secretions and is one of the best preventives known of diseases of the throat.—Journal of Agriculture.

TIMING YOUR TRAIN.

Ways In Which to Learn How Fast You Are Traveling.

"There has been some picturesque fiction written about the ease with which railroad men and drummers are supposed to tick off the miles as the train speeds along from things they can see from the car windows," said a railroad conductor to a reporter.

"There is only one strictly accurate way, and that is to seat yourself on the side of the train from which may be observed the white mile posts that line the road and hold your watch on them. If you have a split second watch, it will prove interesting to note that, while you make one mile in 60 seconds the next was covered in 53 and the third in 70 seconds, and so on, as the speed of the train increases or slackens. You may also follow around the little second hand on an ordinary watch. It kills time.

"Some pretend to say that they can tell the speed of the train by counting the telegraph poles. If there were an exact number of telegraph poles to every mile, this might be done by a little figuring, but there is a difference. The number of telegraph poles to a mile vary from 33 to 40, depending upon the straight stretches and the curves in the track, the latter having more poles than the former. So, you see, it is not as easy as the drummer would have the other passengers believe.

"If the poles are planted 33 to the mile, they are 160 feet apart, and every 11 passed represents a third of a mile. If placed 40 to a mile, they are 132 feet apart, and every 20 represents half a mile.

"These are easy figures to remember, and by applying them on a journey a passenger may obtain an idea more or less accurate of the speed of the train.

"Another way is to attempt to count the clicks of the wheels of the truck of your car as they pass over the rails where joined. The rails of the roads as placed today are too evenly joined to arrive at an exact determination by this method, because if you miss two or three joints your calculations are thrown out as to accuracy.

"However, there are railroad men who cannot tell you the number of rails to the mile of their own roads, and rails vary in length, the average being 30 feet, some 33 feet and some 60 feet. At 30 feet there are 176 rails to the mile, and if you can count 176 consecutive clicks as your train flies along you may determine its speed and not otherwise."—Washington Star.

THREE SIMPLE QUESTIONS.

And the Librarian Could Not Answer One of Them.

One day two well dressed young women approached the desk of the reading room of a big library. One of them took a memorandum from her pocketbook.

"Can you tell me how many yards—oh, that's the wrong list!" she said, hastily bringing forth another slip of paper. "Here it is. Will you please tell me who is Rudyard Kipling's favorite author?"

"I am unable to tell you, never having heard that he had one," admitted one of the librarians.

"Dear me!" said the young woman irritably. "It is one of the questions for our next club meeting. Well, which one of Thackeray's books brought him the most income?"

"That you can probably find out by consulting a book, the number of which I will give you," said the official.

"Oh, I can't stop to look it up!" she said hurriedly. "I thought you could tell me at once. Well, there's one more thing. Bessie Cummock, my cousin in Manchester, had a splendid book when I was there last year for anecdotes of famous people. I can't remember the name of it or who wrote it, but it was about so big"—illustrating with one finger on the desk—"and it has a dark green cover. Now, can you tell me what it is? Some day when I have time I would like to get it out. Of course you must have it in the library?"

For the third time the official was obliged to confess his inability to give her direct information. She looked at him with a piercing gaze and turned away, saying audibly to her companion:

"There, that just shows what all this talk about their being examined for positions in libraries amounts to! Three perfectly simple questions, all on literary subjects, and he couldn't answer one of them!"—Savings Journal.

The Toothpick Habit.

"I'd like to know what my customers do with all the toothpicks they carry away," remarked a restaurant proprietor the other day. "Few men take a single toothpick. Most of them take half a dozen and many a whole handful, and when they come in here again for the next meal they take as many over again. They don't need them. It's all due to the toothpick chewing habit, which seems to be growing. There isn't anything particularly pleasant about chewing a wooden toothpick, and it may be injurious if a piece of the wood lodges in the throat or gets down into the stomach, as it is very apt to. But the toothpick chewing habit is becoming a rival to the gum and tobacco habits. The only reason I can give for it is that the toothpicks are free and gum and tobacco are not."—New York Sun.

Realized His Own Madness.

"Now you are tired of me and abuse me," sobbed the young wife whose husband refused to hire another maid to take care of her pet dog. "Yet," she continued, "not two years ago you were just crazy to marry me."

"Yes," answered the complacent man brute; "my friends told me so at the time, but I didn't realize it until after we were married."—Kansas City Star.

College-Trained Engineers.

In this period of industrial and mining activity, well trained engineering students and graduates are snapped up as hungry fish snap up flies. Many of the young men from the engineering class of the University of Minnesota have a choice of three or four splendid positions awaiting them, any one paying a big salary. Good mental and physical training counts; but physical training counts most heavily; and an excellent aid in getting this training is to use "Golden Grain Belt" beer for it is brewed from the purest barley malt and hops. Every glass contains the strength of bread and meat in liquid form, the most pleasing way to take nourishment. Order of your dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson Crookston.

Ditches Will be Made.

The board of County Commissioners met at Red Lake Falls on Monday and the most important matter up for their consideration was the hearings on the various ditch petitions. The ditch designated as the Wyandotte and River Falls Ditch No. 2, was acted upon favorably and ordered constructed.

This ditch commences just east of the iron bridge over the Red Lake River here and runs straight east a distance of over eight miles to section 10 of Wyandotte where it connects with Wyandotte ditch No. 1 which runs thence almost due south to the Clearwater river. This latter ditch was also ordered to be constructed. The specification calls for all the dirt excavated to be placed on the south side for the purpose of making a roadway which when completed will be, without exception the best road in Red Lake county. These ditches will drain the big swamp out east of town, which has always been a drawback and menace to the prosperity of this community, and will prove to be the best thing that ever happened for the development of the country east.

Owing to a mistake in the advertising the Wyandotte and River Falls ditch No. 1, designed to drain the southern portions of the towns named, was knocked out on a technicality. This was a most unfortunate occurrance as the ditch is badly needed. There was considerale opposition offered this ditch by residents of the vicinity through which it was to run, they claiming that it was not located to the best advantage. In this case it is probable that a new petition will be presented and considered. It is likely that it will be constructed later on and probably in a more suitable location.

Bids for work on the ditches ordered constructed will be advertised for at once and the work will be pushed this fall as far as practicable.

The village of St. Hilaire was represented by a crowd of enthusiasts who pushed and pulled their best for the construction of the ditches. Among those who went down were: Hon. C. G. Rapp, Dan Patterson, Julius Pleth, Wm. Eickhoff, K. O. Gigstad, Nels Otterness, Alfred Dalhard, W. A. Sorselell, A. R. Jones, H. W. Peterson, Leonard Holmes and Harry Ives.

One old fossil who lives in River Falls township was down with the intention of heading off the improvements. He has opposed every good thing that has been suggested in the last ten years and in this instance he seems to have made a nuisance of himself from mere force of habit and without reason. He is a chronic kicker and obstructionist and was very properly treated as such by the board. It is too bad that he cant pick up sense enough to kick himself out of the country—which action on his part would prove a decided relief and permanent benefit to the community at large.

The Local Corn Crop.

Incoming settlers and prospective purchasers of land in this vicinity have been very much impressed with the appearance of corn crops in this vicinity and the corn situation this year has proved such as to be worthy of more than a casual notice.

Last spring our own Julius Pleth, the land man, conceived the idea that corn as a crop should be a success in this vicinity, and in order to demonstrate the truth of his idea he imported from Yellow Medicine county, Minn., one hundred and fifty bushels of seed corn. This corn cost him $1.25 per bushel but in order to encourage the industry he gave away the whole lot free to any one desirous of making the attempt to raise it successfully. In addition he offered a series of prizes for the harvest product from this seed. The prize offer was as follows: $75 for the best ten ears of corn from a field of not less than one acre; $50 for the second best ten ears of corn, and $25 for the third best ten ears. Some of this corn looks beautiful at the present time and bids fair to give a yield of from 30 to 40 bushels per acre; but, on the other hand, there are some fields which have not been properly cultivated, which have not proved a success. To those who do not believe their crop can ripen we say cut it immediately and you have the choicest brand of fodder. To allow late corn crops to wait for frost means to have both the corn and fodder spoiled. Look at your crop first and then act accordingly. At present the prospects, for corn properly cultivated, are good for a full ripening.

Regarding Mr. Pleth's offer of premiums for the best ten ears we are authorized to state that the prizes will be awarded just the same whether the corn is fully ripe or not, provided the competitors conform to Mr. Pleth's original conditions offered to those who wish to compete.

It is of importance to the farmer to examine his crop now and if it cannot ripen cut it at the present time. It is a certainty that this corn, as well as all other brands, do better the second year and thereafter, it having become more acclimated.

This year we find corn stalks 10 to 12 feet in height offering a yield of 30 to 40 bushels per acre of corn. Next year this corn will give a much larger yield under equal conditions.

An Accidental Shot.

On last Friday a sad accident happened to a young man well known here. Frank Neptune, who has had charge of the express department on the train, running on this line, for about a year, took a lay-off last week to go into the Red Lake country to look up a prospective homestead location and in company with J. McNichols left Thief River Falls last Friday morning for a steamboat trip to Red Lake Agency. After about 25 miles of the up river trip had been accomplished Mr. Neptune brought his rifle on deck and was standing by the rail of the boat looking for a possible shot on the river bank. He held the rifle in his hand with the stock resting on some lumber on the deck and the first thing he knew the gun slipped, the hammer striking as it fell. The ball—a 38-40—caught him in the left arm just above the elbow and plowing its way upwards through the shoulder. The boat was put about and the injured man was brought back to Thief River Falls where his wound was dressed by Dr. Grandy. On Saturday he was taken to Crookston and is now in hospital under the care of Dr. Dunlop. The young man is in a precarious condition but his recovery is sincerely hoped for by all who know him.

BATH OF THE ORANGE.

The Fruit Needs Much Grooming Before It is Ready For Market.

Fresh from the tree an orange is still very much alive, with the oil cells expanded and the mystery of growth not yet suspended. Cut off from the sap supply, a change takes place. The skin draws closer to the pulp and gives off moisture that would cause sweating if the fruit were packed at once. But first these dust stained travelers must have a bath.

By the bushel, if only this were the land of the good old bushel basket, the newcomers are dumped into a long, narrow tank of water at one end of which is a big wheel with a tire of soft bristles. The wheel revolves so that the lower edge works in connection with another set of brushes in a smaller tank below, and the oranges, after bobbing about in the big tank, pass between the wet brushes and come out bright and clean.

This washer is a neat machine and does away with the more primitive yet picturesque method of hand washing.

At some of the smaller packing houses may still be seen groups of women, sometimes white, sometimes brown skinned, each with a tub of water and brush, scrubbing busily away at the yellow piles that never seem to grow less till the last hour of the day.

After their bath the oranges are spread out in the sun to dry on long, slanting racks. At the lower end they roll off into boxes, to be carried away to the warehouse for their rest.

An orange needs a deal of grooming, it would seem, before it is ready for market. The washing was not enough. There must be a brushing too. And after the days of curing the oranges are fed into a hopper which drops them single file on to a belt that runs between revolving cylindrical brushes, this for a smooth, shiny look.—Los Angeles Herald.

When Matches Were Introduced.

The Atlas, a London newspaper, published on Jan. 10, 1830, the following paragraph under the head of "Instantaneous Light: "Among the different methods invented for obtaining light instantaneously ought certainly to be recorded that of Mr. Walker, chemist, Stockton-on-Tees. He supplies the purchaser with prepared matches, which are put into boxes, but are not liable to change in the atmosphere, and also with a piece of fine glass paper folded in two. Even a strong blow will not inflame the matches, because of the softness of the wood underneath, nor does rubbing upon wood or any common substance produce any effect except that of spoiling the match. But when one is pinched between the folds of the glass paper and suddenly drawn out it is instantly inflamed. Mr. Walker does not make them for extensive sales but only to supply the small demand in his own neighborhood."

A SONG TO NATURE

Out for a walk with Nature,
Out to the hills and streams,
Out where the sunshine drifts and sifts
Through the leaves, and tints your dreams,
Out where the airs of the mountains
A breath of the snow brings down,
Out where the pine trees scent the breeze,
Out of the sweltering town!

Into thy arms, O Nature,
Take me again, I pray,
And fill my heart with the old delight
I knew when a boy at play.
Lean over me cool and tender,
And quiet me with thy calm;
My passions quell with thy magic spell
And heal my wounds with thy balm.

For I am thy child, O Nature,
Born, nurtured and reared with thee:
And the rush and heat of the throbbing street
To me are an agony.
In the crowd of my kind I'm lonely,
But a voice in my spirit sings
A song of glee when I dwell with thee
And talk with the soul of things.

I'm sick to death, O Nature,
I'm sick of the sordid strife,
I'm sick of the greed and the grinding need,
The cheats and the deceits of life;
And I come as child to its mother,
To renew my faith again,
To regain the good in the solitude
I've lost in the haunts of men.

As a man athirst, O Nature,
By thy cooling springs I kneel;
And a deep soul-draught by my lips is quaffed,
A water whose touch will heal.
As a man who is weary of doubting
From the world's unfaith I flee,
To grasp thy hand and to understand
The God that's revealed in thee.

Love and the Law.

BY F. H. LANCASTER.

(Copyright, 1901, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

For the twentieth time that afternoon, Tom Hamilton snapped his watch and returned it to his pocket. He was not interested in the passage of time—that pile of copying must be finished whether it took him until midnight; but these brief intermissions gave him an opportunity to look at a shy thought that had haunted him since daylight. And the oftener he looked at it the better he liked it. In the morning, it is true, he had laughed at it; during the forenoon shrugged his shoulders impatiently; but in the afternoon—he took out his watch and stared at the dial.

That a man of his staid, prosaic make up should have dreamed at all was absurd; but that the dream should have upset all his waking thoughts and come between his attention and his business affairs was worse than absurd—it was serious.

And what was the dream? Only a waste of wild white waters, storm-swept but glorious. In the foreground a towering wave curving inward, grandly crested, an ogre of the sea. And he upon the cliff dashed with spray and beaten by the wind. A delicious dream for a hot summer night; small wonder that he liked to recall it again and again through the stifling day.

Hamlin snapped the watch for the twenty-first time and took up his pen. "Dash this weather."

If his typewriter had been on hand, he would have knocked off work long ago. He would have been driving in the park enjoying the breeze instead of sweltering here. He paused to pass his damp handkerchief over his beaded brow and glanced at the vacant chair.

"Sick," he muttered. "Good Lord. Sick such weather as this!"

Almost as he spoke the door opened and a woman in gray linen with immaculate collar and cuffs and lean jaws moved quietly toward the seat opposite.

Hamlin raised his head and greeted her with his customary bow. She returned the salutation silently, as she always did, and sat down to the typewriter. It struck Hamlin that her eyes and jaws looked more tired and lean than usual, but this was natural since she had been ill.

With the silence that always reigned between them, unless broken by an imperative necessity, he shoved the batch of copying across to her and leaned back. What a good thing it was to be able to pay somebody else to do one's drudgery. The thought brought a qualm of conscience. She was not well and it was so dashed hot.

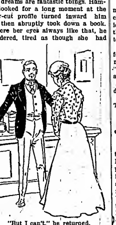
"Shove me those mortgages, a pen [illegible] will do."

"I intend to work after hours to make up for lost time. I will be able to finish it all," the typewriter responded quietly.

"Shove me those mortgages."

Tom Hamlin got up impatiently and began moving about. He had a sneaking sensation of being somewhat in awe of this silent, absolutely upright assistant. It was after office hours and he was free to enjoy the drive he had been longing for. She had a key. But Hamlin lounged against the window idly watching the swift fingers flashing over the keys and fell to reviewing his dream again. So vivid had it been that even now he could almost feel the dashing of the spray. As for that other sensation—that slight pressure against his sleeve, it had been with him ever since he awoke. Oh, well dreams are fantastic things. Hamlin looked for a long moment at the clear-cut profile turned inward him and then abruptly took down a book.

Were her eyes always like that, he wondered, tired as though she had looked upon death and the dreariness of it? Was it over-work or something worse than work? If she should look in reality upon that glorious bit of wild waters, would that jaded light pass or would it deepen? Dash it all, why couldn't he have dreamed a moment longer."



"But I can't," he returned.

"Excuse me. Is this correct?"

Hamlin's quick glance met the tired eyes then dropped to paper on which her pencil rested. There in his bold, reckless hand her name smiled up at him provokingly. He caught the pencil from her and made a hurried correction while a dark flush warmed his brow. He detested a mistake.

The ceaseless clicking began again and Hamlin read on as though his life depended upon the contents of the book. Had he done that fool thing more than once? As fate would have it, scarcely ten minutes passed before another sheet was at his elbow and an inquiring pencil point rested exasperatingly impassive upon. This time Hamlin made the correction with dignity and added with a desperate smile:

"Please pass me the rest of those sheets, I seem to be determined to mortgage all you possess."

From time to time his pencil descended with a vicious dash and the dark red on his brow deepened. At last, when he felt cooler, he shoved the sheets across to her and glanced carelessly at the thin face bent over the machine. A moment later he was standing in the hall waiting impatiently for his order.

"I wonder if she would die rather than admit to me that she was a human being. This heat is killing her and yet the only way to make her rest would be to take her by the shoulders and put her out of the office." Then his order came and he went back to her. She was still rather white about the mouth.

"Won't you try some?" he asked placing a dewy glass at her elbow.

"Thank you."

"It is so hot," he commented.

"It is indeed," she assented rather absently.

Hamlin tried hard to think of something else. Her tea was vanishing with a speed that bespoke more than natural thirst.

"Like as not she has had fever on her all the afternoon," he reflected.

"I had a pleasant dream last night," he remarked as she put aside her glass.

"Yes?" she returned politely.

"Dreamt we were standing on a cliff watching a storm at sea, the spray, and all that. It was delicious. We were standing together."

"A strange dream for such a warm night," the typewriter remarked evidently oblivious of his last words and his ensuing consternation.

He got up and moved away to bow a blind and resume his restless walk. What the dickens had he been thinking about all this time! What an impossible position it was anyway. In real life, when a man puts his arm around a woman she can't lean her cheek against his sleeve. But his arm had not been around her. His hands were in his pockets. It was as though she had come to him like a tired child, certain of support. Why had he waked before he could look into her eyes? Common sense jarred him; there was not much of the tired child in that alert figure with its weary eyes and preoccupied smile, but he set it impatiently aside. Great Nad! What had he been thinking of for the last two years! Why, there were times when he had barely been civil. And now—now it might be too late.

"See here, I can't get that idea of the sea out of my head. Let's knock off work and make a dash for fresh air. I can have my horse around in a moment. It's only ten or fifteen miles."

"Why, it would kill the horse," the typewriter ejaculated, struck aghast at the idea of taking a pampered animal on such an expedition with the thermometer at one hundred in the shade.

"Oh, no;" Hamlin insisted. "It is getting cooler. We could take it easy going out, watch the sun set in the water and drive back by twilight. Doesn't it sound pleasant?"

"Very pleasant."

"Does that mean you will go?"

"No, thank you. I had better finish this work."

"Oh, hang the work," he exclaimed impatiently. "Haven't I devoted myself to work body and soul, for the last thirty years. Am I to have nothing in this world but grind and grime."

Hamlin thrust his hands into his pocket and clenched them slowly.

"I had meant to wait," he began abruptly, "to make myself wait until I could see you in some proper place—or write, but it is no use now. We were together, you were leaning against me. If I could realize that dream I would be the happiest—"

"Oh, wait," she pleaded.

"But I can't," he returned. "Don't you know that love holds a power of attorney over all a man's actions? If you had gone with me I meant to wait, the beach would have been better than this dusty litter of law. I suppose you understood—you couldn't care—"

The woman with the tired eyes moved impulsively; for an instant her cheek rested caressingly against the loose linen sleeve of his office coat then she started up and went quickly to the door.

"Just one moment," Hamlin pleaded, folding his arms and standing determinedly where she had left him. "Please—dear. I'll bring the horse around?"

The typewriter turned at the open door. "Well," she agreed hurriedly.

Hamlin's heart broke into glad song. The eyes he loved were no longer tired.

A SHIP'S NEGRO CAPTAIN.

Colored Man Who Is Successful on the Ocean.

A colored man has been made captain of the British schooner Sarah E. Douglass, now in port with a cargo of pineapples from the West Indies. He is Captain Robert O. Sawyer, of Savannah Sound, Eleuthera Island, Bahamas. Captain Sawyer was born in the West Indies. In boyhood he followed the life of most colored boys in the Bahamas, which consists in diving for conch shells, sponges and fishes, and owing to the geography of the country, they spend the best part of their lives in small boats, crossing the rivers, bays and sounds which honeycombed the island. Eighteen years ago the captain went to sea in deep-sea vessels. He educated himself and mastered mathematics so that he could solve the intricate problems of navigation. He then became a navigator, and was seen here in the West Indian schooners Brethere and Sarah E. Douglass as navigator of these vessels between the West Indies and Baltimore in the pineapple season. When the Douglass entered the pineapple trade this season Captain Sawyer was appointed master by J. W. Culmer of Nassau, who owns the vessel. Captain Sawyer is a man of powerful physique. He is about 6 feet 6 inches tall and weighs 214 pounds, every ounce of which seems to be muscle and bone. He is built like a Roman wrestler, speaks English fluently and has excellent manners. He has a dark brown skin. He wears a natty blue yachting suit and cap.—Baltimore American.

A New Bureau of Forestry.

It is confidently expected that before long all of the forestry work of the government will be placed in the hands of a single Forestry bureau. At the present time matters pertaining to forestry are divided between the department of the Interior and the department of Agriculture. A division of the department of Agriculture has charge of certain technical work in regard to the forests, such as the making of working plans for economical lumbering, and the land office of the Interior department has an allowance of $300,000 annually for administering the Forest reserves. The department of Agriculture and of the interior are agreed that it would be much better to refer all of the forest work, both administrative and technical, to a single bureau.—Saturday Post.

A New Source of Strength.

Something new in the way of iron for people who need strength comes from Berlin. The process is somewhat indirect, the iron being fed preliminarily to hens, which take it into their systems in the form of a "saccharate"—carbonate of iron mixed with twenty per cent. of powdered sugar. This stuff is stirred up with the mush they eat, and, as a result, the eggs they lay are found to contain considerable amounts of iron. The eggs, cooked in any way that may be desired, are then furnished to the invalids, and the iron thus conveyed is found to be readily absorbed and taken up by the blood.—Philadelphia Saturday Post.

Roger, King of Italy, is said to have introduced the silk culture into that country about 1146.

FRUIT VALUABLE AS FOOD.

Certain Acid Salts They Contain Benefit the Human System.

The acids mostly found in fruit are malic, tartaric and citric acids, combined with potash or soda, so as to form acid salts. Malic acid predominates in apples, tartaric in grapes and citric acids in lemons, oranges and grape fruit. The ash of fruit is rich in potash, lime, magnesia and iron. The agreeable aroma of fruit like oranges, strawberries and other fruit is due to the presence of essential oils and ethers. All fruits contain more or less pectin cellulose and an insoluble substance called pectose, which, by action of a ferment in the plant itself, is converted in the process of ripening into pectin, which forms the main constituent of fruit jelly. Fruits are laxative, diuretic and refrigerant. The nutritive value of any fruit depends chiefly upon the starches and sugar which it contains. Dates, plantains, bananas, prunes, figs and grapes contain the most starch and sugar, and therefore are the most nutritious foods. Cherries, apples, currants, strawberries and grapes contain considerable vegetable acid, making them valuable as blood purifiers. Lemons, limes, grape fruit possess about the same general properties; they contain a great deal of potash and other salts and abundant vegetable acids. They are beneficial in gout and rheumatism, especially lemon juice, which is highly recommended, because the citric acid in decomposing in the stomach oxidizes such elements as would tend to form uric acid, forming instead uric and carbonic acid, two substances capable of easy excretion. The addition of lemon juice to cereals and broiled or fried fish render them more easily assimilated, as it has specific action in promoting gastric digestion. The juice of one or two lemons put in a tumbler of water, with a little sugar, is a refreshing and cooling drink, especially in fevers. Lemons peeled, sliced and freed from pits, if placed in a bowl with sugar sprinkled between the slices, makes an excellent remedy for sore throat. Mild lemonade, if not too sweet, diminishes thirst more than any other beverage. Pleasant, cooling drinks may be made with lemon juice and aerated waters, such as vichy, apollinaris or carbonic acid water instead of plain water, or effervescence may be produced by the addition of baking soda, about half teaspoonful to a tumblerful of water and the juice of one lemon. This is excellent to cleanse the mouth and counteract nausea and is beneficial to the stomach.

BUYING A LARGE ESTATE

Several Capitalists Are Now Engaged in That Occupation.

The starting of a new great country estate is always a matter of interest, says Harper's Weekly. The tendency in rich city men toward that sort of enlargement is of recent growth, and it is natural that there should be examples of it in increasing numbers near New York. E. H. Harriman, railway giant—the same enterprising man who carried a ship load of scientists in Alaska in 1899—has bought himself 20,000 acres of land in Orange and Rockland counties, New York, to the west and north of Tuxedo and edging over toward Goshen. Orange county is still famous for its butter and Mr. Harriman doubtless intends to keep a cow. His further intentions have not as yet transpired except as shown by considerable investments in roads. Much of the fun in owning a farm two miles square lies doubtless in planning what to do with it. Mr. Carnegie, whose commodious dwelling on upper Fifth avenue is already the biggest house in town, is building himself another in Westchester county near the St. Andrew's golf links, but has not yet given evidence of an acute attack of land hunger. Mr. Whitney has 1,000 acres on Long Island, nearly twice as many on October mountain and a big tract in the North woods, and there are many other estates of from 500 to 3,000 acres on Long Island and near the Hudson. Dr. Webb has elbow room at Shelbourne and leg room in the Adirondacks, but the greatest and most interesting of American estates seems still to be Mr. Vanderbilt's Biltmore in North Carolina. There will be great sights in architecture, horticulture, agriculture, floriculture and all the allied industries and arts to be seen in this country fifty years from now if the steel business and railroad business continue to flourish and government continues stable.

The Neglect Cure for Warts.

Warts are curious things. They come and go mysteriously, although their going is frequently marked by exasperating delays, and they are almost as many infallible cures as there are warts, the only trouble with these cures being that they are useless when applied to the particular wart you happen to have. They are only good for other people's. "In my opinion," said a club man, who was discussing the subject with a friend one day, "a wart is merely the outward correspondence of some mental excrescence. Get rid of that, and it goes away. Let me give you a bit of my own experience," he continued. "Last year I went to Europe. For about three years I had had a wart on my little finger, on which I had tried everything I could hear of, but without effect. It only grew larger. Well, in the excitement of preparing for the trip and of the journey itself, I forgot all about my wart, and when I looked for it, about six weeks later, it had vanished, without leaving the slightest mark. I simply forgot it, and it had no mental condition to feed on. I see you have one on the back of your hand. Forget all about it for a few weeks, and it will go away of itself."

Twenty Years of Salvation Work.

As the result of thirty-five years' work, said General Booth recently, the Salvation Army was to be found in forty-seven countries and had literature in thirty different languages. The army had over 40,000 lay officers; 609 social institutions, with 1,700 officers; a labor bureau, giving employment to 6,800 people; 109 rescue places; seventy-two workshops and factories and thirteen farm colonies. The army also sheltered 15,000 outcasts every evening and had given away millions of breakfasts.

POLISHED SHIRT BOSOM.

How One That John Drew Wore Almost Broke Up an Act.

John Drew, as is well known, is most particular regarding his dress, both on and off the stage. He was playing in "The Liars" two seasons ago on the road, and his itinerary included nearly two weeks of successive one-night stands. His man attendant always looked after the clothing he wore at the theater, bringing to the actor's dressing room shortly before Mr. Drew appeared to dress. In one of the smaller cities the valet had sent Mr. Drew's linen to a laundry, and the actor found, when about to don it, that the bosom of his dress shirt contained a polish which disgusted him. He said things. But there was nothing to do but wear it, polish and all. Mr. Drew had a long speech in a scene with Arthur Byron. The latter at once observed the unusual polish on Mr. Drew's shirt front, and while he was delivering the lengthy dialogue, Mr. Byron, though it was not noticed by the audience, began to adjust his hair, straighten his tie, and otherwise complete his toilet by the aid of the polish on Mr. Drew's shirt. A roar went up from behind the scenes, and Mr. Byron's joke nearly spoiled the scene.—New York Times.

Telegraphy and Matrimony.

The English government gives away $50,000 a year, more or less, to encourage matrimony among the women employes of the telegraph service. Women enter the service at the age of sixteen. After six years, when the operator has reached the official marriageable age of twenty-two, she is entitled to an allowance from the state. For each year of service she can draw one month's pay. As her salary is $25 per month, she can then claim $150. If she waits until she is twenty-eight she can draw $400. In practice the average sum paid has been found to be about $200.

A New Theory of Evolution.

According to Nature, a most reputable authority in scientific matters, a "momentous discovery" in relation to the origin of species among plants has been made by Prof. de Vries, the famous botanist and biologist of Holland. His observations indicate that new plant species appear suddenly by mutation, never as the outcome of a progressive variation, and he claims to have been able, for the first time, to watch the formation and development of new species. In commenting on this discovery Nature says that it is inaugurates a new period in origin of species and evolution theories.

ANARCHIST'S FOUL DEED

President McKinley Stricken Down by the Bullet of an Assassin at Buffalo.

Foul Deed Is Planned With All the Diabolical Ingenuity of Which Anarchy Is Capable.

Wounds Not Necessarily Fatal, But the President's Condition Is Considered Serious.

Buffalo, Sept. 8. — President McKinley was shot and seriously wounded by a would-be assassin while holding a reception in the Temple of Music at the Pan-American exposition a few minutes after 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. One shot took effect in the right breast, the other in the abdomen. The first is not of a serious nature and the bullet has been extracted. The latter pierced the abdominal wall and has not yet been located. At 6:30 a. m. the following bulletin by the attending physicians was the only indication of the condition of the president's wounds:

"The president passed a good night and is resting comfortably this morning; temperature 100.4 degrees, pulse 121, respiration 24."

It was a few minutes after 4 p. m., while President McKinley was holding a public reception in the great Temple of Music on the Pan-American grounds, that the dastardly attempt was made, with what success time alone can tell. Planned with all the diabolical ingenuity and finesse of which anarchy or nihilism is capable, the would-be assassin carried out the work without a hitch, and should his designs fail and the president survive, only to divine providence can be attributed that beneficent result.

The president, though well guarded by United States secret service detectives, was fully exposed to such an attack as occurred. He stood at the edge of the raised dais upon which stands the great pipe organ, at the east side of the magnificent structure. Throngs of people crowded in at the various entrances to gaze upon their executive, perchance and then fight their way out in the good-natured mob that every minute swelled and multiplied at the points of ingress and egress to the building.

The president was in a cheerful mood and was enjoying to the full the hearty evidences of good will which everywhere met his gaze. Upon his right stood John G. Milburn of Buffalo, president of the Pan-American exposition, chatting with the president and introducing to him especially persons of note who approached. Upon the president's left stood Mr. Cortelyou.

It was shortly after 4 p. m., when one of the throng which surrounded the presidential party, a medium-sized man of ordinary appearance and plainly dressed in black, approached as if to greet the president. Both Secretary Cortelyou and President Milburn noticed that the man's hand was swathed in a bandage or handkerchief. Reports of bystanders differ as to which hand. He worked his way amid the stream of people up to the edge of the dais, until he was within two feet of the president. President McKinley smiled, bowed and extended his hand in that spirit of geniality the American people so well know, when suddenly the sharp crack of a revolver rang out loud and clear above the hum of voices, the shuffling of a myriad feet and vibrating waves of applause that ever and anon swept here and there over the assemblage.

There was an instant of almost complete silence. The president stood stock still, a look of hesitancy, almost of bewilderment, on his face. Then he while a pallor began to steal over his features. The multitude, only partially aware that something serious had happened, paused in surprise, while necks were craned, and all eyes turned to the rostrum where a great tragedy was being enacted.

Then came a commotion. With the leap of a tiger three men threw themselves forward as with one impulse and sprang toward the would-be assassin. Two of them were United States secret service men, who were on the lookout and whose duty it was to guard against just such a calamity as had befallen the president and the nation. The third was a bystander, a negro, who had only an instant previously grasped in his dusky hand the hand of the president. As one man the trio hurled themselves upon the president's assailant. In a twinkling he was borne to the ground, his weapon was wrested from his grasp and strong arms pinioned him down.

Then the multitude which thronged the edifice began to come to a realizing sense of the awfulness of the scene of which they had been unwilling witnesses. A murmur arose, spread and swelled to a hum of confusion, then grew to a babel of sounds, and later to a pandemonium of noises. The crowds that a moment before had stood mute and motionless, as in bewildered ignorance of the enormity of the thing, now with a single impulse surged forward toward the stage of the horrid drama, while a hoarse cry welled up from a thousand throats and a thousand men charged forward to lay hands upon the perpetrator of

The Dastardly Crime.

For a moment the confusion was terrible. The crowd surged forward regardless of consequences. Men shouted and fought, women screamed and children cried. Some of those nearest the doors fled from the edifice in fear of a stampede, while hundreds of others from the outside struggled blindly forward in the effort to penetrate the crowded building and solve the mystery of excitement and panic which every moment grew and swelled within the congested interior of the edifice. But of the multitude which witnessed or bore a part in the scene of turbulence, there was but one mind which seemed to retain its equilibrium, one hand which remained steady, one eye which gazed with unflinching calmness and one voice which retained its even tenor and faltered not at the most critical juncture. They were the mind and hand and the eye and the voice of President McKinley.

After the first shock of the assassin's shot, he retreated a step; then, as the detectives leaped upon his assailant, he turned, walked steadily to a chair and seated himself, at the same time removing his hat and bowing his head in his hands. In an instant Secretary Cortelyou was at his side. His waistcoat was hurriedly opened, the president meanwhile admonishing those about him to remain calm and telling them not to be alarmed.

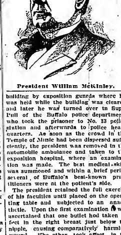
"But you are wounded," cried his secretary, "let me examine."

"No, I think not," answered the president. "I am not badly hurt, I assure you."

Trickling Stream of Blood.

Nevertheless his outer garments were hastily loosened and when a trickling stream of crimson was seen to wind its way down his breast, spreading its telltale stain over the white surface of the linen, their worst fears were confirmed.

The president's assailant in the meantime had been hustled to the rear of the building by exposition guards where he was held while the building was cleared and later he was turned over to Supt. Bull of the Buffalo police department, who took the prisoner to No. 13 police station and afterwards to police headquarters. As soon as the crowd in the Temple of Music had been dispersed sufficiently, the president was removed in the automobile ambulance and taken to the exposition hospital, where an examination was made. The best medical skill was summoned and within a brief period several of Buffalo's best-known practitioners were at the patient's side.



President William McKinley.

The president retained the full exercise of his faculties until placed on the operating table and subjected to an anaesthetic. Upon the first examination it was ascertained that one bullet had taken effect in the right breast just below the nipple, causing comparatively harmless wound. The other took effect in the abdomen, about four inches below the left nipple, four inches to the left of the navel and about on a level with it.

Upon arrival at the exposition hospital the second bullet was probed for. The walls of the abdomen were opened but the Ball Was Not Located.

The incision was hastily closed and after a hasty consultation it was decided to remove the patient to the home of President Milburn. This was done, the automobile ambulance being used for the purpose. Arrived at the Milburn residence all persons outside the medical attendants, nurses and the officials immediately concerned, were excluded and the task of probing for the bullet which had lodged in the abdomen was begun by Dr. Roswell Parke. When the news of the crime was telephoned to the home of President Milburn where Mrs. McKinley was resting, immediate steps were taken to spare her the shock of a premature statement before the true condition of the president could be ascertained. Guards were stationed and no one was permitted to approach the house.

When it was decided to remove the president from the exposition hospital to the Milburn residence, the news was broken to Mrs. McKinley as gently as might be by the members of the Milburn family. She bore the shock remarkably well and displayed the utmost fortitude.

While the wounded president was being borne from the exposition to the Milburn residence between rows of onlookers with bared heads, a far different spectacle was being witnessed along the route of his assailant's journey from the scene of his crime to police headquarters. The trip was made so quickly that the prisoner within the portals of the police station and the doors closed before anyone was aware of his presence.

Was Safely Landed

Then bulletins began to appear on the boards along Newspaper Row, and when the announcement was made that the prisoner had been taken to police headquarters, only two blocks distant from the newspaper section, the crowds surged down toward the terrace, eager for a glimpse of the prisoner. In a few minutes the crowd had grown from tens to hundreds and thousands until the street was completely blocked with a mass of humanity. It was at this juncture that some one raised the cry of "Lynch him!" Like a flash the cry was taken up, and the whole crowd, as if ignited by the single match thus applied, re-echoed the cry "Lynch him! Hang him!" Closer the crowd surged forward. Denser the throng became as new arrivals swelled each moment the swaying multitude. The situation was becoming critical, when suddenly the big doors were flung open and a squad of reserves advanced with solid front, drove back from the curb, then across the street and gradually succeeded in dispersing them from about the entrance to the station. Inside the station house were District Attorney Penny, Superintendent of Police Bull, Capt. Reagan of the First precinct and other officials. The prisoner first gave his name as Fred Nieman, said his home was in Detroit, and that he had been in Buffalo about a week.

Prisoner Confesses.

He at first admitted that he was an anarchist in sympathy at least, but denied strenuously that the attempt on the life of the president was a result of a preconcerted plot on the part of any anarchist society. At times he was defiant and again indifferent. But at no time did he betray the remotest sign of remorse. After long and persistent questioning it was announced at police headquarters that the prisoner had made a partial confession which he had signed.

As near as can be learned the facts contained in the confession are as follows:

The man's name is Leon Czolgosz. He is an avowed anarchist and an ardent disciple of Emma Goldman, whose teachings, he alleges, are responsible for the attack on the president. He denies steadfastly that he is the instrument of any body of anarchists or the tool of any coterie of plotters. He declares he did not have a confederate. His only reason for the deed, he declares, is that he believed the present form of government in the United States was unjust, and he concluded the most effective way to remedy it was to kill the president.

HASTENING TO BUFFALO.

Cabinet Ministers Leave for the Bedside of the President.

New York, Sept. 8. — When Secretary of War Root, who was at Southampton, L. I., heard that the president had been shot, he immediately began arranging to start for New York and thence to Buffalo. When seen to-night he said: "I cannot talk. What is there to say? It is terrible, terrible."

Mr. Root left on a special train for Long Island City a few minutes before 8 o'clock. The engineer of the train said he had been given the right of way.

Buckfield, Me., Sept. 7.—Hon. John D. Long, secretary of the navy, who has been passing his vacation at the Long homestead, two miles from this place, was deeply affected by the news, which came to him while he was at the village. He proceeded to his home at once, declaring that he was undecided about future plans on account of the suddenness of the news. The secretary positively refused to say anything for publication.

Philadelphia, Sept. 7.—Postmaster General Smith was greatly affected by the news of the shooting of President McKinley and expressed himself as shocked beyond measure. Mr. Smith said he hoped the president's injuries might not prove so serious as was at first intimated. Mr. Smith left here on a late train for Buffalo.

Dublin, N. H., Sept. 7.—Secretary Hitchcock, who has been stopping at Mount Monadnock, when informed of the tragic incident at Buffalo, said: "I am too horrified to make any expression whatever." He immediately prepared to leave for Buffalo.

GRIEF IN ENGLAND.

Horror and Sympathy as Keen as If It Had Been Their King.

London, Sept. 8.—The news of the attempt upon the life of President McKinley spread slowly in London. The first ticker reports were discredited; then, with the confirmation and the general dissemination of the news, arose a far-reaching feeling of sorrow and indignation which, wherever Americans were gathered, almost gained the proportions of a panic, accompanied by feverish anxiety for further details. The thousands of Americans now in London were mostly at the theaters when the news arrived, and returning to their hotels, found anxious groups of Englishmen and Americans discussing what, without distinction of race, is regarded as a national calamity. Comparatively few Englishmen heard the news last night, but all these expressed horror and sympathy as genuine as if it had been the king instead of the president. The latter's kindly personality, his friendship for England, and his kindly message of condolence upon the occasion of Queen Victoria's death, were recalled, in voices as low and awe-stricken as those of any purely American gathering.

All the newspapers this morning publish long accounts of the attempted assassination of President McKinley. Their editorials are unanimous in their expressions of horror at the dastardly crime and profess the profoundest sympathy for the president.

ROOSEVELT SHOCKED.

Vice President Starts Immediately for Buffalo.

Burlington, Vt., Sept. 8.—Vice President Roosevelt on his arrival here from Isle La Motte, started at once for Buffalo. To the Associated Press representative he said: "I am too shocked and grieved to express my feelings."

A few minutes later when a bulletin was handed to him saying that President McKinley's wound was not fatal, the vice president sent word to the gathering:

"Like all our people and like the whole civilized world, you will rejoice to hear this good news."

President Clement of the Rutland railroad placed a train at the disposal of the vice president and made arrangements to take him to the scene of the tragedy. Col. Roosevelt was asked for a statement for publication and said:

"I am so inexpressibly grieved, shocked and horrified that I can say nothing."

He boarded the train and left for Buffalo.

PRESIDENT MAY RECOVER

CONDITION GIVES STRONG HOPE THAT HIS LIFE WILL BE SPARED.

NOT AN UNFAVORABLE SYMPTOM

Physicians Unanimously of the Opinion That What Change Has Occurred Is for the Better — President by No Means Out of Danger — Possibility of Peritonitis or Septic Poisoning — Vice President Roosevelt Extremely Optimistic — Messages of Sympathy Pour In From All Quarters of the Globe — Mrs. McKinley Bears Up Bravely.

Buffalo, Sept. 9. — Through the quiet, peaceful Sabbath, every word that came from the big vine-clad house in Delaware avenue in which the stricken chief magistrate of the nation lies battling for life was reassuring and the chances of his recovery are so greatly improved that all of those who have kept the patient vigil at his bedside feel strongly that his life will be spared. The developments of Saturday night and yesterday were dreaded, but hour after hour passed and the distinguished patient, struggling there beneath the watchful eyes of physicians and trained nurses, showed not an unfavorable symptom. Five times during the day the eminent doctors and surgeons assembled for consultation and each time the verdict was unanimous that what change had occurred was for the better. Not the slightest premonitory symptom of peritonitis appeared and the fresh hope borne with the morning grew stronger and stronger as the day advanced until toward evening the confidence expressed in the president's recovery seemed almost sanguine.

Dr. Charles McBurney, the famous New York surgeon who had been summoned in consultation, after a thorough examination in which he said he had found not a single joined in the last bulletin which declared that the president's condition was satisfactory to all the physicians present. It is not strange that the vice president and other distinguished visitors who called came away with lighter hearts and buoyant tread and gave expression to the most optimistic sentiments.

Despite all this optimism, the president is by no means out of danger. Not one of his physicians, not one of his advisors who is admitted to the inner councils, has the temerity to go so far as to declare that he is. But if he continues to improve for one more day the danger of peritonitis, which is most dreaded, will have practically disappeared. Saturday one of the doctors thought forty-eight hours would be the limit of the danger from that source, but his most conservative colleagues put it at at least twenty-four hours, possibly thirty-six, from last evening, which must elapse before the possibility of peritonitis shall have vanished. That disposed of, still other complications may arise. Blood poisoning might set in or an abscess form where the bullet is imbedded in the muscles of the back. Thus far the ball of the assassin, which is still in the body, gives the physicians no anxiety. But if the appears in the region of the lead it will be extracted. No difficulty is expected in this regard. One of Edison's best X-ray machines and his most skilled and trusted operator, Dr. H. A. Knolla, arrived yesterday. The batteries were charged and the machine is ready for instant use. With it the physicians say there is not the slightest doubt that the ball can be located perfectly for operation. They do not deem it advisable to sap any of the president's strength at this time. All his reserve force is needed now to resist the danger of peritonitis and septic poisoning. Besides, if inflammation does not set in around the bullet it will soon become encrusted.

All the effects of the ether which was administered when the operation was performed on the exposition grounds had disappeared yesterday morning and the president's mind was perfectly clear during the time that he was awake. Yesterday for the first time he enjoyed a natural sleep. While he was still more or less under the influence of the anaesthetic his slumber was restless and disturbed and did him little real good. Yesterday between 9 and 4 o'clock he had the solace for about four hours and the physicians stated unofficially that his sleep had been "quiet and restful," and had helped the sufferer a great deal. Yesterday, also, for the first time nourishment was administered. It was in liquid form and was injected hypodermically to avoid the possibility of irritating the wall of the stomach. The exterior wound was dressed yesterday morning and is progressing satisfactorily. All day the members of the cabinet and others associated with the president in public life came solicitously and went away almost jubilantly, all reflecting the hopeful outlook at the Milburn house.

Vice President Roosevelt received the earlier bulletins, and after going to church, hurried to the residence. There he was joined by Senator Hanna. They came away together and gave expression to the most confident and encouraging sentiments. The vice president not only shared the cheerful feeling, but was extremely optimistic. Both gentlemen took occasion to denounce in unmeasured terms the statements gaining circulation in some quarters that the doctors were not frank in their communications to the public. They maintained that the president's favorable condition was even understated by the physicians, through motives of conservatism, during the seventy-two hours' period.

Tell the Whole Truth.

Later Secretary Cortelyou took occasion to emphasize this very point by issuing an official statement assuring the public of the complete trustworthiness of the news sent out.

All the members of the cabinet are now here except Secretaries Hay and Long. The former telegraphed yesterday that he would start from Newberry to-day, probably in time to be here to-night. Secretary Long also telegraphed that he was coming, but did not specify the time. The cabinet officers feel it to be their duty to be here in this crisis to meet any emergency. They are holding no formal meetings, although there are some matters of public business which they daily discuss informally, and the possible contingencies should the president grow worse are also thoroughly canvassed. They do not believe that there is the most remote possibility that Vice President Roosevelt will be called upon to exercise the functions of chief magistrate under the disability clause of the constitution while the president lives. Vice President Roosevelt would not hear of such a course.

Vice President Roosevelt's attendance at the morning service of the First Presbyterian church gave occasion for a heartfelt expression of the sorrow universally felt over the calamity and the detestation of

The Assassin's Methods.

A fervid prayer by the pastor, Dr. Mitchell, invoked the sternest reprobation of anarchy and asked that the temples of public life be scourged of men willing to temporize with the madness of anarchy.

The interest in the president's condition was such across the Canadian border that the Associated Press was asked to furnish a bulletin yesterday morning to be read in the churches in Quebec and Montreal and many requests of a similar character came direct to Secretary Cortelyou from different parts of the United States. The messages of sympathy from all over the United States, and all over the world, in fact, have fairly overwhelmed Secretary Cortelyou. Two more White House stenographers have been sent for, and upon their arrival some of the more important messages will be made public. Almost every government in the world has been heard from, most of the crowned heads of Europe sending personal messages. Among the latter are King Edward, Emperor William, the kings of Portugal, Italy and Sweden and the sultan of Turkey. President Loubet of the republic of France has also cabled his sympathy direct.

Mrs. McKinley's Fortitude.

Mrs. McKinley continues to bear up bravely and her fortitude is regarded as remarkable. One of her dearest and closest friends, Mrs. Rand of Washington, has arrived here and will probably remain with her during this trying period.

The members of the cabinet are doing everything in their power to prevent the sensational exploitation of Czolgosz because he undoubtedly craves notoriety and because his fellow anarchists throughout the country love it. They do not desire to place any stone in the path of the authorities who are laboring to unravel the plot, if any plot existed, and all the minions of the government secret service will be used to aid the state authorities in the prosecution of their investigation. But by the direct request of Secretary Root on behalf of his colleagues, the district attorney and the police will not permit the prisoner to be seen or interviewed, nor will they discuss the methods or the results of their efforts to discover the originators of the plot. All that has leaked out from the jail shows that the prisoner is vain and boastful of his crime and would, if given an opportunity, fill the newspapers with columns of his vaporings.

WAR ON ANARCHISTS.

United States Many Unite With Europe in Exterminating the Societies.

Washington, Sept. 9. — One effect of the attempt to assassinate President McKinley will undoubtedly result in a movement, both in this country and in Europe, to pursue the anarchists and to exterminate them if possible. It is unfortunately true that there is no law upon the statute books of this country, nor can one be placed there until the constitution is amended relating to the right of free speech, which gives power to the authorities to deal with the anarchists. At present the anarchists can abuse the right of free speech, and until they have committed an overt act—which probably means the taking of the life of the president or some high official—the hand of the law cannot be placed upon them. It is true, however, that it is possible to break up anarchistic meetings which are likely to cause riots, and this is frequently done. Action of this kind, however, has no real effect in stamping out the organizations. Expressions of opinion from all parts of the country indicate that the people are now in a mood to resort to the most radical measures to rid the country of the anarchists. Some persons go so far as to say that individuals and organizations claiming to be anarchists should from this hour be denounced as public enemies and hunted like wild beasts.

H. O. ARMOUR DEAD.

Suddenly Expires While Talking to Friends.

Saratoga, N. Y., Sept. 9. — Herman O. Armour of 856 Fifth avenue, New York, was fatally stricken with apoplexy here this noon. He was conversing with friends on the piazza of his cottage when suddenly his head dropped to one side and he expired almost immediately. In the morning he enjoyed his usual drive and appeared much refreshed by his outing. Mr. Armour arrived in Saratoga early in the season and occupied the Gen. Winson B. French residence, 718 North Broadway, as his summer home.

Bullet in His Head.

Washburn, Wis., Sept. 9.—John Kennedy, a woodsman at work in Leonard's camp, was brought to the hospital in this city with a bullet hole in his head. He was found alone in one of the camp buildings, shot and unconscious. The bullet had entered the head on the top and the affair looks very much as though there had been foul play. Kennedy remained unconscious and died in the evening. The matter is an absolute mystery.

HANNA IN TEARS

THE SENATOR GREATLY AFFECTED

Tears Stream Down His Face While He Talks of the Work of the Assassin.

Cleveland, Sept. 6.—"My God it can't be possible!" cried Senator Hanna this afternoon when a dispatch was read to him saying that President McKinley had been shot. It is terrible and I am too shocked to express my feeling," he added.

The senator was prostrated by the news and begged that all dispatches relating to the condition of the president be telephoned to him as fast as they arrived. When convinced that the news from Buffalo was true, Senator Hanna said:

"I cannot say anything about it. It is too horrible even to contemplate, to think that such a thing could happen to so splendid a man as President McKinley, and at this time and upon such an occasion. It is horrible, awful. Mr. McKinley never had any fear of danger from that source. Of course, I never talked to him upon such a subject, but I know he never even dreamed of anything like this happening. I cannot be interviewed upon this. It is too awful."

To a reporter he exclaimed: "What is this great country coming to when such men as Lincoln, Garfield and McKinley fall by the bullet of assassins?

"I shall hurry to the bedside of the president as rapidly as the train will take me. I only hope that he is not seriously injured, but I am afraid that my hopes will be in vain. I do want to reach the president before he dies, if he is going to die. Nobody can be safe from the work of an insane man, it seems. It is terrible."

As the senator boarded a car, tears were streaming down his face.

W. J. BRYAN TALKS

SHOCK TO ENTIRE COUNTRY.

Hopes the Shot Was Fired by an Insane Man and Not for Malice or Revenge.

Lincoln, Neb., Sept. 6.—Following the receipt of the news of the attempt on the president's life, W. J. Bryan sent a brief message to President McKinley expressing his concern. Mr. Bryan gave out the following statement:

"The attempted assassination of the president is a shock to the entire country and he and his wife are the recipients of universal sympathy. The dispatches say that the shot was fired by an insane man and it is hoped that this is true, for while it is a terrible thing for a president to be the victim of the act of a maniac, it would be even worse for him to be fired upon by a sane person prompted by malice or revenge. In a republic, where the people elect their officials and can remove them, there can be no excuse for a resort to violence. If our president were in constant fear of plots and conspiracies, we would soon sink to the level of those nations in which force is the only weapon of the government and the only weapon of the government's enemies."

GREATLY SHOCKED

CLEVELAND HORRIFIED AT ACT.

Says He Cannot Conceive of the Motive and Thinks the Man Must Be Crazy.

Winstead, Conn., Sept. 6.—Ex-President Grover Cleveland was fishing at Darling lake, near Tyringham, Mass., when he received the news regarding the shooting of President McKinley.

He at once started for the shore in order to hear more details in regard to the matter, and anxiously asked for the latest advices from Mr. McKinley's bedside. Mr. Cleveland was horrified at the news and said:

"With all American citizens, I am greatly shocked at this news. I cannot conceive of a motive. It must have been the act of a crazy man."

TRIBUTE BY GAGE

SECRETARY SPEAKS FEELINGLY.

He Declares That President McKinley Is the Greatest Man of Our Times.

Elkhart, Ind., Sept. 6.—One of the highest possible tributes paid to President McKinley was that uttered by Lyman J. Gage, secretary of the treasury, who left Chicago for Buffalo. In a quiet private talk with S. J. Lewellyn, Secretary Gage remarked:

"There is not a member of the cabinet but that would rather be in the president's place to-night than that the country should lose the president. He is calm, brave, quiet, high-minded and superior in every respect. Only his cabinet can appreciate, with their five years of close association, what this all means. President McKinley is typical of the highest development of the true American citizen. During the years I have been associated with the president I have never heard one word of malice toward any one. He absolutely had no ill feeling toward any person. The greatest man of our times, with no love of wealth, honors or power, only wishing to do his duty to his country and his God."

ALGER HEARS NEWS.

Words Cannot Express How Deeply He Feels.

Detroit, Sept. 6.—When Secretary Cortelyou's bulletin of President McKinley's condition was read to ex-Secretary of War Alger this evening he was rejoiced to hear that the president had passed through the operation so successfully. He said of the attempted assassination:

"It was a profound and awful shock to both Mrs. Alger and myself. Words can not express how deeply we feel for the president and his devoted wife. I have already telegraphed the sympathy of myself and Mrs. Alger to Secretary Cortelyou."

Gen. Alger plainly showed in his face and manner how keenly he felt the shock.

MRS. M'KINLEY HEARS THE NEWS.

She Is Considerably Affected and Asks That Her Husband Be Brought to Her.

Buffalo, Sept. 8.—Immediately the president was cared for at the exposition grounds Director General W. I. Buchanan started for the Milburn residence to forestall any information that might reach there by telephone or otherwise. Very luckily he was first to arrive with the information. The Niagara Falls trip had tired Mrs. McKinley, and on returning to the Milburn residence she took leave of her nieces, the Misses Barber, and the president's niece, Miss Duncan, as well as their hostess, Mrs. Milburn, and went to her room to rest. Mr. Buchanan broke the news as gently as possible to the nieces and consulted with them and Mrs. Milburn as to the best course to pursue in breaking the news to Mrs. McKinley. It was finally decided that Mr. Buchanan should break the news to her, if, in the meantime her physician, Dr. Rixey, had not arrived.

Mrs. McKinley awoke from her sleep at about 5:30 o'clock. She was feeling splendidly, she said, and at once took up her crocheting, which, as is well known, is one of her favorite diversions.

Immediately on Mr. Buchanan's arrival at the Milburn home he had telephonic communication cut off, as already there had been several calls, and he decided on this as the wisest course to pursue, lest Mrs. McKinley, hearing the continued ringing of the telephone bell might inquire what it meant.

While the light of day remained Mrs. McKinley continued with her crocheting, keeping to her room. When it became dusk and the president had not arrived, she began to feel anxious concerning him.

"I wonder why he does not come?" she asked one of her nieces.

There was no clock in Mrs. McKinley's room, and when it was 7 o'clock she had no idea it was so late, and this was when she began to feel anxious concerning her husband, for he was due to return to Mr. Milburn's house about 6 o'clock.

At 7 o'clock Dr. Rixey arrived at the Milburn residence. He had driven hurriedly down Delaware avenue in an open carriage. As he came up Mr. Buchanan was out on the lawn conversing with a reporter.

"Do you know," said Mr. Buchanan, "I had a sort of premonition of this? Since early morning I had been extremely nervous and feared that something might go wrong. Our trip to the falls was uneventful, but what an awful sad ending to our day."

At 7:20 o'clock Dr. Rixey came out of the house, accompanied by Col. Webb Hayes, a son of Former President Hayes, who is a friend of President McKinley. They entered a carriage and returned to the exposition hospital.

After Dr. Rixey had gone Director General Buchanan said that the doctor had broken the news in a most gentle manner to Mrs. McKinley. He said she stood it bravely, though considerably affected.

If it was possible to bring him to her she wanted it done. Dr. Rixey assured her that the president could be brought with safety from the exposition grounds, and when he left Mr. Milburn's it was to complete all arrangements for the removal of the president.

A big force of regular patrolmen was assigned to the Milburn residence.

At 7:30 Secretary of Agriculture Wilson and Miss Wilson called and were admitted to the Milburn residence.

Mrs. McKinley was allowed to see the president late to-night. She was admitted to his bedchamber, was recognized by him and kissed him. The president said to her, "Good night, my dear," and Mrs. McKinley went softly from the room.

IN DEEPEST GRIEF.

Washington Stunned By the News of the Attack on the President.

Washington, Sept. 8.—The news of the shooting of President McKinley caused a tremendous sensation. So frequent have been rumors of this sort, often put afloat in recent years for stock jobbing purposes, that the general disposition at first was to withhold full acceptance of the story, but when it was confirmed a feeling of deep gloom and profound sorrow spread over the city, for Mr. McKinley's delightful personality had endeared him to the citizens of Washington, apart from the official class, in a degree that rarely has been equalled. It was some time before the full force of the blow was appreciated, the people were stunned and they could not respond at once and fully comprehend the extent of the great disaster that had fallen on the country and themselves.

Steps were at once taken to provide for the future of the executive branch of the government. It was realized that even under the most favorable conditions, the president's injuries are of such a character as to make it almost certain that he cannot undertake for a long time to discharge the duties of chief executive, even in the most formal way. Every member of the cabinet, able to travel, is expected to speed at once to Buffalo, and there a cabinet council will be held to decide upon the course to be followed by the executive branch. Vice President Roosevelt, of course, will hold himself in readiness to do whatever is necessary and to meet the obligations imposed by the constitution of the United States. These are contained in paragraph 6, section 1, article 2, in the following words:

Upon the Vice President

"6. In case of the removal of the president from office, or of his death, resignation, or inability to discharge the powers and duties of the said office, the same shall devolve on the vice president, etc."

Under the terms of this article as soon as Mr. Roosevelt shall be assured by proper authority, probably in this case by the senior member of the cabinet, Secretary Hay, who doubtless will be in Buffalo by this evening, he will undertake at once in a provisional way to discharge such duties as may devolve on him. Much will depend upon the report of the physicians upon the character of the president's injuries, as to the extent to which Mr. Roosevelt will discharge the presidential duties, if he shall undertake them at all, and it is almost certain that, in the absence of great emergency in public affairs, even if called to assume these obligations, the vice president will confine himself in the exercise of his powers to the discharge of the most routine and indispensable functions.

For the present the thought of a fatal termination of the president's condition is referred to with awe-like apprehension, and there is a hopeful, even prayerful, anticipation that there may be no need for meeting those grave emergencies which would follow a fatal termination of the tragic event.

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 1[illegible], 1901.

For the third time within the space of half a century has the United States been disgraced in the eyes of the world by the assassination—or attempted assassination, of the nation's chief executive.

On Saturday last the world was startled by the announcement that an attempt had made to murder President McKinley, while he was attending the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo. The dastardly outrage was committed by a person who, probably unable to find room or sustenance for himself at home, left his native land and came to the United States, where he was evidently treated too well and fed too sumptuously. Perhaps his poor brain was unable to understand the beauties of our grand form of government, and, incited by the ravings of others, he became, as he has confessed, an anarchist.

Fortunately, the bullets fired by the miscreant failed to reach a vital point and the nation is now assured that the President will recover.

We hope that the country will not be disgraced with a long drawn out trial, as in the case of Guiteau, who shot President Garfield. Let justice be prompt and sufficient.

An exchange says: A hundred things happen every day that the newspaper man never sees. He does the best he can; keeps his eyes and ears open, but he is only a human being—neither omniscient nor omnipresent. You often wonder why this thing or that was not published, and maybe you say the newspaper man has his favorites. And he has. They are the people who are thoughtful enough to send what news they have to the newspaper office or invite the reporter to come where the news is.

A COUNTRY ROAD.

A dusty, stony way, whose bord'ring sod
Is thick with blackberries and goldenrod;
Atop, bare hills on one side looking down,
And from the other you can see the town
Follow the river's course through meadows green,
O'er which thick woods and maple [illegible] lean.

A little farther, where the road descends,
A brook's soft tinkle with some bird song blends.
(Gone from its edge the dear old dame's small cot Half hidden by quaint flowers); lush bergamot
Makes sweet its banks, its depths the boys still swim
Or watch the minnows from some willow limb.

Upon its bridge how often I have stood,
Watching the west, whose glory seemed to flood
With tenderest light the poorhouse and the graves
Beside it—turn to gold the brooklet's waves—
Till from the hill, oh, dearest sight of all,
I saw my father, and I heard him call!

He came with sturdy stride and swinging pail—
My hand in his—told my day's whole tale
Of joys, that 'neath his bright smile seemed to grow,
While lessened was my every childish woe,
As his sweet words fell on my soul like balm,
While we walked homeward through the fragrant calm.

A Book Hunter's Worry.

The worry of finding that a book is incomplete is often to be expected. Often most respectable looking books have a page missing somewhere. One cannot trust even a folio that has been connected with religious houses all its life. It may be invincibly bound in the strongest calf: it may have passed all its quiet, unread days behind glass and be as clean as on the day on which it was issued, and yet page 341 may have vanished.

We once knew a man who had a firm belief in the devil and for this reason: He said that he could hardly count the imperfect books by which he had been misled in his time, and in nearly every case these books had a highly respectable past. They had grown mellow in monasteries or had been carefully tended in great libraries, where they were never touched except to be dusted. It seemed morally impossible that harm could have come to these books, and yet each one had a page missing somewhere. Therefore he was reluctantly forced to the conclusion that the devil was in it. He supposed that when the devil was in need of more quotations he abstracted a page from some little read book, choosing it both in order that he might obtain a reputation for wisdom and also that he might not be found out.

We do not uphold this theory, but we do recommend the book hunter, so far as possible, to collate every book of any importance which he may contemplate buying.—Macmillan's Magazine.

Doubled the Fee.

A clergyman who used to be a pastor of a church in Kansas City says that on one occasion he had rather an amusing experience in marrying a young couple in that city.

"The gentleman," said the clergyman, "was a handsome, noble looking young man and the bride to be more than usually beautiful. It was plain to be seen that the prospective groom thought he had secured the one prize in all the matrimonial market and was correspondingly elated.

"Just before the ceremony the gentleman handed me the marriage license to see that it was all right. Inside the license there was a crisp $5 note, placed there as the fee. The couple stood up before the few witnesses in the parlor, the ceremony was gone through with, and they were pronounced husband and wife. The first thing the new husband did was to draw his wife to him and imprint a fond kiss on her sweet lips. It seemed to thrill him with unexpected joy, for, immediately turning to me, he said: 'Parson, I'll be switched if I paid you enough for this job,' and, pulling from his pocket another $5 note, he thrust it into my hands."—Baltimore Sun.

Jefferson as an Inventor.

Mr. Jefferson invented the copying press. He writes to Mr. Madison in 1787: "Having a great desire to have a portable copying machine and having studied over some experiments with the principle of large machines made to apply in the smaller one, I planned one in England and had it made. It answers perfectly. I have set a workman to making them, and they are of such demand that he has his hands full. I send you one. You must expect to make many essays before you succeed perfectly. A soft brush, like a shaving brush, is more successful than a sponge." He also sent a copying press to the Marquis de Lafayette as a present. He invented the revolving chair, now a familiar and necessary article of furniture in all offices and counting rooms. The Federalist newspapers used to call it "Mr. Jefferson's whirligig" and declared that he had devised it "so as to look all ways at once."—Chicago Herald.

Wonderful Musical Memory.

Sir John Stainer had a wonderful musical memory. It was put to the test once at the Crystal palace when he had to play the organ in the "Messiah" and a folio copy, on which alone he could see the score, was not forthcoming. The conductor was in despair. Sir John cut the knot by a wonderful tour de force, playing the part faultlessly right through and entirely from memory, probably the only time the "Messiah" has been so rendered.—London Standard.

Story Told by the Bones.

"He was probably a man of means, with a large family of daughters," the irreverent bystander commented as the skeleton was brought to view after having reposed for ages in the vault.

"Why do you think so?" asked one of the scientific persons present.

"Observe the skeleton," he replied. "See how much longer one of his legs was than the other."—Chicago Tribune.

Can't Call It Home.

Towne—That's Perkins. Looks like a tramp, doesn't he? Well, he's quite wealthy, I understand.

Browne—I know him very well. Why, he hasn't a place, really, that he can call a home.

Towne—Oh, you're mistaken there.

Browne—No; I'm not. He's an Englishman, and he invariably calls it "'ome."—Catholic Standard and Times.

A Danger.

"Do you ever look back on your life and reflect on the opportunities you have missed?" inquired the melancholy man.

"No, sir," answered the hustler. "It would be just my luck to miss some more while I was brooding over what can't be helped."—Washington Star.

He Was One of Them.

Manning—A year or two ago I advised Pitcher to write a book on the famous men he had met.

Boyd—And did he do it?

Manning—He wrote an autobiography.—Boston Transcript.

Sale of Ditching Jobs.

Notice is hereby given, that on the 23rd day of September 1901 at 10 o'clock a. m., at the auditors office in the city of Red Lake Falls, Minn., I will sell the jobs of digging and constructing the Thief River Falls ditch No. 1 of Red Lake county, established by the board of county commissioners of Red Lake county State of Minnesota, by their order bearing date August 28th 1901, viz:

All of said work in one job or, in one or more sections of 100 feet each, each of said sections to be known and numbered by stakes, as shown by the report of the Engineer in said matter, commencing at the one including the outlet, and from thence, successively, up stream to the one including the source to the lowest responsible bidder or bidders, and that bids are invited for said work; said work to be completed within the time required, and in the manner specified, in said engineer's report. And no bid will be entertained which exceeds more than thirty (30) per cent over and above the estimated cost of the construction, in any case, as stated in the said order; and the successful bidder will be required to give a satisfactory bond, to be approved by the auditor of said county, with two freehold sureties, for the faithful performance and fulfillment of his contract, and to pay all damages that may accrue by reason of his failure to complete the job within the time required in the contract. The said order and estimates and profile are on file, and may be seen at my office.

All bids must be accompanied by a certified check payable to the auditor of said county, for not less than ten per cent of the amount of each bid.

The right to reject any and all bids is hereby reserved.

An Impartial Woman.

"This is the grave of the most impartial woman on record," said the guide in Cave Hill cemetery to a party who visited the beautiful cemetery the other day. "Away over that second knoll there is a lot containing only two graves, and the headstone of each is marked 'Father.'

"The woman who is buried here was married twice, and the two graves in that lot are the graves of her two husbands. She tried her best to treat her second husband as she did the first, and even when he died she had no idea of showing any preference. But she was sick when the funeral service of her second husband was held. She directed that the partner of her second matrimonial venture be laid by the side of the first, but that enough space be left to bury her between the two.

"By some hook or crook a mistake was made, and when she visited the cemetery she found that they were buried side by side, with no space between.

"Well, sir, she didn't know what to do. She argued that if she should be buried by the side of her first husband it would not be fair to the memory of her last spouse, and vice versa. What did she do? Why, when she died she left a request that she be buried in another lot, away from both of them, and it was heeded."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Translators' Stumbling Blocks.

Some amusing instances of translators' misunderstandings are mentioned by the London Daily News. An Italian paper not long ago turned Mr. Rudyard Kipling's "Absentminded Beggar" into a "Distracted Mendicant." A footnote to the same version explained "son of a Lambeth publican" as a reference to Mr. Kruger! The translator who explains is often lost.

Another Italian editor who translated a passage from an English paper about a man who had killed his wife with a poker added an ingenious footnote to say, "We do not know with certainty whether this thing 'pokero' be a domestic or surgical instrument."

In the French version of one of Scott's novels a Welsh rabbit has to be dealt with. The translator, never having met with that article of food, naturally turned it into "un lapin de Galles." Unfortunately he had some doubt whether his countrymen would understand this and added a lengthy footnote describing how the peculiarly delicious flavor of the rabbits of Wales created a large demand for them in Scotland, whither they were exported in bulk that would compare with the trade of Ostend.

2 o'clock p. m.

Pursuant to notice dated July 30th, 1901, board met in extra session this day.

Meeting called to order by the chairman.

All members present.

Hearing was then had on Thief River Falls ditch No. 1.

Motion made by Demann seconded by Johnson that the same be established.

Motion carried unanimously and the following order was made:

Order Establishing Ditch.

State of Minnesota, } ss.
County of Red Lake. }

In the matter of the petition of Hans Langseth and others, for a public ditch in the county of Red Lake, State of Minnesota.

The above entitled matter came on duly to be heard by and before the Board of County Commissioners of the county of Red Lake, State of Minnesota, at a special meeting of said board duly called for the purpose of hearing and considering the petition for said ditch in the above entitled matter, on the 26th day August, A. D. 1901, at 2 o'clock p. m. of said day; and it appearing by proper evidence that due notice had been given of the pendency of said petition and of said time of hearing thereon and that George A. Ralph, the civil engineer appointed by this board to survey the route of said ditch, has completed his work and duly filed his report thereon in the office of the County Auditor of said county, and the viewers appointed by said board to view and report upon said work have duly completed their labors and made and filed their report in due form of law in the office of the said County Auditor, the said Board of County Commissioners did, at the time above specified; proceed to hear said petition and said viewers' report thereon; and said board having duly considerd said petition and heard all the parties interested for or against the construction of said ditch and all other matters pertaining thereto, find as follows, to-wit:

First: That the said civil engineer has completed his work and made and filed his report thereon in all respects according to law.

Second: That the said viewers appointed herein have duly completed their labors and have made and filed their report thereon according to law.

Third: That the estimated benefits to be derived from the construction of said work are greater than its total cost, including damages awarded.

Fourth: That the damages and benefits arising from the construction of said ditch have been duly awarded and assessed, and that said reports of said engineer and said viewers are complete and correct.

Fifth: That notice of this hearing of said petition and of said viewers report and said engineers report has been duly given, published and posted and mailed as by law required, and that proofs of said service of said notice have been duly made and filed in the office of the County Auditor of said county.

Now, therefore, as conclusions from the foregoing findings, we, the Board of County Commissioners of the County of Red Lake, State of Minnesota, at said special session of said board held at the time above specified, being satisfied that the proposed ditch will be of public utility and conducive to public health and public benefit and convenience, do hereby locate and establish the said ditch according to the report and specifications of said civil engineer made and filed herein; and do hereby establish and confirm the report of the viewers made and filed herein.

It is further ordered, that the damages awarded to the persons and corporations named in the viewers' report herein, in excess of benefits, be paid out of the County Treasury of said county on warrants to be drawn and attested by the auditor of said county and signed by the chairman of this board of county commissioners, and delivered to the persons entitled thereto as provided by law.

Given under our hand this 26th day of August, A. D. 1901.

Red Lake Falls, Minn.,
Aug. 23, 1901.

To the Honorable Board of County Commissioners of the County of Red Lake, Minnesota.

Gentlemen:

We, the board of audit of said county, hereby designate county depositories for said county as follows, viz:

First State Bank of Red Lake Falls.
Merchants State Bank of Red Lake Falls.
First State Bank of St. Hilaire.
First State Bank of Thief River Falls.
First National Bank of Thief River Falls.

Adam Zeh,
J. B. Hebert,
Joseph Perrault,
Board of Audit.

On motion carried unanimously the bonds of county depositor's were approved.

Commissioner Demann offered the following resolution and moved its adoption:

Whereas, At a session of this Board, duly called and held on the 21st day of July, 1900, it accepted a petition for a ditch in Terrebonne township dated May 20th, 1900 and signed by Laurent Gagner, and other land owners whose lands were liable to be effected by or assessed for, the construction of said proposed ditch, and did determine that the construction of said ditch would be of public benefit and utility and conducive to the public health, convenience and welfare; and did thereupon appoint viewers of said proposed work, as provided by law, which viewers did thereafter and on the 8th day of October, 1900, file with the auditor of this county their report, made in strict compliance with all the provisions of the law: and,

Whereas, Thereafter on the 9th day of January, 1901, at a session of this Board, duly called and held, notice of pendency of said petition, and of the filing of said viewers' report having been duly given, also the date of hearing thereof, by the auditor of the county, in strict compliance with all the provisions of the law, this Board did proceed to hear said petition; and having found that said viewers' report was made in accordance with the provisions of law, and the proposed ditch to be one of public benefit and utility and conducive to public health and of public convenience; and having found from the face of said report and the evidence submitted that the estimated benefits to be derived from the construction of the proposed ditch to be greater than the total cost of the damages awarded, and that such benefits would exceed such damages in a sufficient amount to warrant the construction thereof did locate and establish said ditch as the same was described in said viewers' report and in the plats and exhibits accompanying same: and,

Whereas, At a session of this Board, duly called and held on the 15th day of May, 1901, a resolution was adopted by this Board wherein the foregoing facts were recited and wherein also occured the following: "And, having accepted as true and correct the itemized statement and report of said viewers, which statement and report is on file and of record in the office of the County Auditor of said County, which said statement shows that the total sum of all expenses incurred or to be incurred in locating construction and establishing said ditch to be $7846.46, which sum is hereby declared to be necessary for construction of said ditch.

Now, Therefore, It is Hereby Resolved by the Board of county commissioners of Red Lake County, Minnesota, That bonds of said county in the aggregate sum of $8,000 be issued and negotiated for the purpose of raising necessary funds for defraying the expense of establishing and construction of said ditch; said bonds to be issued and dated the 15th day of May 1901, to bear interest at the rate of 4½ per centum per annum payable annually, to be eight in number and to be in denominations of $1000 each, to mature on the 15th day of May, 1911, principal and interest payable at the National Bank of Commerce in Minneapolis, Minnesota; each of said bonds to contain a recital to the effect that they are issued in accordance with the provisions and pursuant to Chap. 97 of the Laws of Minnesota for the year 1887 and acts amendatory thereto."

And Whereas, No bonds have been issued under said resolution and it now deemed advisable to modify and amend a part of said resolution of May 14th, 1901.

Now, Therefore, Be It Resolved, That so much of said resolution adopted by this Board on the 14th day of May, 1901, as is herein before expressly quoted be, and the same is hereby, amended to read as follows: to-wit, "And having accepted as true and correct the itemized statement and report of said viewers, which statement and report is on file and of record in the office of the County Auditor of said County; and having also accepted as true and correct the itemized statement and report of the auditor of this county, made in compliance with the provisions of Section 7810 of the General Statutes of 1894 and of the amendments thereto which statement of said auditor was filed in the office of the county auditor on the 13th day of May, 1901 which statement and report shows that the total cost of said ditch to be the sum of $7846.46."

"Be It Resolved. That said sum of $7846.46, and the further sum of $200 for items of expense not included in said auditor's statement are hereby declared to be necessary for the construction of said ditch from its inception to its completion which ditch has been designated by the County Auditor and is hereby designated and called "Terrebonne Ditch No. 2;" and,

"Be It Further Resolved, That bonds of this county in the aggregate sum of $8,000 be issued, negotiated and sold for the purpose of defraying so far as may be, the expense incurred, or to be incurred, in locating constructing and establishing said ditch, at least, said sum being necessary to cover the expense of said ditch from its inception to its completion, said bonds to be dated the 2nd day of September 1901, to mature the 2nd day of September 1911, to bear interest at the rate of 4½ per centum per annum payable annually, to be eight in number in the denomination of $1000 each, principal and interest payable at the National Bank of Commerce in Minneapolis, Minnesota: each of said bonds to contain a recital to the effect that it is issued in accordance with the provisions and pursuant to the authority of Chap. 97 of the Laws of Minnesota for the year 1887 and acts amendatory thereto: and,

"Be It Further Resolved. That said bonds and the coupons to be thereto attached be substantially in the following form, to-wit:

(Form for bonds.)

FOR THE CHILDREN

A Famous Game of Ball.

In 1763, on the 4th of June, loyal British subjects everywhere were celebrating King George's birthday. Over here in America at Fort Michilimackinac, overlooking the beautiful strait of Mackinac, the English soldiers were invited by the Ojibwas and the Sacs to watch a game of ball they were to play that afternoon. The Indian game was the same that is now known as lacrosse in Canada. Glad to celebrate the birthday in some way, many of the officers and soldiers readily accepted the invitation, and not more than half of them remained at the fort.

It seems a little strange that the soldiers should have responded so promptly to the invitation, for they knew that the Indians were very hostile to the English. Their sympathies were with the French, who had originally occupied the fort, and they were influenced, too, by the Canadians, who regarded the English as rivals in the fur trade.

The game took place on the plain in front of the fort. In the crowd that gathered to watch it were many soldiers without arms, many blanketed squaws, many Canadians and a number of Indian chiefs and warriors. There were two goal posts at opposite ends of the plain, and each side tried to defend its goal and drive the ball.

All at once the ball was thrown high into the air and fell very near the pickets of the fort. Then in a moment the Indians changed from interested ball players into the fiercest of warriors. Apparently in pursuit of the ball, they rushed toward the gate and, before the English could realize what was happening, had entered the fort.

The blanketed squaws had been concealing hatchets and muskets all this time, and these they handed to the Indians as they ran after the ball. Some of the Indians fell upon those who had gathered outside; others attacked those on the inside. A massacre such as the Indian alone is capable of followed, and thus by a clever ruse the important military post at Mackinac passed from the possession of the English into the hands of the Indians.

Duke.

A few years ago we owned a large dog by the name of Duke, writes Josephine Maguire to the Philadelphia Ledger. He was a wise old fellow and loved to play with children. He would allow my little 4-year-old brother to pull his hair and sit on him. The dog would not show the slightest annoyance. One moonlight night we were all sitting on the front piazza except my mother, who had gone up stairs to put our little brother to bed. She remarked as she came down again that we had better come in and have some music, as it was getting cooler. Some hours after that we were annoyed in the middle of the game by Duke scratching on the piazza door and otherwise behaving as no dignified old dog should. We paid no attention to him, but he commenced barking and scratching again. At last my brother walked out, and Duke went on ahead, wagging his tail and looking behind him. Down at the very foot of our garden was a small river, and there my brother found our little brother lying on the bank fast asleep. The wee toddler had walked out in his sleep, as my mother had left the door open. Of course she was frightened when she saw my brother come in with the child whom she had put to bed some time ago. Duke was a much petted dog after that, and many offers were made to buy him, but we all said that we would not sell him for his weight in gold.

Mexican Cowboys Lasso a Woman

Three Mexican half breeds came riding into the little town of Corona, that lies about 23 miles south of San Bernardino, Cal., a few days ago. They were cowboys. It was pay day for them, and they were on pleasure bent. They laid in a foundation of hard liquor and then started in to shoot up the town. Galloping wildly from end to end of the street, they flourished their revolvers and fired them in the air. This they varied by unwinding their lariats and whirling them at everything in sight.

Suddenly they saw quietly walking along in the distance two ladies, Mrs. T. P. Drinkwater and Miss Grace Shepard. With the madness of drunkenness upon them they galloped toward them, whooping and swinging their lariats, and before the ladies had an opportunity to save themselves or indeed were aware of their danger or conscious that they were the objects of the wild onslaught the lariat nooses came singing toward them. One dropped over the shoulders of Mrs. Drinkwater, but the big hat she was wearing saved her, and she managed to extricate herself before it could be tightened around her.

Miss Shepard was not so fortunate. The lariat of the half breed Francisco Quevas caught her. As soon as he saw it drop over her head he gave a shout, put spurs to his horse and set off at a gallop, utterly careless of whether he was dragging her to death or not. Fortunately for her the loop did not catch around her neck. It fell over her body and tightened about her knees, and she caught it and held it in such a manner as to protect her head as she was dragged along. For several hundred feet she was thumped and scraped along the rough street until her screams and the indignant cries of the people who saw the outrage so frightened the fellow that he dropped the lariat and galloped away.

This was more than the townspeople could stand. A posse was made up and soon captured the cowboys. Francisco Quevas is now serving two years in San Quentin prison.

Fierce Wild Hogs Tree Hunters

Bernard T. Cannon and B. Allison had an exciting experience with the wild hogs which are numerous in the great marshes of Holland's point, in Anne Arundel county, Md., not long ago. Mr. Cannon tells the story:

"Late in the evening we landed at Fair Haven, and early on the following morning, accompanied by our dogs and provisions enough for two days, we arrived at the Holland point marshes. There was plenty of sport, and the dogs soon struck a trail which led into the pine woods. We followed them, with guns ready to fire at the first appearance of a hog. Suddenly the baying of the dogs changed into a terrific howl, and through an opening in the heavy timber we saw the dogs in their last agonies of death, while over them and all around them was the fiercest bunch of wild hogs I have ever seen. They were of all colors and shades and were grunting and squealing with rage, the froth dripping from their mouths. In a few seconds the dogs were torn to pieces.

"As there were at least a dozen of them and the majority were old boars, with murderous looking tusks, we thought it a good time to disappear. As we turned one of the boars saw us, and, with a grunt which evidently meant the order for a charge, they made for us. Our guns were forgotten in an instant and fell to the ground, while we both scrambled up the nearest tree. We gained the limbs in safety, and the brutes held an excited council of war, with the result that we were kept prisoners up the tree throughout the day.

"At nightfall the whole band moved off, and we ventured down."

Dorothy Washington, aged 107 years 5 months and 2 days, is dead at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Ann Hopkins, at Duluth. She was the oldest person living in Duluth, and, so far as is known, she was the oldest in the state. She was a colored woman and was clear of head and active up to a short time before her death.

The SPORTING WORLD

Baxter's Trip Abroad.

I. K. Baxter, the famous athlete of the University of Pennsylvania, who left this country for England a few days ago, will tour Great Britain in the quest of men willing to put his prowess to test.

Baxter holds the world's record for the running high jump. He is one of the greatest track and field performers ever produced in the United States.

I. K. BAXTER.

Arthur Duffy, the Georgetown flier, will join Baxter shortly on the other side. Duffy is alone in the 100 yard dash class, and together these cracks should "throw a scare" of no small dimensions into the Britishers.

Philadelphia's Speedway.

Before many months shall have passed Philadelphia will have one of the finest speedways in the world.

For years past there has been an increasing demand from the owners of fast horses for a roadway where their animals could be "let out" to test their speed. They pointed out that nowhere in all the miles of drives in the great Philadelphia park system was there any place set aside for the man whose horse could do better than seven miles an hour, the whole area being dedicated to the speed of the family coach horse, and if some spirited nag let his nimble hoofs move at a gait faster than the park guard thought was good for somebody else his master was liable to a fine.

The cost of the speedway will be about $200,000 and when completed will be superior to any other in this country except that of New York.

In the matter of the roadbed the construction will be the best that modern experiments have decided on, and the greatest care will be given to the selection of the loam which will constitute the bed and to the rolling of it.

Interest in track racing has greatly diminished in Philadelphia in recent years with the consequent decrease of interest in fast horses. In fact, there has been almost an entire disappearance of a certain class of horses from this vicinity.

The construction of the speedway, however, is expected to revive interest in fast horses as it did in New York.

New Jumping Record.

In three standing broad jumps Ray C. Ewry covered a distance of 34 feet 9½ inches at the recent games of the Knickerbocker Athletic club of New York, adding an inch and a half to the former world's record.

The jump was accomplished without apparent exertion and is all the more remarkable in the light of the scores of the second and third men, each of whom fell three feet short of the winner.

Ewry's new record is almost twice as much as could be accomplished by the ordinary individual in three standing jumps, six to seven feet being a creditable performance for each jump. The record, measured off on a city lot, is more than one-third the regulation length and almost once and a half the width.

No International Golf.

At a meeting held in Toronto of the executive committee of the Canadian association the dates for the championships and interprovincial match were fixed for Sept. 25-28, the games to be played on the links of the Toronto Golf club. The international match with the United States, which was inaugurated two years ago on the suggestion of the Canadian Golf association, has been dropped, although an invitation from the United States Golf association to send a team had been received.

World's Revolver Record.

C. S. Richmond of Savannah has the world's record as a revolver shot. He raised the record by one point on the Avondale rifle range at Savannah, Ga. With five persons witnessing the score Richmond fired 100 shots at 50 yards and scored 918 points out of a possible 1,000. The previous record holder was Anderton of Boston, with 917 points.

FACING AWFUL DEATHS

Hazardous Vocation Of the Lumbermen of the Alsatian Mountains

News comes from Strossburg, in Alsace, Germany, of another cruel accident in the Vogesen mountains by which a shlitteur, missing his footing, was crushed by his sled laden with lumber. The labor of the Alsatian shlitteur, or sledder, is unique, and no other method of lumbering compares with it for drudgery and danger of a most appalling nature!

Almost all the lumbering in the Vogesen mountains is done at great heights, for the best trees grow near the peaks. So steep are the inclines down which the felled lumber must be brought that no mountain torrents are available for transporting it. Owing to the fact that the only paths are winding ones, no shoots can be built to facilitate the work. It has to be done by sheer bodily labor of individuals. These men are called sledders, or shlitteurs. Coarse black bread, salt pork and potatoes form their only fare.

When the shlitteurs reach the scene of their labors, their first task is to build the track for the sleds. This is work demanding experience, talent and great strength. The entire region must be studied minutely and the declivities measured with an eye that does not make mistakes. The roadway or track must be laid so that it will form a regularly sloping path that the heavy sleds will not need to be pulled and yet will not suddenly get an accelerated motion owing to too sudden an incline. Therefore it is necessary often to lay it in all kinds of roundabout ways. Every precipitous place must be avoided. Mountain torrents and chasms must be bridged.

BRACING HIS MIGHTY LOAD

As soon as the line has been laid out the laborers begin with the building of it. Huge trees are laid end to end and spiked together to form the side rails; crosspieces are fastened to them at about the same distance apart from each other as are the rungs of a ladder.

The sleds are made of strong but light wood, as the shlitteurs must carry them up the mountains on their backs after they deliver their loads in the valley. The runners of these sleds are covered with thin layers of wood which has to be changed frequently, because it takes fire often and chars owing to the heat engendered by the enormous friction.

As these sled roads often are from four to eight miles long, it is essential that as large loads as possible be transported on each trip. Owing to this fact the shlitteurs pile the lumber up in incredible quantities. Then, when the sleds have as much as even a shlitteur dares to pile on them, he braces himself in front of the immense load, a comrade gives the sled a shove, and the huge mass begins to slide. There is no appliance of any kind to act as a brake. All the braking must be done by the man in front, and he needs the strength of an ox to prevent his juggernaut from beginning to race.

Step by step he moves forward, never moving one foot until the other is braced tightly against a rung. Even the least slip means that the vast load will drive down irresistibly on the shlitteur and crush him. Let his knees weaken for an instant, let his heel falter as he feels for the rung, and the ponderous thing behind him is ready to grind him to pieces under it.

There is no chance of escape for the shlitteur. He cannot run down the rude track as fast as the loaded sled behind him. If he fails to hold it back, he is a dead man, for even if he should not be killed outright there is little hope for him, as it is impossible to get medical aid in the Vogesen, and what little rude surgery can be performed by the shlitteurs themselves is not of much use when limbs are torn clean from the body or internal organs are crushed. And these are the common injuries.

Most of the accidents happen so suddenly that the mates of the victim can do nothing to avert them. Shlitteurs have been killed without even having been run over. The load behind them, starting forward suddenly, has actually compressed them so fiercely that they succumbed to internal injuries brought on by the terrific strain and by the twisting which their bodies underwent in the effort to hold the load steady. Sometimes sudden turns in the track throw the sled out of balance, and it topples over into the abyss. Usually the shlitteur goes with it, as he is so firmly interlocked with his load in order to guide it safely that he cannot break away in time.

The traveler through the Vogesen will see many black wooden crosses along almost every mountain path and even on the sides of what seem impassable declivities. Each one commemorates a shlitteur who died in the course of his hazardous work.

Bernhardt on American Women.

Sarah Bernhardt has given her opinions on the American women to an interviewer whom she saw between the acts of "L'Aiglon" at the Theatre de la Monnaie at Brussels the other evening. Some of her assertions are far from the truth, but they are interesting nevertheless. The great tragedienne is entirely favorable to the transatlantic method of female education. "I find the American women far superior to our women," she said. "The American woman leads a very different life—a life of which we have no idea in France. The sexes have absolutely distinct and separate spheres of life. The woman is an intellectual being in the widest sense of the word. Her husband works for her at his workshop, factory or office from 6 o'clock in the morning to 6 o'clock in the evening, while the wife is at her club or engaged in sports, literature, science, music or art. In America home scarcely exists. People live in hotels or employ housekeepers. The American woman is pretty and dresses in good taste. She marries as late as possible, and that is easy to understand, as she enjoys absolute freedom, and, what is more, the laws are all in her favor. In Europe girls have only one object in life, and that is to escape from the family hearth and get married. In America they are in no hurry to enter the bonds of matrimony because to them marriage brings an obligation from which the unmarried are free." To sum up, Mme. Bernhardt is convinced of the tremendous superiority of the American woman over her French sister.

Women Guides In Europe.

For the guidance of the women of Chicago who propose to visit Europe during the summer a journal of that city publishes the following piece of advice and information:

"The Chicago woman who contemplates a trip to London this summer would do well to remember that one institution in the British capital is of special value to the visiting stranger. Reference is made to the women guides, whose express purpose is to supply women tourists with members of their own sex to pilot them safely over the popular tours of England and the British isles—in fact, over any part of the continent of Europe into which the tourist may wish to penetrate. These guides are women of culture and must speak French, German and English, else their applications for these rather agreeable berths will not be considered. They tip the servants, pay the cabby, point out the distinguished people met on the drives or promenades and comment intelligently upon all places of interest as these come into view, with which they must be familiar. They must also be thoroughly 'au courant' with the gossip of the town, must accompany their patronesses to the concert or the theater if desired. They are expected to work six hours daily, and they receive but 10 shillings per diem, equivalent to about $2.50 of American money, for which small sum they save the traveler every possible annoyance. They are always trustworthy, sober, obliging, frequently brilliant and interesting companions."

For Feminine Valet In Common.

It is proposed that summer hotels provide a ladies' maid for the convenience of their guests who do not engage the services of one by the month. Since bodices are so generally buttoned or fastened in other ways up the back this season, such help will be a necessity to all smart dressers. A systematic list of daily engagements, with reasonable tips, should be profitable to a young woman understanding her business, says Vogue. This leads up to a long felt want in all hotels and apartments in town, where women are constantly requiring a visiting maid and are willing to pay for such services by the hour, the day or the week. The expense of paying high wages to a maid and then adding the hotel prices for her room and board make it impossible in the majority of cases for any but very rich women to attempt it. The science of living has advanced sufficiently for this condition of things to be corrected at an early day.

At Twilight.

A rocking horse, with a painted mane,
All battered and broken with play,
Was left with a fuzzy woolen dog,
Just at the close of day.

"If I were a thoroughbred, my friend,"
Said the horse with the painted mane,
"I'd have a pedigree to reach
To Boston and back again!

"My master would feed me on sugar and oats;
Of riding he'd never tire,
And I shouldn't be left to stand like this,
Alone by the nursery fire!"

"And if I were alive," said the fuzzy dog,
"I'd like to have you know,
There'd not be a purer Skye than me
In all of the kennel show.

"I'd wear a collar of silver bells,
With a ribbon of beautiful blue,
And I'd sleep on a cushion of softest silk
And not in a stable, like you!"

The nursery fire was burning low
When a wee little man in white
Came pattering in at the open door
To kiss his toys good night.

He tenderly hugged his painted horse;
"You know I love you!" he said.
Then he gathered the dog up close in his arms
And carried him off to bed!

A Brave Dog.

Bruno, a magnificent St. Bernard belonging to a New Jersey man, had learned to lead his master's favorite horse to water by holding the halter rope in his teeth. Recently the stable caught fire and the horse was tied inside. Bruno saw the trouble, dashed into the smoking building, chewed off the halter rope and led his horse around out to safety. Such dog heroism is worthy of reward. If this dog were a man we would propose that he be toasted with "Golden Grain Belt" beer, a heroic beverage, pure as mountain dew and palatable as the nectar of the gods. It contains, in every glass the strength of bread and meat, because it is brewed from the purest barley malt and hops. Order of your dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

Notice to Corn Raisers.

We wish to again call the attention of the farmers in this vicinity to the magnificent offer made by Julius Pleth in the way of prizes for the best ten ears of corn; also the limit of time in which the contest for these prizes shall close.

Any person who wishes to be in this contest must notify Mr. Pleth, personally or by mail, on or before WEDNESDAY SEPT. 18th, as after that date until October 1st the ears will be gathered by Mr. Pleth and his assistants. ON OCTOBER 1ST the ears of corn will be judged and the prizes awarded to the winners. Any contestant wishing to cut their corn before that date may do so but the stalks bearing the ears to be gathered for this contest must be left standing. No ears brought in by contestants will be considered. They will be gathered by Mr. Pleth or his duly authorized agents and no consideration will be given any corn grown in fields of less than one acre.

The original prizes offered by Mr. Pleth were: First $75; second $50; third $25. In addition to these prizes Mr. Pleth will give three other prizes of $15, $10 and $5 for the corn taking fourth fifth and sixth places respecively.

It is most important that the contestants bear in mind the date of entries closing—Sept. 18th—the date of awarding prizes—Oct. 1st—and the fact that the ears of corn will be gathered by Mr. Pleth, or his agents, from growing stalks.

Tuesday October 1st the prizes will be awarded and after that date the winners can get the prizes in cash from Mr. Pleth at his office any time they call for it.

P. S:—Since writing the above Mr. Pleth has announced his intention of awarding a prize to the owner of the corn ranking seventh in the list of contestants. The prize will be $2 worth of Golden Grain Belt—or an Electric Bell, if preferred. Anarchists barred.

A long time ago St. Hilaire had a band. The band would play on the streets sometimes and delight the hearts of the multitude with its sweet music. This was so long ago that the people have almost forgotten it but sometimes the questions are asked, "Where has it disappeared to? Why have those sweet noises ceased?" We don't know. They say that when G. A. (briel) Peterson toots his horn they don't respond, and we fear that some of them are so tardy that they won't respond to the call on resurrection day.

Fearless and Independent.

The Chicago Record-Herald is a conspicuous example of the success with which the public rewards fearless nonpartisanship in the columns of a great metropolitan daily paper. It is an independent newspaper in which men and measures are invariably viewed wholly from the standpoint of the public good and not from that of the interests of any particular political party. It is the very reverse of neutral—fearless and outspoken on all the great questions of the day, but presenting its editorial opinion upon independent judgment and entirely regardless of political affiliations. Partisanship is barred as strictly from the news columns as from the editorial page All political news is given without partisan coloring, thus enabling the reader to form correct conclusions for himself. In the ordinary partisan newspaper political news is ordinarily colored to such an extent as to make it difficult if not impossible for the reader to secure a sound basis for intelligent judgment.

Sale of Ditching Jobs.

Notice is hereby given, that on the 23rd day of September 1901 at 10 o'clock a. m. at the auditors office in the city of Red Lake Falls, Minn., I will sell the jobs of digging and constructing the Red Lake Falls Ditch No. 1 of Red Lake county, established by the board of county commissioners of Red Lake county, State of Minnesota, by their order bearing date August 26th 1901, viz:

All of said work in one job or in one or more sections of 100 feet each, each of said sections to be known and numbered by stakes, as shown by the report of the engineer in said matter, commencing at the one including the outlet, and from thence, successively, up stream to the one including the source to the lowest responsible bidder or bidders and that bids are invited for said work; said work to be completed within the time required, and in the manner specified, in said engineer's report. And no bid will be entertained which exceeds more than thirty (30) per cent over and above the estimated cost of the construction, in any case, as stated in the said order; and the successful bidder will be required to give a satisfactory bond, to be approved by the auditor of said county, with two freehold sureties, for the faithful performance and fulfillment of his contract, and to pay all damages that may accrue by reason of his failure to complete the job within the time required in the contract. The said order and estimates and profile are on file, and may be seen at my office.

All bids must be accompanied by a certified check payable to the auditor of said county, for not less than ten per cent of the amount of each bid.

To Make Clothes Last.

Never in home dressmaking cut any kind of woolen goods until they have been sponged, as cheap material is often not dampened before it is sold. To do this properly at home, get an ironing board or table the width of the goods and cover with tightly-stretched calico. Spread your cloth, wrong side up, cover with a linen cloth that has been well wrung out in water, and then press it with a hot iron lengthwise of the goods. Never let the iron be still, and the goods must fall evenly on the floor on to a clean cloth as pressed.

Bow Bells Silenced.

Whatever may be the case with St. Paul's, partial damage has already been sustained by the historic church of St. Mary-le-Bow, the beautiful tower of which already leans twenty-three inches out of the perpendicular. This, it is stated, is caused by the vibration of the adjoining tupenny tube. The company has agreed to pay £1,000 ($5,000) by way of compensation. Meantime, owing to the dangerous condition of the belfry, the famous Bow Bells that are turned again Dick Whittington, must remain silent until the necessary underpinning operations are completed.—New York Herald.

Couldn't Wear Shoes.

Sumpter, Ill., Sept. 9th.—Mrs. J. D. Flanigan, of this place, has suffered with dropsy for fifteen years. She was so very bad that for the last three years she has not been able to wear her shoes. She had doctored all the time, but was gradually getting worse.

Last winter Mr. Flanigan, who was very much discouraged, called for some medicine at Mr. J. J. Dale's drug store in Carmi. Mr. Dale persuaded him to have his wife try Dodd's Kidney Pills, and he bought six boxes. His wife used five out of the six, before she was entirely cured. She is now as sound and well as ever she was, completely restored to health, and free from any symptom whatever of dropsy.

To say that Mrs. Flanigan is pleased at her wonderful deliverance does not half express her feelings, and she and Mr. Flanigan are loud in their praises of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and of Mr. Dale for recommending this wonderful remedy to them.

The fact that Dodd's Kidney Pills cured Mrs. Flanigan of such a severe case of dropsy, after the doctors had given her up, has made them the most talked-of remedy in White county.

The man who creeps along, bent over, with his spinal column feeling in a condition to snap like a pipestem at any minute, would readily give a great deal to get out of his dilemma, and yet this is only the commonest form by which lumbago seizes on and twists out of shape the muscles of the back. This is commonly known as backache, a crick in the back, but by whatever name it may be known, and however bad it may be, 10 minutes' vigorous rubbing with St. Jacob's Oil on the afflicted part will drive out the trouble and completely restore. It is a thing so easily caught, it may be wondered at Why there is not more of it, but because it is so easily cured by St. Jacob's Oil may be the very reason we hear so little of it.

Forestry is not the planting of trees for ornament or for shade. It is the science of raising crops of trees for profit on waste land—land that is too hilly, too rocky or too steep for cultivation. On such land, and including elevated and exposed situations, the pine will reach merchantable size in eighty years, and by its growth earn an average net revenue of 3 per cent. But this is too long for individuals to wait for a crop, and the state should buy such tracts and keep them permanently in revenue-yielding coniferous forest.

SEVEN ARE KILLED

FATAL RAILROAD WRECK OCCURS NEAR THE JAMESTOWN, N. D., DEPOT.

TRAIN STRIKES A ROAD ENGINE.

Flat Car on Which Harvest Hands Are Traveling Collapses and Five of Them Are Killed Instantly and of Six Others Hurt, Two Die of Their Injuries—Were Returning From Harvest Fields.

Jamestown, N. D., Sept. 9. — Five men were killed and six others were seriously injured near the railroad depot in this city at 3:30 a. m. yesterday morning. Two of the six injured have since died.

A mixed train came in from Oakes, carrying seventeen men on a flat car. The train had but passed the depot when a road engine was struck. The force of the collision caused the flat car on which the men were riding to collapse, with the above result. The men boarded the car at La Moure, where they had been working in the harvest field, and came here for work.

LAKE HURON'S WORST DISASTER.

Shores Piled With Many Thousand Dollars' Worth of Property.

Port Huron, Mich., Sept. 8. — Last night witnessed the results of one of the worst disasters on Lake Huron. Rising from the severe gale that was blowing for twenty-four hours. Piled upon shores are many thousands of dollars' worth of vessel property and the chances for getting them off are small unless many thousand more shall be expended in dredging. Strange to say, in connection with this great calamity there is no loss of life. The life saving crews took thirty-eight people from vessels and others were beyond danger. The barge Amaranth, owned by Capt. Kolcher of Detroit, is a total loss. She was loaded with lath, as was the steamer Pauley. Their cargoes are strewn all along the shore. The tug Sarnia, owned at Sarnia, Ont., which went to the assistance of the wrecked boats, is pounding on the bottom, deserted by her crew, but will be saved. Capt. Plough of the life-saving crew reports no loss of life. He stated that without doubt it is the worst wreck that he has witnessed in years. Marine men are present from Chicago and other ports and they pronounce the scene one of the most remarkable without loss of life.

APPROVAL OF CRIME PUNISHED.

People Swiftly Resent Expressions of Pleasure That McKinley Was Shot.

Oshkosh, Wis., Sept. 9. — Frank C. Cleveland, a teamster, made the remark in a saloon that he was glad McKinley had been shot. After the bartender had knocked him down with a bottle and several men who had heard the remark had kicked and cuffed him he was rescued by the police, cut and bleeding. On the matter being explained Cleveland was locked up and charged with disorderly conduct. His assailants were permitted to go unquestioned. A tramp who asserted on the street that he was an anarchist and was glad that McKinley was shot, and that he ought to have been shot long ago, had a narrow escape from being mobbed, and was hustled to the station and then out of town by the police without delay.

FOREST FIRES.

Lumber Camps Destroyed Near Bayfield, Wis.

Bayfield, Wis., Sept. 9.—Forest fires are raging in this vicinity and unless we get a heavy rainfall soon the fires will do considerable damage. The lumber camps from which J. A. Jacobs had just moved are destroyed and the fire extends about a half-mile along the Bayfield, Superior & Minneapolis railway, on both sides of the track, and a number of the bridges are in danger. Men have been sent out to check the fires.

CZAR'S PARIS TRIP IN DOUBT.

Advisers of Russian Ruler Declare Attack on McKinley to Show Great Danger.

Paris, Sept. 9. — It is still hoped that the czar of Russia will visit the French capital. The Figaro definitely announced that he would arrive here Sept. 20, but with the attempt at the assassination of President McKinley to enforce their urgent objections the advisers of the czar probably will prevail upon him to abandon his visit. When the president of the United States is not safe in Buffalo, a European despot must indeed be guarded.'

DENIES A PLOT.

Anarchists Do Not Want McKinley Killed.

New York, Sept. 9. — M. N. Maisel, New York agent of the Free Society, a Chicago anarchist newspaper whose editor was arrested, charged with being in the conspiracy to murder President McKinley, was found in his second-hand book store in this city. He denied knowledge of any plot to assassinate the president and said anarchists did not want Mr. McKinley "put out of the way." He was free to declare himself an anarchist.

Big Fire at New Orleans.

New Orleans, Sept. 9.—A disastrous fire in the wholesale district destroyed J. H. Menges' wholesale grocery and ship chandlery and the L. M. Brundswig chemical warehouse. Loss, $200,000.

Convicts Escape.

Lincoln, Neb., Sept. 7.—Two convicts named Hauck and Pierson escaped from the penitentiary early yesterday morning by taking advantage of the temporary absence of a guard. The men, by aid of a broken gas pipe, scaled the walls. Nine convicts have escaped since last March.

Kitchener Will Finish the Job.

London, Sept. 7. — A dispatch from Pretoria says that Lord Kitchener is not going home, but will finish the task assigned him here. Gen. Lyttleton will replace Gen. Hildiard, who is going on leave.

VERY FAT BOOTY.

Haul of the Cotton Belt Robbers Larger Than Was First Thought.

Texarkana, Ark., Sept. 6.—It is now said that the amount of booty secured by the robbers who held up the Cotton Belt train Tuesday night will reach nearly $50,000. It has been discovered that the robbers secured one bag of gold, which required the combined efforts of two men to carry from the express car to the engine. The through safe was dynamited. While the dogs were trailing it is claimed enough was learned to place the guilty parties, who are believed to be Texarkana men, or one man, the remainder being boys. The arrest of the leader is looked for hourly. The amount of booty has been reported too low. The Cotton Belt has offered a reward of $1,500 for the apprehension of the robbers, and the express company 10 per cent of all money recovered. The posses have been recalled to Texarkana and pursuit is now confined strictly to Texarkana.

Obliterated Their Trail.

The robbers evidently rode their horses up Aiken creek and left them standing in the stream. They then used a hand car and went five miles north, as the hand car was found near where the train was stopped. After looting the mail and express cars the robbers returned to the creek, mounted their horses and again rode down the stream, obliterating their trail. The express men, railroad and government officials are very reluctant about disclosing the robbery. At 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon a special went to the scene of the hold-up, with Col. O. K. Wheeler, chief of the Cotton Belt detectives; Sheriff Stanley Edwards, United States Marshal John Grant and a large posse of deputies, who had with them a pack of bloodhounds. An effort will be made to strike a trail leading from Aiken creek. At 4 o'clock another posse was started, headed by Constable James Rochelle, going to Eylau to try for a trail where the train was first stopped. Rochell, with his brace of hounds from Cass county, it is believed will strike the train in a few hours. Texas sheriffs are rushing here from every direction and are bringing deputies of every kind.

RENEGADE IS CAPTURED.

American Deserter Who Has Been Fighting Against His Countrymen.

Manila, Sept. 6.—Lieut. Hazzard of the Third cavalry has brought in Arthur Howard, the American deserter who was recently captured by the lieutenant while in command of some Macabebe scouts in the island of Mindoro. He was placed in jail and will shortly be court-martialed. Howard denies that he ever was an American soldier. He claims he was born in Spain, that his father was English and his mother Spanish; but that he espoused the cause of the Filipinos. In 1896 after peace was declared he says he went to Hongkong and returned in 1898 as Aguinaldo's chief of artillery. While in that position he says he made friends with many Americans before the insurrection, including Gen. Greene. He cast his lot with Aguinaldo at the time of the rupture with the Americans, and he says that he brought in sixteen American prisoners under a flag of truce at Angeles in September, 1899. Howard denies that he commanded the force at San Mateo which killed Gen. Lawton. He speaks like an educated Englishman. Lieut. Hazzard says he, himself, saw Howard at Angeles in 1899. Two former California volunteers yesterday identified Howard as a deserter from their regiment, named Wiley, of Company A, who deserted in 1899.

READY FOR CIVIL GOVERNMENT.

Several Philippine Provinces That Have Been Behaving Well.

Washington, Sept. 6.—The following provinces in the Philippines have been designated by the Philippine commission as in such a satisfactory state of pacification and sufficiently well advanced in all the details of civil administration as to warrant their passing under the jurisdiction of a civil governor:

Benguet, Pangasinan, Bataan, Tayabas, Romblon, Oriental Negros, Antique, Leyte, Ambos Camarines, Marinduque, Cavite, Surigao, Pampanga, Tarlac, Bulacan, Masbate, Occidental Negros, Iloilo, Capiz, Albay, Sorsogon, Rizal, Nueva Ecija and Misaamis.

By the direction of Gen. Chaffee the senior military officers in these provinces are directed to render all needful assistance of the civil authorities when disturbances arise beyond the control of the local municipal police.

SPEEDY PEACE LOOKED FOR.

As the Result of a Conference in New York.

Pittsburg, Sept. 6.—Agitation and uneasiness prevailed in the ranks of the strikers last night caused by the apparantly unfavorable developments of the day. The leaders, however, profess to be satisfied with present conditions and claim that ultimate victory will be theirs. Much was hoped for from the peace conference in New York, but the announcement of the failure to reach a decision put a damper on these hopes. Still many hold to the belief that the matter now being up to the strike leaders to accept or reject whatever may have been the proposition made yesterday, a settlement will speedily be reached. President Shaffer's only remark when he was shown the announcement of the adjournment of the converence without decision was: "I have no comment to make." He would say no more on the subject. The steel officials are in a very confident mood and appear to think the strike is broken effectually and that only a few more days will be required to make it a thing of the past.

Disastrous Landslide in Cleveland—Tons of Earth Let Loose.

Cleveland, Ohio, Sept. 6.—Three men were killed and three others seriously injured in a landslide at the new Lake Shore bridge over the Boulevard entrance to Gordon Park yesterday. Seven hundred tons of earth, loosened by the flood of Sunday, suddenly slid down from the bank, burying a force of laborers engaged in work on the bridge. The comrades of those who were buried immediately began the work of rescue, but it was nearly two and a half hours before the last body was dug out.

British Officers Chase Boer Commandant Into Mortimer District.

Cape Town, Sept. 6.—Colonels Scobel, Doran and Kavanagh have chased Gen. Botha into the Mortimer district. Nearly all of Gen. Botha's horses are in an exhausted condition and fully one-quarter of his commando is dismounted. Gen. Botha, unfortunately for the British, captured thirty remounts.

Benkleman, Neb., Sept. 6.—The most destructive storm ever known in Western Nebraska struck this place last evening. The wind had the force of a tornado. No lives were lost but much damage was done.

OPEN ACT OF WAR

VENEZUELAN FLEET BOMBARDS THE CITY OF RIO HACHA ON NORTH COAST.

MACHIAS RECEIVES NEW ORDERS

This Bombardment Is the First Open Act of War on the Isthmus—Reports From Bogota Announce New Invasions From Nicaragua, Venezuela and Ecuador — President Castro Refuses Mediation.

Washington, Sept. 9. — The Colombian legation has received a message from Dr. Becerra at Willemstad, Curacoa, saying that the Venezuelan fleet is bombarding Rio Hacha.

Dr. Becerra formerly was the Colombian minister to the United States.

Rio Hacha is an important town on the north coast of Colombia. It is at the mouth of the Hacha river and has a population of about 2,500.

The Venezuelan navy consists mostly of river steamers converted into gunboats by the addition of a few guns. Venezuela up to 1899 had no navy and since then a small gunboat of 832 tons and four river gunboats have been constructed.

First Open Act of War.

This bombardment appears to be the first open act of war on the isthmus.

The Colombian legation is in receipt of a dispatch from the minister of foreign affairs at Bogota which says that new invasions from Venezuela, Ecuador and Nicaragua are announced. The minister declares that Colombia continues to remain strictly on the defensive, and that the government condemns the rebel invasion of Garhiras into Venezuela.

Ordered to Bocas del Toro.

The navy department has ordered the gunboat Machias, now at Colon, to Bocas del Toro, to look after American interests in that quarter should it appear that any such are in need of protection. The battleship Iowa having arrived at Panama, the gunboat Ranger, now at that place, has been ordered back to San Francisco.

A third dispatch from the governor of Panama was received at the Colombian legation saying that a simultaneous attack was feared on both sides, Colon and Panama.

Castro Refuses Mediation.

Willemstadt, Curacao, Sept. 9. — President Castro absolutely refuses to entertain the idea of accepting the good offices of the United States.

STEAMER GOES DOWN.

Fortunately Her Three Hundred Passengers Escape.

Trenton, N. J., Sept. 9. — The steamer Twilight, which plies between Trenton and Philadelphia, was sunk in the Delaware river below this city last night, but fortunately none of the 300 passengers were drowned. The steamer is supposed to have struck a rock at Perriwig bar, a shallow and dangerous part of the river a couple of miles below Trenton. Capt. Ward headed the steamer for the Jersey shore with the idea of beaching her. He ran her on Long bar and the passengers were taken off in small boats and walked to Trenton, a distance of over a mile. The steamer now lies with water above her main deck. A large portion of the passengers were women, and much difficulty was experienced in preventing a panic.

ANARCHISTS CELEBRATE.

Find in McKinley's Attempted Murder an Occasion for Rejoicing.

McKeesport, Pa., Sept. 9. — Two hundred Italian anarchists celebrated President McKinley's attempted assassination yesterday at Guffey Hollow, a mining hamlet. Beer, whisky, speeches, songs and prayers for Czolgosz were the order of the day. This is one of the largest anarchist groups in the country. It was started and led for years by Garcia Clamoavilla, now living at Spring Valley, Ill., and who edits the Firebrand, the anarchistic organ of Chicago. When Bresci assassinated King Humbert he declared that Mr. McKinley would be the next victim of the anarchist plots. He also drew up resolutions praising Bresci, which were published in Pittsburg newspapers.

PRONOUNCE IT "SHOLGOSCH."

Name of the Anarchist Who Attempted McKinley's Life.

Chicago, Sept. 9.—Czolgosz, the name of the man who shot President McKinley, offers a lingual problem to nine-tenths of those who attempt to pronounce it. It is one of those names which the English alphabet can not spell phonetically, and which the average English-speaking person stumbles over, in trying to express after hearing it spoken by a Russian. Written according to its sound the name of Czolgosz, or its nearest equivalent is "Tscollgosch," or, more broadly speaking, "Shollgosch."

BOERS ON TRIAL AT PRETORIA.

Two Burghers Accused of Harboring Spies, and an Unnamed Person Figures Mysteriously.

Pretoria, Sept. 9. — Fockenia and Kerksoff, Hollanders, were court-martialed for having treacherously harbored spies at Pretoria. Mr. Lehman defended them. A feature of the trial was the frequent references to a certain person who was not named in the evidence. The accomplices and the prisoners themselves showed that they has assisted spies who were returning from a commando with food and lodging.

YACHT UPSET AT OCONOMOWOC.

George Earling With Party Spilled Out of Sailboat, but All Are Rescued.

Oconomowoc, Wis., Sept. 9. —While sailing on Oconomowoc lake yesterday afternoon George Earling, son of General Manager Earling of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway, was upset. In the boat with him were four women. The entire party was rescued by rowboats from points along the shore. This is the first accident of the season in this region.

Telegraphy and Matrimony.

The English government gives away $50,000 a year, more or less, to encourage matrimony among the women employes of the telegraph service. Women enter the service at the age of sixteen. After six years, when the operator has reached the official marriageable age of twenty-two, she is entitled to an allowance from the state. For each year of service she can draw one month's pay. As her salary is $25 per month, she can then claim $150. If she waits until she is twenty-eight she can draw $400. In practice the average sum paid has been found to be about $300.

What Is "Nothing?"

An old Scotch farmer, being elected a member of the local school board, visited the school and tested the intelligence of the class by his questions. The first inquiry was:

"Noo, boys, can ony o' ye tell me what nae thing is?"

After a moment's silence, a small boy in the back seat arose and replied

Consolation and Comfort.

Who is it that does not wish to be out in the open air or alive in some field of sport, whether it be with the bat, rod or gun; whether we go coasting over the hills and vales on the wheel or sailing over rough waves or into serene coves, it is all sport, and the springing muscles seem to need it. It is bound to happen that some mishap will occur. Thus it is that we have sprains in abundance. Light sprains, sprains that cripple, sprains that give great pain, sprains that rob us of sleep, but sportsmen of all kinds have come to know that there is nothing better than the old, reliable St. Jacob's Oil. Have it with you for use; you may rely on its cure of the worst sprain and restoration to the comforts of life.

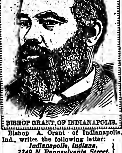
A METHODIST BISHOP GIVES PE-RU-NA GREAT CREDIT.



BISHOP GRANT, OF INDIANAPOLIS.

Writes His Recommendation for the Famous Catarrh Remedy, Pe-ru-na.

Bishop A. Grant of Indianapolis, Ind., writes the following letter:

Indianapolis, Indiana,
3349 N. Pennsylvania Street.
Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.:

Gentlemen—"I have been using Peruna for catarrh and can cheerfully recommend your remedy to anyone who wants a good medicine."—A. Grant.

Prominent members of the clergy are giving Peruna their unqualified endorsement. These men find Peruna especially adapted to preserve them from catarrh of the vocal organs which has always been the bane of public speakers, and general catarrhal debility incident to the sedentary life of the clergyman. Among the recent utterances of noted clergymen on the curative virtues of Peruna is the above one from Bishop Grant.

The day was when men of prominence hesitated to give their testimonials to proprietary medicines for publication. This remains true today of most proprietary medicines. But Peruna has become so justly famous, its merits are known to so many people of high and low station that none hesitates to see his name in print recommending Peruna.

The following letters from pastors who use Peruna speak for themselves:

Rev. E. G. Smith, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, of Greensboro, Ga., writes:

"My little boy had been suffering for some time with catarrh of the lower bowels. Other remedies had failed, but after taking two bottles of Peruna the trouble almost entirely disappeared. For this special malady I consider it well nigh a specific."—Rev. E. G. Smith.

Rev. A. S. Vaughn, Eureka Springs, Ark., says: "I had been prostrated by congestive chills and was almost dead; as soon as able to be about, I commenced the use of Peruna. I took five bottles; my strength returned rapidly and I am now enjoying my usual health."—Rev. A. S. Vaughn.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

THE PRESIDENT IS DEAD

His Last Words Were an Humble Submission to the Will of the God in Whom He Trusted.

WAS RECONCILED TO HIS CRUEL FATE

Mrs. McKinley Goes Through the Heart-Trying Leave-Taking With Bravery and Fortitude.

Buffalo, Sept. 14.—President McKinley died at 2:15 a. m. Those present when the end came were Mr. and Mrs. Abner McKinley, Secretary Cortelyou, Dr. Rixey, Mrs. and Miss Barber and Miss Duncan.

The president had been unconscious since 7:50 p. m. His last conscious hour on earth was spent with the wife to whom he devoted a lifetime of care. He died unattended by a minister of the gospel, but his last words were an humble submission to the will of the God in whom he believed. He was reconciled to the cruel fate to which an assassin's bullet and condemned him and faced death in the same spirit of calmness and poise which has marked his long and honorable career. His last conscious words, reduced to writing by Dr. Mann, who stood at his side when they were uttered, were as follows:

"Good-bye, all; good-bye. It is God's way. His will be done."

His relatives and the members of his official family were at the Milburn house except Secretary Wilson, who did not avail himself of the opportunity. Some others of his personal and political friends also took leave of him. This painful ceremony was simple. His friends came to the door of the sick room, took a glance at him and Turned Tearfully Away.

He was practically unconscious during this time. But the powerful heart stimulants, including oxygen, were employed to restore him to consciousness for his final parting with his wife. He asked for her and she sat at his side and held his hand. He consoled her and bade her good-bye. She went through the heart-trying scene with the same bravery and fortitude with which she has borne the grief of the tragedy which ended his life.

PRESIDENT M'KINLEY.

The immediate cause of the president's death is undetermined. His physicians disagree, and it will possibly require an autopsy to fix the exact cause. The president's remains will be taken to Washington and there will be a state funeral. Vice President Roosevelt, who now succeeds to the presidency, may take the oath of office wherever he hears the news. The cabinet will, of course, resign in a body, and President Roosevelt will have an opportunity of forming a new cabinet if he so desires. The rage of the people of Buffalo against the president's assassin, when they learned last night that he was dying, was boundless.

The announcement of the death to the members of the cabinet was made by Webb Hayes, who said:

"It Is All Over."

Mrs. McKinley last saw her husband between 11 and 12 o'clock. At that time she sat by the bedside holding his hand. The members of the cabinet were admitted to the sickroom singly at that time.

Through Secretary Cortelyou the waiting newspaper men received the notification. In a trice there was the keenest excitement in the broad avenue but there was no semblance of disorder.

When the news was imparted to those down stairs, a great sigh of anguish went up from the strong men there assembled. The members of the cabinet, senators and close friends remained but a few minutes. Then, with mournful tread and bowed heads they came out into the darkness and went away. There was not one among them with dry eyes and some moaned in agony of grief.

The military guard was augmented immediately upon the announcement.

The waiting crowds melted away rapidly, giving expression in unmistakable terms to the great sorrow they felt.

Within thirty minutes of the death a private of the United States army hospital corpse was detailed for duty and took his position by the body of the president.

The President's Last Hours.

Buffalo, Sept. 14.—Before 6 o'clock it was clear to those at the president's bedside that he was dying and preparations were made for the last sad offices of farewell from those who were nearest and dearest to him. Oxygen had been administered steadily, but with little effect in keeping back the approach of death. The president came out of one period of unconsciousness only to relapse into another. But at this period, when his mind was partially clear, occurred a series of events of profoundly touching character. Down stairs, with strained and tear-stained faces members of the cabinet were grouped in anxious waiting. They knew the end was near and that the time had come when they must see him for the last time on earth. This was about 6 o'clock. One by one they ascended the stairway—Secretary Root, Secretary Hitchcock and Attorney General Knox. Secretary Wilson also was there, but he held back, not wishing to see the president in his last agony. There was only a momentary stay of the cabinet officers at the threshhold of the death chamber. Then they withdrew, the tears streaming down their faces and the words of intense grief choking in their throats. After they left the sick room the

Physicians Rallied Him

to consciousness and the president asked almost immediately that his wife be brought to him. The doctors fell back into the shadows of the room as Mrs. McKinley came through the doorway. The strong face of the dying man lighted up with a faint smile as their hands were clasped. She sat beside him and held his hand. Despite her physical weakness she bore up bravely under the ordeal. The president in his last period of consciousness, which ended about 7:40, chanted the words of the hymn, "Nearer, My God, to Thee," and his last audible conscious words as taken down by Dr. Mann at the bedside were: "Good-bye, all; good-bye. It is God's way; his will be done." Then his mind began to wander and soon he completely lost consciousness. His life was prolonged for hours by the administration of oxygen, and the president finally expressed a desire to be allowed to die. At 8:30 the administration of oxygen ceased and the pulse grew fainter and fainter. He was sinking gradually, like a child, into the eternal slumber. By 10 o'clock the pulse could no longer be felt in his extremities and they grew cold. Below stairs the grief-stricken gathering

Waited Sadly for the End.

Those in the house at this time were Secretaries Hitchcock, Wilson and Root, Senators Fairbanks, Hanna and Burrows, Judge Day, Col. Herrick, Abner McKinley, the president's brother, and his wife, Dr. and Mrs. Baer, the president's niece and her husband; Mrs. Barber and Mrs. Duncan, the president's sisters; Mrs. Mary Barber, Mrs. McWilliams, Mrs. McKinley's cousins, the physicians, including Dr. McBurney, who arrived after 8 o'clock; John G. Milburn, John N. Scatcherd, Harry Hamlin, all of this city; Secretary Cortelyou and a number of others.

At 9:37 Secretary Cortelyou, who had been much of the time with his dying chief, sent out formal notification that the president was dying. But the president lingered on, his pulse growing fainter and fainter. There was no need for official bulletins after this. Those who came from the house at intervals told the same story—that the president was dying, and that the end might come at any time. His tremendous vitality was the only remaining factor in the result, and this gave hope only of brief postponement of the end. The Milburn house was the center of a scene as animated as though it were midday, although hung over the great crowd of watchers. The entire lower part of the house was aglow with light and the many attendants, friends and relatives could be seen within moving about and occasionally coming in groups to the front doorway for a breath of air. In the upper front chambers, the lights were low, and around on the north side, where the chamber of death was located, there were fitful lights, some burning brightly and then turned low.

Secretary Root and Secretary Wilson came from the house about midnight and paced up and down the sidewalk. All that Secretary Root said was: "The night has not come yet." Despite the fact that vitality continued to ebb as midnight approached, no efforts were spared to keep the spark of life glowing. Dr. Janeway of New York city arrived at the depot at 11:40 o'clock. George Urban was waiting for him and they drove at breakneck pace to the Milburn house. He was shown to the president's room at once and began an examination of the almost inanimate form. Secretary of the Navy Long arrived at the Milburn house at 12:06 o'clock. This was his first visit to the city and he had the extreme satisfaction of seeing the president alive, even though he was not conscious of his visitor's presence. Secretary Long was visibly affected.

Vice President Roosevelt had been notified early in the day of the critical state of affairs. There was no longer a doubt that in the approaching death of the president a complete change in the executive administration of the government would ensue.

BRYAN IN TEARS.

Pays an Eloquent Tribute to President McKinley.

Monmouth, Ill., Sept. 14.—"It is a national humiliation," was the utterance of William Jennings Bryan in a speech here yesterday. The speaker referred to the shooting of the president, to whom he paid an eloquent tribute. Later, when the committee of the Carter H. Harrison league, at whose picnic Mr. Bryan was to have spoken to-day, announced that the demonstration had been abandoned, Col. Bryan, in a voice that shook with emotion, read the following:

"I most cordially commend your action in abandoning the contemplated demonstration. We are all oppressed by the grief which has fallen upon the nation. We have no spirit for a partisan meeting at this time, for partisanship is swallowed up in universal sorrow.

"Political controversies and the prizes and disappointments which attend them dwindle into insignificance when we stand in the presence of the tragedy which seems likely to rob the nation of its chief executive. We all feel the humiliation that our country has suffered, and our hearts are with the lovely woman from whom foul and brutal assassination is taking one of the most faithful and tender of husbands. Whether the heroic struggle ends fatally, as we now fear, or in his restoration to health, as we pray it will, you have acted wisely."

When Col. Bryan ceased reading his face was exceedingly grave. He was shown the latest Associated Press bulletin, which he read carefully and with downcast head, and when he looked up tears stood in his eyes. In a voice that broke he indicated the bulletin wherein the dying president was said to be murmuring "Nearer, My God, to Thee," and said:

"Isn't that pitiful—isn't it too pitiful?"

"'God's will, not ours, be done,' he read in another bulletin, giving the president's last words to Mrs. McKinley, and again Mr. Bryan was deeply moved. He made no comment, but tears again sprang to his eyes. He stood like one looking on the bier of a loved one, and the room was hushed in funeral silence. It was with a visible effort that the Democratic leader threw off the evidences of grief and shook hands with the committee, the members of which had been sympathetic spectators.

AUTOPSY WILL BE HELD.

Physicians Desire That the Exact Cause of Death Be Determined.

Buffalo, Sept. 14.—It is almost certain that an autopsy on the president's body will be held to determine the exact cause of death. This is the wish of all the surgeons and physicians who were in attendance. The peculiar action of the president's heart was more or less of a puzzle to them all, and Dr. McBurney expressed the opinion that to the interest of science as well as in the interest of the government, and the world, it was desirable that the exact cause of death be determined. The president's heart gave trouble from the beginning, but its erratic motion was at first thought to be due to the shock of the wound, but when the wound had begun to progress favorably, the heart gave more trouble and anxiety than ever. Its action became feeble and finally gave out altogether. The president's death may be due to heart exhaustion, but some of the physicians do not believe there was organic heart trouble. The theory of at least one of the physicians is that the original shock of the first bullet over the heart had much to do with the trouble which caused death.

TO KILL ROOSEVELT.

Stranger Leaves Berlin, N. H., for Washington for This Purpose.

Berlin, N. H., Sept. 14.—Learning that a man who had left here yesterday forenoon for New York had declared that he was on his way to Washington to kill Vice President Roosevelt, Chief of Police Youngeliss has telegraphed the chief of police of New York to look out for him. The man was a foreigner. He tried to buy a ticket to Washington, but could not do so, and bought one for New York.

-o-

New York, Sept. 14. — Capt. Titus, chief of detectives of this city, said he had received a dispatch from the chief of police at Berlin, N. H., conveying the same information as that contained in the foregoing dispatch. The dispatch described the man as being five feet six inches, smooth-face, with a black sack coat and black trousers and a black derby hat. Capt. Titus said he had detailed men at all railway stations to watch for the man.

WHAT LIEUT. PEARY DID.

Gallant Explorer Sends Word of His Work to the World.

Halifax, N. S., Sept. 14. — Although Peary failed to reach the pole, he sends word back by the Erik of what he has accomplished in these words:

"First—Rounding the northern limit of Greenland archipelago, the most northernly known land in the world.

"Second—The highest latitude yet attained in Western hemisphere—83 degrees north.

"Third—The determination of the origin of the so-called polocrystic ice (floeberg), etc."

Peary will try for the pole again next spring.

Two Confess Bankruptcy.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Sept. 14.—Two new voluntary bankruptcy cases have been filed in the northern division of the United States court. One is that of William Marshall, a grain buyer at Castlewood, who places his liabilities at $5,238.53, and states that he has no assets. The other is Nelson Wilcox, a Roberts county farmer, who says that his liabilities aggregate $2,129.50 and his assets $582.

ROOSEVELT IS PRESIDENT

TAKES THE OATH OF OFFICE IN THE PRESENCE OF MEMBERS OF CABINET.

CABINET OFFICERS WILL STAY.

Mr. Roosevelt Declares Before the Ceremony It Will Be His Purpose to Carry Out the Policy of President McKinley — There Will Not Be an Extra Session of Congress—Offers Sympathy to Mrs. McKinley.

Buffalo, Sept. 16. — Theodore Roosevelt, the youngest man to occupy the presidential chair of the American republic, Saturday took the oath of office and was sworn in as president to succeed the lamented President McKinley, lying dead from the effects of an assassin's bullet.

The new president's first announcement was that all the cabinet ministers would remain with him and that there would not be an extra session of congress.

The ceremony of taking the oath of office occurred at the residence of Ansley Wilcox, a personal friend, and the scene was an affecting one.

There were present when he swore to the oath: Secretaries Root, Hitchcock, Long, Wilson and Postmaster General Smith, Senator Chauncey M. Depew of New York and others.

The new president had just come from the Milburn house, whither he had immediately gone on his arrival in the city to express to Mrs. McKinley and the family of the dead president his deep sympathy in the hour of their bereavement.

Roosevelt Takes Oath.

The place selected for the ceremony was the library of Mr. Wilcox's house. Surrounding him were the five members of the cabinet—Secretaries Root, Hitchcock, Long and Wilson and Postmaster General Smith.

At precisely 3:32 o'clock Secretary Root said in an almost inaudible voice: "Mr. Vice President, I——," then his voice broke, and for fully two minutes the tears came down his face and his lips quivered so that he could not continue his utterances. There were sympathetic tears from those about him, and two great drops ran down either cheek of the successor to William McKinley. Mr. Root's chin was on his breast. Suddenly throwing back his head as if with an effort, he continued in broken voice:

"I have been requested on behalf of the cabinet of the late president, at least those who are present in Buffalo, all except two, to request that for reasons of weight affecting the affairs of the government you should proceed to take the constitutional oath as president of the United States."

Follow McKinley's Policy.

Mr. Roosevelt replied in a voice that at first wavered, but finally became deep and strong:

"I shall take the oath at once, in accordance with your request, and in this hour of deep and terrible national bereavement, I wish to state that it shall be my aim to continue absolutely unbroken the policy of President McKinley for the peace and prosperity and honor of our beloved country."

Judge J. R. Hazel of the United States district court then administered the oath of office.

Immediately following the dispersing of the spectators after taking the oath President Roosevelt asked the cabinet members present to confer with him. The conference lasted very nearly two hours, and when it was finished the president said:

"Following out the brief statement I made when taking the oath that I would follow the administrative lines laid down by President McKinley, I requested the members of the cabinet who were present to remain in their positions at least for the present. They have assured me that they will, and I may say that I have assurance also from the absent member."

Inquiry was made of the president as to whether an extra session of congress would be called by him, and he said in substance that there was no fundamental law requiring the calling of congress together upon the succession of a vice president to the presidency, and after consultation with the cabinet they had decided that no extra session would be called.

ROOSEVELT'S SECRETARY.

Mr. Cortelyou Will Act in That Capacity for the Present.

Buffalo, Sept. 16. — President Roosevelt passed a very quiet day at the Wilcox house, arranging to attend the funeral of the late president. His secretary, Mr. Loeb, and his assistants were, however, kept busy opening telegrams and mail and classifying them. Piled up on the oak table in the sitting room of the house were at least 600 telegrams and letters, all of them expressing regret at the sad occurrence to the late president and assurance of confidence and support to the new president. The only announcement the president had to make yesterday was that Mr. Cortelyou, the secretary of President McKinley, would for the present act in that capacity for him because of his knowledge of the condition of affairs. Mr. Cortelyou confirmed this statement.

Saw Mills Burned.

Akeley, Minn., Sept. 16.—The sawmill plant of Moore Bros. was burned. Loss will reach $5,000. Indications are that the fire was caused by an incendiary.

Death Mask Taken.

Buffalo, Sept. 16.—A death mask of the president's face was made at 7:20 o'clock yesterday. The mask was taken by Edouard La Pausch of Hartford, Conn. The mask is a faithful reproduction of the late president's features.

Sympathy in Russia.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 16.—The all-absorbing topic here yesterday was the death of President McKinley. The tone of the press was uniformly sympathetic with the American people in their bereavement.

CAN LIVE BUT A FEW HOURS.

Bishop Whipple Was Taken Suddenly Worse Last Night.

St. Paul, Sept. 16. — Bishop H. B. Whipple, who has been seriously ill at his home in Faribault, was taken suddenly worse last night. Dr. A. J. Stone, who attended him, stated at 2 o'clock this morning that the bishop can live but a short time, probably but a few hours. He had a severe attack of angina pectoris about a week ago but seemed to recover after the first few days' illness.

Henry Benjamin Whipple has been bishop of the Episcopal church in Minnesota since 1859. He was born in Adams, N. Y., Feb. 15, 1823. He was ordained in 1850, and was rector of Zion church in Rome, N. Y., and later of the Church of Holy Communion in Chicago. He was one of the foremost in the work of evangelizing the Indians, and founded and built the Seabury divinity school, the Shattuck military academy and St. Mary's hall at Faribault.

A PROCLAMATION.

President Roosevelt Appoints a Day of Mourning.

Buffalo, Sept. 16. — President Roosevelt Saturday night issued the following proclamation:

By the President of the United States—

A Proclamation:

A terrible bereavement has befallen our people. The president of the United States has been struck down; a crime committed not only against the chief magistrate, but against every law-abiding and liberty-loving citizen.

President McKinley crowned a life of largest love for his fellow men, of most earnest endeavor for their welfare, by a death of Christian fortitude; and both the way in which he lived his life and the way in which, in the supreme hour of trial, he met his death, will remain forever a precious heritage of our people.

It is meet that we as a nation express our abiding love and reverence for his life; our deep sorrow for his untimely death.

Now, therefore, I, Theodore Roosevelt, president of the United States of America, do appoint Thursday next, Sept. 19, the day on which the body of the dead president will be laid in its last earthly resting place, as a day of mourning and prayer throughout the United States. I earnestly recommend all the people to assemble on that day in their respective places of divine worship, there to bow down in submission to the will of Almighty God, and to pay out of full hearts their homage of love and reverence to the great and good president whose death has smitten the nation with bitter grief.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the City of Washington, the 14th day of September, A. D. one thousand nine hundred and one and of the independence of the United States the one hundred and twenty-sixth.

(Seal.) —Theodore Roosevelt.

By the President: John Hay, Secretary of State.

CERTAINLY A PLOT.

Another Man Who Knew That the President Would Be Shot.

Buffalo, Sept. 16. — The police have just learned that the fourth man in front of Czolgosz at the reception when President McKinley was shot, and whom they have been seeking ever since, is a Hebrew named Lang. They are still in search of him, but have not been able to locate him. His residence is at 57 Wosmuth avenue in East Buffalo, near where Dr. Saylin lives. Lang disappeared from his home at the same time Dr. Saylin left Buffalo, a few hours after the assassination of President McKinley. About two weeks ago Lang went to Patrizykewlski's saloon at 1119 Broadway, where he bought a quantity of bottled beer. When paying for it he said: "I will keep this to drink when President McKinley dies." Lang is known to be the man who went to Rochester with Dr. Saylin to visit Emma Goldman.

MOB STOPPED BY BLUECOATS.

Chicago Mob Tries to Lynch Anarchists.

Chicago, Sept. 16—Armed with stones, ropes and sticks and shouting "Lynch the anarchists," a mob of 500 men and boys marched to the county jail at 9 o'clock Saturday night and attempted to break into the bastile. Several of the leaders kicked at the door and shouted for admittance, but the arrival of 400 policemen spoiled the plans of the enraged men who were "going to hang the nine anarchists" locked up in connection with the assassination of President McKinley. With drawn revolvers, the mob that had vengeance in their hearts, were dispersed by the blue coats, but not until they had hurled their sticks and stones at the officers.

STRIKE AT AN END.

Telegraphic Notice to That Effect Sent Out.

Pittsburg, Sept. 16.—Matters pertaining to the settlement of the steel strike are in a very unsatisfactory state. While the telegraphic notice was sent out Saturday night by Secretary Williams to all vice presidents declaring the strike at an end, it cannot be learned definitely that the official order has been issued by President Shaffer. Some of the local strikers declare they have no such notice and many of them say they will not return to work, order or no order, unless they shall be recognized as union men. President Shaffer arrived home at an early hour yesterday morning but denied himself to all callers. Last night his wife, in answer to questions as to his whereabouts, said he had received a special letter calling him out of the city. A member of the advisory board said that the official order calling the strike off has gone out and that the men generally will be at work to-day or within a day or two later.

Charged With Embezzlement.

A STATE FUNERAL

ARRANGEMENTS MADE FOR THE OBSEQUIES OF THE LATE PRESIDENT.

THE SERVICES IN WASHINGTON

Body Will Lie in State in the Capital Tuesday, When the Funeral Exercises Will Be Held—The Funeral Train Will Leave for Canton Tuesday Evening and the Interment Will Take Place Thursday.

Washington, Sept. 16.—The following official statement making important changes in the plans for the funeral services over the remains of President McKinley in this city was given to the press last night:

In compliance with the earnest wishes of Mrs. McKinley that the body of her husband shall rest in her home at Canton Wednesday night, the following changes in the obsequies of the late president will be made:

Funeral services in the rotunda of the capitol will be held Tuesday morning on the arrival of the escort, which will accompany the remains from the White House. The body will lie in state in the rotunda for the remainder of Tuesday and will be escorted to the railroad station Tuesday evening. The funeral train will leave Washington at or about 9 o'clock Tuesday evening and thus will arrive at Canton during the day Wednesday.

The remains will arrive in Washington at 9 p. m. to-day and will be taken to the White House, where the body will remain until Tuesday morning.

Funeral Arrangements.

The heads of the various departments and their principal assistants were busy yesterday making arrangements for the proper execution of so much of the funeral program as fell to them respectively. Secretary Hay came to his desk early in the morning and remained through the day. Though it was Sunday cablegrams of condolence were still coming to the department of state from all parts of the world.

In the war department Acting Secretary Sanger was in consultation with Gen. Gillespie, Col. Ward and Gen. Barry, arranging for the transportation to Washington of the troops to participate in the funeral procession, making details for guard duty and other matters. Gen. Randolph, chief of artillery, who is to represent the army at the capitol, arranged with Sergeant-at-Arms Ransdell that they should cooperate in the management of the funeral ceremonies at the capitol. Four private soldiers will stand watch day and night, one at each corner of the catafalque, so long as the remains of the late president shall building. A suitable guard will be maintained at the entrances and will keep the people in alignment when they are admitted to the capitol to view the remains Tuesday.

Acting Secretary Hackett ordered that a detail should be made up consisting of two officers, four petty officers and twenty-one privates in the marine corps for duty at the capitol on Tuesday to supplement the army representation.

The special guard of honor, to represent the navy at the funeral ceremonies will comprise the following officers of high rank: Admiral Dewey, Rear Admiral Crowninshield, Rear Admiral O'Neil, Paymaster General Remey and Brig. Gen. Heywood of the marine corps.

While Gen. Brooke will be in general charge of military arrangements here, Gen. Francis Guenther will be in command of the military contingent in the procession. Col. Samuel Reber, son-in-law to Gen. Miles, has been detailed to and look specially after her comfort, while Col. Henry H. Whitney of Gen. Miles' staff has been designated to perform a similar service for President Roosevelt.

Meet Mrs. McKinley

At the capitol Sergeant-at-Arms Ransdell directed the preparation of the rotunda for the funeral service. The space in even this vast structure is entirely insufficient to meet the demand for admission of more than a fraction of the persons who think they should be admitted to the services on Tuesday. The public will be excluded as the accommodations will not suffice for the officials who must be present. The diplomatic corps alone will occupy about 200 places if all the invitations sent out are accepted, and in addition there will be the United States senate, the United States supreme court, the house of representatives and a large number of officials, army and navy and civilians. Every army and navy officer in Washington having been ordered to attend the funeral service, they alone would consume a large portion of this seating space. The general public will have an opportunity to view the remains of the late president while the body lies in state before the funeral services.

EXERCISES AT CANTON.

Funeral Will Be in Charge of the Citizens.

Canton, Ohio, Sept. 16.—Judge William R. Day, former secretary of state, returned from Buffalo yesterday morning with instructions from the members of the cabinet as to arrangements for that part of the funeral of President McKinley to be held at Canton.

He immediately called Mayor J. H. Robertson to his office and informed him that it was the desire of the cabinet that the mayor of the president's home city take charge of the arrangements here. The mayor appointed an executive committee composed of Judge Day, Henry W. Harter, William A. Lynch, E. E. Case and John C. Welty. That committee has been in almost continuous session ever since and has already set a number of subcommittees to work.

Adjt. Gen. Gyger of Gov. Nash's staff appeared before the committee and tendered the entire national guard of Ohio for escort duty on the day of the funeral. Gen. Gyger announced that the state would bear all expenses of the escort, asking the city only for ground upon which to pitch the tents of the 4,000 men expected. This matter was left to Lieut. Col. Harry Frease of Gen. Dick's staff, and grounds were selected just at the eastern border of the city.

Knights Templars from a number of cities, Masons from Canton and vicinity and numerous other societies tendered escort services, but in view of the expected congested condition of the city on that day these offers were temporarily tabled.

DEATH CAUSED BY GANGRENE.

Coroner Certifies as to the Cause of President McKinley's Death.

Buffalo, Sept. 16.—The coroner of Erie county yesterday issued the following certificate of death of the late president:

"City of Buffalo, Bureau of Vital Statistics, County of Erie, State of New York. Certificate and Record of Death of William McKinley: I hereby certify that he died on the 14th day of September, 1901, at 2:15 o'clock a. m., and to the best of my knowledge and belief the cause of death was as underwritten: Cause—Gangrene of both walls of stomach and pancreas following gunshot wound."

No skill of the surgeon could have saved William McKinley. He died not of peritonitis, nor of heart trouble, but manifestly of gangrene.

The autopsy, which was conducted by surgeons different from those in attendance, and under the direct supervision of the district attorney, whose stenographer made the official notes, showed clearly that the president was marked for death from the first, and no medical skill could have prevented a fatal ending.

There was a distinct track of gangrene from the opening to the place where the bullet finally lodged in the muscles of the abdomen. The two holes in the wall of the stomach were found to have been closed up properly, but the tissues around the stitches themselves were covered with gangrene, showing that the bullet had left a poisoned track along its entire path through the body, due to the grease or dirt, in all probability, which surrounded it.

The autopsy shows that the bullet which caused death touched the upper end of the kidneys, also involving the pancreas, and it is probable there would have been serious difficulty in this regard later on.

There was no sign of peritonitis, and to this extent the diagnosis of the surgeons was entirely correct. The president did not die from blood poisoning, nor was the toast and coffee he was given particularly fatal to the suffering patient.

The walls of the heart were found exceedingly thin and the organ showed the effect of the constant smoking to which the president had been addicted for so many years. The heart action was necessarily weak, but it was not this which killed him any more than peritonitis.

CZOLGOSZ DOES NOT KNOW.

Not Yet Informed That President McKinley Is Dead.

Buffalo, Sept. 16.—The assassin does not know yet that President McKinley is dead, and probably will not know it until he is arraigned for murder. He will be indicted by the grand jury probably to-day and the case will then immediately be removed to the supreme court. The arraignment will take place in that court and very soon, the exact time depending upon the return of the indictment. No further attempt was made yesterday by the officers to talk to Czolgosz nor was the theory of poisoned bullets taken up by the police. They say when the chambers of the revolver shall be chemically examined, as they undoubtedly will be, no poison will be found on them. As to Emma Goldman, the situation remains unchanged, the police holding there is insufficient evidence on which to ask her extradition.

GRIEF IN MANILA.

All Classes Mourn the Loss of the President.

Manila, Sept. 15.—The profoundest grief is manifested by every class in the community over the death of President McKinley. Gov. Taft has issued a proclamation which explains to the Filipinos that, while the death of Mr. McKinley is an irreparable individual loss, it does not alter the stability of the government or change the course of the administration. This was considered necessary because the Filipinos thought Bryan would succeed McKinley, as Bryan received the next highest number of votes in the electoral college.

Flags were ordered to be at half-mast for a month, while all employes of the civil government are to wear mourning bands on their arms. All the foreign consuls, wearing their uniforms, called at the residence of Gov. Taft to tender their condolences. Gen. Chaffee has ordered that every officer and soldier in the archipelago, whether in the field, in camp, in garrison or in hospital, be notified.

STRAIN TOO GREAT.

Chicago Girl Commits Suicide When Told of the President's Death.

Chicago, Sept. 16.—Because President McKinley died Grace Wilson, 6664 Michigan avenue, killed herself Saturday. The young woman is said to have been intensely interested in the condition of the late chief executive. Following the news that the president was sinking Friday she spent hours in weeping, and an hour after learning of his death she fired a bullet into her brain and died instantly. She was only seventeen years old.

TRIPLETS COMING TOO FAST.

Kansas Governor, Who Offered Prizes for All Trios Born in the State, Withdraws Proposal.

Topeka, Kan., Sept. 16.—Gov. Stanley, who began his administration with the announcement that he would give silver mugs to all triplets born in Kansas while he was in office, has abandoned the scheme. After having spent $125 for mugs for thirty-seven sets of triplets, he decided that the experiment was too expensive.

COW GOES MAD.

Bitten by a Strange Dog, Three Weeks Ago.

Kasson, Minn., Sept. 16—A cow owned by George Castner, living seven miles northeast of here, went mad. It is pronounced a clear case of hydrophobia. The cow was bit by a dog that passed through that section some three weeks ago and was supposed to be mad. Several other animals and a few persons were bitten by the same dog.

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 18, 1901.

President McKinley is dead and the nation mourns his loss. In spite of all that skill and science could do, the bullet of the assassin did its work only too well, and, at an early hour on last Saturday morning, the soul of the victim passed home to its Creator.

Throughout his life, and when at the portals of death, President McKinley was a devout believer in the Divinity. His last words—"It is God's way. His will, not ours, be done."—were proof of a simple faith, sublime beyond the understanding of any but the true believer.

For a brief space of time anarchy is elated over the success of its cowardly agent. But it has accomplished nothing save a most despicable murder, and in so doing, it has also laid the foundation for its own complete eradication from American soil.

The people of the United States, regardless of political affiliations, will regret the loss and revere the memory of William McKinley, and though we gaze with sorrow on the bier, and feel deeply our great loss, we look forward to a better future with a firm determination to stamp out copletely and forever all doctrines or organizations which might be a menace to the public safety or the national honor.

Isn't it about time that the supervisors of River Falls township were getting ashamed of themselves? Probably they dont know how to feel that way. We should think they had sufficient cause if they did know how. The question of road improvements has been kept pretty well before them during all of the past summer, yet they have remained asleep while others worked. The village of St. Hilaire has put in considerable money on improving the road east of the iron bridge, which work should have been done by River Falls township. That road has been very much in need of improvement for years, but, until the village took the matter in hand, nothing was done. It is the farmers who need that road, and we are surprised that they have not taken interest enough in the matter to make the town board do something. If the present officers can't be made do their duty, let them drop out of sight and make room for better men.

A man in this town had got some medecine for his own use and set it on the sideboard. His wife unwittingly set a bottle of benzine alongside of it. When he went to take his medecine he observed it was horrible truck, but he took 'er down, remarking as it went, that it was the ——dest stuff he ever tasted. Presently his wife noticed that he smelled not unlike a Standard oil supply wagon and an investigation disclosed the fact that he had found the wrong bottle. Fearing serious results, she telephoned the doctor but he told her to rest easy and keep him away from the fire and he would pull through without injury.

His Uncertainty.

Farmer Honk—Say, Hem!

Farmer Stuckrider—Har?

Farmer Honk—Is that 'ere solemn, spectacled young nephew of yourn that's bein called "doctor" and goes around lookin as wise as a treeful of owls a dentist, a hoss physician, a corn curer, a layer on of hands, a presidin elder or just a common doctor that saws bones and kills folks?—Puck.

All Embracing.

"I see that somebody says Edmund Kean, the most famous of English actors, lived to adapt the kind of meat he ate to the part he had to play, choosing pork for tyrants, beef for murderers and mutton for lovers."

"That's a great idea. I suppose when he had to play several parts in one evening he ate hash."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A New England man was given to addressing his cattle in rather emphatic terms. One day when the cows were more than usually frolicsome he was heard to exclaim: "Yes, scatter, will ye! Blast ye! If there wasn't but one of ye, ye'd scatter!"

It is pitiful to see a well behaved old man hustling around to help his wayward son out of difficulty.—Atchison Globe.

Twenty Lost Gold Mines.

There are at least 20 lost gold mines in various parts of the world. Many of them have yielded rich ores and then have been deserted and entirely lost.

There is one in the north of the Transvaal, for instance, that was discovered by accident in the eighties by two Englishmen. The finders had encamped one night and had, as they thought, securely tethered their horses when they suddenly heard a loud neigh from one of the animals and a moment after saw them both racing away apparently in the greatest terror.

Soon after dawn they were up and after an hour's tramp found one of the poor beasts lying on the ground with a broken leg. In its struggles it had kicked up the ground and had exposed rich gold quartz only a few inches below the surface.

The two men marked the spot and returned to the district a month later to start work on the mine. But in spite of all their efforts they could not find the place, and to this day the mine has not been rediscovered.

In the late seventies there was tremendous excitement in California when a prospector described a gold mine he had found. A party soon prepared to set out, with the discoverer of the mine as guide, but the mine has never been discovered, though thousands of dollars have been spent in prospecting for it.—Stray Stories.

Time to Leave.

The late D'Oyly Carte always safeguarded himself by refusing to see any one who had not an appointment or stated his or her business on a printed form supplied at his office. Alfred Cellier used to tell a delightful story in this respect. He had a manservant, a Swiss Italian, and one day, having been invited to dine with Mr. and Mrs. Carte on Adelphia terrace and forgotten the time, he sent down his henchman to learn the hour of the repast. This was about 10 in the morning. The day went on, and no emissary appeared till past 5 in the evening, when the henchman crept wearily in.

"Where have you been, you rascal?" asked Cellier indignantly.

"Ah, sare," replied the poor fellow. "I go Mistare Carte. I go in room. A gentleman 'e come and say, 'Vhat name?' I tell him and say, 'I vant see Mistare Carte.' He say, 'All in good time; vait for your name; sit down.' I sit down. Lots gentlemen and ladies. I vait, I vait, I vait. I get angri and doorsti, but still I vait, I vait, I vait. Den at last I 'ear my name. I go in leetel room. Gentleman 'e say, 'Vat voce?' I say, 'I not know.' 'E say, 'Den vhat come here for?' I say, 'I vant know vhat time Mistare Carte 'ave dinner?' Den 'e svare, and I come 'ome."

"Henry IX."

It is interesting to recall that, just as Edward VII of England chose his second baptismal name as the one by which he wished to be designated when he mounted the throne, so likewise his great-uncle, William Henry, would have preferred to be known as Henry IX. One of the reasons for this preference was the desire to establish lawful right to a title which had already been arrogated by the cardinal of York, the last of the Stuart pretenders. When the question, however, came up for discussion in the privy council, the latter decided in favor of King William IV. This story was told by the king himself to Miss Helen Lloyd, the governess of his children. He added that the privy council was moved to this choice partly by fear of exciting the superstitious fears of the populace, who still bore in their memory a prophecy dating from the seventeenth century, which runs as follows:

Henry the Eighth pulled down monks and their cells;
Henry the Ninth shall pull down bishops and bells.

Bismarck's Philosophy of Life.

With dutiful trust in God, dig in the spurs and let life, like a wild horse, take you flying over hedge and ditch, resolved to break your neck, and yet fearless, inasmuch as you must some time part from all that is dear to you on earth, though not forever. If grief is near, well, let him come on, but until he arrives do not merely look bright and blessed, but be it, too, and when sorrow comes you bear it with dignity—that is to say, with submission and hope.—Love Letters of Prince Bismarck.

Grandpa's Pet.

A little boy was sitting on his grandfather's knee, talking about various things, when grandpapa pulled out his watch.

"Grandpapa, when you die will you leave that watch for me?" said the boy.

"Well, I don't know—yes, I guess I will," retorted the old gentleman.

"Well, grandpapa, how soon are you going to die?"—Columbus Dispatch.

A Tougher Rail.

"Excuse me," said the citizen of the plains, "but didn't we ride you out of this town on a rail some ten years ago?"

"Believe you did," responded the fearless barnstormer.

"Well, look out this time."

"Oh, I am used to traveling by rail."

"That may be, stranger, but we only have barb wire fences out here now."—Philadelphia Record.

Borax Soap.

To make an excellent soap out of the scraps and broken pieces that come from the soap dishes in bedrooms and kitchens, drop them into an old tin can, and when it is full dissolve three ounces of powdered borax in two quarts of warm water, and stir till the soap is melted. When cold, it will form a jelly. This borax soap is excellent for cleaning and does not fade articles washed in it.

NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given, That at the opening of the October A. D. 1901 General Term of the District Court in and for the county of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, at the court house in the city of Red Lake Falls in said county on the twenty-eight (28) day of October A. D. 1901, or as soon thereafter as Counsel can be heard, Harry E. Ives, a resident of the Village of St. Hilaire, county of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, and the owner of all the lands and premises hereinafter described; will apply to said District Court for an order for the alteration of the Plat embracing all those blocks, pieces tracts or parcels of land lying and being in the county of Red Lake and state of Minnesota, and described as follows, to-wit: Blocks numbered three (3) and four (4) of Ives' addition to St. Hilaire, according to the Plat thereof on file and of record in the office of the register of deeds in and for said Red Lake county, so as to include both of said above described Blocks in one (1) block to be known and designated as "Block three (3) of Ives' Re-arrangement of blocks three (3) and four (4) of Ives' addition to St. Hilaire."

Said application will also be for the purpose of having "Franklin Street" between said blocks three (3) and four (4), and all alleys and parts of alleys within the aforesaid boundary lines vacated and the title to all the lands and premises above described declared and adjudged to be in the said Harry E. Ives and for such other and further relief as to the court may seem just and proper.

Dated at St. Hilaire, Minnesota, this 18th day of September A. D. 1901.

Value of the Footbath.

To break up a cold, which certainly disfigures the face of beauty, as well as a valuable adjunct in the removal of facial eruptions, the nightly footbath is invaluable. The largest sweat glands of the body are located in the palms, armpits and soles of the feet. It is of primary importance that the multitudinous outlets should be unclogged. Where facial eruption exists and the whole attention is devoted toward the care of the face, every pore is active and open to afford the escape of clogging impurities.

This is all wrong. The feet should be made the gateway for the escape of effete deposits. The temperature of the footbath should range from 105 to 110 degrees or as hot as can be endured with comfort. Should there exist chronic profuse and offensive perspiration, add a lump of washing soda to neutralize the acid exudation. The feet should be rubbed briskly to draw the blood down to the extremities. Cool the water before withdrawing the feet, so that they may not become unduly tender. Rub long and thoroughly with a soft towel.

Good pedal circulation is a foe to corns and chilblains. Frequent warm footbaths prevent callouses and make walking a pleasure. For beauty and complexion take extraordinary care of the feet.—Ledger Monthly.

Crookston College opened its seventh school year on the 9th inst. with a larger enrollment than at any previous year in the history of the institution. The buildings have been put in first-class shape and everything has been done to make the time both pleasant and profitable for the students. The expenses have been reduced to a minimum. No other school has been able to offer board and furnished room, taken care of in private family or hotel for from $2.50 to $3.00 per week. Its students, which now number over a thousand, have met with excellent success all over the Northwest.

—Julius Pleth, the land man of St. Hilaire wants to buy farm lands—wild or improved, and will pay spot cash for same.

To cure a cough in one day take the Imperial cough syrup. Guaranteed to cure. For sale at the new Drug Store.

A Nineteenth Century Trick.

W. C. Smiley was here from Thief River Falls during the last days of last week he having been invited down by Chas Brink for a couple of days hunting. (You all know Charlie Brink, of course. If you don't you ought to. He is worth knowing.)

On Thursday afternoon a party of four was made up for a hunting trip those composing it being the aforesaid W. C. Smiley and Chas Brink with J. J. Soll and H. E. Ives. They started immediately after dinner and were guided by Charlie in a southeasterly direction for a few hours he taking them to a place where he had seen several cavies of grouse and he assured them that no hunting had been done in that vicinity this year. About 5:30 p. m. the party came to a halt in the centre of what seemed to be an interminable swamp. Charlie was the only one in the party that wasn't getting tired and hot.

"Look here,' Smiley demanded 'where did you see them grouse?"

"Right here," said Charlie.

The others all exchanged looks and silence reigned for a minutes or two. Finally Harry Ives gasped. "When?"

"Why - er—lets see;" said Charlie. "Oh, yes, it was in '95."

It was too late to take a proper revenge that evening, but the others are figuring out ways and means of letting Charlie know that we are living in a different century from that in which he saw those grouse. "So to speak."

We are showing the newest and best styles in Ladies' and Misses Cloaks and Jackets. Ladies' Wool Kerseys, ¾ length, from $5.50 upwards in black, brown, tan, mode, grey, garnet, etc. A full line of children's garments.

Bangs & Co., Red Lake Falls.

Daily Passenger Train.

Last week we announced that a daily passenger train would be put in operation on this line on the 16th inst. At the time that announcement was made it was the intention of the Great Northern Railway Co's. passenger department to have the passenger train running on this line as stated. Some unforeseen circumstances, however, made this impossible and it is now officially announced that the daily passenger train will not begin to run until about the 22nd inst. (next Sunday.)

We are assured that the long looked for passenger train service will be effective by the 22nd or 23rd inst. The new service will be run separate from the freight trains which we have been used to travelling on but the freight service will be about the same as usual.

We understand that the new passenger train will leave Crookston about 9:10 a. m.—after the arrival of the Duluth train from Grand Forks—and will arrive in St. Hilaire about 10:20 a. m. Returning, the train will leave here about 3:40 and will arrive in Crookston in time to make connections with the train from Duluth to Grand Forks at 4:39. The schedule has not been issued yet but it will be published in these columns as soon as ready. It will probably be close to the above mentioned time.

Hay Press for Sale.

A woman who is a first-class jollier is always popular with the men.

Lots of plans of ours would succeed if it were not for the "other fellow."

We see folks going to the laundry who do not look as if they ever washed.

Lots of people observe Labor Day and do nothing else the rest of the year.

Don't you every day miss saying something smart because you couldn't think of it?

Lots of disagreeable people think they have "just enough temper to take their own part."

We notice that a man with a coarse voice doesn't necessarily mean a man of much importance.

If you want to put things where you may find them again, never put them in a kitchen cupboard.

We observe that women have the same trouble keeping their neckties down behind that the men do.

Some men are such good talkers that they can make you hungry just by talking about good things to eat.

We would dislike very much to be subjected to all the criticism that is inflicted on an out of town man who marries a girl in a country town.

Nowadays sensible names are so rare that if a kid has a good old fashioned name, folks at once conclude that it must have been named for a relative.

Behind The Millionaire.

There seems to be a "man behind" everything. Who is the man behind the millionaire? The most powerful men in this country owe much of their invincibility to bright and brilliant men—generally young men—who are scheming and planning in their employer's interests. Men who put in long hours behind the throne and who will some day become millionaires themselves. Such men and, in fact, all workers need "Golden Grain Belt" beer to build up their strength and make their heads clear. It is brewed from the purest barley malt and hops. Order of your dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

What the Bell Ringing Means.

Since the placing of the new bell upon the village hall a system has been arranged for the meaning of the bell when tolled. From now on the ringing of the bell will be according to the following code:

Council Meeting:—1 stroke every 30 seconds.

Firemens Meeting:—double stroke every 30 seconds.

Fire Alarm:—continuous ringing.

Curfew:—Up to Oct. 1st 9 single strokes at 9 o'clock. After October 1st 8 single strokes of bell. All children under 16 found on the streets after that hour and not accompanied by parents or a guardian will be arrested.

A GLOWING REPORT.

AN INDIANA MAN COMPARES WESTERN CANADA WITH THE UNITED STATES.

What Mr. Frank Fisher, a Prominent Dunkard, Has to Say After a Trip Through Canada.

The Department of the Interior at Ottawa has just received from Mr. E. T. Holmes, the agent of the government stationed at Indianapolis, Ind., the following letter, which requires no comment. It is only necessary to state that Mr. F. Fisher, the writer of the letter is one of the most prominent of the Dunkards and a man upon whose word the utmost reliance can be placed. His home is at Mexico, Ind., and he will be pleased to substantiate verbally or in any other way all that he says in his letter.

Anyone desiring information apply to nearest Canadian agent, whose addresses are here given:

To My Many Friends—I am pleased to make a report to you of the pleasant visit my wife and I had in Western Canada.

We visited the territories of Alberta, Assiniboia, and Saskatchewan, and found them far surpassing our imagination, but little did I expect to find such rich, loamy soil, so much of it, and so uniform in its level prairie lay. I do think the soil of Canada as a rule equals if not excels the finest prairie farm lands of Indiana. These lands are immense in their richness, and when once the sod is rotted and pulverized, it is as pliable and as easily cultivated as Indiana sandy soil.

Western Canada, from my point of view, offers as fine opportunities for mixed farming as any place in my knowledge. The long, sunshiny days, together with the rich soil, produce very fine wheat, oats, barley, flax and other cereal products. There is scarcely any attempt to raise corn, except early varieties for table use. The season is too short to depend upon maturing field corn. From the standpoint of getting this land ready for the plow, I must say that I never saw such a vast extent practically all ready so all that one has to do is to hitch up the plow and go to work. This is not the case with all the Canadian land, however; some of it has quite a bit of timber, much of it may be called brush land, and some of it has lovely forest groves, dotted here and there, thereby covering a hundred and sixty acres.

I have no doubt but that this country excels as a grazing or ranching country, because they have such rich grass, having an abundance of rain to keep it fresh. They also have plenty of water streams, and as a rule water may be reached at a depth of from 20 to 40 feet. From this you can see there can be plenty of hay mown for winter feeding, and I have had reliable farmers to tell me that their stock will feed on hay alone, and be ready for market in the spring. Upon inquiring about the expense of raising a steer, a farmer replied that he did not consider it would cost any more than $4 or $6 to develop a three-year-old steer.

I truly think Canada offers a fine opening for a young man or a man who is renting land in Indiana. One hundred and sixty acres of good black land will cost you only $10 at the time you enter it, and by plowing and cultivating five acres each year for three years, gives you one hundred and sixty acres of good land for $10. This land can be bought from the railroad companies, private corporations or the government for $3 to $4 per acre.

From a financial standpoint, I believe that for a series of years (five) a young man can make $10 in Canada, whereas he would only make $1 here, and I feel sure that I spent more money to get my eighty acre farm in White county, Indiana, cultivated than it would cost me to cultivate eight hundred acres in Canada. This may seem a strong view to take of the matter, but when you take into consideration the clearing, ditching, fencing and the expensive breaking in of the stumps, and then compare the expense to that of land needing only the breaking, you will conclude that it is not such a wild or exaggerated statement as you might at first think.

I enjoyed the balmy, breezy atmosphere, which was bracing and refreshing, and the cool nights which made it so pleasant for sleep.

On making inquiries regarding the winters in this country, I learned that the people never suffer from the cold, as the weather is dry and invigorating, and in a great many places farmers and herders allow their stock to run outside the year round.

One great advantage to the settlers in Western Canada is the free creameries established by the government and run exclusively in the interest of the farmer.

I visited Thomas Daley, a farmer near Edmonton, Alberta, who showed me oats he had raised, some of which took the first prize at the Paris Exposition last year. The same yielded 110 bushels to the acre in 1899.

Yours truly,

Coolness in Danger.

Kipling tells somewhere of a lieutenant who steadies his men by lighting his pipe while the Afghans are shooting from cover all about him. It seems there is an exact parallel to this in the history of American industry, which shows, rather curiously, how Anglo-Saxon leadership adapts itself to circumstances. It was in the terrific log jam in Grand River, Michigan, in 1884.

The men, under the leadership of one John Walsh, were driving piles to hold the feeble barrier which alone held the logs in check. After working through two sleepless nights and the intervening day, in plain view of death, the men became demoralized. There came a time when John saw the limit of their endurance was reached.

"Boys," said he, irrelevantly, "let's have a smoke."

So they sat down on the logs, and for ten minutes puffed tobacco quietly into the air.

"Now," said John, knocking the ashes from his pipe, "let's get something done." The crew responded to a man.—Leslie's Monthly.

DAY OF MOURNING

THOUSANDS OF PEOPLE VIEW THE BODY OF THE MARTYRED PRESIDENT.

SORROW EVERYWHERE APPARENT

Simple but Affecting Service Held at the Milburn Residence, After Which the Body Is Removed to the City Hall, Where It Is Viewed by Grief-Stricken Citizens—60,000 People Pass Before the Bier.

Buffalo, Sept. 16.—Buffalo yesterday became a city of mourners. The gay and flaming decorations gave way to the symbol of sorrow. The black drapery of the city's streets muffled the tolling bells of the churches. Bits of crepe appeared on every sleeve. The sorrow was everywhere apparent. In the morning a simple service took place at the residence on Delaware avenue where the martyred president died.

A hymn was sung and prayer was offered over the dead body. That was all. Only the immediate family and the friends and political associates of the late president were present. The scene there was pathetic in the extreme. Then the body was borne out to the waiting cortege on the brawny shoulders of eight sailors and soldiers of the republic. The cortege passed through solid walls of living humanity, bareheaded and grief-stricken, to the city hall, where the body lay in state yesterday afternoon. There a remarkable demonstration occurred which proved how close the president was to the hearts of the people. Arrangements had been made to allow the public from the time it arrived, at about 1:30 o'clock, until about 5 o'clock. But the people were wedged into the streets for blocks. Two lines were formed. They extended literally for miles. When 5 o'clock came 40,000 people had already passed and the crowds waiting below in the streets seemed undiminished. It was decided to extend the time till midnight. Then for hours longer the streets were dense with people and a constant stream flowed up the steps of the broad entrance into the hall and passed the bier. When the doors were closed at midnight it was estimated that 60,000 people had viewed the remains, but thousands of disappointed ones were still in the streets.

To View the Body

The body will be taken to the station by a military escort this morning, the funeral train, consisting of seven cars, will start for Washington over the Pennsylvania road at 8:30. Mrs. McKinley, the president, the cabinet and relatives and friends of the dead president will accompany the remains. Mrs. McKinley bore up bravely yesterday during the service at Milburn residence, and Dr. Rixey, her physician, thinks she will be able to support her trying part in the state funeral at Washington.

IN MEMORY OF THE MARTYR.

Memorial Services Held Throughout the Country.

New York, Sept. 16. — Naturally the theme of all the sermons preached in New York and its suburbs yesterday was the lamentable death of the president. With practical unanimity those in charge of the services had the congregations sing "Nearer my God to thee," as a still further tribute to Mr. McKinley. Most of the churches were draped in black and in not a few the American flag mingled its colors with the dark folds of crepe. The congregations were large in every church and there was a marked gravity about the worshippers.

-o-

Washington, Sept. 16. — "Nearer my God to thee," the late president's favorite hymn, formed a feature of the service of homage and tribute held in almost every church in the national capital yesterday. The Metropolitan Methodist church, the president's church, was crowded. The president's pew was heavily draped in black. Rev. William H. Chapman, who is temporarily filling the pulpit in the absence of the pastor, Dr. Bristol, in London, preached the sermon and three other ministers assisted him.

-o-

Chicago, Sept. 16. — Almost without exception President McKinley's death was the theme of pastors, priests and rabbis at the different churches in this city yesterday. Senator William E. Mason occupied the pulpit at the Hyde Park Methodist church at its memorial services, and the announcement that he would speak filled the edifice to its fullest capacity. His speech was devoted almost entirely to President McKinley.

-o-

Cleveland, Sept. 16. — Tributes were paid to the life of President McKinley in Cleveland yesterday by representatives of every religion. Ministers of the gospel joined in eulogizing William McKinley as the man, Maj. McKinley as the soldier, and President McKinley as the statesman.

-o-

Cincinnati, Sept. 16. — The death of President McKinley was generally observed in the churches of various denominations here yesterday by appropriate texts and sermons. The ministers spared no words in denouncing the assassination and the existence of anarchy.

-o-

St. Louis, Sept. 16.—Special memorial services in honor of President McKinley were held in all the churches here yesterday.

MOURNING ABROAD.

Remarkable Outburst of Sympathy in Great Britain.

London, Sept. 16.—It would be almost impossible to record in detail the remarkable outburst of sympathy in Great Britain and her colonies over the death of President McKinley, proofs of which come hourly. Not only has King Edward ordered the court to go into mourning for one week, but wherever a public meeting of any kind has been held or a public man has had occasion to speak, expressions of horror and sympathy have been heard. In every place of public worship yesterday from St. Paul's cathedral and Canterbury cathedral down to the preachers made special references to the terrible event, invoking God's bless[illegible] the United States and American people. Crathie church at Balmoral, whose bells had never before been used except on occasions of national interest, broke the custom and announced the event to the neighborhood.

Mr. Choate and the staff of the United States embassy, who again had their hands very full, attended service at St. Paul's cathedral in the afternoon. There were many other Americans in the congregation. In accordance with a special army order the guards at St. James' palace and at all other points where guard was mounted throughout the United Kingdom, honors were rendered yesterday to the memory of President McKinley such as are usually accorded only on the death of royal personages. The troops wore crepe and the bands played dirges. Funeral marches were played in every church in the kingdom.

-o-

London, Sept. 16.—King Edward has commanded the court to go in mourning for a week on account of the death of President McKinley.

-o-

Rome, Sept. 16.—The government has ordered the commanders of all naval vessels to half-mast their flags for three days.

-o-

Berlin, Sept. 16. — Emperor William has issued orders to place the flags on all government buildings at half-mast in memory of President McKinley.

EDWARD TELLS OF SYMPATHY.

England's King Telegraphs Ambassador Choate Expressing Grief of the British People.

London, Sept. 16.—King Edward telegraphed to Ambassador Choate as follows:

"Most truly do I sympathize with you and the whole American nation at the loss of your distinguished and ever-to-be-regretted president.

—"Edward, Rex."

POPE WEEPS ON HEARING NEWS.

Pontiff's Emotion Uncontrollable When Told of the President's Death—Prays for an Hour.

London, Sept. 16.—A special dispatch from Rome says the pope prayed an hour for the soul of President McKinley. The pontiff wept with uncontrollable emotion on receiving the news of the President's death. All audiences at the Vatican have been suspended.

PRESIDENT M'KINLEY'S WILL.

Bulk of His Property Left to His Wife.

Buffalo, Sept. 16.—President McKinley has left a will. The instrument was executed some time before the shooting and at no time during his final suffering was there any wish or occasion to revise it, or to frame a codicil. It leaves the bulk of his property to Mrs. McKinley. How much the estate is worth cannot be stated with exactness by those familiar with the late president's business affairs, but it is believed to be a goodly sum, although not amounting to a large fortune.

CATARRH OF KIDNEYS

Quickly Develops Into Bright's Disease.

[PE-RU-NA CURES CATARRH WHEREVER LOCATED.]

John Herziger, son of Alderman Herziger, of Neenah, Wis., and Vice President of the Neenah Young Men's Club, writes in a recent letter to The Peruna Medicine Co., of Columbus, Ohio, the following:

"After suffering for two years with kidney trouble I received relief and a cure from using your wonderful medicine, Peruna.

"For months I was unable to work on account of a severe pain in my back, and when I was able to do anything I was in pain and distressed most of the time.

"Hearing so much of the good results people had obtained through the use of Peruna I determined to give it a trial and it was a lucky day for me when I did so. I am well now and it only took a few bottles of Peruna."—John Herziger, 307 Commercial street, Neenah, Wis.

Two years suffering with catarrh of the kidneys, unable to work on account of the severe pain; could find no relief from medicine; gave Peruna a trial and was promptly cured—such was the experience of John Herziger of Wisconsin.

This experience has been repeated many times. Not only in Wisconsin but in every state in the Union. It was indeed a lucky day for this young man when his attention was called to Peruna. What would have been the result had he continued suffering on and fooling away precious time with other remedies, no man can tell. But it is almost certain that it would have ended in incurable Bright's disease of the kidneys, which sooner or later would have proved fatal.

Peruna is a sure cure for incipient Bright's disease of the kidneys. Taken in the early stages of this disease, it cures permanently. Bright's disease always begins with catarrh of the kidneys. Peruna cures catarrh wherever located.

Congressman Bankhead's Statement.

Congressman J. H. Bankhead of Alabama, one of the most influential members of the House of Representatives, in a letter written from Washington, D. C., gives his indorsement to the great catarrh remedy, Peruna, in the following words:

"Your Peruna is one of the best medicines I ever tried, and no family should be without your remarkable remedy. As a tonic and a catarrh cure I know of nothing better."—J. H. Bankhead.

Samuel R. Sprecher, Junior Beadle Court Angelina No. 3422, I. O. O. F., 205 High St., Los Angeles, Cal., writes:

"I came here a few years ago suffering with catarrh of the kidneys, in search of health. I thought that the climate would cure me but found that I was mistaken, but what the climate could not do Peruna could and did do. Seven weeks' trial convinced me that I had the right medicine and I was then a well man. I know of at least twenty friends and members of the lodge to which I belong who have been cured of catarrh, bladder and kidney trouble through the use of Peruna and it has a host of friends in this city."—Samuel R. Sprecher.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

HERRESHOFF'S WHITE WONDER AGAIN DEFEATS THE SHAMROCK.

LIPTON ALMOST SECURES A RACE

LEADS COLUMBIA AT THE FINISH BUT LOSES ON TIME ALLOWANCE.

IRISH BOAT MAKES BEST TIME

GALLANT IRISH KNIGHT LEADS THE CHEERS FOR THE VICTOR.

New York, Oct. 5.—With victory flags floating from her towering mastheads and the ends of her spreaders in honor of her concluding triumph in the cup races of 1901, the gallant sloop Columbia returned to her anchorage last night under the escort of the entire excursion fleet. She had completed her defense of the honored trophy in another stirring race with the Shamrock II over a leeward and windward course of thirty miles, crossing the finish line two seconds behind her antagonist, but winning on time allowance conceded by Lipton's boat by forty-one seconds.

For the second time she has now successfully foiled the attempt of the Irish knight to wrest from our possession the cup that means the yachting supremacy of the world. And plucky Sir Thomas Lipton, standing on the bridge of the Erin, led his guests in three hearty huzzas for the successful defender.

"She is the better boat," he said, "and she deserves to be cheered."

The series of races just closed will always be memorable as the closest ever sailed for the cup, and Sir Thomas, although defeated, will go home with the satisfaction of knowing that his golden yacht is the

that ever crossed the western ocean. During both series of races not an untoward incident has occurred, and Sir Thomas will return to England by far the most popular of all the foreigners who have challenged for the America's trophy.

Yesterday's race, on paper, was the closest of the series, because of the fickleness of the wind on the beat home, but as a contest of the relative sea merits it is not to be compared with the magnificent, truly run and nobly fought battles of Saturday and Thursday. The wind was strong and from the shore, embroidering the sea with foam and piling up no swell—ideal conditions for the challenger. The racers were sent away before the wind, each carrying a penalty for crossing the line after the handicap gun. No official record is kept of the time after that gun had been fired, but the experts with stop watches estimated Columbia's handicap at fifteen seconds and Shamrock's at thirty seconds. The contest of the yachts fleeing before the following wind was picturesque, but not exciting. Notwithstanding the fact that the Columbia beat the Shamrock before the wind last Saturday, the challenger yesterday

Gained Slowly But Steadily

all the way out and rounded forty-nine seconds before the defender, having actually gained one minute and four seconds. Immediately after the yachts turned their noses into the wind for the beat home the breeze moderated and turned fluky. The skippers split tacks, each searching for wind, with the result that first one would get a lift and then the other. At one time Columbia seemed a mile ahead when with a sudden cant of the wind, allowed Shamrock to point nearer the mark and a mile from home the challenger appeared to be leading by fully half a mile. The talent began to feel nervous, but as the yachts approached the finish the Yankee skipper by some miraculous legerdemain, shoved his boat into the light air like a phantom ship, and one hundred yards from home the two racers were almost on even terms. It was a pretty sight and one seldom witnessed when they crossed rail to rail, the white yacht's bowsprit just lapping the golden boat's mast. The usual pandemonium that attends the

Final Yankee Victory

in a cup contest followed. Whistles, sirens, bells, bands and cheerers united in a grand chorus of jubilation, and J. P. Morgan's steam yacht Corsair added to the terrific din by firing a national salute of twenty-one guns.

While taking his defeat gamely, Sir Thomas Lipton made no attempt to conceal the honest disappointment when he talked about the races last night on the Erin.

"I am very disappointed," he said. "I can't hide that. I thought within fifteen minutes of the finish that we had won. I was sure as my life we had won. It was a hard blow to be so near winning and then to lose. I should like to have got one race, just by way of consolation. It is a very hard thing to be beaten by a breath—by a few beats of the pulse. It has been a severe strain on me. I have worked so hard for many months now and I am glad it is over. To have won would have been a joy greater than today's disappointment. Columbia's win to-day was fair and square and honorable."

BRITONS DISAPPOINTED.

They Think That Lipton Deserved Better Luck.

London, Oct. 5.—There is a feeling of supreme disappointment in London over the failure of Shamrock II. to win even a single race. Those who denounced Sir Thomas Lipton's ambition, asserting that he was using his yacht to advertise his business interests, now admit that his sportsman's spirit deserved a better result. When the American yacht was leading near the home stretch the news was received in silence by the crowds on the embankment. There was never much betting in this country, and the disappointment among the masses is sincere and general.

INDIANS UGLY.

Mille Lacs County Settlers Are Afraid of an Outbreak.

St. Paul, Oct. 5. — Dr. E. H. Boeckman, sent by Dr. Bracken of the state board of health to investigate the smallpox epidemic among the Indians in Mille Lacs county, returned yesterday. He says the guards are now enforcing the quarantine with fair success. The disease is most virulent in form, however, and there have been several deaths. The Indians are in an ugly mood, their pay having been withheld by the government because they refuse to remove to the White Earth reservation. The settlers are much disturbed, fearing both the smallpox and an outbreak of the Indians. There is no great danger of an epidemic at present. Lars Erickson, a pioneer trader of Mille Lacs county, yesterday called at the capitol to enlist the aid of Gov. Van Sant. He says there is danger of an Indian outbreak and there is great danger of a smallpox epidemic. There are about 500 Indians loafing about homestead land who refuse to move. They have guns and refuse to obey the laws, living on game killed out of season.

FARMER AND SHOTGUN.

What a State Veterinarian Ran Up Against.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Oct. 5. — Henry Franseen, a prominent farmer living near Sioux Falls, was arrested yesterday on the charge of assault with a dangerous weapon and threatening the life of Dr. O. W. Stanley, assistant state veterinary surgeon, of this city. Dr. Stanley and State Veterinary Foster of Brown county, with another physician, went to Franseen's farm for the purpose of shooting some horses of his which were alleged to have been exposed to glanders. He appeared on the scene armed with a shotgun and ran the officials off his place. His preliminary examination was set for today, but has been continued until next Tuesday.

AFTER BREWER'S MONEY.

Iowa Attorney Wants Damages for Alleged Conspiracy.

Sioux City, Iowa, Oct. 5. — Eugene Lutz has commenced an action against the Sioux City Brewing company, demanding $20,000 damages for alleged malicious prosecution. Nov. 25, 1899, Lutz, who is an attorney, was arrested with a client named A. D. Brauner, for alleged conspiracy to injure the business of the brewing company, and put in jail. Brauner had been discharged from the employ of the company and sought retaliation by the prohibitory liquor law of Iowa. Lutz filed actions against the company and his arrest with his client followed.

WARD IS INDICTED.

In Connection With Wrecking Le Mars, Iowa, Bank.

Sioux City, Iowa, Oct. 5.—Seven indictments were returned against T. F. Ward in the federal court for falsifying the records of the Le Mars National bank, now defunct, and embezzling $13,000 of the bank's funds. Ward, who was vice president, absconded and was captured in New Jersey.

BLACK RIVER FALLS TERROR.

Although Declared Insane, He Was Peaceably Helping Build a Railroad.

La Crosse, Wis., Oct. 5.—John Lowery, who is alleged to have burned his home and tried to burn a barn and terrorized Black River Falls and escaped here after being declared insane by a jury, was found working on a railroad in Minnesota, near Winona.

Fargo's House Famine.

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 5.—Efforts are being made to interest Fargo capitalists in a plan to erect a number of residences in the city. There is a residence famine, and as a result those who have houses for rent demand such exorbitant rates that many people who have thought of locating here, have been forced to go elsewhere. The opportunity for a profitable investment in homes has never been better, and as a result of Mayor Johnson's hustling there may be a change by next year.

Rural Mail Boxes Broken.

La Crosse, Wis., Oct. 5. — Reports come from French Island, in the town of Campbell, this county, that rural mail boxes have been broken into and mutilated. The authorities have taken up the matter and an investigation is being made. Several boxes have been found unlocked heretofore, but it is but recently that the contents of the boxes have been tampered with.

Poison Ends Old Man's Life.

St. Paul, Oct. 5.—William H. Butterfield, a cripple aged sixty years, died at his home in this city from poison. Butterfield's roommate, Len Robinson, heard the old man walking about his room at 1 o'clock. At 3 o'clock he was again aroused by the old man's groans. Butterfield said he was "all right." When Robinson arose at 6 o'clock Butterfield lay beside him dead.

Minister Wu Will Orate!

Washington, Oct. 5.—Wu Ting Fang, minister from China, has accepted the invitation of the management of the Southern railway to make an address before the annual convention of the American Association of Passenger and General Ticket Agents at Asheville, N. C., Oct. 15 to 17 on the subject of "The Railways of China."

Has the Accident Habit.

Cumberland, Wis., Oct. 5. — Clinton Hammond, a carpenter working on the company's large cold storage plant at this place, fell from the second floor, a distance of fourteen feet, breaking his left arm. It is just a year ago that the same man had the right arm broken and an eye knocked out in an accident.

Derailed by a Boulder.

La Crosse, Wis., Oct. 5. — Passenger train No. 49, due here on the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy from Chicago at 8:13, struck a huge boulder near McCartney while going fifty miles an hour. Fortunately the impact hurled it to one side, the only damage being to the engine.

Hand Nearly Chopped Off.

Cumberland, Wis., Oct. 5.—Iver Solum's two-year-old boy had his hand nearly chopped off by his brother while playing with an axe.

TO CALL SAMPSON

SCHLEY'S ATTORNEYS DEMAND HIS PRESENCE BEFORE THE COURT.

TO EXPLAIN "DEAR SCHLEY" LETTER

WHETHER HE MEANT CIENFUEGOS WHEN HE WROTE SANTIAGO.

TOUCHING THE COAL QUESTION

MASS OF FIGURES REGARDING SUPPLY ON THE FLYING SQUADRON.

Washington, Oct. 5. — In the Schley naval court of inquiry Mr. Rayner, chief of counsel for Admiral Schley, asked Judge Advocate Lemly to summon Admiral Sampson as a witness in the case. The request grew out of a difference in the construction of a sentence in Admiral Sampson's letter to Commodore Schley, written from Key West May 20, while Commodore Schley with his flying squadron lay off Cienfuegos. This is known as the "Dear Schley letter," and it was printed in the navy department documents supplied to the senate. The admiral said, after expressing his opinion that notwithstanding the report that the Spanish squadron was in Santiago, it were better to continue to blockade Cienfuegos and Havana, "we shall continue to hold Havana and Santiago until we receive more positive information."

During the examination of Commander Raymond P. Rodgers this dispatch was under consideration, when Mr. Rayner expressed the opinion that the word Santiago had been inadvertently used by the commander-in-chief, assuming that he meant to use the word Cienfuegos as better corresponding with the context. As the document was printed there was to which Admiral Schley's initials were attached, saying that evidently the wrong city had been mentioned. Mr. Rayner asked Judge Advocate Lemly to make this concession, but the latter declined to do so, saying that he would produce the original of Admiral Sampson's dispatch to prove that he had said Santiago. Then Mr. Rayner said:

A Parenthetical Note,

"I cannot take that word Santiago to mean anything but Cienfuegos. It is an imputation upon Commodore Schley, and I cannot permit it to rest without summoning the author of that dispatch," to which Capt. Lemly responded: "I have told you once before you can summon any one you please."

"Then," retorted Mr. Rayner, "summon Admiral Sampson."

This occurred only a short time before the adjournment of the court for the day, and was the subject of more or less conversation of an animated character after the day's work was concluded. Mr. Rayner would only say that he would insist upon the admiral's being summoned unless the correction was conceded.

As to Coal Supply.

The witnesses for the day were Lieut. C. W. Dyson of the bureau of steam engineering concerning the coal supply of the flying squadron; Commander Raymond P. Rodgers, who was second in command of the battleship Iowa during the Spanish war and carried Admiral Sampson's dispatches of May 20 to Commodore Schley, and Commander Albon C. Hodgson, who was the navigator of the flagship Brooklyn.

Lieut. Dyson presented a mass of figures giving the coal supply of the flying squadron, and the number of tons consumed by the different vessels at various speeds. This testimony was intended to show that there was no necessity for Schley to leave the blockade off Santiago to go to Key West for coal. He made a good case until Schley's attorneys took him in hand, and when they got through with him his elaborate display of mathematics was torn to tatters.

While Commander Rogers was on the stand Mr. Rayner submitted a computation of shells from the American fleet which had struck the wrecked vessels of Cervera's squadron, showing that at least 34 per cent of them were Fired by the Brooklyn.

This computation Mr. Rayner said had been prepared by Admiral Schley upon the basis of a report made by a board of survey, of which the witness was the senior member. Commander Hodgson gave a graphic description of the battle off Santiago, describing the part taken in it by the Brooklyn, and explaining the change in the entry of that vessel's log. During his testimony the colloquy between himself and Admiral Schley on the bridge of the Brooklyn was referred to. In response to Capt. Lemly's questions he said that when the Brooklyn made the much discussed turn he remarked to Schley that they were in danger of ramming the Texas. To this he alleges that Schley replied: "Damn the Texas; let her take care of herself. I am not going to take chances of being blown up by a torpedo boat."

FAIRVIEW HOUSE BURNED.

Property Loss at Faribault Amounting to $8,000.

Faribault, Minn., Oct. 5. — Fire destroyed the Fairview house, built for an invalid's home and owned by the heirs of G. M. Gilmore and occupied by John Moffett. The loss is $8,000; insurance, $5,300.

Steamer Goes Down.

Alden, Mich., Oct. 5. — The steamer Hattie K. plying between Elk Rapids and Easterly, sank yesterday in Torch lake. The crew, consisting of two men, Capt. Fred Smith and his sixteen-year-old son, are missing.

Ambassador White Arrives.

New York, Oct. 5.—Andrew D. White, ambassador of the United States to Germany, was a passenger on the steamship Auguste Victoria, which arrived in port last night from Hamburg, Southampton and Cherbourg.

PRAYED FOR DEATH.

Man Mentally Deranged Pleads That He Be Not Sent to an Insane Asylum.

St. Joseph, Mo., Oct. 5.— Andrew J. Brown, formerly a wealthy stockman and mine owner, was before the county court yesterday during an inquiry into his sanity.

"I know that I am mentally unbalanced and ought to be treated," he said, "but send me where I can be quiet—not to the asylum above all places. I had a brother who was confined there and he died, surrounded by maniacs. A man can't help becoming insane, and it is awful to have to go to where one's companions are all mad."

The court had no alternative and Brown was given into the custody of asylum attendants. Again addressing the court he said their action sealed his doom, and he prayed for death.

HIGH OFFICIALS IMPLICATED.

Story of Corruption Told by a Chicago Bailiff.

Chicago, Oct. 5. — Underlying the charge made by the grand jury that Alexander Sullivan, Edward Mayer, Frederick St. John and George P. Murray conspired to send James J. Lynch, the former bailiff in Judge Clifford's court, who is under charges of jury bribing, out of the jurisdiction of the criminal court and of keeping him there, is a greater conspiracy, it is said, implicating court officers.

The story told by Lynch to the grand jury astounded the members of that inquisitorial body, as it revealed a condition of corruption in the courts that exceeded anything that has ever been hinted at.

According to Lynch's story court officers and jurymen have been corrupted by the score, and there are at the present time in the courts of Cook county, he declares, bailiffs, who to his knowledge, have been guilty of acting as dispensing agents for the West Chicago street railway in efforts to reach jurors in the personal injury cases. So far-reaching was the statement of Lynch that the grand jury has decided to probe further into the matter.

FIRE CAUSES PANIC.

Two Girls Are Missing and Are Thought to Have Perished.

Sandusky, Ohio, Oct. 5.—Fire yesterday afternoon destroyed the plant of the American Crayon company, causing a loss estimated at $140,000. The insurance is $62,000. The fire started in the drying room on the first floor of the packing department and was first discovered when the flames broke through the second floor, where fifty girls were at work. The flames spread rapidly and a panic ensued. Within fifteen minutes the entire plant, covering a block, was on fire, as well as a half dozen houses. The plant and two large barns were soon in ruins. One hundred and fifty men were employed. Late last night it was reported that two girls were missing, and it is feared they have lost their lives.

MANY ADVENTURES.

Woman Dressed as a Man Elopes With Young Girl and Marries Her.

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 5. — Additional facts were developed last evening in connection with Burt Martin, the convict at the penitentiary who has been regarded as a man, but, whom investigation proved to be a female. Two years ago Martin, then twenty years of age, under the name of Burt Shurman, appeared at the town of Ashland. Here "he" induced the daughter of the family with whom he was staying to elope. They were arrested at Nebraska City, charged with stealing a livery team, but were not prosecuted. The father of the girl, however, insisted on a marriage ceremony and the couple were married at Wahoo.

MISS LONG DEAD.

Pulmonary Trouble Finally Results Fatally.

Hingham, Mass., Oct. 5.—Miss Helen Long, oldest daughter of Secretary Long, died last evening at the family residence in this town. Miss Long had been in failing health since November, 1898, with pulmonary trouble, and at that time her father sent her to Colorado Springs to live. A house was built for her there and she was given the best medical care. Several weeks ago her strength failed rapidly and it was deemed best for her to return to Hingham. Efforts to prolong her life were useless and her death occurred last night, the entire family being at her bedside.

A $200,000 FIRE.

Twenty Buildings at Tampa, Fla., Destroyed by Fire.

Tampa, Fla., Oct. 5.—Twenty buildings in the heart of West Tampa were burned yesterday morning, with a property loss of $200,000. The fire was discovered in the large cigar factory of O'Halloran & Co. The water supply in West Tampa was inadequate and the fire practically burned itself out. Great excitement exists on account of the belief that the fire was of incendiary origin. There have been several threats of incendiarism as a result of the labor troubles and agitators have been made to leave the city within the last few hours for advising the use of the torch.

NO DEWEY PROMISE.

Aguinaldo Admits That the American Admiral Never Promised Independence.

San Francisco, Oct. 5.—Congressman Kahn of California, who has just returned from the Philippines, in an interview said that he had obtained from Aguinaldo an explicit denial of the story that Dewey had ever made any promise of independence to the Filipinos.

King Edward Has Lumbago.

London, Oct. 5.—It was ascertained last evening that King Edward's complaint is lumbago. The attack is not at all serious. He drove out yesterday afternoon. Dr. Sir James Reid, summoned to Balmoral, has returned.

Appointed Deputy Collector.

Washburn, Wis., Oct. 5.—D. W. Carning has been appointed deputy collector of customs for this port in place of H. C. Prudhamme, resigned. The change has gone into effect.

LIKE A DIME NOVEL

STORY OF THE DARING ABDUCTION AND ROBBERY OF A WOMAN.

POLICE THOUGHT IT A FAIRY TALE

STRIPPED OF HER JEWELRY AND COMPELLED TO SIGN BANK CHECKS.

KEPT A PRISONER FOR FOUR DAYS

FOUR MEN ARRESTED CHARGED WITH COMPLICITY IN THE CRIME.

Philadelphia, Oct. 7.—Charged with kidnapping a woman and holding her a prisoner for four days, robbing her of jewels worth more than $2,000 and compelling her to sign bank checks for sums of money, is the story which the police unfolded here yesterday when they announced the arrest of a newspaper reporter, a society editor of a morning paper, a stenographer on another morning paper and a barber, whom the police charge with complicity in the crime. The men now locked up are Howard K. Sloan, an unemployed reporter; Henry Wallace, society editor of one of the morning papers; J. Knight Findlay of Wayne, near here, stenographer in the business office of another morning paper, and Oscar Dunlap, a barber employed in one of the most prominent shops in the city. The victim is Mrs. Mabel Goodrich, the proprietor of an establishment on North Tenth street.

Last Monday Mrs. Goodrich went to police headquarters and told a story of kidnapping and robbery so daring that the police at first doubted its truth. She said that for some time past a young man who represented himself as a resident of Germantown, had been a frequent visitor at her establishment. He was well dressed and spent money freely. Last Wednesday week he proposed a drive through Fairmount Park. He asked her to dress in her best clothes and for her to and other jewelry because on the return from the drive he intended to take her to the finest dining room in the city, and he wanted her to "shine" with the other women in the place. She accepted, and the next day she went out with him in a carriage with a pair of richly caparisoned horses and a coachman in the box wearing a stylish livery. At a lonely place in Fairmount Park the carriage was stopped by a man whom she said represented himself as D. Clarence Gibbony, the secretary of the Law and Order society in this city. This man told her he had a warrant for her arrest on the charge of keeping a disorderly house, but that the matter could be fixed up. He was invited into the carriage and the next moment she was gagged and blindfolded. She was driven somewhere, she did not know where, but she noticed from one corner of the handkerchief over her eye that the men paid toll at two toll gates and took in a gateway where a heavily laden truck was standing. She was kept prisoner from Wednesday until Friday night without anything to eat or drink, and was then taken to another house, being driven, where she was kept until Saturday night. She was stripped of her jewelry by two men and compelled to sign checks on the Third National bank, where she had her money deposited. They made her sign for more than she possessed, but compelled her to promise to make up the deficiency.

When She Was Released.

One of the men, she says, then took her on a long carriage ride and put her out at Tenth and Poplar streets, a mile from her home. With other information the woman gave them the detectives began to work on what they believed to be a fairy tale. They gained several clews which led them to a fire engine house in Fort Wayne, fifteen miles from this city. The fire company is a volunteer organization and the key to the place is kept in the nearest dwelling. The nearest house was occupied by a family named Findlay, and there the police learned that one of the sons, J. Knight Findlay, had been home but little during the past two weeks. Getting a description of him the police returned to this city and found the young man, who is only twenty-one years of age, in the office where he is employed. He was charged with the crime and broke down and implicated three others. Findlay said that he had impersonated the coachman; that Sloan, the unemployed reporter, acted the part of Attorney Gibboney; that the barber played the part of a rich Germantown resident, and that Wallace, the society editor, had rented a house in Germantown where Mrs. Goodrich was to have been held a captive. He told substantially the same story as that narrated by the woman.

All the jewelry was recovered, most of it having been found in the possession of Findlay and Sloan, who were wearing several of the rings. Only one check for $155 was cashed and most of this money was also recovered.

CRUSHED TO DEATH BY WIRE.

Two Men Killed in Strange Accident at Alpena, Mich.

Alpena, Mich., Oct. 7. — Two men were killed and three injured by being crushed under heavy rolls of wire at the Page Fence company warehouse. The men were piling wire when the outer tier of rolls toppled over upon them.

Unannounced Visit.

Lisbon, N. D., Oct. 7.—Popping into the soldiers' home here quite unexpectedly during the absence of Commandant McIlvain, Gen. Curtis, government inspector, caused a flurry. Matron McIlvain showed the general around.

Killed in a Runaway.

Lidgerwood, N. D., Oct. 7.—P. L. Olson, a prominent farmer of this vicinity, was instantly killed by a runaway team while returning home in company with one of his neighbors. He leaves a wife and several children.

ARTICLE SCORING SCHLEY

Admitted as Evidence Despite a Warm Protest.

Washington, Oct. 7. — "I protest against the records of this court being stained with calumnies against Admiral Schley," exclaimed Counsel Rayner Saturday as he began an argument in the court of inquiry against admitting as evidence an editorial published by an Eastern newspaper, in which the rear admiral was criticised harshly.

This incident developed during the reading of the correspondence relating to the controversy between Rear Admiral Schley and Lieut. Hodgson.

Almost the entire day was devoted to reading this correspondence and everything went smoothly until Judge Advocate Lemly started to read the editorial in question. Mr. Rayner objected on the ground that Schley had not read it, that it did not relate to the correspondence, and that, if it was admitted, other matter of a similar character would be brought in and the inquiry would never end.

After listening to the arguments the court retired for consultation. Upon returning to the courtroom Admiral Dewey announced that such newspaper articles as related to the controversy and which had been inclosed in the correspondence would be accepted as evidence.

These papers are quite voluminous, and when the court adjourned Judge Advocate Lemly had not completed the task.

Capt. Lemly produced what he termed the "original of the 'Dear Schley' letter" written by Sampson. In this letter appeared the word "Santiago," which was manifestly a mistake, and, taken in connection with the text of the letter, evidently, should have been, "Cienfuegos." This was the letter ordering Schley to remain at Cienfuegos.

In the department's copy the word was written "Santiago," but this was written over an erasure. The word which had been erased was "Cienfuegos," but it had not been scratched out entirely.

The department's letter was identical with the copy in the letter copybook.

TO SAVE MISS STONE.

Her Friends Are Working Energetically.

Boston, Oct. 7.—The urgency of the case of Miss Stone, the missionary held for ransom by brigands in Bulgaria, brought together for two hours yesterday the members of the prudential committee of the American board. Later the committee issued a statement based upon the views of President Samuel B. Capen of the board, and the secretary, Rev. Dr. Judson Smith, as the result of their visit to Washington Saturday. Both gentlemen had interviews with President Roosevelt and the officials of the state department. It was made plain to them, they told the prudential committee, that the only certain way to secure the release of Miss Stone and save her life would be the payment of the ransom. The committee was informed that the government, because of the constitutional restriction, is unable to pay the ransom. The committee is also made aware of the fact that the American board has no money with which to save Miss Stone. The only practical way, therefore, was shown to be a popular subscription, which already has been started. The committee heartily approved this, and began sending telegrams to many parts of the country urging subscriptions.

FOUR TRAINMEN KILLED.

Third Section of a Freight Train Crashes Into the Second Section.

Logansport, Ind., Oct. 7.—The worst wreck on the Logansport division of the Pan Handle for years occurred yesterday two miles east of Onward, fourteen miles from this city. The train was No. 79. The first section reached this city on time, but at the point of the wreck the engine, to the section, which consisted of only the engine and two cabooses, running light, went "dead." The morning was foggy, and the heavy third section crashed, full speed into the train ahead. The bodies of two men were taken from the wreck horribly mangled, but it was impossible to reach the body of another, and it was incinerated in the flames. The engine of the third section was in charge of Frank Patterson, engineer, and John Hutchison, fireman. Patterson jumped and escaped with minor injuries, but his fireman was caught and crushed to death in the engine.

IN MEMORY OF M'KINLEY.

Ohioans at the National Capital Pay a Last Public Tribute.

Washington, Oct. 7. — The sons and daughters of the late President McKinley's native State of Ohio who are now residents of Washington yesterday paid a last public tribute to the memory of their dead congressman, governor and president in a largely attended meeting at Chase's opera house. The gathering was held under the auspices of the Ohio Republican association, but was not confined to Ohioans. About 3,000 persons were present. The decorations were appropriate to the occasion.

BOER REFUGEE CAMPS.

Nearly 50,000 People Concentrated in Orange River Colony.

Bloemfontein, Oct. 7.—There are now 6,500 white persons in the various camps here, while there nearly 46,000 in the various camps in the Orange River colony. They require sixteen railway truckloads of foodstuffs weekly. The weekly death rate averages 220, mostly from measles. Fifty per cent of the victims are children under three years of age. The trains passing north are filled with women and children returning to the rand. Thirteen burghers have recently taken the oath of allegiance here.

Took Morphine Route.

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 7. — John Wyatt Turner of Rock Hill, Ala., assistant instructor in the carding and spinning branches of the textile department of the Georgia school of technology, committed suicide by taking morphine.

Oil Inspector Indicted.

Chicago, Oct. 7. — The grand jury voted two indictments against Robert E. Burke, city oil inspector. The charge is embezzlement of the funds of his office, and in one instance a shortage of $16,000 is alleged.

INTENSE FEELING

IN MILITARY CIRCLES BECAUSE OF THE MASSACRE IN SAMAR.

AUTHORS OF DEED WERE PACIFICOS

HAD TAKEN THE OATH OF ALLEGIANCE AND SOME HELD OFFICE.

ALL GARRISONS ON THEIR GUARD

CONVEYS A LESSON OF NECESSITY FOR INCREASED VIGILANCE.

Manila, Oct. 7.—The disaster in Samar has produced general uneasiness, and strict orders have been issued to all the garrisons to guard against a similar surprise. There is intense feeling throughout the army because of the massacre, which would not be the case to any such extent had it been the work of ordinary insurgents. The latter might have been expected to commit such an outrage. Feeling is particularly intense in military circles because the authors of the massacre were pacificos, most of whom had taken the oath of allegiance, and many of them, including the president of Bagangiga, were actually holding office. Some of the after effects are shown at many points, particularly at Baulan and Cutucan, in the Provinces of Batangas and Manila, where disaffection

Is Manifesting Itself,

although it is not likely to be allowed to go far. On the other hand, the officers and troops at all the garrisons throughout the archipelago feel that the disaster conveys a lesson to themselves of the necessity for increased vigilance. Maj. Morris Foote of the Ninth United States infantry, who has returned here from the island of Samar, was in Balangiga the day before the disaster to Company C. He says that Capt. Connell had been fully warned and had taken what he (Foote) considered very necessary precaution. Information that a plot was brewing among the Filipinos came to Maj. Foote through a priest, who said it was the plans of the populace at North Balinga and Basay to attack the garrison. Basay garrison from a cock pit in the rear of the barracks. Orders were immediately given to demolish the cockpit and extra guards were stationed.

There is a misunderstanding between Gen. Chaffee and the supreme court regarding their respective jurisdictions. The question arose over an ex-soldier, who while acting as a military messenger, refused to perform his duties and was deported. He was taken from a transport on a writ of habeas corpus. Gen. Chaffee claims to have power equal to that of the supreme court, as they are both acting under the war power granted to the president, and hence he did not require to concurrence of the court to deport the man. The question is important as it involves the authority of the military system.

PANIC IN A HOSPITAL.

Delirious Patient Runs Amuck With a Knife.

Salt Lake City, Utah, Oct. 7.—In a fit of delirium August Sinnel, a powerfully built Finnish miner, who was suffering from acute erysipelas, created a panic at Holy Cross hospital by arming himself with a large knife and rushing wildly about the corridors, threatening to murder anyone who sought to restrain him in his effort to break out of the hospital. Sinnel burst off an inner door, jumped through a glass window and disappeared before the police arrived. The shock of the excitement and fright was severe upon the sisters and the patients of the hospital, many of whom were on the verge of collapse.

At a late hour last night no trace of Sinnel had been found.

ACCUSED OF CRUELTY.

Alleged Cause of Mutiny on German Cruiser.

Berlin, Oct. 7.—An official statement is printed in the North German Gazette in regard to the recent mutiny on the German cruiser Gazelle. The story is that the men accused Capt. Nolizke of cruelty and unnecessary severity. The men were imprisoned for their alleged mutinous behavior. Then it was discovered that parts of six guns on the cruiser had been thrown overboard and a threatening note was found on the captain's table. An ablebodied seaman was placed in irons. In accordance with his own wish Capt. Nolizke has been relieved of the command of the ship and has left the service.

BIG FIRE AT PITTSBURG.

Damage to the Amount of $280,000 Done to a Clay Pot Plant.

Pittsburg, Oct. 7.—Fire yesterday in the Pittsburg Clay Pot works in Allegheny damaged the plant to the extent of $250,000, injuring six men and enforced the idleness for several months upon a force of 168 workmen. The injured men were firemen who were on the roof of the boiler house when the wall fell and they were carried with it. None of them will die. The fire originated in the boiler room from an unknown cause. Secretary William McMillan, general superintendent of the company rates the loss at between $250,000 and $280,000 on which there is $186,000 insurance.

Furious Gales in Great Britain.

London, Oct. 7.—A furious gale raged yesterday over Great Britain, the channel, the North sea and Belgium. Several fatalities on land are reported as the result of falling trees. Slight casualties at sea are also reported.

Eighteen People Injured.

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 7.—Two cars on the Consolidated street railway were in collision last evening, injuring eighteen people. Both cars were crowded and were under considerable headway on a down grade when they met.

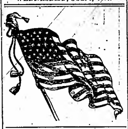
WEDNESDAY, OCT. 9, 1901.



Our exchanges remind us that it will be but a matter of a few weeks when the new coin will be in circulation which will be a distinct departure from all rules and usages in American coinage. The need of a 3-cent piece has continued ever present, though none have been coined for several years. The new coin will be molded after the idea of the heathen Chinee and will have a hole in the centre. It has been nicknamed "the doughnut" and the name will probably cling to it while the coin remains in circulation.

The September number of the Northwest Magazine, published at St. Paul, contains a very interesting write-up of Red Lake county and its three progressive business centers—St. Hilaire, Thief River Falls and Red Lake Falls. The article is purely descriptive and dwells at length on the business opportunities and other openings in these towns and the surrounding country. Numerous illustrations are used in the article and tend to make it decidedly attractive.

Three of the stingiest men on record are reported by an exchange. The first will not drink as much water as he wants unless it comes from his neighbor's well. The second forbade his family from writing anything but a small hand, as it is a waste of ink to make large letters. The third stops the clock at night to save wear and tear on the machinery. All of them refuse to take a newspaper on the ground that it is a terrible strain on the spectacles to read.

The Red Lake County Courier under the management of its new owner, John E. King, is now one of the best country papers published in the state. A complete new dress makes its appearance highly attractive, and the way that its columns are filled with news makes it most interesting and valuable to its subscribers. Truly The Courier is giving its patrons first class service.

THE EYE OF AN ARTIST.

A Case Where It Was More Reliable Than a Sailor's Optic.

Mr. N. Chevalier, the well known artist who accompanied the late Duke of Edinburgh on many of his travels, was once going from Dunedin to Lyttelton, New Zealand, by steamer. Anxious to catch the earliest glimpse of the coast he went on deck at dawn and was alarmed to see that the vessel was heading straight on to the land. Calling the officer's attention to the fact, he was told that it was only a fog bank. The artist maintained his point, but the second officer looked and confirmed his mate.

The artist then said: "Well, gentlemen, I will back my artist's eye against your sailor's eye, and I say that what you mistake for a fog bank is a low range of hills, and there is a range of mountains appearing above them."

But he was only laughed at, until the captain coming on deck found in the growing light that the artist was right and the seamen wrong. The vessel was out of its course, and there was only just time to avert disaster. The helmsman was dismissed in disgrace and the course given to the new steersman, but the vessel's head still pointed landward—the compass was all wrong.

The cause was discovered later. A commercial traveler had brought a box of magnets on board and deposited them in a stern cabin, causing what might have been a fatal deflection of the compass.

To return to the question of interpretation, the artist was dealing with the appearances which his eye was trained to see and his mind to interpret. A speck on the horizon might have remained a mere speck to him long after the sailors had interpreted the speck into a vessel of definite rig. There can be little doubt that the trained eye is accompanied by a sort of mental seeing, an instinct outrunning optics.

Cupid's Guide.

"In all my life," she said, with a sigh, "I have seen only one man that I would care to marry."

"Did he look like me?" he carelessly asked.

Then she flung herself into his arms and wanted to know what secret power men possess that enables them to tell when they are loved.—Chicago Herald.

THE LICK LENS.

Wonderful Effect Upon It of the Heat From a Man's Hand.

Some years ago the writer paid a visit to Alvan Clark at Cambridgeport to witness the testing of the huge lens for the famous Lick telescope. At the end of the long, dark room the largest flint glass then in the world was set up on edge. From a distance of about fifty feet a pencil of light was flashed into the heart of the disk and reflected back into the observer's eye. The slightest imperfections, if any, in the glass would then be revealed by the curves of light and the lines of polarization.

"Now," said Mr. Clark, "I will show you the wonderful sensitiveness of the lens to outside influences. Every human body gives out heat and when brought near to extremely sensitive substances affects them to a greater or less extent. Now watch."

He walked down to the lens and held his hand under it about two feet away. Instantaneously a marvelous spectacle burst into view. It seemed as if the great glass disk had become a living volcano, spurting forth jets of flame. The display was dazzling. Waving, leaping, dancing, the countless tongues of light gleamed and vibrated; then, fitfully, reluctantly, they died away, leaving the lens reflecting only a pure, untroubled light.

"What is it? How do you account for the wonder?" were the eager questions.

"It is only the radiation of heat alternately expanding and contracting the glass. If I had put my hand upon the lens itself, the phenomenon would have been even more violent."

To a person ignorant of lenses the almost superanatural sensitiveness of a mass of glass weighing several hundred pounds was unaccountable, but to the scientist it is an everyday matter, for he has instruments that will register with unfailing nicety the approach of a person fifty or a hundred feet away.—Youth's Companion.

CONQUERED HER RIVAL.

A Pretty and Pathetic Story of Jenny Lind and Grisi.

We have recently read a beautiful incident. Jenny Lind and Grisi were both rivals for popular favor in London. Both were invited to sing the same night at a court concert before the queen. Jenny Lind, being the younger, sang first and was so disturbed by the fierce, scornful look of Grisi that she was at the point of failure when suddenly an inspiration came to her.

The accompanist was striking the final chords. She asked him to rise and took the vacant seat. Her fingers wandered over the keys in a loving prelude, and then she sang a little prayer which she had loved as a child. She hadn't sung it for years. As she sang she was no longer in the presence of royalty, but singing to loving friends in her fatherland.

Softly at first the plaintive notes floated on the air, swelling louder and richer every moment. The singer seemed to throw her whole soul into that weird, thrilling, plaintive "prayer." Gradually the song died away and ended in a sob. There was a silence—the silence of admiring wonder.

The audience sat spellbound. Jenny Lind lifted her sweet eyes to look into the scornful face that had so disconcerted her. There was no fierce expression now; instead a teardrop glistened on the long, black lashes, and after a moment, with the impulsiveness of a child of the tropics, Grisi crossed to Jenny Lind's side, placed her arm about her and kissed her, utterly regardless of the audience.—Our Dumb Animals.

An Outrage.

An old gentleman was present at the reading of the will of a distant relative. He had hardly expected to find himself remembered in it, but pretty soon a clause was read in which a certain field was bequeathed to him. That was good, but the document went on to bequeath the old gray mare in the said field to some one else—a man with whom the old gentleman was not on friendly terms. That was too much for his equanimity, and he interrupted the solemn proceedings and brought a smile to the faces of the company by exclaiming:

"Then she's eating my grass!"—Pearson's.

The Highest Court.

The Denver Times says that when Tom Gagnell was justice of the peace at Altman, the highest incorporated town in the country, standing 12,000 feet above the sea level, he had occasion to fine a disorderly character $10 and costs. The victim of the operation of justice objected to the finding of the court and announced that he would take an appeal.

"What? Appeal, would you?" asked the astonished court. "You can't come any o' that, now. This is the highest court in the United States, and you can't appeal."

She Was an Observer.

"Did George write to you every day while he was traveling around?"

"Yes, every day."

"What regularity!"

"Yes, but I discovered that every one of the letters was written here in his office before he started, and all he had to do was to drop one in the postoffice wherever he chanced to be."

"And how did you find that out?"

"The 'e' in his office typewriter is broken."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Its Good Point.

Gentleman (to house agent)—The great disadvantage is that the house is so damp.

Warning Against Forest and Prairie Fires

Office of State Forest Commissioner.
ST. PAUL, MINN., March 21, 1901.

Chapter 196 of the General Laws of the State of Minnesota for 1895 (Act of April 18th) constitutes supervisors of towns, Mayors of cities and presidents of village councils Fire Wardens, and it is made their duty to take precaution to prevent forest and prairie fires, and if they occur, to go and extinguish or control them; and in emergencies to call upon any able-bodied male person, over eighteen years of age, to assist. Reports of such fires with particulars tending to fix responsibility therefor shall be made within reasonable time—usually within a week. The Forest Commissioner is required to provide and sign a t abstract (as herein) of the penalties under said law, and it is made the duty of the County Commissioners of each county to cause said abstract to be published in at least three issues of the official paper in their respective counties each year between the 15th of April and 1st of November, and they are hereby instructed to publish this notice entire. Under said law.

The following are liable to a penalty not exceeding $500 or imprisonment in the state prison not over ten years or both:

Any person who maliciously sets or causes to be set on fire any woods, prairie or other combustible material whereby the property of another is destroyed and life is sacrificed.

The following are liable to a penalty not exceeding $100 or imprisonment not exceeding three months.

Any person refusing, without cause, to assist fire wardens in extinguishing forest or prairie fires.

Any fire warden who neglects to perform his duties.

Any person who wilfully, negligently or carelessly sets on fire, or causes to be set on fire, any woods, prairies or other combustible material thereby causing injury to another.

Any person who shall kindle a fire on or dangerously near to forest or prairie land and leave in unquenched, or who shall be a party thereto.

Any person who shall use other than incombustible fire wads for firearms or carry a naked torch, firebrand or other exposed light in or dangerously near to forest land.

Any person who shall wilfully or heedlessly deface, destroy or remove this or any other warning placard posted under the requirements of the above mentioned Act.

Any railroad company wilfully neglecting to provide efficient spark arresters on its engines; or to keep its right of way to the width of 100 feet cleared of combustible material; or which shall fail to comply with other provisions of Section 12 of the above mentioned Act.

The following are liable to a penalty of not less than $5 nor more than $50:

Any railroad employe who wilfully violates the provisions of Section 12 of the above mentioned Act.

Any owner of threshing or other portable steam engine who neglects to have efficient spark arresters, or who shall deposit live coals or hot ashes without extinguishing the same.

Miss Eva J. Chesley, teacher of the new second primary department of the village schools, arrived on Saturday from Fargo accompanied by her mother who remained long enough to see Miss Chesley comfortably settled to her new duties.

Surveyor George A. Ralph was here last week and started his men to work staking off the new ditches. The heavy rains this week have retarded their progress somewhat and will have the result of delaying the actual work of construction considerably.

The village hall was crowded on Saturday evening by a lot of people anxious to hear the case of State vs C. Charpentier. The defendant was charged with criminal slander. The case was tried by a jury who decided that Charpentier was not guilty.

The old Red Lake hotel at Thief River Falls was destroyed by fire at an early hour on Friday morning. The fire department responded promptly to the alarm but in hastening to the scene the engine got tipped over in a ditch and nothing could be done to save the building. The origin of the fire is unknown.

Wm. Bedoon, who works in the saw mill had a narrow escape Monday morning. He stepped out to remove a block which was obstructing the action of the conveyor and while doing so, slipped and took a header to the ground—about 18 feet. Both hands were badly crippled and his face somewhat scratched but his neck is whole.

At the meeting of the village council on Monday evening Councilman A. H. Weagant tendered his resignation, which was accepted. Mr. Weagant resigned for the reason that he contemplates moving away from here in the near future. The meeting was adjourned until Friday evening when a successor to Mr. Weagant will probably be appointed.

Attorney H. W. Lee of Thief River Falls, was here yesterday on his way to Crookston where he appears to-day as counsel in the case of heirs of Moose Dung vs P. & J. Meehan. The action is to set aside title of the Meehan's to the Moose Dung fraction north of Thief River Falls and a motion to dismiss will be argued to-day before Judge Watts in chambers.

C. P. Swenson, who enjoys the double distinction of being postmaster at Bray and the winner of the first prize in Julius Pleth's corn contest, was a business visitor here on Saturday. He desired THE SPECTATOR to announce the fact that Mr. Pleth had paid him his prize money in gold coin, $75, and expressed himself as anxious to announce publicly his thanks to Mr. Pleth and his sincere appreciation of what that gentleman has done in connection with corn raising in this part of the country.

J. J. Soli, Martin Bjerk and Louis DeCatelineau formed a hunting party on Saturday morning and spent two days camping out in the duck pastures close to the reservation line east. They had pretty fair luck and bagged about 30 fine ducks and also a number of jack snipe and other toothsome members of the feathered tribe. They returned home Monday morning in a pretty much water soaked condition and have been telling queer stories about holding down a tent in a heavy rain storm.

Rev. Hammond spent the past week or so at Brainerd attending the M. E. Conference for this district which was in session from the 2nd to the 7th inst. The people of St. Hilaire will regret to learn that Rev. Hammond has been appointed to take charge of the church at Moorhead during the coming year. He will go down this week and hold services there next Sunday, but will not move his family until next week. While Mr. Hammond has resided here only about five months, he has made many friends who will regret his departure. His successor has not yet been named.

The Two Best in One.

People who formerly considered the Chicago Record to be America's model daily or who believed The Chicago Times-Herald to be premier among American newspapers now have an opportunity of judging every day how remarkably complete and excellent in every department is that great metropolitan daily, The Chicago Record-Herald, which combines "the two best in one." All the popular features of both The Chicago Record and The Chicago Times-Herald are included in The Chicago Record-Herald. In the Sunday issues especially the great advantages of the combinations of all the resources and world-wide facilities of the two papers united in the combination are made manifest. The world's news is covered with unexampled fullness, due to the fact that never before in the history of journalism did an American newspaper possess news facilities so varied and extensive.

—Julius Pleth, the land man of St. Hilaire wants to buy farm lands—wild or improved, and will pay spot cash for same.

To cure a cough in one day take the Imperial cough syrup. Guaranteed to cure. For sale at the new Drug Store.

[illegible] Accident.

Jas. Strader, a former resident of St. Hilaire, died last Thursday at Crookston as the result of an accident which happened him while moving a threshing engine near there. The unfortunate man tried to move forward over the engine while it was in motion and his foot slipped into the gearing. The leg was dragged through and crushed to a pulp up to within a few inches of his body. With rare presence of mind he asked that the engine be reversed so as to disengage him. This was done and he was immediately taken to Crookston for medical treatment. The leg was amputated but he died in a few hours. He leaves his wife and a family of eleven children, some of whom are grown up. The bereaved family have the sympathy of this entire community where they were well known. Mr. Strader was a member of the St. Hilaire lodge of the I. O. O. F. He was also a member of the Maccabees and carried $2,000 insurance in the latter order. A committee of the St. Hilaire Oddfellows went to Crookston to attend the funeral which occurred on Sunday.

Ditching Commenced.

The work of construction on the new ditches throughout the county has been commenced. For several days past crews have been at work constructing camps and making other necessary preparations, but the work of construction did not begin in this vicinity until yesterday when Scribner Bros. broke ground on the ditch known as Wyandotte No. 1.

Since the letting of the contracts by the county board several changes have been made. Wm Eikhoff and Lewis Larson have bought the contract for the Black River and River Falls ditch from M. W. Barnard, of Moorhead, to whom it was awarded. Scribner Bros. will construct the Wyandotte No. 1 ditch for which the contract was awarded to S. A. Swanson and Anton Anderson.

Work on the Wyandotte and River Falls ditch No. 2 will be commenced at once and will be done by M. W. Barnard who secured the contract, assisted by Dan Linnahan, of Red Lake Falls.

There was no freight train run yesterday along this line and there has been a good deal of "cussing" in consequence. The train did not run, ostensibly for the reason that there was not enough business. Twelve loaded cars were waiting here to be moved down the line and if Thief River Falls and Red Lake Falls had anything at all there should be enough freight to pay expenses—easy.

ARROW SHOTS.

I shot an arrow into the air,
It fell to the earth; I know not where.
—LONGFELLOW.

It is great sport to watch a joke filtering through an audience.

As long as a man is modest his mistakes are not held against him.

We believe half of our people are at some lodge meeting every night.

Everybody is envious of the person in a small town who gets to go abroad.

Enough raw material is wasted in this world in various ways to make us all rich.

When one has a hole in his shoe there is sure to be one in his sock at the same place.

We see drivers with hand holds in their lines whose horse could not be made to run off.

Some men speculate trying to make money, and others do it trying to make up for what they have lost.

When there is nobody else to blame meanness upon, it is the thing to say it is the "politicians."

Nothing looks more deserted than a country depot in a country town just after the train has pulled out.

We can't help having a little more respect for the man who, if he must get drunk, waits till after dark.

Old widowers lean lots more when out buggy riding with their second love than they did the first time.

Did it ever occur to you how many keys for doors and drawers and things there are made that are never used?

The men who talk the most about their own righteousness are likely to be the ones who need watching the most.

The women folks say that boys always have curly hair while the girls in the same family have hair as straight as Indians.

Almost any girl assumes to have had a love affair at some time in her existence, even if she has not been within a thousand miles of one.

Drunkenness seems to make all men feel young again, for we notice when a man is full, no matter how old he is, he associates with the boys.

It is not often that an old man admits that he is a back number, unless it is when he wants to rub it into another man who is still a little older.

Black Walnut Barns.

Hundreds of old farms in Ohio have old barns and mangers of black walnut, put up fifty to seventy-five years ago, when the chief endeavor of the pioneer was to clear the forest. So popular is this wood for furniture that English and French agents buy old barn timber and fence rails and ship them abroad. More precious than black walnut timber is "Golden Grain Belt" beer, for nothing is as delicious and wholesome. It is brewed from the purest barley malt and hops and is an ideal table drink. Order of your dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

—Do you want to sell your farm? Julius Pleth, the land man of St. Hilaire wants to buy it and will pay cash.

More New Settlers.

The following sales are reported from Julius Pleth's real estate office during the past week:

H. J. Stromer, Glidden, Ia., 320 acres in Bray township.

Frederick Axx, Glidden, Ia., 200 acres in Bray.

E. H. Wells, Klemme, Ia., 160 acres in Wyandotte, improved.

August Studer, Wesley, Ia., 160 acres in River Falls, improved.

August Schnrmeier, Wesley, Ia., 240 acres in Black River, improved.

All of these purchasers are bona fide settlers who will move onto their land in the coming spring. They are very well pleased with this part of the country and say that without doubt a great many others from their vicinity will invest here and make their homes in this county.

What Comes After Suicide?

On the whole, it is something of a pity that some of these fellows who cut their throats, blow out their brains or swallow poisons in order to rid themselves of their troubles cannot come back, so they might tell others who are troubled whether relief lies in that direction or not. It is more than probable that what they then could tell would deter other reckless men and women from following in their footsteps, and for that, if for no other reason, their return would be welcome. As Hamlet implied, it is better to bear the ills we know than to fly to those we know not of, and there isn't much doubt that the suicides are not long in finding that out.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

The Peach Legend.

Almost all fruits and flowers have their legend. One about the peach comes from Japan and tells how a poor, pious old couple were searching for food by the roadside. The woman found a peach, which she would not eat of, though starving, till she could share it with her husband. He cut it exactly in half, when an infant leaped forth. It was one of the gods, who had, he said, accidentally fallen out of the peach orchard of heaven while playing. He told them to plant the stone of the peach, and it brought them happiness, friends and wealth.

The American Boy.

Even in trying circumstances, even when serious misfortune overtakes the youthful American, his aplomb, his confidence in his own opinion, does not wholly forsake him. Such a one was found weeping in the street. On being asked the cause of his tears he sobbed out in mingled alarm and indignation: "I'm lost! Mammy's lost me. I told the darned thing she'd lose me."—Muirhead's "Land of Contracts."

The modest man has everything to gain and the arrogant man everything to lose, for modesty has always to deal with generosity and arrogance with envy.—Rivarol.

At Breakfast.

"Bridget, did you call the boys?"

"Indade an' Oi called thim ivery-thing Oi cud think of, but they wudn't git up."—Brooklyn Life.

Sale of Ditching Jobs.

Notice is hereby given, that on the 19th day of October 1901 at 10 o'clock a. m. at the auditors office in the city of Red Lake Falls, Minn., I will sell the jobs of digging and constructing the Wyandotte and River Falls Ditch No. 1 of Red Lake county, established by the board of county commissioners of Red Lake county, State of Minnesota, by their order bearing date September 20th 1901, viz:

In sections of 100 feet each, each of said sections to be known and numbered by stakes, as shown by the report of the engineer in said matter, commencing at the one including the outlet, and from thence, successively, up stream to the one including the source in one job or in secs. of 1 or more stations to the lowest responsible bidder or bidders, and that bids are invited for said work; said work to be completed within the time required, and in the manner specified, in said engineers report. And no bid will be entertained which exceeds more than thirty (30) per cent over and above the estimated cost of the construction, in any case, as stated in the said order; and the successful bidder will be required to give a satisfactory bond, to be approved by the auditor of said county with two freehold sureties, for the faithful performance and fulfillment of his contract, and to pay all damages that may accrue by reason of his failure to complete the job within the time required in the contract. The said order and estimates and profile are on file and may be seen at my office.

All bids must be accompanied by a certified check payable to the auditor of said county, for not less than ten per cent of the amount of each bid.

The right to reject any and all bids is hereby reserved.

Dated September 25th 1901.

WRENCHED FOOT AND ANKLE.

Cured By St. Jacob's Oil.

Gentlemen: A short time ago I severely wrenched my foot and ankle. The injury was very painful, and the consequent inconvenience (being obliged to keep to business) was very trying. A friend recommended St. Jacob's Oil, and I take great pleasure in informing you that one application was sufficient to effect a complete cure. To a busy man, so simple and effective a remedy is invaluable, and I shall lose no opportunity of suggesting the use of St. Jacob's Oil. Yours truly, Henry J. Doirs, Manager the Cycles Co., London, Eng.

St. Jacob's Oil is safe and sure and never-failing. Conquers pain.

How a Woman Chooses Her Seat.

"There are lots of things about women that can't be explained, and in our business we can't help noticing them," said the communicative conductor. "For instance, nine women out of ten will invariably take a seat on the right hand side of a car, if a car is not crowded. I have often wondered at this, and at last I think I have the correct solution. I started out from the barn with an empty car the other day, and in five blocks I had picked up seven women, and they all sat in a row on the right-hand side of the car. It was just about the hour in the morning when the women come down town to do their shopping. Three men got in, and they sat on the left-hand side.

"A couple of blocks farther down I picked up another woman, and, instead of taking a vacant seat near the door on the side, the side the other women were sitting, as I thought she would do, she walked the entire length of the car and sat down beside one of the men. This bit of eccentricity puzzled me until I went to collect her fare, and then I discovered that she was left-handed. See? All the other women were right-handed. Yes; it does look like rain, doesn't it?"—Philadelphia Record.

Still Talking About It.

Bryant, Mo., Oct. 17th.—The case of Mrs. M. A. Goss, continues to be the chief topic of conversation in this neighborhood. Mrs. Goss was a cripple for a long time with Sciatica: she was so bad she couldn't turn over in bed, and for four months she lay on one side.

She had tried everything without getting any relief, till at last she heard of Dodd's Kidney Pills. She is strong and well to-day, and has not a single ache or pain.

Mrs. Goss says: "I don't know if Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure anything else or not; but I do know they will cure Sciatica, for they cured me, and there couldn't be a worse case than mine."

No Doubt of It.

The Value of a Name.

There is a brand of rubber goods advertised in another column called the Gold Seal. The name Gold Seal as a trade mark originated a good many years ago, and it is now well known all over the United States as standing for the best possible rubber goods. Anything bearing the Gold Seal trade mark has the value in it.

When the white dove coos to his drowsy mate,
And birds in the trees rejoice,
Old Brahma stands on the barn-yard gate
And shouts in a lusty voice:
"I feel better this mor-rning."
And the bantam thinks 'tis true,
For he answers back in a tenor tone:
"Without—a doubt—you do-o."

The house dog lies with his head on his paws,
And blinks at the morning call:
The cat with a field-mouse in her jaws
Comes running home on the wall;
While the Brahma heralds the morn again,
And the Bantam takes the cue:
"I feel better this mor-rning."
"Without—a doubt—you do-o."

The birds with a glorious burst of song
Make glad the orchard boughs;
And the farmer, swinging his pails along,
Goes out to milk the cows;
The work of the day begins again,
And the roosters call anew:
"I feel better this mor-rning."
"Without—a doubt—you do-o."

The Problem of Life.

BY ETHEL M. COLSON.

(Copyright, 1901, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

If there was one particular characteristic or quality for which the Rev. Charles Billings was especially distinguished it was that of truthfulness. He was truthful, moreover, for reasons quite apart and side from his calling. As a slim and pallid youth at boarding school he had been famous—and popular—because of his exceeding candour. Later, as the devoted and conscientious rector of the Anglican Catholic Church of the Atonement, he was popular and beloved in spite of it. And if ever the meek and lowly-minded clergyman knew a suspicion of spiritual pride it was because of the absolutely spotless and unstained condition of his life-record in the matter of truth-telling.

To have expected the Rev. Charles Billings, therefore, to have deliberately—albeit unwillingly—yielded to the temptation to give utterance to an unequivocal lie would have been manifestly outrageous. And yet——

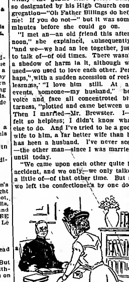
The door of the church study opened, one evening, to admit a woman—a woman tall, slender, of good figure, and expressive face, mirroring just then numerous unpleasant emotions. The Rev. Charles Billings knew her for one of his parishoners, the wife of solid John Brewster, merchant of the old-time Chicago, and a man who was popularly suspected of being a better business man than husband. Certain it is, the fine eyes of his wife had long since acquired a look of weary and patient resignation.

Straight up to the table at which the priest sat hurried the woman. In her eagerness and agitation she never saw the surprised but soothing gesture which beckoned her to a chair. But as she sank into it mechanically it became evident that she had been crying.

"Oh Father Billings!" she exclaimed, wildly—the gentle little priest being so designated by his High Church congregation—"Oh Father Billings do help me! If you do not—" but it was some minutes before she could go on.

"I met an—an old friend this afternoon," she explained, subsequently, "and we—we had an ice together, just to talk of—of old times. There wasn't a shadow of harm in it, although we used—we used to love each other. Perhaps," with a sudden accession of recklessness, "I love him still. At all events, someone—my husband," her voice and face all concentrated bitterness, "plotted and came between us. Then I married—Mr. Brewster. I—I felt so helpless; I didn't know what else to do. And I've tried to be a good wife to him, a far better wife than he has been a husband. I've never seen—the other man—since I was married, until today.

"We came upon each other quite by accident, and we only—we only talked a little of—of that other time. But as we left the confectioner's by one door



"Oh, Father Billings!"

my husband came in at another. If he saw me—and I'm almost sure he did—he'll believe the worst in a moment. He judges everybody by himself. And the fact that he had another woman with him won't make a bit of difference—to him. If he saw me—and I know, I feel that he did—he's at home now, questioning my maid. He always does so if he finds me out of the house, no matter where I am, nor how short a time I've been absent. And if he discovers that I haven't been making charity calls this afternoon, as I told my maid I intended doing, he'll—he'll throw me aside like an old glove, or an answered letter. Oh, I know him," as the priest looked incredulous, "and I know what he'll do. And I—I don't know—ah yes, God help me! I do know—what will become of me. And I haven't a relative, scarcely a friend in the world, with the exception of yourself, Father Billings. If you don't help me, I'm—I'm afraid I'm lost forever!"

"What do you want me to do, my child?" asked the priest, quietly.

For answer, she sank on her knees beside him, catching at his hand with small, beseeching fingers that burned like fire.

"Tell him that I have been making charity calls," she said, hoarsely. "He won't believe me, but he'll believe you, if you tell him. Everybody knows," without a suspicion of grim humor, "how invariably truthful you are."

"But, my child," said the priest, gravely, "that would be a lie, a sin."

"I know it would be a lie," she made answer, "but would it be a sin if you did it to save another? And there are worse sins than lying, Father, and some of them are hard to avoid. I don't know how to tell you, but—I've no money, Father, I've no friends or relatives, and if my husband throws me aside there's only one person, to whom I can turn for assistance—and—and—I do not want to go to—him."

The face of the priest was pale and puzzled. As a clergyman he knew lying to be sinful. As a man and a gentleman he hated lying on general principles. He was firmly convinced of the wickedness of doing evil that good may come. And yet—

It was all so clear before him. If this woman did not still love the—the other man—she would not so fear and dread being thrown aside by her unloving, unloved husband. And, if so

"No, sir," he heard himself saying.

thrown aside, to whom else could she turn? That she was speaking the truth in regard to her husband's harshness and her own penniless condition the clergyman knew well. He knew more about solid John Brewster than most people, and for a hard man and exceeding close with his money all men knew him. That he would refuse to believe the meeting between his wife and the lover from whom he had parted her, by unfair means, solitary and as innocent as accidental was also tolerably certain.

Then, certainly, the problem lay between this woman's soul and his own—the priestly soul which had never yet been stained by lying.

Heavy steps sounded along the passageway leading from the street. The woman, springing to a chair on the other side of the table, looked at the priest beseechingly and bent hurriedly over some papers. A moment later and solid John Brewster himself strode into the room.

At sight of his wife the hard face changed, the expression faltered. The priest, rising to confront him, saw in his eyes both doubt and hesitation.

"I see my wife is with you," the man said, sullenly. "May I inquire if she has been with you all day?"

For a moment the priest struggled against a most human impulse, the mad, natural, all but uncontrollable inclination to knock down this intimidator of a woman and trample upon him. Then he remembered that he was a priest, and that there seemed but one way of helping the intimidator's victim. He turned his eyes toward her down-bent head, momentarily, and again the Problem of the Lie lifted its double-headed torment and regarded him. He saw, as if in vision, the Recording Angel who was so real a personage to him take down, with sorrowful sternness, the white scroll of his unstained veracity and degrade it, degrade it to the dust. His eyes filled with tears, suddenly, as though he had witnessed another's downfall. But, over and against this vision, was set the soul of this woman—and her peril.

For him, repentance and remorse in plenty. Nay, was he not already repenting the very thought of the sin in contemplation. For her—in case her fears were realized—no place of repentance, though she sought it carefully, with tears.

And, right or wrong, the unselfish impulse triumphed.

"No, sir," he heard himself saying, distinctly, after so brief an interval that even the angry husband noticed no hesitation, "she has not. I did not see her until after luncheon. But this afternoon she accompanied me on a round of charity calls, and, since our return, she has been busily engaged in making out her report to the Charity Calls Committee of the Woman's Auxiliary. She will be ready to accompany you home so soon as this is finished."

For this lie Father Charles Billings presently—and long—repented, and he will never cease to be anxious concerning its moral effect upon Mrs. Brewster—now slowly acquiring the habit of a negative happiness by utter self-forgetting. Also, the recurrent torture of his wretched inability to solve the problem of whether or not he did right in telling the lie will always serve the purpose of an exquisitely painful hair-shirt to the man who told it. But there are rare moments, now and then, when the problem and the repentance alike cease to trouble him—when he is glad in the conviction that the lie saved not only a woman's body from perdition, but also the woman's soul.

Cleaning Up Coronation Coaches.

In view of the coronation next year, all the state coaches are being overhauled and put in repair, as many of them were in sadly dilapidated condition through want of use. Lord Salisbury and the Duke of Portland both possess beautiful state coaches, and so do the Duke of Norfolk, the Duke of Devonshire, the Duke of Marlborough, and the Duke of Buccleuch; while Lord Londonderry's and Lord Cadogan's are perhaps the best turned out. The various embassies also have splendid coaches.—Lady's Magazine.

LETTERS TO THE CHINESE.

Postman Is More Reverenced in Chinatown Than Policeman.

No interpreter is required to assort the mail that comes to the residents of the Chinese colony in any of the larger cities of the country. The fact is due to the precautions taken by the celestials themselves, or their correspondents in the land where the "boxer" thrives. A letter to a Chinaman is generally consigned to some well-known person whose name is written in English. When a celestial writes to his family in China he invariably incloses a directed envelope. Chinese [illegible] even to Chinamen. Every Chinaman has several entirely dissimilar names, his "birth name" and "marriage name" being instances. Then he has a clan name, or society name, and a business name, and perhaps another name or two for variety's sake.

The larger firms have their addresses printed on envelopes which are supplied to their regular customers. The Chinese consider handling mail in the light of an honorable trust, and there has never been any complaint that letters are delivered to the wrong person. A Chinese may have a serious falling out with a firm and may have transferred his business to a rival, but mail addressed in care of his former connection always reaches him. The Chinese are great letter writers. Of course, there is a great deal of business correspondence between Chinatown and Chinese ports, but much of the mail matter is of a social nature. Many Chinese who have a good command of the intricate written language of the dragon empire make a good living writing letters for others of their race who don't know how to write. When a Chinese in this city writes to his relatives in China he incloses an addressed envelope.

The postman is more reverenced in Chinatown than the policeman. In fact, that hardly expresses it, for the policeman only gets the reverence which comes from fear of the law, while the postman, as the link which connects the inhabitants with the land of their birth, is most popular. He is a fortunate man every Chinese New Year's week, for he receives many presents. If he tried to drink all the Chinese wine offered to him on his rounds in the holiday week, he would never live through it. One does not have to consult a shipping guide in Chinatown to learn when the next mail is due from the far East. The Chinese know to a day when every mail arrives and figure to the hour regarding the posting of China-bound letters. They know that it takes thirty-two days for a letter to go from Chicago to Hong Kong if it is sent by the Vancouver steamers. They also know that it takes a little longer if sent by the San Francisco or Seattle routes, consequently the Vancouver mail is always the heavier.

PERSUADED WITH A CAMERA.

How a Young Man Won Over His Prospective Father-in-Law.

"It was simply bull-headed luck," said the young man with the red shirt waist. "Papa declared that it would be a warm day when he consented to my marrying his daughter, and as the weather record had been broken several times after he had made that remark, I was beginning to lose hope. When all-the-world-to-me went on her vacation I went to the same place and put up at the same hotel. Now, papa-in-law-to-be is an old blowhard, and it made me tired—everybody else, too—the way he bragged about the fish he caught in former years. Finally, some one hinted that it would be a good plan for him to make good and give us an example of his skill as a fisherman. He accepted the challenge and spent three days getting his tackle ready. He went alone, as he said he didn't want to be bothered by having any greenhorns along, and we waited with bated breath for him to return. Now, I am something of a camera fiend and late in the afternoon I started out to take a picture of a little wooded dell when the shadows were well down. I was making my way to the road through some thick brush when I discovered my daddy-in-law-to-be standing in the middle of the road bargaining with a small boy for a long string of magnificent fish. Quick as a flash I took a snap shot of him just as he was holding onto his pocket with one hand and digging into it with the other. I let the old man brag around the hotel for three days about the fish he had caught. Then I showed him the picture, told him if he didn't consent to my marrying his daughter I would spread it broadcast over the hotel, and pointed out where his reputation would be. He wilted, gulped hard and surrendered. He isn't a bad sort when you know how to handle him."—Detroit Free Press.

Saved the Little Bottles.

"I have a patient who is wonderfully considerate of my interests," said a prominent physician lately. "A few weeks ago he had malaria, and I prescribed quinine for him, giving him four-grain capsules, so that he might take the drug without discomfort. He came out of his attack and a few days later called to see me at my office. Judge of my surprise when he exhibited the empty capsules and said, 'Doctor, I thought you might like the little bottles, so I saved them and brought them back.' He had emptied each four-grain dose of the bitter powder, and then essayed the rather hopeless task of washing it down with water. I couldn't do otherwise than to take the 'little bottles' from him without a word and next time I'll give him quinine in another form."—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Miss Kulcher—Did you ever go in for literature, Mr. Gay? Mr. Gay—Well—er—not exactly, but once when I was at college I wrote a short story and got $100 for it. Miss Kulcher—Really! What was it? Mr. Gay—Dear Father: I'm broke. Please send me a hundred.

After a woman comes home from church she has the same sort of guaranteed credit feeling that a man has just after he makes a fat bank deposit.

Worn-out overshoes and old rubber
Of every kind have a
Market value.
Rag and junk dealers buy them and Ship in car load lots to
"Reclaiming factories" or "shoddy mills."
Then this rotten stuff is Ground up and made into Cheap rubber goods
Or mixed with new material
For medium-priced goods.
Of course
Shoddy rubbers won't wear any better
Than shoddy clothes.
Neither are they warm, and are Apt in cold weather to become Stiff.
Persons buying cheap rubbers usually
Pay mostly for shoddy.
To wear well and be warm,
A rubber should be made of Pure Gum.
Not an ounce of shoddy is used
In "Gold Seal" Rubbers, Overshoes
Or Rubber Boots.
Every pair has a "Gold Seal" Sticker;
So no one need be deceived.
The man you trade with
Should keep them.

ENORMOUS CROPS

North Dakota has just harvested a wonderful crop of wheat and flax. Reports from the various railway points along the "Soo" Line show yields of 25 to 38 bushels to the acre of wheat, and from 15 to 20 bushels of flax per acre. Flax is now bringing $1.25 per bushel. Most of the crop was raised on newly broken land, so that the first crop pays for the farm and all the labor, and leaves a handsome profit. There is still plenty of good free government land open for entry; also good openings to go into business in the new towns along the "Soo" Line. For descriptive circulars, maps and particulars, write to D. W. Casseday, Land Agent, "Soo" Line, Minneapolis, Minn.

Mrs. Ellen Ripley, Chaplain Ladies Aid, Grand Army of the Republic, No. 7, 222 10th Ave., N. E., Minneapolis, Minn., Strongly Endorses Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Your Vegetable Compound cured me of ulceration of the womb, and getting such a complete cure I felt that the medicine had genuine merit and was well worth recommending to other sick women.

"For fifteen years I have been your friend. I have never written you before, but I have advised hundreds of women to take your medicine, in fact it is the only real reliable remedy I know of for a sick woman.

"I have not yet found a case of ovarian or womb trouble which has not been relieved or cured by the faithful use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"You have brought health to hundreds of women in Minneapolis as you have no doubt to others over the country."—MRS. ELLEN RIPLEY.

$5000 FORFEIT IF THE ABOVE LETTER IS NOT GENUINE.

LAND SEEKERS, HELLO!

Here is a Splendid Chance in the "Cloverland" of Wisconsin.

You want land. You realize that land is getting higher-priced and in greater demand every year. If you get a farm now and hold it 10 or 20 years—even if you should not make any money by farming—the farm will make you rich. A farm tributary to the cities of Minneapolis or St. Paul in northern Wisconsin, will increase in value faster than land in the prairie states because of its nearness to market and because of its greater productiveness.

It is hard for people who have never seen that section to appreciate its wonderful growth of blue grass and clover. Where else in America will you find grass, clover and alsike spring up spontaneously and cover a patch or a field as you will among the hard wood lands of northern Wisconsin? The waters of this section, the soil, the climate and all the natural elements tend to make it an ideal dairy country, and the markets near insure a good price for products all the year.

Our readers will do well to write to D. W. Casseday, land agent of the "Soo" Line, Minneapolis, and ask him to send them printed matter describing that great section for the landseeker.

LIPTON ALMOST SECURES A RACE

IRISH BOAT MAKES BEST TIME

GALLANT IRISH KNIGHT LEADS THE CHEERS FOR THE VICTOR.

New York, Oct. 5.—With victory flags floating from her towering mastheads and the ends of her spreaders ta honor of her concluding triumph in the cup races of 1901, the gallant sloop Columbia returned to her anchorage last night under the escort of the entire excursion fleet. She had completed her defense of the honored trophy in another stirring race with the Shamrock II over a leeward and windward course of thirty miles, crossing the finish line two seconds behind her antagonist, but winning on time allowance conceded by Lipton's boat by forty-one seconds.

For the second time she has now successfully foiled the attempt of the Irish knight to wrest from our possession the cup that means the yachting supremacy of the world. And plucky Sir Thomas Lipton, standing on the bridge of the Erin, led his guests in three hearty huzzas for the successful defender.

"She is the better boat," he said, "and she deserves to be cheered."

The series of races just closed will always be memorable as the closest ever sailed for the cup, and Sir Thomas although defeated, will go home with the satisfaction of knowing that his golden yacht is the

that ever crossed the western ocean. During both series of races not an untoward incident has occurred, and Sir Thomas will return to England by far the most popular of all the foreigners who have challenged for the America's trophy.

Yesterday's race, on paper, was the closest of the series, because of the flukiness of the wind on the beat home, but as a contest of the relative sea merits it is not to be compared with the magnificent, truly run and nobly fought battles of Saturday and Thursday. The wind was strong, and from the shore, embroidering the sea with foam and piling up no swell—ideal conditions for the challenger. The racers were sent away before the wind, each carrying a penalty for crossing the line after the handicap gun. No official record is kept of the time after that gun had been fired, but the experts with stop watches estimated Columbia's handicap at fifteen seconds and Shamrock's at thirty seconds. The contest of the yachts fleeing before the following wind was picturesque, but not exciting. Notwithstanding the fact that the Columbia beat the Shamrock before the wind last Saturday, the challenger yesterday

all the way out and rounded forty-nine seconds before the defender, having actually gained one minute and four seconds. Immediately after the yachts turned their noses into the wind for the beat home the breeze moderated and turned fluky. The skippers split tacks, each searching for wind, with the result that first one would get a lift and then the other. At one time Columbia seemed a mile ahead when with a sudden cant of the wind, allowed Shamrock to point nearer the mark and a mile from home the challenger appeared to be leading by fully half a mile. The talent began to feel nervous, but as the yachts approached the finish the Yankee skipper by some miraculous legerdemain, shoved his boat into the light air like a phantom ship, and one hundred yards from home the two racers were almost on even terms. It was a pretty sight and one seldom witnessed, when they crossed rail to rail, the white yacht's bowsprit just lapping the golden boat's mast. The usual pandemonium that attends the

Front Yankee Victory

in a cup contest followed. Whistles, sirens, bells, bands and cheerers united in a grand chorus of jubilation, and J. P. Morgan's steam yacht Corsair added to the terrific din by firing a national salute of twenty-one guns.

While taking his defeat gamely, Sir Thomas Lipton made no attempt to conceal the honest disappointment when he talked about the races last night on the Erin.

"I am very disappointed," he said. "I can't hide that. I thought within fifteen minutes of the finish that we had won. I was sure as my life we had won. It was a hard blow to be so near winning and then to lose. I should like to have got one race, just by way of consolation. It is a very hard thing to be beaten by a breath—by a few beats of the pulse. It has been a severe strain on me. I have worked so hard for many months now and I am glad it is over. To have won would have been a joy greater than today's disappointment. Columbia's win to-day was fair and square and honorable."

BRITONS DISAPPOINTED.

They Think That Lipton Deserved Better Luck.

London, Oct. 5.—There is a feeling of supreme disappointment in London over the failure of Shamrock II. to win even a single race. Those who denounced Sir Thomas Lipton's ambition, asserting that he was using his yacht to advertise his business interests, now admit that his sportsman's spirit deserved a better result. When the American yacht was leading near the home stretch the news was received in silence by the crowds on the embankment. There was never much betting in this country, and the disappointment among the masses is sincere and general.

INDIANS UGLY.

Mille Lacs County Settlers Are Afraid of an Outbreak.

St. Paul, Oct. 5. — Dr. E. H. Boeckman, sent by Dr. Bracken of the state board of health to investigate the smallpox epidemic among the Indians in Mille Lacs county, returned yesterday. He says the guards are now enforcing the quarantine with fair success. The disease is most virulent in form, however, and there have been several deaths. The Indians are in an ugly mood, their pay having been withheld by the government because they refuse to remove to the White Earth reservation. The settlers are much disturbed, fearing both the smallpox and an outbreak of the Indians. There is no great danger of an epidemic at present. Lars Erickson, a pioneer trader of Mille Lacs county, yesterday called at the capitol to enlist the aid of Gov. Van Sant. He says there is danger of an Indian outbreak and there is great danger of a smallpox epidemic. There are about 500 Indians loafing about homestead land who refuse to move. They have guns and refuse to obey the laws, living on game killed out of season.

FARMER AND SHOTGUN.

What a State Veterinarian Ran Up Against.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Oct. 5. — Henry Franseen, a prominent farmer living near Sioux Falls, was arrested yesterday on the charges of assault with a dangerous weapon and threatening the life of Dr. O. W. Stanley, assistant state veterinary surgeon, of this city. Dr. Stanley and State Veterinary Foster of Brown county, with another physician, went to Franseen's farm for the purpose of shooting some horses of his which were alleged to have been exposed to glanders. He appeared on the scene armed with a shotgun and ran the officials off his place. His preliminary examination was set for today, but has been continued until next Tuesday.

AFTER BREWER'S MONEY.

Iowa Attorney Wants Damages for Alleged Conspiracy.

Sioux City, Iowa, Oct. 5. — Eugene Lutz has commenced an action against the Sioux City Brewing company, demanding $20,000 damages for alleged malicious prosecution. Nov. 25, 1899, Lutz, who is an attorney, was arrested with a client named A. D. Brauner, for alleged conspiracy to injure the business of the brewing company, and put in jail. Brauner had been discharged from the employ of the company and sought retaliation by the prohibitory liquor law of Iowa. Lutz filed actions against the company and his arrest with his client followed.

WARD IS INDICTED

In Connection With Wrecking Le Mars, Iowa, Bank.

Sioux City, Iowa, Oct. 5.—Seven indictments were returned against T. F. Ward in the federal court for falsifying the records of the Le Mars National bank, now defunct, and embezzling $13,000 of the bank's funds. Ward, who was vice president, absconded and was captured in New Jersey.

BLACK RIVER FALLS TERROR.

Although Declared Insane, He Was Peaceably Helping Build a Railroad.

La Crosse, Wis., Oct. 5—John Lowery, who is alleged to have burned his home and tried to burn a barn and terrorized Black River Falls and escaped here after being declared insane by a jury, was found working on a railroad in Minnesota, near Winona.

Fargo's House Famine.

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 5.—Efforts are being made to interest Fargo capitalists in a plan to erect a number of residences in the city. There is a residence famine, and as a result those who have houses for rent demand such exorbitant rates that many people who have thought of locating here, have been forced to go elsewhere. The opportunity for a profitable investment in homes has never been better, and as a result of Mayor Johnson's hustling there may be a change by next year.

Rural Mail Boxes Broken.

La Crosse, Wis., Oct. 5. — Reports come from French Island, in the town of Campbell, this county, that rural mail boxes have been broken into and mutilated. The authorities have taken up the matter and an investigation is being made. Several boxes have been found unlocked heretofore, but it is but recently that the contents of the boxes have been tampered with.

Poison Ends Old Man's Life.

St. Paul, Oct. 5.—William H. Butterfield, a cripple aged sixty years, died at his home in this city from poison. Butterfield's roommate, Len Robinson, heard the old man walking about his room at 1 o'clock. At 3 o'clock he was again aroused by the old man's groans. Butterfield said he was "all right." When Robinson arose at 6 o'clock Butterfield lay beside him dead.

Minister Wu Will Orate.

Washington, Oct. 5.—Wu Ting Fang, minister from China, has accepted the invitation of the management of the Southern railway to make an address before the annual convention of the American Association of Passenger and General Ticket Agents at Asheville, N. C., Oct. 15 to 17 on the subject of "The Railways of China."

Has the Accident Habit.

Cumberland, Wis., Oct. 5. — Clinton Hammond, a carpenter working on the company's large cold storage plant at this place, fell from the second floor, a distance of fourteen feet, breaking his left arm. It is just a year ago that the same man had the right arm broken and an eye knocked out in an accident.

Derailed by a Boulder.

La Crosse, Wis., Oct. 5. — Passenger train No. 49, due here on the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy from Chicago at 5:13, struck a huge boulder near McCartney while going fifty miles an hour. Fortunately the impact hurled it to one side, the only damage being to the engine.

Hand Nearly Chopped Off.

Cumberland, Wis., Oct. 5.—Iver Solum's two-year-old boy had his hand nearly chopped off by his brother while playing with an axe.

TO CALL SAMPSON

SCHLEY'S ATTORNEYS DEMAND HIS PRESENCE BEFORE THE COURT.

TO EXPLAIN "DEAR SCHLEY" LETTER

WHETHER HE MEANT CIENFUEGOS WHEN HE WROTE SANTIAGO.

TOUCHING THE COAL QUESTION

MASS OF FIGURES REGARDING SUPPLY ON THE FLYING SQUADRON.

Washington, Oct. 5. — In the Schley naval court of inquiry Mr. Rayner, chief of counsel for Admiral Schley, asked Judge Advocate Lemly to summon Admiral Sampson as a witness in the case. The request grew out of a difference in the construction of a sentence in Admiral Sampson's letter to Commodore Schley, written from Key West May 20, while Commodore Schley with his flying squadron lay off Cienfuegos. This is known as the "Dear Schley letter," and it was printed in the navy department documents supplied to the senate. The admiral said, after expressing his opinion that notwithstanding the report that the Spanish squadron was in Santiago, it were better to continue to blockade Cienfuegos and Havana, "we shall continue to hold Havana and Santiago until we receive more positive information."

During the examination of Commander Raymond P. Rodgers this dispatch was under consideration, when Mr. Rayner expressed the opinion that the word Santiago had been inadvertently used by the commander-in-chief, assuming that he meant to use the word Cienfuegos as better corresponding with the context. As the document was printed there was to which Admiral Schley's initials were attached, saying that evidently the wrong city had been mentioned. Mr. Rayner asked Judge Advocate Lemly to make this concession, but the latter declined to do so, saying that he would produce the original of Admiral Sampson's dispatch to prove that he had said Santiago. Then Mr. Rayner said:

A Parenthetical Note,

"I cannot take that word Santiago to mean anything but Cienfuegos. It is no imputation upon Commodore Schley, and I cannot permit it to rest without summoning the author of that dispatch," to which Capt. Lemly responded: "I have told you once before you can summon any one you please."

"Then," retorted Mr. Rayner, "summon Admiral Sampson."

This occurred only a short time before the adjournment of the court for the day, and was the subject of more or less conversation of an animated character after the day's work was concluded. Mr. Rayner would only say that he would insist upon the admiral's being summoned unless the correction was conceded.

As to Coal Supply.

The witnesses for the day were Lieut. C. W. Dyson of the bureau of steam engineering concerning the coal supply of the flying squadron; Commander Raymond P. Rodgers, who was second in command of the battleship Iowa during the Spanish war and carried Admiral Sampson's dispatches of May 20 to Commodore Schley, and Commander Albon C. Hodgson, who was the navigator of the flagship Brooklyn.

Lieut. Dyson presented a mass of figures giving the coal supply of the flying squadron, and the number of tons consumed by the different vessels at various speeds. This testimony was intended to show that there was no necessity for Schley to leave the blockade off Santiago to go to Key West for coal. He made a good case until Schley's attorneys took him in hand, and when they got through with him his elaborate display of mathematics was torn to tatters.

While Commander Rogers was on the stand Mr. Rayner submitted a computation of shells from the American fleet which had struck the wrecked vessels of Cervera's squadron, showing that at least 34 per cent of them were Fired by the Brooklyn.

This computation Mr. Rayner said had been prepared by Admiral Schley upon the basis of a report made by a board of survey, of which the witness was the senior member. Commander Hodgson gave a graphic description of the battle off Santiago, describing the part taken in it by the Brooklyn, and explaining the change in the entry of that vessel's log. During his testimony the colloquy between himself and Admiral Schley on the bridge of the Brooklyn was referred to. In response to Capt. Lemly's questions he said that when the Brooklyn made the much discussed turn he remarked to Schley that they were in danger of ramming the Texas. To this he alleges that Schley replied: "Damn the Texas; let her take care of herself. I am not going to take chances of being blown up by a torpedo boat."

FAIRVIEW HOUSE BURNED.

Property Loss a Faribault Amounting to $8,000.

Faribault, Minn., Oct. 5. — Fire destroyed the Fairview house, built for an invalid's home and owned by the heirs of G. M. Gilmore and occupied by John Moffett. The loss is $8,000; insurance, $5,300.

Steamer Goes Down.

Alden, Mich., Oct. 5. — The steamer Hattie K, plying between Elk Rapids and Easterly, sank yesterday in Torch lake. The crew, consisting of two men, Capt. Fred Smith and his sixteen-year-old son, are missing.

Ambassador White Arrives.

New York, Oct. 5.—Andrew D. White, ambassador of the United States to Germany, was a passenger on the steamship Auguste Victoria, which arrived in port last night from Hamburg, Southampton and Cherbourg.

PRAYED FOR DEATH.

Man Mentally Deranged Pleads That He Be Not Sent to an Insane Asylum.

St. Joseph, Mo., Oct. 5. — Andrew J. Brown, formerly a wealthy stockman and mine owner, was before the county court yesterday during an inquiry into his sanity.

"I know that I am mentally unbalanced and ought to be treated," he said, "but send me where I can be quiet—not to the asylum above all places. I had a brother who was confined there and he died, surrounded by maniacs. A man can't help becoming insane, and it is awful to have to go to where one's companions are all mad."

The court had no alternative and Brown was given into the custody of asylum attendants. Again addressing the court he said their action sealed his doom, and he prayed for death.

HIGH OFFICIALS IMPLICATED.

Story of Corruption Told by a Chicago Bailiff.

Chicago, Oct. 5. — Underlying the charge made by the grand jury that Alexander Sullivan, Edward Mayer, Frederick St. John and George P. Murray conspired to send James J. Lynch, the former bailiff in Judge Clifford's court who is under charges of jury bribing, out of the jurisdiction of the criminal court and of keeping him there, is a greater conspiracy, it is said, implicating court officers.

The story told by Lynch to the grand jury astounded the members of that inquisitorial body, as it revealed a condition of corruption in the courts that exceeded anything that has ever been hinted at.

According to Lynch's story court officers and jurymen have been corrupted by the score, and there are at the present time in the courts of Cook county, he declares, bailiffs who to his knowledge have been guilty of acting as dispensing agents for the West Chicago street railway in efforts to reach jurors in the personal injury cases. So far-reaching was the statement of Lynch that the grand jury has decided to probe further into the matter.

FIRE CAUSES PANIC.

Two Girls Are Missing and Are Thought to Have Perished.

Sandusky, Ohio, Oct. 5.—Fire yesterday afternoon destroyed the plant of the American Crayon company, causing a loss estimated at $140,000. The insurance is $62,000. The fire started in the drying room on the first floor of the packing department and was first discovered when the flames broke through the second floor, where fifty girls were at work. The flames spread rapidly and a panic ensued. Within fifteen minutes the entire plant, covering a block, was on fire, as well as a half dozen houses. The plant and two large barns were soon in ruins. One hundred and fifty men were employed. Late last night it was reported that two girls were missing, and it is feared they have lost their lives.

MANY ADVENTURES.

Woman Dressed as a Man Elopes With Young Girl and Marries Her.

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 5. — Additional facts were developed last evening in connection with Burt Martin, the convict at the penitentiary who has been regarded as a man, but, whom investigation proved to be a female. Two years ago Martin, then twenty years of age, under the name of Burt Shurman, appeared at the town of Ashland. Here "he" induced the daughter of the family with whom he was staying to elope. They were arrested at Nebraska City, charged with stealing a livery team, but were not prosecuted. The father of the girl, however, insisted on a marriage ceremony and the couple were married at Wahoo.

MISS LONG DEAD.

Pulmonary Trouble Finally Results Fatally.

Hingham, Mass., Oct. 5.—Miss Helen Long, oldest daughter of Secretary Long, died last evening at the family residence in this town. Miss Long had been in failing health since November, 1898, with pulmonary trouble, and at that time her father sent her to Colorado Springs to live. A house was built for her there and she was given the best medical care. Several weeks ago her strength failed rapidly and it was deemed best for her to return to Hingham. Efforts to prolong her life were useless and her death occurred last night, the entire family being at her bedside.

A $200,000 FIRE.

Twenty Buildings at Tampa, Fla., Destroyed by Fire.

Tampa, Fla., Oct. 5.—Twenty buildings in the heart of West Tampa were burned yesterday morning with a property loss of $200,000. The fire was discovered in the large cigar factory of O'Hallaran & Co. The water supply in West Tampa was inadequate and the fire practically burned itself out. Great excitement exists on account of the belief that the fire was of incendiary origin. There have been several threats of incendiarism as a result of the labor troubles and agitators have been made to leave the city within the last few hours for advising the use of the torch.

NO DEWEY PROMISE.

Aguinaldo Admits That the American Admiral Never Promised Independence.

San Francisco, Oct. 3.—Congressman Kahn of California, who has just returned from the Philippines, in an interview said that he had obtained from Aguinaldo an explicit denial of the story that Dewey had ever made any promises of independence to the Filipinos.

King Edward Has Lumbago.

London, Oct. 5.—It was ascertained last evening that King Edward's complaint is lumbago. The attack is not at all serious. He drove out yesterday afternoon. Dr. Sir James Reid, summoned to Balmoral, has returned.

Appointed Deputy Collector.

Washburn, Wis., Oct. 5.—D. W. Corning has been appointed deputy collector of customs for this port in place of H. C. Prudhomme, resigned. The change has gone into effect.

LIKE A DIME NOVEL

STORY OF THE DARING ABDUCTION AND ROBBERY OF A WOMAN.

POLICE THOUGHT IT A FAIRY TALE

STRIPPED OF HER JEWELRY AND COMPELLED TO SIGN BANK CHECKS.

KEPT A PRISONER FOR FOUR DAYS

FOUR MEN ARRESTED CHARGED WITH COMPLICITY IN THE CRIME.

Philadelphia, Oct. 7.—Charged with kidnapping a woman and holding her a prisoner for four days, robbing her of jewels worth more than $2,000 and compelling her to sign bank checks for sums of money, is the story which the police unfolded here yesterday when they announced the arrest of a newspaper reporter, a society editor of a morning paper, a stenographer on another morning paper and a barber, whom the police charge with complicity in the crime. The men now locked up are Howard K. Sloan, an unemployed reporter; Henry Wallace, society editor of one of the morning papers; J. Knight Findlay of Wayne, near here, stenographer in the business office of another morning paper, and Oscar Dunlap, a barber employed in one of the most prominent shops in the city. The victim is Mrs. Mabel Goodrich, the proprietor of an establishment on North Tenth street.

Last Monday Mrs. Goodrich went to police headquarters and told a story of kidnapping and robbery so daring that the police at first doubted its truth. She said that for some time past a young man who represented himself as a resident of Germantown, had been a frequent visitor at her establishment. He was well dressed and spent money freely. Last Wednesday week he proposed a drive through Fairmount Park. He asked her to dress in her best clothes and for her to and other jewelry because on the return from the drive he intended to take her to the finest dining room in the city and he wanted her to "shine" with the other women in the place. She accepted, and the next day she went out with him in a carriage with a pair of richly caparisoned horses and a coachman in the box wearing a stylish livery. At a lonely place in Fairmount Park the carriage was stopped by a man whom she said represented himself as D. Clarence Gibbony, the secretary of the Law and Order society in this city. This man told her he had a warrant for her arrest on the charge of keeping a disorderly house, but that the matter could be fixed up. He was invited into the carriage and the next moment she was gagged and blindfolded. She was driven somewhere, she did not know where, but she noticed from one corner of the handkerchief over her eye that the men paid toll at two toll gates and took in a gateway where a heavily laden truck was standing. She was kept prisoner from Wednesday until Friday night without anything to eat or drink, and was then taken to another house, being driven, where she was kept until Saturday night. She was stripped of her jewelry by two men and compelled to sign checks on the Third National bank, where she had her money deposited. They made her sign for more than she possessed, but compelled her to promise to make up the deficiency.

When She Was Released.

One of the men, she says, then took her on a long carriage ride and put her out at Tenth and Poplar streets, a mile from her home. With other information the woman gave them the detectives began to work on what they believed to be a fairy tale. They gained several clews which led them to a fire engine house in Fort Wayne, fifteen miles from this city. The fire company is a volunteer organization and the key to the place is kept in the nearest dwelling. The nearest house was occupied by a family named Findlay, and there the police learned that one of the sons, J. Knight Findlay, had been home but little during the past two weeks. Getting a description of him the police returned to this city and found the young man, who is only twenty-one years of age, in the office where he is employed. He was charged with the crime and broke down and implicated three others. Findlay said that he had impersonated the coachman; that Sloan, the unemployed reporter, acted the part of Attorney Gibboney; that the barber played the part of a rich Germantown resident, and that Wallace, the society editor, had rented a house in Germantown where Mrs. Goodrich was to have been held a captive. He told substantially the same story as that narrated by the woman.

All the jewelry was recovered, most of it having been found in the possession of Findlay and Sloan, who were wearing several of the rings. Only one check for $155 was cashed and most of this money was also recovered.

CRUSHED TO DEATH BY WIRE.

Two Men Killed in Strange Accident at Alpena, Mich.

Alpena, Mich., Oct. 7. — Two men were killed and three injured by being crushed under heavy coils of wire at the Page Fence company warehouse. The men were piling wire when the outer tier of coils toppled over upon them.

Unannounced Visit.

Lisbon, N. D., Oct. 7.—Popping into the soldiers' home here quite unexpectedly during the absence of Commandant McIlvain, Gen. Curtis, government inspector, caused a flurry. Matron McIlvain showed the general around.

Killed in a Runaway.

Lidgerwood, N. D., Oct. 7.—P. L. Olson, a prominent farmer of this vicinity, was instantly killed by a runaway team while returning home in company with one of his neighbors. He leaves a wife and several children.

ARTICLE SCORING SCHLEY

Admitted as Evidence Despite a Warm Protest.

Washington, Oct. 7. — "I protest against the records of this court being stained with calumnies against Admiral Schley," exclaimed Counsel Rayner Saturday as he began an argument in the court of inquiry against admitting as evidence an editorial published by an Eastern newspaper, in which the rear admiral was criticised harshly.

This incident developed during the reading of the correspondence relating to the controversy between Rear Admiral Schley and Lieut. Hodgson.

Almost the entire day was devoted to reading this correspondence and everything went smoothly until Judge Advocate Lemly started to read the editorial in question. Mr. Rayner objected on the ground that Schley had not read it, that it did not relate to the correspondence, and that, if it was admitted, other matter of a similar character would be brought in and the inquiry would never end.

After listening to the arguments the court retired for consultation. Upon returning to the courtroom Admiral Dewey announced that such newspaper articles as related to the controversy and which had been inclosed in the correspondence would be accepted as evidence.

These papers are quite voluminous, and, when the court adjourned Judge Advocate Lemly had not completed the task.

Capt. Lemly produced what he termed the "original of the 'Dear Schley' letter" written by Sampson. In this letter appeared the word "Santiago," which was manifestly a mistake, and, taken in connection with the text of the letter, evidently should have been "Cienfuegos." This was the letter ordering Schley to remain at Cienfuegos.

In the department's copy the word was written "Santiago," but this was written over an erasure. The word which had been erased was "Cienfuegos," but it had not been scratched out entirely.

The department's letter was identical with the copy in the letter copybook.

TO SAVE MISS STONE.

Her Friends Are Working Energetically.

Boston, Oct. 7.—The urgency of the case of Miss Stone, the missionary held for ransom by brigands in Bulgaria, brought together for two hours yesterday the members of the prudential committee of the American board. Later the committee issued a statement based upon the views of President Samuel B. Capen of the board, and the secretary, Rev. Dr. Judson Smith, as the result of their visit to Washington, Saturday. Both gentlemen had interviews with President Roosevelt and the officials of the state department. It was made plain to them, they told the prudential committee, that the only certain way to secure the release of Miss Stone and save her life would be the payment of the ransom. The committee was informed that the government, because of the constitutional restriction, is unable to pay the ransom. The committee is also made aware of the fact that the American board has no money with which to save Miss Stone. The only practical way, therefore, was shown to be a popular subscription, which already has been started. The committee heartily approved this, and began sending telegrams to many parts of the country urging subscriptions.

FOUR TRAINMEN KILLED.

Third Section of a Freight Train Crashes Into the Second Section.

Logansport, Ind., Oct. 7.—The worst wreck on the Logansport division of the Pan Handle for years occurred yesterday two miles east of Onward, fourteen miles from this city. The train was No. 79. The first section reached this city on time, but at the point of the wreck the engine to the section, which consisted of only the engine and two cabooses, running light, went "dead." The morning was foggy, and the heavy third section crashed full speed into the train ahead. The bodies of two men were taken from the wreck horribly mangled, but it was impossible to reach the body of another, and it was incinerated in the flames. The engine of the third section was in charge of Frank Patterson, engineer, and John Hutchison, fireman. Patterson jumped and escaped with minor injuries, but his fireman was caught and crushed to death in the engine.

IN MEMORY OF M'KINLEY.

Ohioans at the National Capital Pay a Last Public Tribute.

Washington, Oct. 7. — The sons and daughters of the late President McKinley's native State of Ohio who are now residents of Washington yesterday paid a last public tribute to the memory of their dead congressman, governor and president in a largely attended meeting at Chase's opera house. The gathering was held under the auspices of the Ohio Republican association, but was not confined to Ohioans. About 3,000 persons were present. The decorations were appropriate to the occasion.

BOER REFUGEE CAMPS.

Nearly 50,000 People Concentrated in Orange River Colony.

Bloemfontein, Oct. 7.—There are now 6,500 white persons in the various camps here, while there nearly 46,000 in the various camps in the Orange River colony. They require sixteen railway truckloads of foodstuffs weekly. The weekly death rate averages 220, mostly from measles. Fifty per cent of the victims are children under three years of age. The trains passing north are filled with women and children returning to the rand. Thirteen burghers have recently taken the oath of allegiance here.

Took Morphine Route.

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 7. — John Wyatt Turner of Rock Hill, Ala., assistant instructor in the carding and spinning branches of the textile department of the Georgia school of technology, committed suicide by taking morphine.

Oil Inspector Indicted.

Chicago, Oct. 7. — The grand jury voted two indictments against Robert E. Burke, city oil inspector. The charge is embezzlement of the funds of his office, and in one instance a shortage of $14,000 is alleged.

INTENSE FEELING

IN MILITARY CIRCLES BECAUSE OF THE MASSACRE IN SAMAR.

AUTHORS OF DEED WERE PACIFICOS

HAD TAKEN THE OATH OF ALLEGIANCE AND SOME HELD OFFICE.

ALL GARRISONS ON THEIR GUARD

CONVEYS A LESSON OF NECESSITY FOR INCREASED VIGILANCE.

Manila, Oct. 7.—The disaster in Samar has produced general uneasiness, and strict orders have been issued to all the garrisons to guard against a similar surprise. There is intense feeling throughout the army because of the massacre, which would not be the case to any such extent had it been the work of ordinary insurgents. The latter might have been expected to commit such an outrage. Feeling is particularly intense in military circles because the authors of the massacre were pacificos, most of whom had taken the oath of allegiance, and many of them, including the president of Balangiga, were actually holding office. Some of the after effects are shown at many points, particularly at Baulan and Cutucan, in the Provinces of Batangas and Manila, where disaffection

Is Manifesting Itself,

although it is not likely to be allowed to go far. On the other hand, the officers and troops at all the garrisons throughout the archipelago feel that the disaster conveys a lesson to themselves of the necessity for increased vigilance. Maj. Morris Foote of the Ninth United States infantry, who has returned here from the island of Samar, was in Balangiga the day before the disaster to Company C. He says that Capt. Connell had been fully warned and had taken what he (Foote) considered very necessary precaution. Information that a plot was brewing among the Filipinos came to Maj. Foote through a priest, who said it was the plans of the populace at North Balinga and Basay to attack the garrison. Basay garrison from a cock pit in the rear of the barracks. Orders were immediately given to demolish the cockpit and extra guards were stationed.

There is a misunderstanding between Gen. Chaffee and the supreme court regarding their respective jurisdictions. The question arose over an ex-soldier, who while acting as a military messenger, refused to perform his duties and was deported. He was taken from a transport on a writ of habeas corpus. Gen. Chaffee claims to have power equal to that of the supreme court, as they are both acting under the war power granted to the president, and hence he did not require to concurrence of the court to deport the man. The question is important as it involves the authority of the military system.

PANIC IN A HOSPITAL.

Delirious Patient Runs Amuck With a Knife.

Salt Lake City, Utah, Oct. 7.—In a fit of delirium August Sinnel, a powerfully built Finnish miner, who was suffering from acute erysipelas, created a panic at Holy Cross hospital by arming himself with a large knife and rushing wildly about the corridors, threatening to murder anyone who sought to restrain him in his effort to break out of the hospital. Sinnel burst off an inner door, jumped through a glass window and disappeared before the police arrived. The shock of the excitement and fright was severe upon the sisters and the patients of the hospital, many of whom were on the verge of collapse.

At a late hour last night no trace of Sinnel had been found.

ACCUSED OF CRUELTY.

Alleged Cause of Mutiny on German Cruiser.

Berlin, Oct. 7.—An official statement is printed in the North German Gazette in regard to the recent mutiny on the German cruiser Gazelle. The story is that the men accused Capt. Noltzke of cruelty and unnecessary severity. The men were imprisoned for their alleged mutinous behavior. Then it was discovered that parts of six guns on the cruiser had been thrown overboard and a threatening note was found on the captain's table. An ablebodied seaman was placed in irons. In accordance with his own wish Capt. Noltzke has been relieved of the command of the ship and has left the service.

BIG FIRE AT PITTSBURG.

Damage to the Amount of $280,000 Done to a Clay Pot Plant.

Pittsburg, Oct. 7.—Fire yesterday in the Pittsburg Clay Pot works in Allegheny damaged the plant to the extent of $280,000, injuring six men and enforced the idleness for several months upon a force of 168 workmen. The injured men were firemen who were on the roof of the boiler house when the wall fell and they were carried with it. None of them will die. The fire originated in the boiler room from an unknown cause. Secretary William McMillan, general superintendent of the company rates the loss at between $250,000 and $280,000 on which there is $186,000 insurance.

Furious Gales in Great Britain.

London, Oct. 7.—A furious gale raged yesterday over Great Britain, the channel, the North sea and Belgium. Several fatalities on land are reported as the result of falling trees. Slight casualties at sea are also reported.

Eighteen People Injured.

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 7.—Two cars on the Consolidated street railway were in collision last evening, injuring eighteen people. Both cars were crowded and were under considerable headway on a down grade when they met.

HERRESHOFF'S WHITE WONDER AGAIN DEFEATS THE SHAMROCK.

LIPTON ALMOST SECURES A RACE

LEADS COLUMBIA AT THE FINISH BUT LOSES ON TIME ALLOWANCE.

IRISH BOAT MAKES BEST TIME

GALLANT IRISH KNIGHT LEADS THE CHEERS FOR THE VICTOR.

New York, Oct. 5.—With victory flags floating from her towering mastheads and the ends of her spreaders in honor of her concluding triumph in the cup races of 1901, the gallant sloop Columbia returned to her anchorage last night under the escort of the entire excursion fleet. She had completed her defense of the honored trophy in another stirring race with the Shamrock II over a leeward and windward course of thirty miles, crossing the finish line two seconds behind her antagonist, but winning on time allowance conceded by Lipton's boat by forty-one seconds.

For the second time she has now successfully foiled the attempt of the Irish knight to wrest from our possession the cup that means the yachting supremacy of the world. And plucky Sir Thomas Lipton, standing on the bridge of the Erin, led his guests in three hearty huzzas for the successful defender.

"She is the better boat," he said, "and she deserves to be cheered."

The series of races just closed will always be memorable as the closest ever sailed for the cup, and Sir Thomas, although defeated, will go home with the satisfaction of knowing that his golden yacht is the

that ever crossed the western ocean. During both series of races not an untoward incident has occurred, and Sir Thomas will return to England by far the most popular of all the foreigners who have challenged for the America's trophy.

Yesterday's race, on paper, was the closest of the series, because of the fickleness of the wind on the beat home, but as a contest of the relative sea merits it is not to be compared with the magnificent, truly run and nobly fought battles of Saturday and Thursday. The wind was strong and from the shore, embroidering the sea with foam and piling up no swell—ideal conditions for the challenger. The racers were sent away before the wind, each carrying a penalty for crossing the line after the handicap gun. No official record is kept of the time after that gun had been fired, but the experts with stop watches estimated Columbia's handicap at fifteen seconds and Shamrock's at thirty seconds. The contest of the yachts fleeing before the following wind was picturesque, but not exciting. Notwithstanding the fact that the Columbia beat the Shamrock before the wind last Saturday, the challenger yesterday

all the way out and rounded forty-nine seconds before the defender, having actually gained one minute and four seconds. Immediately after the yachts turned their noses into the wind for the beat home the breeze moderated and turned fluky. The skippers split tacks, each searching for wind, with the result that first one would get a lift and then the other. At one time Columbia seemed a mile ahead when with a sudden cant of the wind, allowed Shamrock to point nearer the mark and a mile from home the challenger appeared to be leading by fully half a mile. The talent began to feel nervous, but as the yachts approached the finish the Yankee skipper by some miraculous legerdemain, shoved his boat into the light air like a phantom ship and one hundred yards from home the two racers were almost on even terms. It was a pretty sight and one seldom witnessed, when they crossed rail to rail, the white yacht's bowsprit just lapping the golden boat's mast. The usual pandemonium that attends the

Final Yankee Victory

in a cup contest followed. Whistles, sirens, bells, bands and cheerers united in a grand chorus of jubilation, and J. P. Morgan's steam yacht Corsair added to the terrific din by firing a national salute of twenty-one guns.

While taking his defeat gamely, Sir Thomas Lipton made no attempt to conceal the honest disappointment when he talked about the races last night on the Erin.

"I am very disappointed," he said. "I can't hide that. I thought within fifteen minutes of the finish that we had won. I was sure as my life we had won. It was a hard blow to be so near winning and then to lose. I should like to have got one race, just by way of consolation. It is a very hard thing to be beaten by a breath—by a few beats of the pulse. It has been a severe strain on me. I have worked so hard for many months now and I am glad it is over. To have won would have been a joy greater than today's disappointment. Columbia's win today was fair and square and honorable."

BRITONS DISAPPOINTED.

They Think That Lipton Deserved Better Luck.

London, Oct. 5.—There is a feeling of supreme disappointment in London over the failure of Shamrock II. to win even a single race. Those who denounced Sir Thomas Lipton's ambition, asserting that he was using his yacht to advertise his business interests, now admit that his sportsman's spirit deserved a better result. When the American yacht was leading near the home stretch the news was received in silence by the crowds on the embankment. There was never much betting in this country, and the disappointment among the masses is sincere and general.

INDIANS UGLY.

Mille Lacs County Settlers Are Afraid of an Outbreak.

St. Paul, Oct. 5. — Dr. E. H. Boeckman, sent by Dr. Bracken of the state board of health to investigate the smallpox epidemic among the Indians in Mille Lacs county, returned yesterday. He says the guards are now enforcing the quarantine with fair success. The disease is most virulent in form, however, and there have been several deaths. The Indians are in an ugly mood, their pay having been withheld by the government because they refuse to remove to the White Earth reservation. The settlers are much disturbed, fearing both the smallpox and an outbreak of the Indians. There is no great danger of an epidemic at present. Lars Erickson, a pioneer trader of Mille Lacs county, yesterday called at the capitol to enlist the aid of Gov. Van Sant. He says there is danger of an Indian outbreak and there is great danger of a smallpox epidemic. There are about 500 Indians loafing about homestead land who refuse to move. They have guns and refuse to obey the laws, living on game killed out of season.

FARMER AND SHOTGUN.

What a State Veterinarian Ran Up Against.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Oct. 5. — Henry Franseen, a prominent farmer living near Sioux Falls, was arrested yesterday on the charge of assault with a dangerous weapon and threatening the life of Dr. O. W. Stanley, assistant state veterinary surgeon, of this city. Dr. Stanley and State Veterinary Foster of Brown county, with another physician, went to Franseen's farm for the purpose of shooting some horses of his which were alleged to have been exposed to glanders. He appeared on the scene armed with a shotgun and ran the officials off his place. His preliminary examination was set for today, but has been continued until next Tuesday.

AFTER BREWER'S MONEY.

Iowa Attorney Wants Damages for Alleged Conspiracy.

Sioux City, Iowa, Oct. 5. — Eugene Lutz has commenced an action against the Sioux City Brewing company, demanding $20,000 damages for alleged malicious prosecution. Nov. 25, 1899, Lutz, who is an attorney, was arrested with a client named A. D. Brauner for alleged conspiracy to injure the business of the brewing company, and put in jail. Brauner had been discharged from the employ of the company and sought retaliation by the prohibitory liquor law of Iowa. Lutz filed actions against the company and his arrest with his client followed.

WARD IS INDICTED.

In Connection With Wrecking Le Mars, Iowa, Bank.

Sioux City, Iowa, Oct. 5.—Seven indictments were returned against T. F. Ward in the federal court for falsifying the records of the Le Mars National bank, now defunct, and embezzling $13,000 of the bank's funds. Ward, who was vice president, absconded and was captured in New Jersey.

BLACK RIVER FALLS TERROR.

Although Declared Insane, He Was Peaceably Helping Build a Railroad.

La Crosse, Wis., Oct. 5.—John Lowery, who is alleged to have burned his home and tried to burn a barn and terrorized Black River Falls and escaped here after being declared insane by a jury, was found working on a railroad in Minnesota, near Winona.

Fargo's House Famine.

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 5.—Efforts are being made to interest Fargo capitalists in a plan to erect a number of residences in the city. There is a residence famine, and as a result those who have houses for rent demand such exorbitant rates that many people who have thought of locating here, have been forced to go elsewhere. The opportunity for a profitable investment in homes has never been better, and as a result of Mayor Johnson's hustling there may be a change by next year.

Rural Mail Boxes Broken.

La Crosse, Wis., Oct. 5. — Reports come from French Island, in the town of Campbell, this county, that rural mail boxes have been broken into and mutilated. The authorities have taken up the matter and an investigation is being made. Several boxes have been found unlocked heretofore, but it is but recently that the contents of the boxes have been tampered with.

Poison Ends Old Man's Life.

St. Paul, Oct. 5.—William H. Butterfield, a cripple aged sixty years, died at his home in this city from poison. Butterfield's roommate, Len Robinson, heard the old man walking about his room at 1 o'clock. At 3 o'clock he was again aroused by the old man's groans. Butterfield said he was "all right." When Robinson arose at 6 o'clock Butterfield lay beside him dead.

Minister Wu Will Orate.

Washington, Oct. 5.—Wu Ting Fang, minister from China, has accepted the invitation of the management of the Southern railway to make an address before the annual convention of the American Association of Passenger and General Ticket Agents at Asheville, N. C., Oct. 15 to 17 on the subject of "The Railways of China."

Has the Accident Habit.

Cumberland, Wis., Oct. 5. — Clinton Hammond, a carpenter working on the company's large cold storage plant in this place, fell from the second floor, a distance of fourteen feet, breaking his left arm. It is just a year ago that the same man had the right arm broken and an eye knocked out in an accident.

Derailed by a Boulder.

La Crosse, Wis., Oct. 5. — Passenger train No. 49, due here on the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy from Chicago at 8.13, struck a huge boulder near McCartney while going fifty miles an hour. Fortunately the impact hurled it to one side, the only damage being to the engine.

Hand Nearly Chopped Off.

Cumberland, Wis., Oct. 5.—Iver Solum's two-year-old boy had his hand nearly chopped off by his brother while playing with an axe.

TO CALL SAMPSON

SCHLEY'S ATTORNEYS DEMAND HIS PRESENCE BEFORE THE COURT.

TO EXPLAIN "DEAR SCHLEY" LETTER

WHETHER HE MEANT CIENFUEGOS WHEN HE WROTE SANTIAGO.

TOUCHING THE COAL QUESTION

MASS OF FIGURES REGARDING SUPPLY ON THE FLYING SQUADRON.

Washington, Oct. 5. — In the Schley naval court of inquiry Mr. Rayner, chief of counsel for Admiral Schley, asked Judge Advocate Lemly to summon Admiral Sampson as a witness in the case. The request grew out of a difference in the construction of a sentence in Admiral Sampson's letter to Commodore Schley, written from Key West May 20, while Commodore Schley with his flying squadron lay off Cienfuegos. This is known as the "Dear Schley letter," and it was printed in the navy department documents supplied to the senate. The admiral said, after expressing his opinion that notwithstanding the report that the Spanish squadron was in Santiago, it were better to continue to blockade Cienfuegos and Havana, "we shall continue to hold Havana and Santiago until we receive more positive information."

During the examination of Commander Raymond P. Rodgers this dispatch was under consideration, when Mr. Rayner expressed the opinion that the word Santiago had been inadvertently used by the commander-in-chief, assuming that he meant to use the word Cienfuegos as better corresponding with the context. As the document was printed there was to which Admiral Schley's initials were attached, saying that evidently the wrong city had been mentioned. Mr. Rayner asked Judge Advocate Lemly to make this concession, but the latter declined to do so, saying that he would produce the original of Admiral Sampson's dispatch to prove that he had said Santiago. Then Mr. Rayner said:

A Parenthetical Note,

"I cannot take that word Santiago to mean anything but Cienfuegos. It is an imputation upon Commodore Schley, and I cannot permit it to rest without summoning the author of that dispatch," to which Capt. Lemly responded: "I have told you once before you can summon any one you please."

"Then," retorted Mr. Rayner, "summon Admiral Sampson."

This occurred only a short time before the adjournment of the court for the day, and was the subject of more or less conversation of an animated character after the day's work was concluded. Mr. Rayner would only say that he would insist upon the admiral's being summoned unless the correction was conceded.

As to Coal Supply.

The witnesses for the day were Lieut. C. W. Dyson of the bureau of steam engineering concerning the coal supply of the flying squadron; Commander Raymond P. Rodgers, who was second in command of the battleship Iowa during the Spanish war and carried Admiral Sampson's dispatches of May 20 to Commodore Schley, and Commander Albon C. Hodgson, who was the navigator of the flagship Brooklyn.

Lieut. Dyson presented a mass of figures giving the coal supply of the flying squadron, and the number of tons consumed by the different vessels at various speeds. This testimony was intended to show that there was no necessity for Schley to leave the blockade off Santiago to go to Key West for coal. He made a good case until Schley's attorneys took him in hand, and when they got through with him his elaborate display of mathematics was torn to tatters.

While Commander Rogers was on the stand Mr. Rayner submitted a computation of shells from the American fleet which had struck the wrecked vessels of Cervera's squadron, showing that at least 34 per cent of them were Fired by the Brooklyn.

This computation Mr. Rayner said had been prepared by Admiral Schley upon the basis of a report made by a board of survey, of which the witness was the senior member. Commander Hodgson gave a graphic description of the battle off Santiago, describing the part taken in it by the Brooklyn, and explaining the change in the entry of that vessel's log. During his testimony the colloquy between himself and Admiral Schley on the bridge of the Brooklyn was referred to. In response to Capt. Lemly's questions he said that when the Brooklyn made the much discussed turn he remarked to Schley that they were in danger of ramming the Texas. To this he alleges that Schley replied: "Damn the Texas; let her take care of herself. I am not going to take chances of being blown up by a torpedo boat."

FAIRVIEW HOUSE BURNED.

Property Loss at Faribault Amounting to $8,000.

Faribault, Minn., Oct. 5. — Fire destroyed the Fairview house, built for an invalid's home and owned by the heirs of G. M. Gilmore and occupied by John Moffett. The loss is $8,000; insurance, $5,300.

Steamer Goes Down.

Alden, Mich., Oct. 5. — The steamer Hattie K. plying between Elk Rapids and Easterly, sank yesterday in Torch lake. The crew, consisting of two men, Capt. Fred Smith and his sixteen-year-old son, are missing.

Ambassador White Arrives.

New York, Oct. 5.—Andrew D. White, ambassador of the United States to Germany, was a passenger on the steamship Auguste Victoria, which arrived in port last night from Hamburg, Southampton and Cherbourg.

PRAYED FOR DEATH.

Man Mentally Deranged Pleads That He Be Not Sent to an Insane Asylum.

St. Joseph, Mo., Oct. 5. — Andrew J. Brown, formerly a wealthy stockman and mine owner, was before the county court yesterday during an inquiry into his sanity.

"I know that I am mentally unbalanced and ought to be treated," he said, "but send me where I can be quiet—not to the asylum above all places. I had a brother who was confined there and he died, surrounded by maniacs. A man can't help becoming insane, and it is awful to have to go to where one's companions are all mad."

The court had no alternative and Brown was given into the custody of asylum attendants. Again addressing the court he said their action sealed his doom, and he prayed for death.

HIGH OFFICIALS IMPLICATED.

Story of Corruption Told by a Chicago Bailiff.

Chicago, Oct. 5. — Underlying the charge made by the grand jury that Alexander Sullivan, Edward Maher, Frederick St. John and George P. Murray conspired to send James J. Lynch, the former bailiff in Judge Clifford's court who is under charges of jury bribing, out of the jurisdiction of the criminal court and of keeping him there, is a greater conspiracy, it is said, implicating court officers.

The story told by Lynch to the grand jury astounded the members of that inquisitorial body, as it revealed a condition of corruption in the courts that exceeded anything that has ever been hinted at.

According to Lynch's story court officers and jurymen have been corrupted by the score, and there are at the present time in the courts of Cook county, he declares, bailiffs, who to his knowledge, have been guilty of acting as dispensing agents for the West Chicago street railway in efforts to reach jurors in the personal injury cases. So far-reaching was the statement of Lynch that the grand jury has decided to probe further into the matter.

FIRE CAUSES PANIC.

Two Girls Are Missing and Are Thought to Have Perished.

Sandusky, Ohio, Oct. 5.—Fire yesterday afternoon destroyed the plant of the American Crayon company, causing a loss estimated at $140,000. The insurance is $62,000. The fire started in the drying room on the first floor of the packing department and was first discovered when the flames broke through the second floor, where fifty girls were at work. The flames spread rapidly and a panic ensued. Within fifteen minutes the entire plant, covering a block, was on fire, as well as a half dozen houses. The plant and two large barns were soon in ruins. One hundred and fifty men were employed. Late last night it was reported that two girls were missing, and it is feared they have lost their lives.

MANY ADVENTURES.

Woman Dressed as a Man Elopes With Young Girl and Marries Her.

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 5. — Additional facts were developed last evening in connection with Burt Martin, the convict at the penitentiary who has been regarded as a man, but, whom investigation proved to be a female. Two years ago Martin, then twenty years of age, under the name of Burt Shurman, appeared at the town of Ashland. Here "he" induced the daughter of the family with whom he was staying to elope. They were arrested at Nebraska City, charged with stealing a livery team, but were not prosecuted. The father of the girl, however, insisted on a marriage ceremony and the couple were married at Wahoo.

MISS LONG DEAD.

Pulmonary Trouble Finally Results Fatally.

Hingham, Mass., Oct. 5—Miss Helen Long, oldest daughter of Secretary Long, died last evening at the family residence in this town. Miss Long had been in failing health since November, 1898, with pulmonary trouble, and at that time her father sent her to Colorado Springs to live. A house was built for her there and she was given the best medical care. Several weeks ago her strength failed rapidly and it was deemed best for her to return to Hingham. Efforts to prolong her life were useless and her death occurred last night, the entire family being at her bedside.

A $200,000 FIRE.

Twenty Buildings at Tampa, Fla., Destroyed by Fire.

Tampa, Fla., Oct. 5—Twenty buildings in the heart of West Tampa were burned yesterday morning with a property loss of $200,000. The fire was discovered in the large cigar factory of O'Halloran & Co. The water supply in West Tampa was inadequate and the fire practically burned itself out. Great excitement exists on account of the belief that the fire was of incendiary origin. There have been several threats of incendiarism as a result of the labor troubles and agitators have been made to leave the city within the last few hours for advising the use of the torch.

NO DEWEY PROMISE.

Aguinaldo Admits That the American Admiral Never Promised Independence.

San Francisco, Oct. 5—Congressman Kahn of California, who has just returned from the Philippines, in an interview said that he had obtained from Aguinaldo an explicit denial of the story that Dewey had ever made any promises of independence to the Filipinos.

King Edward Has Lumbago.

London, Oct. 5—It was ascertained last evening that King Edward's complaint is lumbago. The attack is not at all serious. He drove out yesterday afternoon. Dr. Sir James Reid, summoned to Balmoral, has returned.

Appointed Deputy Collector.

Washburn, Wis., Oct. 5.—D. W. Corning has been appointed deputy collector of customs for this port in place of H. C. Prudhamme, resigned. The change has gone into effect.

LIKE A DIME NOVEL

STORY OF THE DARING ABDUCTION AND ROBBERY OF A WOMAN.

POLICE THOUGHT IT A FAIRY TALE

STRIPPED OF HER JEWELRY AND COMPELLED TO SIGN BANK CHECKS.

KEPT A PRISONER FOR FOUR DAYS

FOUR MEN ARRESTED CHARGED WITH COMPLICITY IN THE CRIME.

Philadelphia, Oct. 7.—Charged with kidnapping a woman and holding her a prisoner for four days, robbing her of jewels worth more than $2,000 and compelling her to sign bank checks for sums of money, is the story which the police unfolded here yesterday when they announced the arrest of a newspaper reporter, a society editor of a morning paper, a stenographer on another morning paper and a barber, whom the police charge with complicity in the crime. The men now locked up are Howard K. Sloan, an unemployed reporter; Henry Wallace, society editor of one of the morning papers; J. Knight Findlay of Wayne, near here, stenographer in the business office of another morning paper, and Oscar Dunlap, a barber employed in one of the most prominent shops in the city. The victim is Mrs. Mabel Goodrich, the proprietor of an establishment on North Tenth street.

Last Monday Mrs. Goodrich went to police headquarters and told a story of kidnapping and robbery so daring that the police at first doubted its truth. She said that for some time past a young man who represented himself as a resident of Germantown had been a frequent visitor at her establishment. He was well dressed and spent money freely. Last Wednesday week he proposed a drive through Fairmount Park. He asked her to dress in her best clothes and for her to and other jewelry because on the return from the drive he intended to take her to the finest dining room in the city and he wanted her to "shine" with the other women in the place. She accepted, and the next day she went out with him in a carriage with a pair of richly caparisoned horses and a coachman in the box wearing a stylish livery. At a lonely place in Fairmount Park the carriage was stopped by a man whom she said represented himself as D. Clarence Gibbony, the secretary of the Law and Order society in this city. This man told her he had a warrant for her arrest on the charge of keeping a disorderly house, but that the matter could be fixed up. He was invited into the carriage and the next moment she was gagged and blindfolded. She was driven somewhere, she did not know where, but she noticed from one corner of the handkerchief over her eye that the men paid toll at two toll gates and took in a gateway where a heavily laden truck was standing. She was kept prisoner from Wednesday until Friday night without anything to eat or drink, and was then taken to another house, being driven, where she was kept until Saturday night. She was stripped of her jewelry by two men and compelled to sign checks on the Third National bank, where she had her money deposited. They made her sign for more than she possessed, but compelled her to promise to make up the deficiency.

When She Was Released.

One of the men, she says, then took her on a long carriage ride and put her out at Tenth and Poplar streets, a mile from her home. With other information the woman gave them the detectives began to work on what they believed to be a fairy tale. They gained several clews which led them to a fire engine house in Fort Wayne, fifteen miles from this city. The fire company is a volunteer organization and the key to the place is kept in the nearest dwelling. The nearest house was occupied by a family named Findlay, and there the police learned that one of the sons, J. Knight Findlay, had been home but little during the past two weeks. Getting a description of him the police returned to this city and found the young man, who is only twenty-one years of age, in the office where he is employed. He was charged with the crime and broke down and implicated three others. Findlay said that he had impersonated the coachman; that Sloan, the unemployed reporter, acted the part of Attorney Gibboney, that the barber played the part of a rich Germantown resident, and that Wallace, the society editor, had rented a house in Germantown where Mrs. Goodrich was to have been held a captive. He told substantially the same story as that narrated by the woman.

All the jewelry was recovered, most of it having been found in the possession of Findlay and Sloan, who were wearing several of the rings. Only one check for $155 was cashed and most of this money was also recovered.

CRUSHED TO DEATH BY WIRE.

Two Men Killed in Strange Accident at Alpena, Mich.

Alpena, Mich., Oct. 7. — Two men were killed and three injured by being crushed under heavy coils of wire at the Page Fence company warehouse. The men were piling wire when the outer tier of coils toppled over upon them.

Unannounced Visit.

Lisbon, N. D., Oct. 7—Popping into the soldiers' home here quite unexpectedly during the absence of Commandant McElvain, Gen. Curtis, government inspector, caused a flurry. Matron McIlvain showed the general around.

Killed in a Runaway.

Lidgerwood, N. D., Oct. 7.—P. L. Olson, a prominent farmer of this vicinity, was instantly killed by a runaway team while returning home in company with one of his neighbors. He leaves a wife and several children.

ARTICLE SCORING SCHLEY

Admitted as Evidence Despite a Warm Protest.

Washington, Oct. 5. — "I protest against the records of this court being stained with calumnies against Admiral Schley," exclaimed Counsel Rayner Saturday as he began an argument in the court of inquiry against admitting as evidence an editorial published by an Eastern newspaper, in which the rear admiral was criticised harshly.

This incident developed during the reading of the correspondence relating to the controversy between Rear Admiral Schley and Lieut. Hodgson.

Almost the entire day was devoted to reading this correspondence and everything went smoothly until Judge Advocate Lemly started to read the editorial in question. Mr. Rayner objected on the ground that Schley had not read it, that it did not relate to the correspondence, and that, if it was admitted, other matter of a similar character would be brought in and the inquiry would never end.

After listening to the arguments the court retired for consultation. Upon returning to the courtroom Admiral Dewey announced that such newspaper articles as related to the controversy and which had been inclosed in the correspondence would be accepted as evidence.

These papers are quite voluminous, and when the court adjourned Judge Advocate Lemly had not completed the task.

Capt. Lemly produced what he termed the "original of the 'Dear Schley' letter" written by Sampson. In this letter appeared the word "Santiago," which was manifestly a mistake, and, taken in connection with the text of the letter, evidently should have been "Cienfuegos." This was the letter ordering Schley to remain at Cienfuegos.

In the department's copy the word was written "Santiago," but this was written over an erasure. The word which had been erased was "Cienfuegos," but it had not been scratched out entirely.

The department's letter was identical with the copy in the letter copybook.

TO SAVE MISS STONE.

Her Friends Are Working Energetically.

Boston, Oct. 7.—The urgency of the case of Miss Stone, the missionary held for ransom by brigands in Bulgaria, brought together for two hours yesterday the members of the prudential committee of the American board. Later the committee issued a statement based upon the views of President Samuel B. Capen of the board, and the secretary, Rev. Dr. Judson Smith, as the result of their visit to Washington Saturday. Both gentlemen had interviews with President Roosevelt and the officials of the state department. It was made plain to them, they told the prudential committee, that the only certain way to secure the release of Miss Stone and save her life would be the payment of the ransom. The committee was informed that the government, because of the constitutional restriction, is unable to pay the ransom. The committee is also made aware of the fact that the American board has no money with which to save Miss Stone. The only practical way, therefore, was shown to be a popular subscription, which already has been started. The committee heartily approved this, and began sending telegrams to many parts of the country urging subscriptions.

FOUR TRAINMEN KILLED.

Third Section of a Freight Train Crashes Into the Second Section.

Logansport, Ind., Oct. 7.—The worst wreck on the Logansport division of the Pan Handle for years occurred yesterday two miles east of Onward, fourteen miles from this city. The train was No. 79. The first section reached this city on time, but at the point of the wreck the engine to the section, which consisted of only the engine and two cabooses, running light, went "dead." The morning was foggy, and the heavy third section crashed full speed into the train ahead. The bodies of two men were taken from the wreck horribly mangled, but it was impossible to reach the body of another, and it was incinerated in the flames. The engine of the third section was in charge of Frank Patterson, engineer, and John Hutchison, fireman. Patterson jumped and escaped with minor injuries, but his fireman was caught and crushed to death in the engine.

IN MEMORY OF M'KINLEY.

Ohioans at the National Capital Pay a Last Public Tribute.

Washington, Oct. 7. — The sons and daughters of the late President McKinley's native State of Ohio who are now residents of Washington yesterday paid a last public tribute to the memory of their dead congressman, governor and president in a largely attended meeting at Chase's opera house. The gathering was held under the auspices of the Ohio Republican association, but was not confined to Ohioans. About 3,000 persons were present. The decorations were appropriate to the occasion.

BOER REFUGEE CAMPS.

Nearly 53,000 People Concentrated in Orange River Colony.

Bloemfontein, Oct. 7.—There are now 6,500 white persons in the various camps here, while there nearly 46,000 in the various camps in the Orange River colony. They require sixteen railway truckloads of foodstuffs weekly. The weekly death rate averages 220, mostly from measles. Fifty per cent of the victims are children under three years of age. The trains passing north are filled with women and children returning to the rand. Thirteen burghers have recently taken the oath of allegiance here.

Took Morphine Route.

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 7. — John Wyatt Turner of Rock Hill, Ala., assistant instructor in the carding and spinning branches of the textile department of the Georgia school of technology, committed suicide by taking morphine.

Oil Inspector Indicted.

Chicago, Oct. 7. — The grand jury voted two indictments against Robert E. Burke, city oil inspector. The charge is embezzlement of the funds of his office, and in one instance a shortage of $14,000 is alleged.

INTENSE FEELING

IN MILITARY CIRCLES BECAUSE OF THE MASSACRE IN SAMAR.

AUTHORS OF DEED WERE PACIFICOS

HAD TAKEN THE OATH OF ALLEGIANCE AND SOME HELD OFFICE.

ALL GARRISONS ON THEIR GUARD

CONVEYS A LESSON OF NECESSITY FOR INCREASED VIGILANCE.

Manila, Oct. 7.—The disaster in Samar has produced general uneasiness, and strict orders have been issued to all the garrisons to guard against a similar surprise. There is intense feeling throughout the army because of the massacre, which would not be the case to any such extent had it been the work of ordinary insurgents. The latter might have been expected to commit such an outrage. Feeling is particularly intense in military circles because the authors of the massacre were pacificos, most of whom had taken the oath of allegiance, and many of them, including the president of Balangiga, were actually holding office. Some of the after effects are shown at many points, particularly at Bauan and Cuyucan, in the Provinces of Batangas and Manila, where disaffection

Is Manifesting Itself,

although it is not likely to be allowed to go far. On the other hand the officers and troops at all the garrisons throughout the archipelago feel that the disaster conveys a lesson to themselves of the necessity for increased vigilance. Maj. Morris Foote of the Ninth United States infantry, who has returned here from the island of Samar, was in Balangiga the day before the disaster to Company C. He says that Capt. Connell had been fully warned and had taken what he (Foote) considered very necessary precaution. Information that a plot was brewing among the Filipinos came to Maj. Foote through a priest, who said it was the plans of the populace at North Balinga and Basay to attack the garrison. Basay garrison from a cock pit in the rear of the barracks. Orders were immediately given to demolish the cockpit and extra guards were stationed.

There is a misunderstanding between Gen. Chaffee and the supreme court regarding their respective jurisdictions. The question arose over an ex-soldier, who while acting as a military messenger, refused to perform his duties and was deported. He was taken from a transport on a writ of habeas corpus. Gen. Chaffee claims to have power equal to that of the supreme court, as they are both acting under the war power granted to the president, and hence he did not require to concurrence of the court to deport the man. The question is important as it involves the authority of the military system.

PANIC IN A HOSPITAL.

Delirious Patient Runs Amuck With a Knife.

Salt Lake City, Utah, Oct. 7.—In a fit of delirium August Sinnel, a powerfully built Finnish miner, who was suffering from acute erysipelas, created a panic at Holy Cross hospital by arming himself with a large knife and rushing wildly about the corridors, threatening to murder anyone who sought to restrain him in his effort to break out of the hospital. Sinnel burst off an inner door, jumped through a glass window and disappeared before the police arrived. The shock of the excitement and fright was severe upon the sisters and the patients of the hospital, many of whom were on the verge of collapse.

At a late hour last night no trace of Sinnel had been found.

ACCUSED OF CRUELTY.

Alleged Cause of Mutiny on German Cruiser.

Berlin, Oct. 7.—An official statement is printed in the North German Gazette in regard to the recent mutiny on the German cruiser Gazelle. The story is that the men accused Capt. Noltzke of cruelty and unnecessary severity. The men were imprisoned for their alleged mutinous behavior. Then it was discovered that parts of six guns on the cruiser had been thrown overboard and a threatening note was found on the captain's table. An ale-loaded seaman was placed in irons. In accordance with his own wish Capt. Noltzke has been relieved of the command of the ship and has left the service.

BIG FIRE AT PITTSBURG.

Damage to the Amount of $280,000 Done to a Clay Pot Plant.

Pittsburg, Oct. 7.—Fire yesterday in the Pittsburg Clay Pot works in Allegheny damaged the plant to the extent of $280,000, injuring six men and enforced the idleness for several months upon a force of 148 workmen. The injured men were firemen who were on the roof of the boiler house when the wall fell and they were carried with it. None of them will die. The fire originated in the boiler room from an unknown cause. Secretary William McMillan, general superintendent of the company rates the loss at between $250,000 and $300,000 on which there is $186,000 insurance.

Furious Gales in Great Britain.

London, Oct. 7.—A furious gale raged yesterday over Great Britain, the channel, the North sea and Belgium. Several fatalities on land are reported as the result of falling trees. Slight casualties at sea are also reported.

Eighteen People Injured.

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 7.—Two cars on the Consolidated street railway were in collision last evening, injuring eighteen people. Both cars were crowded and were under considerable headway on a down grade when they met.

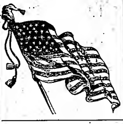
WEDNESDAY, OCT. 9, 1901.



Our exchanges remind us that it will be but a matter of a few weeks when the new coin will be in circulation which will be a distinct departure from all rules and usages in American coinage. The need of a 3-cent piece has continued ever present, though none have been coined for several years. The new coin will be molded after the idea of the heathen Chinee and will have a hole in the centre. It has been nicknamed "the doughnut" and the name will probably cling to it while the coin remains in circulation.

The September number of the Northwest Magazine, published at St. Paul, contains a very interesting write-up of Red Lake county and its three progressive business centers—St. Hilaire, Thief River Falls and Red Lake Falls. The article is purely descriptive and dwells at length on the business opportunities and other openings in these towns and the surrounding country. Numerous illustrations are used in the article and tend to make it decidedly attractive.

Three of the stingiest men on record are reported by an exchange. The first will not drink as much water as he wants unless it comes from his neighbor's well. The second forbade his family from writing anything but a small hand, as it is a waste of ink to make large letters. The third stops the clock at night to save wear and tear on the machinery. All of them refuse to take a newspaper on the ground that it is a terrible strain on the spectacles to read.

The Red Lake County Courier under the management of its new owner, John E. King, is now one of the best country papers published in the state. A complete new dress makes its appearance highly attractive, and the way that its columns are filled with news makes it most interesting and valuable to its subscribers. Truly The Courier is giveng its patrons first class service.

THE EYE OF AN ARTIST.

A Case Where It Was More Reliable Than a Sailor's Optic.

Mr. N. Chevalier, the well known artist who accompanied the late Duke of Edinburgh on many of his travels, was once going from Dunedin to Lyttelton, New Zealand, by steamer. Anxious to catch the earliest glimpse of the coast he went on deck at dawn and was alarmed to see that the vessel was heading straight on to the land. Calling the officer's attention to the fact, he was told that it was only a fog bank. The artist maintained his point, but the second officer looked and confirmed his mate.

The artist then said: "Well, gentlemen, I will back my artist's eye against your sailor's eye, and I say that what you mistake for a fog bank is a low range of hills, and there is a range of mountains appearing above them."

But he was only laughed at, until the captain coming on deck found in the growing light that the artist was right and the seamen wrong. The vessel was out of its course, and there was only just time to avert disaster. The helmsman was dismissed in disgrace and the course given to the new steersman, but the vessel's head still pointed landward—the compass was all wrong.

The cause was discovered later. A commercial traveler had brought a box of magnets on board and deposited them in a stern cabin, causing what might have been a fatal deflection of the compass.

To return to the question of interpretation, the artist was dealing with the appearances which his eye was trained to see and his mind to interpret. A speck on the horizon might have remained a mere speck to him long after the sailors had interpreted the speck into a vessel of definite rig. There can be little doubt that the trained eye is accompanied by a sort of mental seeing, an instinct outrunning optics.

Cupid's Guide.

"In all my life," she said, with a sigh, "I have seen only one man that I would care to marry."

"Did he look like me?" he carelessly asked.

Then she flung herself into his arms and wanted to know what secret power men possess that enables them to tell when they are loved.—Chicago Herald.

THE LICK LENS.

Wonderful Effect Upon It of the Heat From a Man's Hand.

Some years ago the writer paid a visit to Alvan Clark at Cambridgeport to witness the testing of the huge lens for the famous Lick telescope. At the end of the long, dark room the largest flint glass then in the world was set up on edge. From a distance of about fifty feet a pencil of light was flashed into the heart of the disk and reflected back into the observer's eye. The slightest imperfections, if any, in the glass would then be revealed by the curves of light and the lines of polarization.

"Now," said Mr. Clark, "I will show you the wonderful sensitiveness of the lens to outside influences. Every human body gives out heat and when brought near to extremely sensitive substances affects them to a greater or less extent. Now watch."

He walked down to the lens and held his hand under it about two feet away. Instantaneously a marvelous spectacle burst into view. It seemed as if the great glass disk had become a living volcano, spurting forth jets of flame. The display was dazzling. Waving, leaping, dancing, the countless tongues of light gleamed and vibrated; then, fitfully, reluctantly, they died away, leaving the lens reflecting only a pure, untroubled light.

"What is it? How do you account for the wonder?" were the eager questions.

"It is only the radiation of heat alternately expanding and contracting the glass. If I had put my hand upon the lens itself, the phenomenon would have been even more violent."

To a person ignorant of lenses the almost supernatural sensitiveness of a mass of glass weighing several hundred pounds was astonishing, but to the scientist it is an everyday matter, for he has instruments that will register with unfailing nicety the approach of a person fifty or a hundred feet away.—Youth's Companion.

CONQUERED HER RIVAL.

A Pretty and Pathetic Story of Jenny Lind and Grisi.

We have recently read a beautiful incident. Jenny Lind and Grisi were both rivals for popular favor in London. Both were invited to sing the same night at a court concert before the queen. Jenny Lind, being the younger, sang first and was so disturbed by the fierce, scornful look of Grisi that she was at the point of failure when suddenly an inspiration came to her.

The accompanist was striking the final chords. She asked him to rise and took the vacant seat. Her fingers wandered over the keys in a loving prelude, and then she sang a little prayer which she had loved as a child. She hadn't sung it for years. As she sang she was no longer in the presence of royalty, but singing to loving friends in her fatherland.

Softly at first the plaintive notes floated on the air, swelling louder and richer every moment. The singer seemed to throw her whole soul into that weird, thrilling, plaintive "prayer." Gradually the song died away and ended in a sob. There was a silence—the silence of admiring wonder.

The audience sat spellbound. Jenny Lind lifted her sweet eyes to look into the scornful face that had so disconcerted her. There was no fierce expression now; instead a teardrop glistened on the long, black lashes, and after a moment, with the impulsiveness of a child of the tropics, Grisi crossed to Jenny Lind's side, placed her arm about her and kissed her, utterly regardless of the audience.—Our Dumb Animals.

An Outrage.

An old gentleman was present at the reading of the will of a distant relative. He had hardly expected to find himself remembered in it, but pretty soon a clause was read in which a certain field was bequeathed to him. That was good, but the document went on to bequeth the old gray mare to the said field to some one else—a man with whom the old gentleman was not on friendly terms. That was too much for his equanimity, and he interrupted the solemn proceedings and brought a smile to the faces of the company by exclaiming:

"Then she's eating my grass!"—Pearson's.

The Highest Court.

The Denver Times says that when Tom Bagnell was justice of the peace at Altman, the highest incorporated town in the country, standing 12,000 feet above the sea level, he had occasion to fine a disorderly character $10 and costs. The victim of the operation of justice objected to the finding of the court and announced that he would take no appeal.

"What? Appeal, would you?" asked the astonished court. "You can't come any o' that, now. This is the highest court in the United States, and you can't appeal."

She Was an Observer.

"Did George write to you every day while he was traveling around?"

"Yes, every day."

"What regularity!"

"Yes, but I discovered that every one of the letters was written here in his office before he started, and all he had to do was to drop one in the postoffice wherever he chanced to be."

"And how did you find that out?"

"The 'e' in his office typewriter is broken."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Its Good Point.

Gentleman (to house agent)—The great disadvantage is that the house is so damp.

House Agent—Disadvantage, sir? Advantage, I call it. In case of fire it wouldn't be so likely to burn.

NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given, That at the opening of the October A. D. 1901 General Term of the District Court in and for the county of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, at the court house in the city of Red Lake Falls in said county on the twenty-eight (28) day of October A. D. 1901, or as soon thereafter as Counsel can be heard, Harry E. Ives, a resident of the Village of St. Hilaire, county of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, and the owner of all the lands and premises hereinafter described, will apply to said District Court for an order for the alteration of the Plat embracing all those blocks, pieces, tracts or parcels of land lying and being in the county of Red Lake and state of Minnesota, and described as follows, to-wit: Blocks numbered three (3) and four (4) of Ives' addition to St. Hilaire, according to the Plat thereof on file and of record in the office of the register of deeds in and for said Red Lake county, so as to include both of said above described Blocks in one (1) block to be known and designated as "Block three (3) of Ives' Re-arrangement of blocks three (3) and four (4) of Ives' addition to St. Hilaire."

Said application will also be for the purpose of having "Franklin Street" between said blocks three (3) and four (4), and all alleys and parts of alleys within the aforesaid boundary lines vacated and the title to all the lands and premises above described declared and adjudged to be in the said Harry E. Ives and for such other and further relief as to the court may seem just and proper.

Warning Against Forest and Prairie Fires

Office of State Forest Commissioner.
St. Paul, Minn., March 21, 1901.

Chapter 196 of the General Laws of the State of Minnesota for 1895 (Act of April 18th) constitutes Supervisors of towns, Mayors of cities and presidents of village councils Fire Wardens, and it is made their duty to take precaution to prevent forest and prairie fires, and if they occur, to go and extinguish or control them; and in emergencies to call upon any able-bodied male person, over eighteen years of age, to assist. Reports of such fires with particulars tending to fix responsibility therefor shall be made within reasonable time—usually within a week. The Forest Commissioner is required to provide and sign an abstract (as herein) of the penalties under said law, and it is made the duty of the County Commissioners of each county to cause said abstract to be published in at least three issues of the official paper in their respective counties each year between the 15th of April and 1st of November, and they are hereby instructed to publish this notice entire. Under said law.

The following are liable to a penalty not exceeding $500 or imprisonment in the state prison not over ten years or both:

Any person who maliciously sets or causes to be set on fire any woods, prairie or other combustible material whereby the property of another is destroyed and life is sacrificed.

The following are liable to a penalty not exceeding $100 or imprisonment not exceeding three months.

Any person refusing, without cause, to assist fire wardens in extinguishing forest or prairie fires.

Any fire warden who neglects to perform his duties.

Any person who wilfully, negligently or carelessly sets on fire, or causes to be set on fire, any woods, prairies or other combustible material thereby causing injury to another.

Any person who shall kindle a fire on or dangerously near to forest or prairie land and leave it unquenched, or who shall be a party thereto.

Any person who shall use other than incombustible fire wads for firearms or carry a naked torch, firebrand or other exposed light in or dangerously near to forest land.

Any person who shall wilfully or heedlessly deface, destroy or remove this or any other warning placard posted under the requirements of the above mentioned Act.

Any railroad company wilfully neglecting to provide efficient spark arresters on its engines; or to keep its right of way to the width of 100 feet cleared of combustible material; or which shall fail to comply with other provisions of Section 12 of the above mentioned Act.

The following are liable to a penalty of not less than $5 nor more than $50:

Any railroad employe who wilfully violates the provisions of Section 12 of the above mentioned Act.

Any owner of threshing or other portable steam engine who neglects to have efficient spark arresters, or who shall deposit live coals or hot ashes without extinguishing the same.

Pens.

In 1820 pens began to be made by Gillott, who manufactured them of steel finely tempered. The pen was handmade throughout and, though very inferior to the machine made article of the present day, was still a great advance upon the iron barreled pens that had been previously made.

Joe Mosleth and "Reddy" Simonson wheeled to Thief River Falls on Sunday. Reddy came back with his pants torn again. This is the second time this has happened him this summer, but he swears it was purely accidental.

Miss Eva J. Chesley, teacher of the new second primary department of the village schools, arrived on Saturday from Fargo accompanied by her mother who remained long enough to see Miss Chesley comfortably settled to her new duties.

Surveyor George A. Ralph was here last week and started his men to work staking off the new ditches. The heavy rains this week have retarded their progress somewhat and will have the result of delaying the actual work of construction considerably.

The village hall was crowded on Saturday evening by a lot of people anxious to hear the case of State vs C. Charpentier. The defendant was charged with criminal slander. The case was tried by a jury who decided that Charpentier was not guilty.

The old Red Lake hotel at Thief River Falls was destroyed by fire at an early hour on Friday morning. The fire department responded promptly to the alarm but in hastening to the scene the engine got tipped over in a ditch and nothing could be done to save the building. The origin of the fire is unknown.

Wm. Bedoon, who works in the sawmill had a narrow escape Monday morning. He stepped out to remove a block which was obstructing the action of the conveyor and while doing so, slipped and took a header to the ground—about 18 feet. Both hands were badly crippled and his face somewhat scratched but his neck is whole.

At the meeting of the village council on Monday evening Councilman A. H. Weagant tendered his resignation, which was accepted. Mr. Weagant resigned for the reason that he contemplates moving away from here in the near future. The meeting was adjourned until Friday evening when a successor to Mr. Weagant will probably be appointed.

Attorney R. W. Lee of Thief River Falls, was here yesterday on his way to Crookston where he appears to-day as counsel in the case of heirs of Moose Dung vs P. & J. Meehan. The action is to set aside title of the Meehan's to the Moose Dung fraction north of Thief River Falls and a motion to dismiss will be argued to-day before Judge Watts in chambers.

C. P. Swenson, who enjoys the double distinction of being postmaster at Bray and the winner of the first prize in Julius Pleth's corn contest, was a business visitor here on Saturday. He desired THE SPECTATOR to announce the fact that Mr. Pleth had paid him his prize money in gold coin, $75, and expressed himself as anxious to announce publicly his thanks to Mr. Pleth and his sincere appreciation of what that gentleman has done in connection with corn raising in this part of the country.

J. J. Soll, Martin Bjerk and Louis DeCatelineau formed a hunting party on Saturday morning and spent two days camping out in the duck pastures close to the reservation line east. They had pretty fair luck and bagged about 30 fine ducks and also a number of jack snipe and other toothsome members of the feathered tribe. They returned home Monday morning in a pretty much water soaked condition and have been telling queer stories about holding down a tent in a heavy rain storm.

Rev. Hammond spent the past week or so at Brainerd attending the M. E. Conference for this district which was in session from the 2nd to the 7th inst. The people of St. Hilaire will regret to learn that Rev. Hammond has been appointed to take charge of the church at Moorhead during the coming year. He will go down this week and hold services there next Sunday, but will not move his family until next week. While Mr. Hammond has resided here only about five months, he has made many friends who will regret his departure. His successor has not yet been named.

The Two Best in One.

People who formerly considered the Chicago Record to be America's model daily or who believed The Chicago Times-Herald to be premier among American newspapers now have an opportunity of judging every day how remarkably complete and excellent in every department is that great metropolitan daily, The Chicago Record-Herald, which combines "the two best in one." All the popular features of both The Chicago Record and The Chicago Times-Herald are included in The Chicago Record-Herald. In the Sunday issues especially the great advantages of the combinations of all the resources and world-wide facilities of the two papers united in the combination are made manifest. The world's news is covered with unexampled fullness, due to the fact that never before in the history of journalism did an American newspaper possess news facilities so varied and extensive.

Killed by Accident.

Jas. Strader, a former resident of St. Hilaire, died last Thursday at Crookston as the result of an accident which happened him while moving a threshing engine near there. The unfortunate man tried to move forward over the engine while it was in motion and his foot slipped into the gearing. The leg was dragged through and crushed to a pulp up to within a few inches of his body. With rare presence of mind he asked that the engine be reversed so as to disengage him. This was done and he was immediately taken to Crookston for medical treatment. The leg was amputated but he died in a few hours. He leaves his wife and a family of eleven children, some of whom are grown up. The bereaved family have the sympathy of this entire community where they were well known. Mr. Strader was a member of the St. Hilaire lodge of the I. O. O. F. He was also a member of the Maccabees and carried $2,000 insurance in the latter order. A committee of the St. Hilaire Oddfellows went to Crookston to attend the funeral which occurred on Sunday.

Ditching Commenced.

The work of construction on the new ditches throughout the county has been commenced. For several days past crews have been at work constructing camps and making other necessary preparations, but the work of construction did not begin in this vicinity until yesterday when Scribner Bros. broke ground on the ditch known as Wyandotte No. 1.

Since the letting of the contracts by the county board several changes have been made. Wm Eikhoff and Lewis Larson have bought the contract for the Black River and River Falls ditch from M. W. Burnard, of Moorhead, to whom it was awarded. Scribner Bros. will construct the Wyandotte No. 1 ditch for which the contract was awarded to S. A. Swanson and Anton Anderson.

Work on the Wyandotte and River Falls ditch No. 2 will be commenced at once and will be done by M. W. Barnard who secured the contract, assisted by Dan Linaehan, of Red Lake Falls.

There was no freight train run yesterday along this line and there has been a good deal of "cussing" in consequence. The train did not run, ostensibly for the reason that there was not enough business. Twelve loaded cars were waiting here to be moved down the line and if Thief River Falls and Red Lake Falls had anything at all there should be enough freight to pay expenses—easy.

ARROW SHOTS.

I shot an arrow into the air,
It fell to the earth; I know not where.
—LONGFELLOW.

It is great sport to watch a joke filtering through an audience.

As long as a man is modest his mistakes are not held against him.

We believe half of our people are at some lodge meeting every night.

Everybody is envious of the person in a small town who gets to go abroad.

Enough raw material is wasted in this world in various ways to make us all rich.

When one has a hole in his shoe there is sure to be one in his sock at the same place.

We see drivers with hand holds in their lines whose horse could not be made to run off.

Some men speculate trying to make money, and others do it trying to make up for what they have lost.

When there is nobody else to blame meanness upon, it is the thing to say it is the "politicians."

Nothing looks more deserted than a country depot in a country town just after the train has pulled out.

We can't help having a little more respect for the man who, if he must get drunk, waits till after dark.

Old widowers lean lots more when out buggy riding with their second love than they did the first time.

Did it ever occur to you how many keys for doors and drawers and things there are made that are never used?

The men who talk the most about their own righteousness are likely to be the ones who need watching the most.

The women folks say that boys always have curly hair while the girls in the same family have hair as straight as Indians.

Almost any girl assumes to have had a love affair at some time in her existence, even if she has not been within a thousand miles of one.

Drunkenness seems to make all men feel young again, for we notice when a man is full, no matter how old he is, he associates with the boys.

It is not often that an old man admits that he is a back number, unless it is when he wants to rub it into another man who is still a little older.

Black Walnut Barns.

Hundreds of old farms in Ohio have old barns and mangers of black walnut, put up fifty to seventy-five years ago, when the chief endeavor of the pioneer was to clear the forest. So popular is this wood for furniture that English and French agents buy old barn timber and fence rails and ship them abroad. More precious than black walnut timber is "Golden Grain Belt" beer, for nothing is as delicious and wholesome. It is brewed from the purest barley malt and hops and is an ideal table drink. Order of your dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

—Do you want to sell your farm? Julius Pleth, the land man of St. Hilaire wants to buy it and will pay cash.

More New Settlers.

The following sales are reported from Julius Pleth's real estate office during the past week:

H. J. Stromer, Glidden, Ia., 320 acres in Bray township.

Frederick Axx, Glidden, Ia., 200 acres in Bray.

E. H. Wells, Klemme, Ia., 160 acres in Wyandotte, improved.

August Studer, Wesley, Ia., 160 acres in River Falls, improved.

August Schurmeier, Wesley, Ia., 240 acres in Black River, improved.

All of these purchasers are bona fide settlers who will move onto their land in the coming spring. They are very well pleased with this part of the country and say that without doubt a great many others from their vicinity will invest here and make their homes in this county.

What Comes After Suicide?

On the whole, it is something of a pity that some of these fellows who cut their throats, blow out their brains or swallow poisons in order to rid themselves of their troubles cannot come back, so they might tell others who are troubled whether relief lies in that direction or not. It is more than probable that what they then could tell would deter other reckless men and women from following in their footsteps, and for that, if for no other reason, their return would be welcome. As Hamlet implied, it is better to bear the ills we know than to fly to those we know not of, and there isn't much doubt that the suicides are not long in finding that out.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

The Peach Legend.

Almost all fruits and flowers have their legend. One about the peach comes from Japan and tells how a poor, pious old couple were searching for food by the roadside. The woman found a peach, which she would not eat of, though starving, till she could share it with her husband. He cut it exactly in half, when an infant leaped forth. It was one of the gods, who had, he said, accidentally fallen out of the peach orchard of heaven while playing. He told them to plant the stone of the peach, and it brought them happiness, friends and wealth.

The American Boy.

Even in trying circumstances, even when serious misfortune overtakes the youthful American, his aplomb, his confidence in his own opinion, does not wholly forsake him. Such a one was found weeping in the street. On being asked the cause of his tears he sobbed out in mingled alarm and indignation: "I'm lost! Mammy's lost me. I told the darned thing she'd lose me."—Muirhead's "Land of Contracts."

The modest man has everything to gain and the arrogant man everything to lose, for modesty has always to deal with generosity and arrogance with envy.—Rivarol.

"Indade an' Oi called thim ivery-thing Oi cud think of, but they wudn't git up."—Brooklyn Life.

Sale of Ditching Jobs.

Notice is hereby given, that on the 19th day of October 1901 at 10 o'clock a. m. at the auditors office in the city of Red Lake Falls, Minn., I will sell the jobs of digging and constructing the Wyandotte and River Falls Ditch No. 1 of Red Lake county, established by the board of county commissioners of Red Lake county, State of Minnesota, by their order bearing date September 20th 1901, viz:

In sections of 100 feet each, each of said sections to be known and numbered by stakes, as shown by the report of the engineer in said matter, commencing at the one including the outlet, and from thence, successively, up stream to the one including the source in one job or in secs. of 1 or more stations to the lowest responsible bidder or bidders, and that bids are invited for said work; said work to be completed within the time required, and in the manner specified, in said engineers report. And no bid will be entertained which exceeds more than thirty (30) per cent over and above the estimated cost of the construction, in any case, as stated in the said order; and the successful bidder will be required to give a satisfactory bond, to be approved by the auditor of said county with two freehold sureties, for the faithful performance and fulfillment of his contract, and to pay all damages that may accrue by reason of his failure to complete the job within the time required in the contract. The said order and estimates and profile are on file, and may be seen at my office.

All bids must be accompanied by a certified check payable to the auditor of said county, for not less than ten per cent of the amount of each bid.

The right to reject any and all bids is hereby reserved.

Dated September 25th 1901.

WRENCHED FOOT AND ANKLE.

Cured By St. Jacob's Oil.

Gentlemen: A short time ago I severely wrenched my foot and ankle. The injury was very painful, and the consequent inconvenience (being obliged to keep to business) was very trying. A friend recommended St. Jacob's Oil, and I take great pleasure in informing you that one application was sufficient to effect a complete cure. To a busy man, so simple and effective a remedy is invaluable, and I shall lose no opportunity of suggesting the use of St. Jacob's Oil. Yours truly, Henry J. Doirs, Manager the Cycles Co., London, Eng.

How a Woman Chooses Her Seat.

"There are lots of things about women that can't be explained, and in our business we can't help noticing them," said the communicative conductor. "For instance, nine women out of ten will invariably take a seat on the right hand side of a car, if a car is not crowded. I have often wondered at this, and at last I think I have the correct solution. I started out from the barn with an empty car the other day, and in five blocks I had picked up seven women, and they all sat in a row on the right-hand side of the car. It was just about the hour in the morning when the women come down town to do their shopping. Three men got in, and they sat on the left-hand side.

"A couple of blocks farther down I picked up another woman, and, instead of taking a vacant seat near the door on the side, the side the other women were sitting, as I thought she would do, she walked the entire length of the car and sat down beside one of the men. This bit of eccentricity puzzled me until I went to collect her fare, and then I discovered that she was left-handed. See? All the other women were right-handed. Yes; it does look like rain, doesn't it?"—Philadelphia Record.

Still Talking About It.

Bryant, Mo., Oct. 11th—The case of Mrs. M. A. Goss, continues to be the chief topic of conversation in this neighborhood. Mrs. Goss was a cripple for a long time with Sciatica; she was so bad she couldn't turn over in bed, and for four months she lay on one side.

She had tried everything without getting any relief, till at last she heard of Dodd's Kidney Pills. She is strong and well to-day, and has not a single ache or pain.

Mrs. Goss says: "I don't know if Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure anything else or not; but I do know they will cure Sciatica, for they cured me, and there couldn't be a worse case than mine."

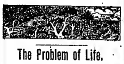
N. W. N. U. —NO. 41.— 1901.

When the white dove coos to his drowsy mate,
And birds in the trees rejoice,
Old Brahma stands on the barn-yard gate
And shouts in a lusty voice:
"I feel better this mor-rning."
And the bantam thinks 'tis true,
For he answers back in a tenor tone:
"Without—a doubt—you do-o."

The house dog lies with his head on his paws,
And blinks at the morning call;
The cat with a field-mouse in her jaws
Comes running home on the wall;
While the Brahma heralds the morn again,
And the Bantam takes the cue:
"I feel better this mor-rning."
"Without—a doubt—you do-o."

The birds with a glorious burst of song
Make glad the orchard boughs;
And the farmer, swinging his pails along,
Goes out to milk the cows;
The work of the day begins again,
And the roosters call anew:
"I feel better this mor-rning."
"Without—a doubt—you do-o."



The Problem of Life.

BY ETHEL M. COLSON.

(Copyright, 1901, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

If there was one particular characteristic or quality for which the Rev. Charles Billings was especially distinguished it was that of truthfulness. He was truthful, moreover, for reasons quite apart and aside from his calling. As a slim and pallid youth at boarding school he had been famous—and popular—because of his exceeding candour. Later, as the devoted and conscientious rector of the Angelican Catholic Church of the Atonement, he was popular and beloved in spite of it. And if ever the meek and lowly-minded clergyman knew a suspicion of spiritual pride it was because of the absolutely spotless and unstained condition of his life-record in the matter of truth-telling.

To have expected the Rev. Charles Billings, therefore, to have deliberately—albeit unwillingly—yielded to the temptation to give utterance to an unequivocal lie would have been manifestly outrageous. And yet——

The door of the church study opened, one evening, to admit a woman—a woman tall, slender, of good figure, and expressive face, mirroring just then numerous unpleasant emotions. The Rev. Charles Billings knew her for one of his parishoners, the wife of solid John Brewster, merchant of the old-time Chicago, and a man who was popularly suspected of being a better business man than husband. Certain it is, the fine eyes of his wife had long since acquired a look of weary and patient resignation.

Straight up to the table at which the priest sat hurried the woman. In her eagerness and agitation she never saw the surprised but soothing gesture which beckoned her to a chair. But as she sank into it mechanically it became evident that she had been crying.

"Oh Father Billings!" she exclaimed, wildly—the gentle little priest being so designated by his High Church congregation—"Oh Father Billings do help me! If you do not—" but it was some minutes before she could go on.

"I met an—an old friend this afternoon," she explained, subsequently, "and we—we had an ice together, just to talk of—of old times. There wasn't a shadow of harm in it, although we used—we used to love each other. Perhaps," with a sudden accession of recklessness, "I love him still. At all events, someone—my husband," her voice and face all concentrated bitterness, "plotted and came between us. Then I married—Mr. Brewster. I—I felt so helpless; I didn't know what else to do. And I've tried to be a good wife to him, a far better wife than he has been a husband. I've never seen—the other man—since I was married, until today.

"We came upon each other quite by accident, and we only—we only talked a little of—of that other time. But as we left the confectioner's by one door

"Oh, Father Billings!"

my husband came in at another. If he saw me—and I'm almost sure he did—he'll believe the worst in a moment. He judges everybody by himself. And the fact that he had another woman with him won't make a bit of difference—to him. If he saw me—and I know, I feel that he did—he's at home now, questioning my maid. He always does so if he finds me out of the house, no matter where I am, nor how short a time I've been absent. And if he discovers that I haven't been making charity calls this afternoon, as I told my maid I intended doing, he'll—he'll throw me aside like an old glove, or an answered letter. Oh, I know him," as the priest looked incredulous, "and I know what he'll do. And I—I don't know—ah yes, God help me! I do know—what will become of me. And I haven't a relative, scarcely a friend in the world, with the exception of yourself, Father Billings. If you don't help me, I'm—I'm afraid I'm lost forever!"

"What do you want me to do, my child?" asked the priest, quietly.

For answer, she sank on her knees beside him, catching at his hand with small, beseeching fingers that burned like fire.

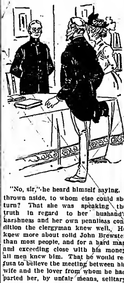
"Tell him that I have been making charity calls," she said, hoarsely. "He won't believe me, but he'll believe you, if you tell him. Everybody knows," without a suspicion of grim humor, "how invariably truthful you are."

"But, my child," said the priest, gravely, "that would be a lie, a sin."

"I know it would be a lie," she made answer, "but would it be a sin if you did it to save another? And there are worse sins than lying, Father, and some of them are hard to avoid. I don't know how to tell you, but—I've no money, Father, I've no friends or relatives, and if my husband throws me aside there's only one person to whom I can turn for assistance—and—and—I do not want to go to—him."

The face of the priest was pale and puzzled. As a clergyman he knew lying to be sinful. As a man and a gentleman he hated lying on general principles. He was firmly convinced of the wickedness of doing evil that good may come. And yet—

It was all so clear before him. If this woman did not still love the—the other man—she would not so fear and dread being thrown aside by her unloving, unloved husband. And, if so



"No, sir," he heard himself saying.

thrown aside, to whom else could she turn? That she was speaking the truth in regard to her husband's harshness and her own penniless condition the clergyman knew well. He knew more about solid John Brewster than most people, and for a hard man and exceeding close with his money all men knew him. That he would refuse to believe the meeting between his wife and the lover from whom he had parted her, by unfair means, solitary and as innocent as accidental was also tolerably certain.

Then, certainly, the problem lay between this woman's soul and his own—the priestly soul which had never yet been stained by lying.

Heavy steps sounded along the passageway leading from the street. The woman, springing to a chair on the other side of the table, looked at the priest beseechingly and bent hurriedly over some papers. A moment later and solid John Brewster himself strode into the room.

At sight of his wife the hard face changed, the expression faltered. The priest, rising to confront him, saw in his eyes both doubt and hesitation.

"I see my wife is with you," the man said, sullenly. "May I inquire if she has been with you all day?"

For a moment the priest struggled against a most human impulse, the mad, natural, all but uncontrollable inclination to knock down this intimidator of a woman and trample upon him. Then he remembered that he was a priest, and that there seemed but one way of helping the intimidator's victim. He turned his eyes toward her down-bent head, momentarily, and again the Problem of the Lie lifted its double-headed torment and regarded him. He saw, as if in vision, the Recording Angel who was so real a personage to him take down, with sorrowful sternness, the white scroll of his unstained veracity and degrade it, degrade it to the dust. His eyes filled with tears, suddenly, as though he had witnessed another's downfall. But, over and against this vision, was set the soul of this woman—and her peril.

For him, repentance and remorse in plenty. Nay, was he not already repenting the very thought of the sin in contemplation. For her—in case her fears were realized—no place of repentance, though she sought it carefully, with tears.

And, right or wrong, the unselfish impulse triumphed.

"No, sir," he heard himself saying, distinctly, after so brief an interval that even the angry husband noticed no hesitation, "she has not. I did not see her until after luncheon. But this afternoon she accompanied me on a round of charity calls, and, since our return, she has been busily engaged in making out her report to the Charity Calls Committee of the Woman's Auxiliary. She will be ready to accompany you home so soon as this is finished."

For this lie Father Charles Billings presently—and long—repented, and he will never cease to be anxious concerning its moral effect upon Mrs. Brewster—now slowly acquiring the habit of a negative happiness by utter self-forgetting. Also, the recurrent torture of his wretched inability to solve the problem of whether or not he did right in telling the lie will always serve the purpose of an exquisitely painful hair-shirt to the man who told it. But there are rare moments, now and then, when the problem and the repentance alike cease to trouble him—when he is glad in the conviction that the lie saved not only a woman's body from perdition, but also the woman's soul.

Cleaning Up Coronation Coaches.

In view of the coronation next year, all the state coaches are being overhauled and put in repair, as many of them were in sadly dilapidated condition through want of use. Lord Salisbury and the Duke of Portland both possess beautiful state coaches, and so do the Duke of Norfolk, the Duke of Devonshire, the Duke of Marlborough, and the Duke of Buccleuch; while Lord Londonderry's and Lord Cadogan's are perhaps the best turned out. The various embassies also have splendid roaches.—Lady's Magazine.

LETTERS TO THE CHINESE.

Postman Is More Reverenced in Chinatown Than Policeman.

No interpreter is required to assort the mail that comes to the residents of the Chinese colony in any of the larger cities of the country. The fact is due to the precautions taken by the celestials themselves or their correspondents in the land where the "boxer" thrives. A letter to a Chinaman is generally consigned to some well-known person whose name is written in English. When a celestial writes to his family in China he invariably incloses a directed envelope. Chinese names are a puzzle even to Chinamen. Every Chinaman has several entirely dissimilar names, his "birth name" and "marriage name" being instances. Then he has a clan name, or society name, and a business name and perhaps another name or two for variety sake.

The larger firms have their addresses printed on envelopes which are supplied to their regular customers. The Chinese consider handling mail in the light of an honorable trust, and there has never been any complaint that letters are delivered to the wrong person. A Chinese may have a serious falling out with a firm and may have transferred his business to a rival, but mail addressed in care of his former connection always reaches him. The Chinese are great letter writers. Of course, there is a great deal of business correspondence between Chinatown and Chinese ports, but much of the mail matter is of a social nature. Many Chinese who have a good command of the intricate written language of the dragon empire make a good living writing letters for others of their race who don't know how to write. When a Chinese in this city writes to his relatives in China he incloses an addressed envelope.

The postman is more reverenced in Chinatown than the policeman. In fact, that hardly expresses it, for the policeman only gets the reverence which comes from fear of the law, while the postman, as the link which connects the inhabitants with the land of their birth, is most popular. He is a fortunate man every Chinese New Year's week, for he receives many presents. If he tried to drink all the Chinese wine offered to him on his rounds in the holiday week, he would never live through it. One does not have to consult a shipping guide in Chinatown to learn when the next mail is due from the far East. The Chinese know to a day when every mail arrives and figure to the hour regarding the posting of China-bound letters. They know that it takes thirty-two days for a letter to go from Chicago to Hong Kong if it is sent by the Vancouver steamers. They also know that it takes a little longer if sent by the San Francisco or Seattle routes, consequently, the Vancouver mail is always the heavier.

PERSUADED WITH A CAMERA.

How a Young Man Won Over His Prospective Father-in-Law.

"It was simply bull-headed luck," said the young man with the red shirt waist. "Papa declared that it would be a warm day when he consented to my marrying his daughter, and as the weather record had been broken several times after he had made that remark, I was beginning to lose hope. When all-the-world-to-me went on her vacation I went to the same place and put up at the same hotel. Now, papa-in-law-to-be is an old blowhard, and it made me tired—everybody else, too—the way he bragged about the fish he caught in former years. Finally, some one hinted that it would be a good plan for him to make good and give us an example of his skill as a fisherman. He accepted the challenge and spent three days getting his tackle ready. He went alone, as he said he didn't want to be bothered by having any greenhorns along, and we waited with bated breath for him to return. Now, I am something of a camera fiend and late in the afternoon I started out to take a picture of a little wooded dell when the shadows were well down. I was making my way to the road through some thick brush when I discovered my daddy-in-law-to-be standing in the middle of the road bargaining with a small boy for a long string of magnificent fish. Quick as a flash I took a snap shot of him just as he was holding onto his pocket with one hand and digging into it with the other. I let the old man brag around the hotel for three days about the fish he had caught. Then I showed him the picture, told him if he didn't consent to my marrying his daughter I would spread it broadcast over the hotel, and pointed out where his reputation would be. He wilted, gulped hard and surrendered. He isn't a bad sort when you know how to handle him."—Detroit Free Press.

Saved the Little Bottles.

"I have a patient who is wonderfully considerate of my interests," said a prominent physician lately. "A few weeks ago he had malaria, and I prescribed quinine for him, giving him four-grain capsules, so that he might take the drug without discomfort. He came out of his attack and a few days later called to see me at my office. Judge of my surprise when he exhibited the empty capsules and said, 'Doctor, I thought you might like the little bottles, so I saved them and brought them back.' He had emptied each four-grain dose of the bitter powder, and then essayed the rather hopeless task of washing it down with water: I couldn't do otherwise than to take the 'little bottles' from him without a word and next time I'll give him quinine in another form."—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Miss Kulcher—Did you ever go in for literature, Mr. Gay? Mr. Gay—Well—er—not exactly, but once when I was at college I wrote a short story and got $100 for it. Miss Kulcher—Really! What was it? Mr. Gay—Dear Father: I'm broke. Please send me a hundred.

ENORMOUS CROPS

North Dakota has just harvested a wonderful crop of wheat and flax. Reports from the various railway points along the "Soo" Line show yields of 25 to 38 bushels to the acre of wheat, and from 15 to 20 bushels of flax per acre. Flax is now bringing $1.25 per bushel. Most of the crop was raised on newly broken land, so that the first crop pays for the farm and all the labor, and leaves a handsome profit. There is still plenty of good free government land open for entry; also good openings to go into business in the new towns along the "Soo" Line. For descriptive circulars, maps and particulars, write to D. W. Casseday, Land Agent, "Soo" Line, Minneapolis, Minn.

LAND SEEKERS, HELLO!

Here is a Splendid Chance in the "Cloverland" of Wisconsin.

You want land. You realize that land is getting higher-priced and in greater demand every year. If you get a farm now and hold it 10 or 20 years—even if you should not make any money by farming—the farm will make you rich. A farm tributary to the cities of Minneapolis or St Paul in northern Wisconsin, will increase in value faster than land in the prairie states because of its nearness to market and because of its greater productiveness.

It is hard for people who have never seen that section to appreciate its wonderful growth of blue grass and clover. Where else in America will you find grass, clover and alsike spring up spontaneously and cover a patch or a field as you will among the hard wood lands of northern Wisconsin? The waters of this section, the soil, the climate and all the natural elements tend to make it an ideal dairy country, and the markets near insure a good price for products all the year.

Our readers will do well to write to D. W. Casseday, land agent of the "Soo" Line, Minneapolis, and ask him to send them printed matter describing that great section for the landseeker.

VOLUME XXI. ST. HILAIRE, MINNESOTA, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 16, 1901. NUMBER 13.

IT CAME TOO LATE

ORDER TELLING OF CEVERA AT SANTIAGO WAS TWO WEEKS LATE.

SCHLEY LOCATES FLEET HIMSELF

FACT PROVED BEYOND DOUBT BEFORE THE COURT OF INQUIRY.

RAYNER AND LEMLY HAVE TILT

JUDGE ADVOCATE TWICE REPRIMANDED BY ADMIRAL DEWEY.

Washington, Oct. 14—It was proven beyond question at the court of inquiry Saturday that Schley did not receive positive orders from Sampson to go to Santiago until June 10, and that he had no definite information from Sampson as to the presence of the Spanish fleet in that harbor until that date.

Schley himself had secured this information on May 29, and had been at Santiago two weeks before he received Sampson's positive order.

This was the most important development at the short session of the court of inquiry, which was marked by wrangling and bad feeling from end to end. There was a serious tilt between the attorneys, Capt. Lemly charging Mr. Rayner with making inaccurate statements.

Another important fact brought out was that there was a delay of thirty-six hours on the part of Sampson in sending to Schley what was believed to be reliable information regarding the presence of the Spaniards in Santiago. Early on the morning of May 20 Sampson received from Capt. Allen, the signal officer, information which Led Sampson to Believe.

according to the testimony of Lieut. Staunton of the New York, that the Spaniards were in Santiago. Sampson waited until night to confirm the report. The night confirmation was received through Capt. Allen, but for unexplained reasons this information was not started to Schley until the evening of May 21. Even Sampson did not communicate positive information on this point to Schley, but instructed the latter to be sure the Spaniards were not in Cienfuegos before leaving for Santiago.

Admiral Dewey had a bad day with the lawyers, and found it necessary to call them to account. Judge Advocate Lemly was reprimanded twice. He was in bad humor and flew into a fury when Attorney Rayner sought to introduce a chart concerning the speed of the ships the day of the battle. Capt. Lemly accused Mr. Rayner of making inaccurate statements. The leading counsel for Schley is a Maryland man, and his wrath arose at the charge, but he controlled himself well, and, addressing the court, he declared that he had practiced thirty years at the bar and never before had been made against his veracity. Mr. Rayner grimly hinted that trouble would follow if Lemley repeated the offense. Admiral Dewey then ruled in favor of Rayner, which made the judge advocate grow as angry as his opponent. When Admiral Dewey was about to administer the oath to the witness who followed Staunton Judge Advocate Lemly was still grumbling.

"Please be silent," commanded Dewey, pausing as he held the Bible on which the witness must place his hand as he pledges himself to tell the truth. The admiral considers taking the oath a solemn ceremony, and brooks no disorder while it is being done. He had got half-way through the long form when Lemley resumed his whispering. Admiral Dewey stopped short and his eyes burned fiercely as he again enjoined silence. Then he commenced all over again and finally had the witness properly sworn. An adjournment was taken until Monday.

BURN TO DEATH WHILE ASLEEP.

Quarrel at a Dance Ends in a Terrible Tragedy.

Topeka, Kan., Oct. 14.—As a result of a quarrel at a dance in Lane, a little town in Pottawatamie county, Saturday morning two men were burned to death, one is at the point of death from an injury, and the other is hopelessly insane. A dance was held there which was attended by a large number of the rougher young men of the county. About 1 o'clock in the morning a general fight started. When it was over it was found that John Teehan had been struck on the head with a blunt instrument and fatally injured. When it became known how seriously Teehan was hurt the other dancers scattered. One of them, Eugene Cronan, a real estate agent, went to his office to sleep and was accompanied by J. McDonald. During the early hours of the morning the office was set on fire by some of the dancers and the two men were burned to death. The father of Cronan has gone hopelessly and violently insane.

EASY VICTORY FOR GOPHERS.

Minnesota Scores Three Touchdowns and a Safety Against the Sturdy Nebraskans.

Minneapolis, Oct. 14.—Before an enthusiastic crowd of nearly 10,000 rooters Minnesota Saturday showed its ability to play football by defeating Nebraska university 19 to 0. Such a decisive victory was unexpected, and the much-heralded Nebraskans were a doleful lot when the last whistle sounded.

For the first ten minutes Nebraska had decidedly the best of the play and Minnesota seemed nervous. Then the Gophers braced wonderfully, and it soon became apparent that Minnesota had the better team. The tandem and guards back formations played by the Gophers proved effective. The Carlisle Indian, Rogers, whom Nebraska protested, was in the game and attempted three goals from the field, all of which failed by slight margins.

Minnesota first scored a safety by blocking an attempted punt which Nebraska was forced to make on her five-yard line. After that the Gophers took a brace and forced the ball to the three-yard line, only to lose it on downs. Three times did the Gophers slowly force the ball from the center of the field to within the ten-yard line, and then lose it.

In the second half Minnesota started in with a rush and soon had the ball on Nebraska's five-yard line, and Rogers was then pushed over for the second touchdown, ten minutes later Fee again carrying the ball over the line. With but five minutes to play it looked for the first time as if the Cornhuskers would score. Nebraska kicked to Doble, who fumbled, and the Nebraskans regained the ball. They had soon forced it to the Gophers' twenty-five-yard line, but were there held for downs just before the whistle blew.

ADAMS' SUCCESSOR.

No Action Will Be Taken Until January by University Regents.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 14.—No meeting has yet been held of the committee appointed by the university regents to consider President Adams' resignation, and ex-Senator Vilas, who is a member of the committee, says no action has yet been taken toward the selection of President Adams' successor, and that nothing is likely to be done for some time. No proposition, Col. Vilas says, has been sent to any one in regard to the matter. Gossip, however, is busy in discussing the new presidency. There are distinct movements on foot in favor of Prof. J. W. Jenks of Cornell and State Superintendent L. D. Harvey by their friends. There are also several who think the presidency should go to Dean E. A. Birge, but considerable opposition to this comes from other members of the faculty. Prof. B. J. Turner also has many supporters. Nothing is likely to be done by the regents before the January meeting.

SMOKE IN THEIR TENT.

Two Old Soldiers Burned, One Perhaps Fatally.

La Crosse, Wis., Oct. 14.—Henry Hudson and John Benson, two old soldiers, aged sixty-one and sixty years, respectively, were nearly burned to death while camping near Capoll Bluff, only a few miles from here. They were asleep in their tent, but previously had been smoking, and it is thought sparks fell in the straw in the bottom of the tent. Both men were seriously burned, and Benson may die.

Muddle Settled.

Bemidji, Minn., Oct. 14.—The auditor muddle is at last settled. David Sylvester, originally appointed by the county commissioners to fill the vacancy made by the resignation of Auditor Haner has won out in the fight. Theodore Welte, who was later appointed and fired out of the office by an injunction issued by Judge McClenahan, decided to drop the fight, so the board decided to reappoint Sylvester and withdraw all legal action against him.

Wisconsin Teachers Adjourn.

Oshkosh, Wis., Oct. 14.—The meeting of the Northeastern Wisconsin Teachers' association came to a close here Saturday afternoon. Appleton was chosen as the next place of meeting and the following officers were elected: President, R. W. Pringle, Appleton; vice president, C. O. Marsh, Antigo; secretary, Miss Elizabeth Waters, Fond du Lac; treasurer, W. O. Brown, Green Bay; reporter, O. J. Schuster, Neenah; railroad, C. E. Carr, Clintonville.

Farmers Are Fined.

New Ulm, Minn., Oct. 14.—Three farmers, Peter Hengel, John Hauser and John Green, living near Essig, were arrested on complaint of the state dairy and food commissioner, charged with not keeping their cans in proper condition. Inspection of the Essig creamery showed a filthy condition of the pipe and the manager was fined $30.40 for disregarding the law. The three farmers were fined $10 each.

Lands for Settlers.

Yankton, S. D., Oct. 14.—The treaty secured with the Rosebud Sioux Indians by Inspector James McLaughlin, through the agency of Senator Gamble, provides for the cession of all of Gregory county not already platted. The county contains 520,000 acres; that included in the treaty amounts to 416,000 acres. It will probably be opened to settlement next spring.

Guilty of Petty Swindle.

Crookston, Minn., Oct. 14. — O. P. Hinds represented himself as a roadmaster on the Great Northern and furnished transportation to St. Paul to J. M. Nelson of Warren for $4.10. He gave Nelson an order on the ticket agent which read: "Please give the man a ticket to San Paul." Hinds and his accomplice, Jim Murphy, each paid $10 and costs in justice court.

Shoe Factory for Red Wing.

Red Wing, Minn., Oct. 14.—S. B. Foot & Co. have just closed a deal for the erection of a large shoe factory in Red Wing. The company proposes to erect a four-story brick building 40x160 feet. Work will be commenced at once.

Three Years at Stillwater.

Kasson, Minn., Oct. 14.—Sheriff Tucker took to Stillwater George Williamson, who burglarized a store near this place. He was sentenced to three years. He has been wanted by Pinkerton men for some time.

MEET AWFUL FATE

FATHER AND TWO SONS LOSE THEIR LIVES IN A MINE AIR SHAFT.

KILLED BY FUMES OF BLACK DAMP

BOYS FELL INTO THE SHAFT AND THE FATHER ATTEMPTED RESCUE.

FOUND LOCKED IN DEATH EMBRACE

TWO MEN WHO RECOVERED BODIES ARE IN A SERIOUS CONDITION.

Connellsville, Pa., Oct. 14. — Three lives went out in a little air shaft, only two feet in diameter and twenty feet deep, but filled with deathly black damp, at the mines of the Juniata Coke company, near Juniataville, yesterday. The dead are John Gilleland, a miner aged fifty years, and his two sons, James and Winfield, aged 11 and 15 respectively.

All three bodies were rescued, but in the effort John Nicholson, mine foreman, and John Baker, a mine fire boss, were seriously overcome by black-damp. Near the home of the Gillelands is a deserted air shaft. Yesterday the two boys were playing around the shaft which is boarded up about two feet from the ground. James climbed to the top, shouting to his brother. Then he leaned over the top. A sudden gust of the death fumes struck him, and with a scream he fell forward into the pit. His brother rushed to the top of the shaft and started down a rickety ladder that years ago served the miners with means of descent. From the home not many yards away the elder Gilleland saw his boys go down the shaft. Realizing their danger he rushed to the pit and, regardless of his own safety, Hurried Down the Hole.

By this time a number of other inmates of the house hurried to the shaft. They went to the top and peered in, but only faint groans were heard. About half-way down the little shaft the body of the father had lodged. His white face and glassy eyes turned toward the light and air told that the gas did its work quickly and well. Like lightning the news of the tragedy spread over the farms of Dunbar and Franklin townships and in a few hours the whole countryside had flocked to the scene of the deaths. The difficult problem of how to descend the death trap to recover the bodies was finally solved by John Nicholson, night foreman, who rigged up a farmer's windmill used for cleaning wheat in such a way as to fan pure air into the hole. Nicholson and John Baker who had for years worked beside Gilleland, were then lowered into the shaft with ropes around their bodies. Gilleland's body was soon hoisted to the top from where it had lodged, and at the bottom were found the bodies of the two boys, entwined in a death embrace. After the dead came the rescuers to the surface, and as soon as they reached the pure air the terrible effect of the gas was evident and both fainted. Late last night physicians said the men were in a serious condition. Gilleland leaves a wife and several children.

CROWE NOT GAME.

Offers to Surrender if the Reward of $50,000 Is Withdrawn.

Omaha, Oct. 14.—Chief of Police Donahue has received from Patrick Crowe, through a friend of the latter, an offer to surrender himself and stand trial in the courts if the reward of $50,000 hanging over his head for the alleged kidnapping of Edward A. Cudahy, Jr., is withdrawn. Chief Donahue did not accept the proposition, but made a counter offer to waive the reward himself, saying nobody else could secure it. The chief says Crowe is tired of being hunted and is willing to take chances of a trial if the reward is withdrawn, but expresses the fear that manufactured testimony would convict him if the reward was allowed to stand. He says Crowe is less than five hundred miles from Omaha, and is not with his relatives. Edward A. Cudahy, Sr., was asked if the reward for Crowe would be withdrawn. In reply he said: "Yes; we will do anything to secure Crowe."

ANARCHISTS ARRESTED.

Believe They Intended to Kill President Campos Salles.

Paris, Oct. 14.—The Lisbon correspondent of La Patrie says a telegram has been received at the Portuguese capital from Rio de Janeiro, asserting that two Italians were arrested Friday evening last in the corridor of the presidential palace by an officer of the guard. Both were armed with revolvers and daggers. In Rio Janeiro it is believed they are anarchists and intended to assassinate President Campos Salles.

MRS. GILLESPIE DEAD.

She Was a Great Granddaughter of Benjamin Franklin.

Philadelphia, Oct. 14. — Mrs. E. D. Gillespie, a great granddaughter of Benjamin Franklin and one of the city's most prominent women, died at her home here, aged eighty years.

Fire Causes Heavy Loss.

Baltimore, Oct. 14. — Fire, which occurred yesterday in the [illegible] house of John A. Horner & Co. caused a loss of $70,000; fully insured.

Bond for Chinese Indemnity.

Pekin, Oct. 14.—The Chinese plenipotentiaries yesterday performed their last official act and forwarded to the Spanish minister, who is the dean of the diplomatic corps, a bond for the indemnity of 450,000,000 taels.

Football Player Dies.

Philadelphia, Oct. 14.—Edwin Longenecker, aged twenty-one, quarter-back on the football team of the Brown preparatory school, this city, died as a result of injuries received in a game last Tuesday.

SINGULAR DEATH OF O'BRIEN.

Standing in Door of His Shop Talking to Stranger and Suddenly Falls Dead.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 14—John O'Brien, superintendent of the erecting shop of the Richmond Locomotive works, was instantly killed by a stray bullet Saturday morning. By whom the shot was fired is a mystery. O'Brien at the time of the shooting was standing at the main door of his shop talking with George B. Myers, of Cincinnati, who wanted work. Myers said that as he was talking he heard something pop like a match, and O'Brien threw up his hand across his breast and began to pull. Several men in the shop rushed to his assistance and carried him to the storeroom. He died before he reached the storeroom and never even murmured. Myers was taken to the county jail, as he is a stranger and could not give bonds, to await the result of the inquest.

STOPPED BY POLICE.

Riotous Demonstration by Strikers at Scranton, Pa.

Scranton, Pa., Oct. 14.—Another riot occurred yesterday in connection with the street car strike, but again, fortunately, there were no very serious results. A big crowd assembled at the lower end of the South side line during the afternoon and began putting obstructions on the track. As cars came along and halted they were greeted with a fusillade of stones. A passenger, Mrs. Samuel Janes, and a motorman were cut by flying glass. The arrival of a squad of police put the mob to flight. Out of regard for the Sabbath the company made no further effort to operate cars.

LANSING WARREN DEAD.

Editor of the Milwaukee Sentinel Succumbs to Typhoid Fever.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 14. — Lansing Warren, editor and publisher of the Milwaukee Sentinel, died yesterday from an attack of typhoid fever. Mr. Warren was taken ill about three weeks ago, having contracted a cold in the East while on a business trip. Upon returning to Milwaukee he was compelled to take to his bed. The cold developed into typhoid fever. While Mr. Warren's condition had been pronounced critical at different times during his illness his physicians and friends never for a moment doubted his recovery. Lansing Warren had been actively engaged in newspaper work for more than twenty years, and previous to his connection with the Sentinel was business manager of the Chicago Inter-Ocean.

HELD TO GRAND JURY.

Alleged Postoffice Robbers in South Dakota.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Oct. 14.—As the result of their preliminary examination before United States Commissioner D. J. Conway Fred K. Moore and John Hayes, two of the three alleged postoffice robbers arrested here a few days ago, have been held for appearance before the next federal grand jury, which convenes in this city next week to answer to the charge of robbing the postoffice at Henry a short time ago of about $80 in money and $40 in stamps. Miss Josie Webb, assistant in the Henry postoffice, identified some of the money found in the possession of the men when they were arrested as some of the money taken from the postoffice.

NORTH DAKOTANS PLEASED.

Election of Chaplain Pierce to Succeed Bishop Edsall.

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 14. — No class of people will be more pleased than the military over the election of Chaplain Pierce of the regular army to be bishop of the Episcopal church of North Dakota. He was chaplain in the Eighth army corps in the Philippines, and in that position endeared himself to all the members of the different regiments, and especially to the North Dakotans, to whom he had been especially kind. When a movement was inaugurated in North Dakota to make him the successor of Bishop Edsall the officers of the North Dakota volunteers immediately began to work in his interest.

MILL IN ASHES.

Fire Completely Destroys the Andrews Mill at Merrillan, Wis.

Merrillan, Wis., Oct. 14.—Early yesterday morning the Merrillan flouring mill owned by Nick Andrews & Co. burned with nearly all its contents. The mill was full of grain and flour and the loss is $16,000 to $20,000, with $8,000 insurance. The mill was built in 1870 by L. G. Merrill. During the past few years it has been completely refitted with modern machinery. It was of fifty barrels capacity. The fire is supposed to have been caused by an overheated journal. It will probably be rebuilt.

JOHN FORCED TO PRAY.

Farmer Mauled by a Neighbor and His Hired Man.

Crookston, Minn., Oct. 14.—John Hoffman, a farmer living south of the city, attempted to drive home his cattle, which had strayed on the land of his neighbor, when the latter and his hired man set upon Hoffman and mauled him unmercifully. They also compelled Hoffman to kneel and pray at the point of a revolver. Warrants for the arrest of both assailants have been issued.

DELIBERATE SUICIDE.

Village Marshal of Madison, Minn., Shoots Himself.

Madison, Minn., Oct. 14.—M. H. Spring, the village marshal, went to the cemetery, a short distance from town, pried open the window of the burial hall, climbed in, took a seat in a chair and shot himself in the forehead. The reason assigned was brooding over financial matters. He had served as president of this village and was respected by all.

Methodist Women May Vote.

Ripon, Wis., Oct. 14.—Hereafter women will be allowed to vote as lay delegates at the Wisconsin Methodist conference. This was decided Saturday by a vote of the conference covering the question in a constitutional amendment which was passed by a vote of 118 to 7.

Farmhouse in Ashes.

Cumberland, Wis., Oct. 14.—A farmhouse owned and occupied by G. Deangelo, two miles south of here, burned Saturday afternoon. Loss, $1,000; partly insured.

MURDER MYSTERY

CRIME COMMITTED TWO YEARS AGO IN A FAIR WAY TO BE EXPIATED.

MAN AND WIFE ARE ARRESTED

CHARGED WITH THE BRUTAL MURDER OF THE WIFE'S FORMER HUSBAND.

DETECTIVE WORKS UP THE CASE

WOMAN'S PRESENT HUSBAND IS EXPECTED TO MAKE A CONFESSION.

St. Peter, Minn., Oct. 12.—Sheriff McMillan of this city, accompanied by T. J. Coleman, a detective, went to Lafayette yesterday and caused the arrest of Frank Tanke and his wife, Amelia Tanke, charged with the murder of John Wellner of Lafayette. The prisoners were taken to New Ulm and are now in charge of the officers at the Dakota house in that city.

John Wellner was a prosperous farmer who lived in the town of Lafayette, this county. He was murdered on the night of Jan. 1, 1899, at his home. The murder was a shocking one, and at the time caused quite a sensation. At the coroner's inquest Mrs. Wallner was the principal witness, and was to the effect that two men had appeared at their home at midnight, called out Mr. Wellner and murdered him. They then returned, bound and gagged Mrs. Wellner, and robbed the house of what money it contained.

Sheriff Block, now state treasurer, made an investigation, but to no purpose, and for nearly three years nothing more had been heard of it. Gov. Lind was notified of the crime and on behalf of the state offered a reward of $750 for the capture of the criminals. Mrs. Wellner supplemented this with an offer of $500, and neighbors added $300 more, making a reward of $1,550.

Suspicion Was Directed

against Frank Tanke, a hired man employed by Wellner, but no proof was found to base the suspicion upon. Mrs. Wellner and Tanke were supposed to have been intimate, and suspicion attached to her as well as to Tanke. Later Tanke and Mrs. Wellner were married. Not long ago Mr. Coleman, the detective mentioned, began work on the case. He secured employment at the home of Tanke and at other places in the vicinity. He secured evidence which he says is positive, and proves that Mrs. Wellner murdered her own husband and that Tanke was an accomplice to the crime.

Advices from New Ulm last night stated that a confession was looked for from Tanke.

MAY PLAY IN CHICAGO.

Plan to Have the Minnesota-Wisconsin Game Transferred.

Chicago, Oct. 12.—There is a probability that the Wisconsin-Minnesota football contest, scheduled for Nov. 16 at Madison may be transfer to Chicago. Minnesota's 'varsity eleven this year promises to be one of the best in the West. The Badgers are fortunate in having a veteran eleven. Each 'varsity has a big following in Chicago. Minnesota alumni yesterday started negotiations looking to the transfer of the contest to Chicago, and there is no doubt that a committee will be named to confer with Coaches King and Williams about playing the game in this city. Coach Stagg has an open date for Marshall field, Nov. 16, and an effort will be made by the friends of the plan to transfer the game, to get the use of the Maroon's field that day.

ADAMS' RESIGNATION ACCEPTED.

Dean Birge Appointed Acting President of the Wisconsin University.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 13.—The resignation of President Adams has been accepted conditionally by the board of regents. Dean E. A. Birge has been appointed acting president of the university pending the selection by a committee of a permanent president. In the letter of resignation Dr. Adams said he was actuated both by the state of his wife's health and his own, which, in the opinion of their physicians, will necessitate their leaving Madison as soon as possible for a greater altitude and milder climate.

PRESBYTERIAN COLLEGE.

Articles of Incorporation Are Filed at La Crosse.

La Crosse, Wis., Oct. 13.—Articles of incorporation for La Crosse college, to be erected here by the Presbyterian synod of the Northwest, were filed yesterday. The college is to take the place of Gale college at Galesville, recently purchased by the Norwegian Lutheran synod. Several La Crosse capitalists are interested.

Caused by Lightning.

Reinbeck, Iowa, Oct. 13.—The Reinbeck flour mills were entirely destroyed by fire about 4 o'clock yesterday morning. Loss about $10,000; partly insured. The building is supposed to have been struck by lightning.

Captured in a Barn.

Baraboo, Wis., Oct. 13.—Ralph Jackson, who recently escaped from the Sauk county jail, and for whom a reward of $50 has been offered, was captured in a barn near this city. He was safely lodged in jail.

Charged With Bootlegging.

Jamestown, N. D., Oct. 13.—Chief of Police L'Moore arrested an alleged bootlegger known as "Billy," who, it is charged, has been supplying threshing hands with liquor. Others are suspected and more arrests are likely.

Senator Stout's Son Injured.

Menomonie, Wis., Oct. 12. — Jimmie, the eldest son of Senator James H. Stout, fell from a wagon, the wheels passing over his head. His nose was broken, his teeth crushed in and his chin bruised.

WOUNDED BY ROBBERS.

Minnesota Family Has Unpleasant Adventure.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Oct. 13. — Mrs. Charles Hall, a Minnesota woman who, with her husband, was traveling through the country in a covered wagon, arrived here in a badly wounded condition as the result of an adventure with a highwayman. While encamped for the night near Pipestone, Minn., their tent was entered by two men who thrust revolvers in Mrs. Hall's face as she arose from her bed. The visitors ordered her to throw up her hands. At the same time they fired their revolvers. A bullet struck Mrs. Hall in the arm. Several other shots were fired, but none of them took effect. When Mr. Hall attempted to eject the men they also covered him with their weapons, and after ransacking the contents of the tent, departed. The robbers took every dollar Hall possessed.

WANT TO CUT LOOSE.

Normal Board Would Have Nothing to Do With Board of Control.

St. Paul, Oct. 13—A majority of the members of the state normal board favor an appeal to the courts to settle their controversy with the state board of control concerning the powers of the two boards in the management of the state normal schools. Secretary Olsen yesterday announced that he had received a sufficient number of replies to the letters sent out by President Ankeny and himself asking for instructions to show that at least a majority want the question fought out in the courts, and if possible the normal board freed from all connection with the board of control. All the replies received favor such action. President Ankeny and Secretary Olsen will confer with Attorney General Douglas and action will be begun within a few days.

PILLSBURY DANGEROUSLY ILL.

Friends of Minnesota's Former Governor Are Greatly Alarmed.

Minneapolis, Oct. 13. — Former Governor John S. Pillsbury is so seriously ill that relatives are very much alarmed. The attending physician, Dr. W. A. Jones, said that while Mr. Pillsbury was very sick he was hopeful of his ultimate recovery. The fact that the heart action is very weak causes an uneasiness which members of the family make no effort to conceal. The kidneys are not operating satisfactorily, and altogether there is a complication which, in view of the patient's advanced age, causes alarm.

Indictment Charges Murder.

Mantorville, Minn., Oct. 13.—District court for the First judicial district is now in session here, Judge Thomas S. Buckham presiding. Charles C. Hartley of Dodge Center, indicted by the grand jury on the charge of murder in the first degree, was arraigned at once, pleaded not guilty and remanded to jail until the April term. He is charged in the indictment with murdering Miss Bertha Pelton on the night of June 4, 1901, by setting fire to his hotel, where the lady was a guest for the night. Miss Pelton was a teacher in the Kenyon schools, and was on her way to her home in Wisconsin. All the other guests escaped without injury.

Diplomas Conferred by Van Sant.

Faribault, Oct. 13. — Gov. Van Sant, Dr. Tomlinson of the St. Peter insane asylum and President Leavitt of the state board of control were present at the graduating exercises of the attendants' training class at the Minnesota school for the feeble-minded. The class was smaller than usual, having but three members. The diplomas were conferred by Gov. Van Sant.

Tax Ferrets Found Five Millions.

Iowa Falls, Iowa, Oct. 13.—Five million dollars of property that has escaped taxation since 1896 is the astounding record made by the tax ferrets employed by the board of supervisors of Grundy county to unearth property that has escaped the assessors the past five years, or has been purposely concealed by the residents of that county.

Played With a Loaded Shell.

Armour, S. D., Oct. 13.—Boy Couron, young son of N. A. Couron of this city, is another victim of the careless use of gunpowder. While at school he obtained a loaded shell, and in trying to drive it through a hole in a piece of wood it exploded, the ball going through the fleshy part of his left leg just above the knee.

Farmers Are Buying Land.

Fergus Falls, Minn., Oct. 13.—Auditor Dunn is conducting a state land sale here and the crowd is finding it difficult to obtain standing room in the court house. The land is bringing about $9 per acre. Farmers are buying most of the land, speculators finding it difficult to compete with the farmers.

Searching for His Mother.

Kenosha, Wis., Oct. 13. — Earl C. Brown, a prominent manufacturer of Leadville, Colo., is in Kenosha making an effort to find some trace of his mother, Mrs. James Brown, who disappeared from Kenosha under the mysterious circumstances more than twenty-eight years ago.

Fell Into the Separator.

Milton, N. D., Oct. 13.—Harry Wilson, whose home is in Michigan, fell into the self-feeder of a separator on John Wild's farm four miles southeast of here, and received injuries which will necessitate the amputation of his left arm above the elbow and his left leg above the knee.

Arm Had to Be Amputated.

Ogden, Iowa, Oct. 13. — Arthur Wilkins, a son of Frank Wilkins, river land agent at Ogden, was shot in the right arm last evening, and the doctors had to amputate the arm just below the elbow.

Flax Badly Soaked.

Devils Lake, N. D., Oct. 13.—Twelve hours of rain over this section of North Dakota has thoroughly soaked the unthreshed flax, and even stacks are wet through. Hundreds of acres of flax will not be threshed this fall.

Wisconsin Women's Clubs.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 13.—The fifth annual convention of the state federation of Women's Clubs of Wisconsin will open in Madison next Wednesday and continue for three days. The program will be unusual.

MRS. IDA L. ROSER

Grand-Niece of Ex-President James K. Polk, Writes to Mrs. Pinkham Saying:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have been married for nearly two years, and so far have not been blessed with a child. I have, however, suffered with a complication of female troubles and painful menstruation, until very recently.

MRS. IDA L. ROSER.

"The value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was called to my attention by an intimate friend, whose life had simply been a torture with inflammation and ulceration, and a few bottles of your Compound cured her; she can hardly believe it herself to-day, she enjoys such blessed health. I took four bottles of your Compound and consider myself cured. I am once more in fine health and spirits; my domestic and official duties all seem easy now, for I feel so strong I can do three times what I used to do. You have a host of friends in Denver, and among the best count, Yours very gratefully,—MRS. IDA L. ROSER, 326 18th Ave., Denver, Col."—$5000 forfeit if above testimonial is not genuine.

If you are ill, don't hesitate to get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once, and write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for special advice—it is free.

Free Public Lands.

We are in receipt of an interesting and valuable book entitled "Free Public Lands," which locates and describes by counties all the vacant government lands in the United States, nearly one billion acres of farm, grazing, timber, mineral, saline, oil, and coal lands, with the laws governing their acquirement, and also town sites and mill sites. The United States rectangular system of land surveys is described and illustrated with many diagrams and tables, together with the Spanish system, in use in Texas and other states. The problem of irrigation is also discussed at length. It was compiled from the latest authorities by Moses Folsom, and is published by the Webb Publishing Company, St. Paul, Minn., who will send it to any address for 25 cents.

A GREAT COUNTRY

The eyes of all America are turned toward North Dakota's magnificent crops, just harvested. Over 80,000,000 bushels of wheat and 19,000,000 bushels of flax, good corn and abundant grasses. Thousands of farmers raised 14 to 18 bushels of flax per acre on new breaking, now bringing them $1.25 a bushel. Think of your getting free government land and realizing $25 per acre for the first breaking!

There is plenty of good government land left, but it is being taken up fast. Also excellent chances to go into any business in new towns on the "Soo" Line. If you want free land, or are looking for good business locations, write O. W. Cassedy, Land Agent, "Soo" Line, Minneapolis, Minn.

Not a Nice Name to Have.

James Stillman, president of the National City Bank, sat in his office with a party of friends on the afternoon that Czolgosz was arrested. While the news was being announced, his secretary said that a Mr. Goldman was waiting to see him.

"Goldman!" he said, with a smile. "I don't suppose I ought to entertain a man with a name that smacks so of the anarchist just at this time."—New York Times.

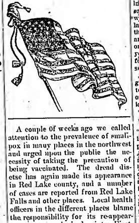
WEDNESDAY, OCT. 16, 1901.



A couple of weeks ago we called attention to the prevalence of smallpox in many places in the northwest and urged upon the public the necessity of taking the precaution of being vaccinated. The dread disease has again made its appearance in Red Lake county, and a number of cases are reported from Red Lake Falls and other places. Local health officers in the different places blame the responsibility for its re-appearance on two principal points: First, uncleanliness; second, lack of vaccination.

Now, so far as St. Hilaire is concerned, it is not quite as filthy as many other places, but there is altogether too much foul-smelling and microbe-breeding dirt left in its alleys and back yards. The value of cleanliness is something that has been told time and again, and most people regard it as one of the primary laws of health. There are, however, some people here who will persist in dumping their slops close by their own door steps, or their neighbor's, and dont seem very particular as to which place it is deposited in. Any person who is annoyed in this manner should enter a complaint and see to it that the guilty parties are properly punished by the authorities.

Regarding vaccination we would say that it is a simple precaution and people should not allow their stubbornness or carelessness to prevent their adopting it. Keep yourself and your premises clean. Then get vaccinated, and you need have no fear of small-pox. Attend to these things now. If you dont, you have no business to look for either sympathy or assistance if you are taken down with small-pox.

Just ten days left of Czolgosz, the murderer of President McKinley. He will be electrocuted on Friday, the 25th inst. In the meantime he is kept in solitary confinement. It is well that the law should take its course thus promptly, and that the assassin should have his time all to himself prior to the moment when the electric current shall transport his soul to the unknown.

In the meantime the prison office is being flooded with messages, letters, flowers and fruit for the condemned murderer. Verily the American people are a strange mixture.

The Modern Ones a Big Improvement on the Old Style.

The modern sprinkling wagon is very different from the old timer. The chief improvement is in the spray head, which enables the driver to control the flow of water much better than the old style. Thus, whether it is a dirt or a macadam road or a stone paved or asphalted street, there can be supplied from the modern street sprinkler just the amount of water required to lay the dust in it without waste.

The spray head on each side has its own valve rod running to the driver's seat, with a step there for the foot. The driver can operate both heads at once, or he can run only one head. He can shut off one or open either one at pleasure. With this sort of wagon the expert driver leaves behind him dry crosswalks with perfectly defined limits, and when he comes to a carriage or a street car upon which he doesn't want to throw water he shuts off the flow on that side and keeps the other going. Sprinkling wagons are made in various sizes, ranging from 150 gallons to 1,000 gallons capacity. There are 20 sprinkling wagons sold in this country nowadays where there were was one sold only a few years ago. This great increase in their use is due in large measure to sanitary reasons, to the great extension of good roads and to the common desire for comfort.

Sprinkling wagons are used nowadays commonly in many smaller towns and villages where they were never thought of some years ago. And American sprinkling wagons are now found all over the world wherever sprinkling wagons are used.

They are exported to Australia, Cuba, Porto Rico, South America, South Africa and Europe. The modern sprinkling wagon that the traveler chances to see in Paris or Berlin or Homburg came very likely from the same factory as the one he saw here before he left home going through his own home street.—New York Sun.

The Bank of Venice, the first establishment of the kind in Europe, was founded in 1171. It continued in existence without interruption until the overthrow of the republic in 1797, by the revolutionary army of France.

Cure Too Expensive.

Warts are curious things. They come and go mysteriously, although their going is frequently marked by exasperating delays, and there are almost as many infallible cures as there are warts, the only trouble with these cures being that they are useless when applied to the particular wart you happen to have. They are only good for other people's.

"In my opinion," said a clubman, who was discussing the subject with a friend one day, "a wart is merely the outward correspondence of some mental excrescence. Get rid of that, and it goes away.

"Let me give you a bit of my own experience," he continued. "Last year I went to Europe. For about three years I had had a wart on my little finger, on which I had tried everything I could hear of, but without effect. It only grew larger.

"Well, in the excitement of preparing for the trip and of the journey itself I forgot all about my wart, and when I looked for it about six weeks later it had vanished without leaving the slightest mark. I simply forgot it, and it had no mental condition to feed on. I see you have one on the back of your hand. Forget all about it for a few weeks, and it will go away of itself."

"Yes," said the other clubman, shrugging his shoulders, "but I can't afford to take a trip to Europe for the sake of curing one wart."—Youth's Companion.

Giving Her a Lesson.

The habit of describing things as "awfully jolly" was amusingly satirized by a gentleman who came home prepared to chat on events of the day. An acquaintance had failed in business. He spoke of this incident as "deliciously sad." He had ridden in an omnibus with a friend whom he described as "horribly entertaining," and to crown all he spoke of the butter which had been set before him at his restaurant as "divinely rancid."

"Why, dad, you are going off your head!" said his youngest and most impertinent daughter.

"Not in the least, my dear," he said pleasantly. "I'm merely trying to follow the fashion. I worked out 'divinely rancid' with a good deal of labor. It seems to me rather more effective than 'awfully sweet.' I mean to keep up with the rest of you hereafter. And now," he continued, "let me help you to a piece of this exquisitely tough beef."—London Telegraph.

The Man Faced Crab.

One of the most singular looking creatures that ever walked the earth or "swam the water under the earth" is the world famous man faced crab of Japan. Its body is hardly an inch in length, yet the head is fitted with a face which is the perfect counterpart of that of a Chinese cooly, a veritable missing link, with eyes, nose and mouth all clearly defined. This curious and uncanny creature, besides the great likeness it bears to a human being in the matter of facial features, is provided with two legs which seem to grow from the top of its head and hang down over the sides of its face. Besides these legs, two "feelers," each about an inch in length, grow from the "chin" of the animal, looking for all the world like a colonel's forked beard. These man faced crabs fairly swarm in the inland seas of Japan.

A Devoted Mother.

Although looked upon as vermin and destroyed accordingly, the weasel is a good mother and probably treats her young ones more kindly than many of her human enemies treat theirs. A weasel, carrying something in her mouth, was once seen to enter a hole in a tree. The observer, applying lighted straw, soon smoked her out. She then darted toward a stone wall, near which she was attacked by a terrier, which speedily slew her. She fell an easier victim because of the burden she bore in her teeth. Anxious to see what this was, the onlooker went forward and found it was a baby weasel. The mother's nest in a field close by had been plowed up, and she had been searching for another home. As her youngster could not run she carried it in her mouth rather than leave it to perish.

The Adornment of an Arab Girl.

Arab girls before they enter the harem and take the veil are a curious sight to behold. Their bodies and face are dyed a bright yellow with turmeric. On this ground they paint black lines with antimony over their eyes. The fashionable color for the nose is red, green spots adorn the cheeks, and the general aspect is grotesque beyond description.—"Southern Arabia," by Mr. and Mrs. T. Bent.

Cologne Cathedral.

One would think that the identity of the architect of such a superbly designed building as the Cologne cathedral could not possibly be lost to the world. But it is. The cathedral took centuries to build, and many architects have modeled parts of it according to their own ideas. The result is the most beautiful cathedral in the world.

The Ivory Nut.

The vegetable ivory nut of commerce is the albuminous seed found in the drupes of a dwarf palm. From these nuts European turners fashion the reels of spindles, small boxes and many other little fancy articles, which can be colored with sulphuric acid.—Chambers' Journal.

Antiprofanity.

In Switzerland and Italy good people go about with little cords containing pledges against swearing. These are presented whenever the hearers hear some one indulging in profanity. The penalty for violating the pledge is a small self imposed fine, to be paid to charity.

NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given, That at the opening of the October A. D. 1901 General Term of the District Court in and for the county of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, at the court house in the city of Red Lake Falls in said county on the twenty-eight (28) day of October A. D. 1901, or as soon thereafter as Counsel can be heard, Harry E. Ives, a resident of the Village of St. Hilaire, county of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, and the owner of all the lands and premises hereinafter described, will apply to said District Court for an order for the alteration of the Plat embracing all those blocks, pieces, tracts or parcels of land lying and being in the county of Red Lake and state of Minnesota, and described as follows, to-wit: Blocks numbered three (3) and four (4) of Ives' addition to St. Hilaire, according to the Plat thereof on file and of record in the office of the register of deeds in and for said Red Lake county, so as to include both of said above described Blocks in one (1) block to be known and designated as "Block three (3) of Ives' Re-arrangement of blocks three (3) and four (4) of Ives' addition to St. Hilaire."

Said application will also be for the purpose of having "Franklin Street" between said blocks three (3) and four (4), and all alleys and parts of alleys within the aforesaid boundary lines vacated and the title to all the lands and premises above described declared and adjudged to be in the said Harry E. Ives and for such other and further relief as to the court may seem just and proper.

Dated at St. Hilaire, Minnesota, this 18th day of September A. D. 1901.

Warning Against Forest and Prairie Fires

Office of State Forest Commissioner.
ST. PAUL, MINN., March 21, 1901.

Chapter 196 of the General Laws of the State of Minnesota for 1895 (Act of April 18th) constitutes Supervisors of towns, Mayors of cities and Presidents of village councils Fire Wardens, and it is made their duty to take precaution to prevent forest and prairie fires, and if they occur, to go and extinguish or control them; and in emergencies to call upon any able-bodied male person, over eighteen years of age, to assist. Reports of such fires with particulars tending to fix responsibility therefor shall be made within reasonable time—usually within a week. The Forest Commissioner is required to provide and sign an abstract (as herein) of the penalties under said law, and it is made the duty of the County Commissioners of each county to cause said abstract to be published in at least three issues of the official paper in their respective counties each year between the 15th of April and 1st of November, and they are hereby instructed to publish this notice entire. Under said law.

The following are liable to a penalty not exceeding $500 or imprisonment in the state prison not over ten years or both:

Any person who maliciously sets or causes to be set on fire any woods, prairie or other combustible material whereby the property of another is destroyed and life is sacrificed.

The following are liable to a penalty not exceeding $100 or imprisonment not exceeding three months.

Any person refusing, without cause, to assist fire wardens in extinguishing forest or prairie fires.

Any fire warden who neglects to perform his duties.

Any person who wilfully, negligently or carelessly sets on fire, or causes to be set on fire, any woods, prairies or other combustible material thereby causing injury to another.

Any person who shall kindle a fire on or dangerously near to forest or prairie land and leave it unquenched, or who shall be a party thereto.

Any person who shall use other than incombustible fire wads for firearms or carry a naked torch, firebrand or other exposed light in or dangerously near to forest land.

Any person who shall wilfully or heedlessly deface, destroy or remove this or any other warning placard posted under the requirements of the above mentioned Act.

Any railroad company wilfully neglecting to provide efficient spark arresters on its engines; or to keep its right of way to the width of 100 feet cleared of combustible material; or which shall fail to comply with other provisions of Section 12 of the above mentioned Act.

The following are liable to a penalty of not less than $5 nor more than $50:

Any railroad employe who wilfully violates the provisions of Section 12 of the above mentioned Act.

Any owner of threshing or other portable steam engine who neglects to have efficient spark arresters, or who shall deposit live coals or hot ashes without extinguishing the same.

R. C. DUNN (State Auditor,)
Forest Commissioner.

C. C. ANDREWS,
Chief Fire Warden.

When Grace Was Said.

A Barnard college girl tells in the New York Times of visiting in a household where grace was said at the table semioccasionally. Her curiosity got the better of her, and she asked the mistress of the house why they didn't observe the rite regularly. "Why," said the lady with some surprise, "we say grace only when we have reason to be thankful. We never dream of giving thanks when we have only roast beef or beefsteak or some simple thing like that; but whenever we have game or something really nice then we say grace, for it's worth while."

—If you are looking for a good smoke why call for the "I. B."

On Friday morning funeral services were held over the remains of C. M. Hammer, a farmer of Gervais township, who died on Sunday from injuries received by an infuriated bull. Deceased has resided in Red Lake county for over two years and leaves his wife and one son to mourn his loss. The remains were interred on Friday.

In the matter of the Wyandotte and River Falls ditch No. 1 an appeal has been taken from the order of the county board establishing the ditch. The case will be tried at this next term of the district court. The appeal is taken by A. G. Ness and others on the grounds that the damages and costs of construction will exceed the benefits.

Farm to Rent.

A good farm of 480 acres seven miles south-west of Crookston and three miles from Kittson station to rent on the shares. Good buildings. Write to M. F. Howle, Crookston, Minn.

We wish to call the attention of our readers to Leonard Holmes, new ad in this issue. It will be seen that Mr. Holmes specialties are the justly celebrated Golden Link flour and other food products manufactured by the best mill in the Red River Valley, and from the best grade of wheat raised in the valley. We refer to the Crookston mill owned by Dwight M. Baldwin, Jr. Mr. Holmes has contracted for the exclusive handling of these pure and satisfactory goods as he wishes to always serve his customers with the best that can possibly be secured.

Effects of Darkness.

Some interesting experiments have recently been made upon the influences of darkness on the development of flowers. Flowers open slowly in the dark, their color is more subdued, their size smaller and their weight considerably less. Men who live or work mostly in the dark are effected much in the same way. The only way to be healthy is to live much in the sunlight and to drink "Golden Grain Belt" beer; for it is brewed from the purest barley malt and hops and is nourishing and strengthening. You will find it an ideal table drink. Order of your dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Grookston.

The St. Hilaire Graded School.

The school of our village has grown both in number of pupils and intellectual force from a common district school to a state graded school under the principalship of J. B. O'Brien, ably assisted by a strong corps of teachers.

At the beginning of the spring term last year State Graded School Inspector W. A. Rankin visited the school and so favorable did he find the workings of the school and the high standard of the pupils that he solicited the members of the board to have the school placed on the graded list. This was effected to the satisfaction of all parties and the $400.00 state aid for last year's work has been received by the district treasurer. At the beginning of the term this year the four rooms were so crowded that it was deemed prudent to hire a fifth teacher. The Dahlen building was rented and fitted up as a primary department with all necessary paraphernalia. and a seating capacity of 48.

The following pupils received state certificates at the examination last June:

George L. Netteland in Arithmetic, Senior Arithmetic, English Grammer, Geography, U. S. History, Physiology.

Ester M. Olson in Elementary Algebra, Arithmetic, U. S. History.

Huldah C. Gigstad in English Grammer, U. S. History.

Mabel P. Hannay in Arithmetic, U. S. History.

Edith B. Dahl in U. S. History.

Tessie McCaffrey in Geography.

Herman F. Anderson and Amer C. Matheson, not pupils of the school, received certificates; the former in Physiology and the latter in Geography.

The school work this year is well under way. The pupils and teachers are working in harmony and with the co-operation of the parents this year promises to be the most successful one in the history of the school.

A Lake St. Pierre Catastrophe.

She's one dark night on Lake St. Pierre,
When the wind she's blow, blow, blow.
That the crew on the wood scow Jolie La Plante,
She's come scare and she ran below.
Chorus:—Shabby link, shabby low; shabby link, o'low, so hoen.

The captain she's walk on the front deck
She'll walk on the hind deck too,
She was call that crew from out that hole,
She was call that cook also.
"Chorus."

That cook she's name was Rosey Joe
She was come from Montreal,
She's chamber maid on the wood scow barge
On the big LaChene Canal.
"Chorus."

That night she's dark like one black cot,
And the waves roll high and fast.
That captain she'll take Rosey Joe
And tie him to the mast.
"Chorus."

That wind she's blow from the northeast west
And the south wind she's blow too.
That captain she's says 'Rosey dear
What ever shall I do?'
"Chorus."

Then she's buckle one life preserve on
And jump out on that lake.
She was say "My darling Rosey Joe
I was die all for your sake."
"Chorus."

Then that crew she'll throw that "hank,"
But still that craft was drift.
But the crew she cant pass on that shore,
Because she have no skiff.
"Chorus."

Very early the next morning,
'Bout half past two, three, four.
That captain, crew, and the wood-scow too,
Was lay corpse along that shore.
"Chorus."

So come all you wood scow sailor boy;
Take some warning by that storm.
Better you marry one little French girl
And settle upon one farm.
"Chorus."

For the wind she's blow one hurricane,
Bye and bye she can blow some more.
But you never get drown on Lake St. Pierre
So long as you pass on shore.
"Chorus."

Be Sure You Read.

The man who would like to know something about astronomy must lay out a little scheme of study for himself, get the books which are necessary and have them at hand the moment he is at leisure. The man who wishes to familiarize himself with political economy, with politics or with industrial questions, which are now of such importance, must find out what textbooks he ought to have, secure those textbooks and keep them by his side.

The man who wishes to know literature does not need to lay out an elaborate plan which fills him with discouragement by its very magnitude, but he does need to decide what author he is going to read next, and he does need to get the book and keep it within easy reach.

Almost all the great classics are now published in such portable forms that a man can carry a play of Shakespeare, the essays of Bacon, the poems of Tennyson or of Browning, a translation of "Faust," Matthew Arnold's criticisms, Emerson's essays or John Burroughs' charming transcriptions of nature in his coat pocket and substitute them for the newspaper which is thrust in his face by an eager newsboy and which he buys because he has nothing else to read.—Success.

One Hopeful Sign.

While I was living in California, writes an Englishman, I had the opportunity of noting the extreme consideration shown to employees by California employers. I cannot recall an instance of a cruel and cutting rebuke from one in authority to a clerk or servant during the seventeen years of my stay.

A friend of mine had a clerk who was always forgetting important duties. Letters would be forgotten, important entries on the books omitted, and messages even were sometimes not delivered. Said my friend to me one morning:

"Really, I must speak to John."

So John was summoned, and I wondered what manner of rebuke would fall upon his head.

"John," said my friend, "it is most astonishing what a very bad memory you have. But I believe that in time it will improve, because I have noticed that you have never once forgotten to draw your salary on the first of the month."

John took the hint, and after that my friend was more faithfully served.

A Rattlesnake's Wisdom.

The writer of this rode branchos and "punched" cattle on the ranges of Montana and Wyoming twenty years ago and had ample opportunity to study the habits of rattlesnakes. He knows how they went into their holes then, and it is doubtful if any improvement has since been made in their method. They start in head first, and one would promptly come to the conclusion that they reach the bottom of their holes in this manner, but Mr. Snake is too wily to keep his head where he cannot have an eye on the rest of his body; therefore as soon as he enters the hole a few inches he makes a half turn, which brings his head to the entrance again and then permits the remainder of his length to glide down out of sight—a very simple performance, you will see. —Exchange.

GOOD, CHEAP LANDS.

A Minnesota Dairy Leader Praises North Wisconsin Lands.

Mr. John Mathieson, president of the Minnesota Dairy association, in a letter to the Dairy Reporter, says: "I made a trip last summer into the hardwood timber belt on the 'Soo' railway to northern Wisconsin. I was surprised at the natural advantages offered to dairymen in that locality. There is an abundance of pure water; clover, timothy and blue grass do excellently. The soil is productive, as is shown by the crop grown on the lands in cultivation. This section is destined to be a fine dairy region, all the natural conditions, climate, soil, pure water and nutritious grasses are found here." The location has another advantage, being on the "Soo" railway, dairy products are taken in refrigerator cars direct to New York and Boston, where the best prices are obtained. The lands are very low in price. The soil is rich loam with clay subsoil, very productive. We suggest to our readers that they can find out all about this country from illustrated printed matter which will be sent free to all who write for it, by D. W. Casseday, Land Agent of the "Soo" Line, Minneapolis.

Misapplied Advice.

Out of that childish dependence that maternal care had encouraged Mamie had come to her mother for help in the doing of some little act that she should have readily done herself.

"You shouldn't annoy me for assistance in such trivial things at that," remarked her mother; "it's time you learned to help yourself."

How to Plant Bulbs.

The soil for bulbs grown in pots should be a rich, mellow one, made up of garden loam, sand and old cow manure in equal parts. Work it over until you have a mass of fine material. Prepare it before the time comes to pot your bulbs, so that there need be no delay in planting them on their arrival. It is quite important that all bulbs should go into the ground as soon as possible after they are received, as the moisture which they contain evaporates rapidly, and with it goes much of their vitality. Leave them exposed to the air and light for two or three weeks and they will be so weakened that the flowers they produce will be few and inferior.—"New" Lippincott.

Mrs. Madison's Case.

Polk City, Ia., Oct. 14th.—For over ten years Mrs. Elizabeth P. Madison, a respected lady of this place, has suffered most severely with Kidney trouble, complicated with derangements of the bowels and liver. Rheumatism, another painful result of deranged Kidneys, added its tortures to her burden of pain.

Treatments and medicines without number were tried; physicians soon exhausted their skill, but all to no purpose.

At this stage of the case a treatment of Dodd's Kidney Pills was resorted to and the results were simply miraculous, from the very first box an improvement was noticed, and the continued treatment resulted in a complete cure.

This remarkable cure created a decided sensation in the neighborhood, because of the complications of the case as well as its severity and apparent hopelessness.

Upon investigation Dodd's Kidney Pills are found to be the only remedy that has ever cured Bright's Disease, Diabetes or Dropsy, and these hitherto incurable diseases are readily conquered by this remarkable remedy.

WENT FOR THE KISS HIMSELF.

Infatuation of Charles Hoyt for an Actress Who Did Not Reciprocate His Attentions.

Julian Mitchell, at present stage manager for Weber & Fields, was one of the late Charles Hoyt's most intimate friends and for many years acted as general stage manager for all of the humorist's productions.

Early in his career as a playwright, says Mitchell, and before he had met his first wife, Flora Walsh, Hoyt became infatuated with one of his actresses after seeing her for the first time. She did not reciprocate his early attentions, and on her first public appearance Hoyt came behind the scenes and handed Mitchell a bouquet of flowers.

"Deliver these to Miss ——, in her dressing room," he ordered. "Don't tell her who sent them;" then, hesitatingly, "but if you don't tell her, I'll fire you."

"I understood," said Mitchell.

After the performance the playwright approached Mitchell, who was very deaf, and shouted in his ear:

"How did Miss —— receive my gift, and what did she say?"

"Nothing," replied Mitchell.

"What did she do?" inquired Hoyt, in astonishment.

"She kissed me," answered Mitchell.

Hoyt paused a moment. Then he remarked:

"Say, Mitchell, you buy the flowers to-morrow night, and I'll deliver them."—New York Times.

Cud and Stomach of the Cow.

A writer in Forest and Stream says the food is received into the first stomach, passes into the second and finally into the fourth, where it is digested. The simple facts are these: The food is hastily swallowed and goes into the rumen, or large sac, which has a capacity of several bushels. Connected with the rumen or large sac, is the reticulum commonly called the honeycomb, on account of its cellular lining, and this is a mere adjunct of the rumen and appears to serve the purpose mostly of a reservoir of water, by which the food is moistened and reduced to a fine pulp between the leaves of the next compartment, called the omasum or manyplica; so-called because of the numerous leaves with which it is furnished and between which the food is ground into a soft semi-fluid pulp. From this the food passes into the abomasum, or true digestion stomach, in which it is partly dissolved by the gastric fluid here secreted.

Now let us go back to the food hastily swallowed by a ruminating animal. Right at the junction of the three first divisions is a curious bit of machinery called the esophageal groove. This is a small sac or tube a few inches in length, which connects the first and second divisions of the stomach with the third. This groove has a slit in it through which the hastily eaten food—moistened by the water in the recticulum—is forced by a contraction of the stomach, easily visible when the cow is ruminating, into this small canal, and by a process of regurgitation is carried to the mouth. This small quantity of food is the cud. It is simply a wad of food forced, as described, into the mouth, where it is chewed in leisure and with evident comfort and pleasure, by the healthy animal. Being reduced to a semi-fluid condition it is swallowed and goes to the omasum or manyplies on account of its numerous leaves between which it is macerated into a fluid which then goes into the fourth part of the stomach, where it is mixed with the gastric fluid, the solvent of the food, and then becomes nutriment, completely, when acted on by the bile in the duodenum.

How Much Seed Wheat to the Acre?

In the fall of 1877 an experiment was begun on the farm of the Ohio State University in seeding wheat at different rates per acre. The experiment was made on rich bottom land, and, although a yield of 34 bushels of wheat was harvested from five pecks of seed the yield for seven pecks was 37 bushels. The next year the experiment was repeated with great care, five duplicate plots of one-sixth acre each being sown with each quantity of seed, with the result again that the seven peck rate of seeding gave enough more wheat than any smaller quantity to abundantly compensate the extra cost of seed.

In 1882 this question was taken up by the Ohio Experiment Station, then located on the same farm, and was repeated nearly every year until the station was removed to its present location. The final summing up of these experiments, made in 1891, indicated a maximum average yield on that soil for quantities of seed ranging from five to seven pecks.

In 1892 the station was removed to its present location, the soil of which is naturally far less productive than that upon which it was first located, and after a few years the investigation of this problem was again undertaken, with the result that the most profitable harvests have been reaped from eight pecks of seed and upward, the nine and ten peck rates having given the best returns in unfavorable seasons.—Chas. E. Thorne, Director.

Fumigation Pays.

The Los Angeles Herald of September 1st says: Last year there were only about 500 tents in the country, and much loss was occasioned by the inability of the orchardists to have their trees fumigated. Oranges that had been fumigated last year sold from $1.25 to $1.50 per box, while those which had not been fumigated brought only $1.10 and $1.15 per box. The expense of washing the fruit is greater than that of fumigating the trees. It is estimated that there will be about 1,000 tents in use this year. With these the contractors will be able to fumigate about two-thirds of the trees in the county. When all the tents are in operation between 12,000 and 15,000 trees will be fumigated nightly, and the process will be continued from now until February. A. R. Lowry will have about 300 tents in operation and Dr. Dunn about 200. To maintain trees properly it is necessary to fumigate them once in two years. In some places it is necessary to fumigate them every year, and sometimes oftener.

The advantages of winter dairying are numerous. If the cow drops her calf in the fall or early winter, she will give good flow of milk throughout most of the winter season on very little more feed than is necessary to winter a dry cow. In the spring, when the milk flow has begun to decrease, the cow seems to take a new start when put on grass, thus giving practically two freshenings in the year. By this method of dairying, the greatest milk yield occurs during the season of highest prices.

Illinois.—Though apples promise a light crop in general, there has been considerable improvement in some of the central and southern districts since the rains came, and in those localities there will be good yields of excellent quality. Peaches have also increased in size with the renewal of moisture supplies and they are generally plentiful in central counties. There will be good crops of grapes and other fruits in many districts.

Professor Bailey says: "The germinative vitality of weevil eaten or 'buggy' peas is low, and the plants resulting from them are usually feeble. In an experiment by Beal 500 'buggy' peas were planted, being checked by a like number of sound peas. Of the sound peas 99.2 per cent germinated; of the 'buggy' peas only 26 per cent germinated."

PUNISHING REBELS

RELENTLESS CAMPAIGN IS BEING WAGED ON THE ISLAND OF SAMAR.

ANOTHER SLAUGHTER PREVENTED

MURDEROUS PLOT OF BOLOMEN FRUSTRATED BY AN OFFICER.

WAS INSTIGATED BY A PRIEST

PLANNED TO ANNIHILATE THE GARRISON OF AMERICAN SOLDIERS.

Manila, Oct. 21.—Advices from Samar are to the effect that Gen. Hughes, commander of that district, and Gen. Smith are carrying on a relentless campaign against the rebels there, and thousands of the inhabitants are fleeing to the adjacent islands.

Numerous columns of American troops are operating along the coast, while the work in the interior is being done by the Macabebes, the native scouts whose work on the island of Luzon called forth so much praise from the American commanders. The troops there have evidently determined that the rebels will not take them unprepared again. They now constantly carry their rifles, and have them within reach even at meals and when they go to bed.

Another Slaughter Prevented.

Owing to the vigilance of Lieut. Thomas M. Baines, Jr., of the Ninth United States infantry, another slaughter of American troops by insurgents has been avoided.

Lieut. Baines discovered a prisoner re-entering, through a hole in the wall, a cell at Carbiga, island of Samar, where several Filipinos were confined. An investigation showed that the plan was to fill the jail with bolomen and to call the guard, which would be necessary to get the door open, and then to attack the garrison. It also developed that the instigators were a priest and the presidente, both of whom have been arrested, together with several other prominent persons. Other attempts have been discovered, but fortunately frustrated, at Pambujan and other points in Samar. Several persons have been arrested in connection with these.

Rushing Reinforcements.

Reinforcements are being rushed to Samar. Three hundred and thirty marines under Lieut. Col. Mancil C. Goodrell, have gone there on board the United States cruiser New York, and two battalions of the Twelfth infantry will start immediately for the same destination.

United States officers from other provinces that were supposed to be pacified have recently arrived in Manila, and they say that the news of the American disasters spread like wildfire among the natives, who scarcely attempted to conceal their delight.

The Manila constabulary discovered a large quantity of steel wagon springs which were being shipped to various districts. Investigation showed that they were to be used in manufacturing bolos.

The troops in Samar anticipate hard fighting. Brig. Gen. Jacob H. Smith, who is in command, has visited most of the ports and instructed the commanders that the insurrection must be hammered out and then Lukban, the insurgent leader, captured. Already the movement of troops has begun.

KILLED BY BOLOMEN.

Chaffee Sends Casualty List of Recent Samar Engagements.

Washington, Oct. 21.—The names of the killed and wounded in Company E, Ninth infantry, in the engagement with bolomen on the Gandara river, island of Samar, last Wednesday, are given in a cablegram received by the war department from Gen. Chaffee. The cablegram follows:

"Manila, Oct. 19.—Adjutant General, Washington: With reference to my cablegram of 18th, following casualties Gandara river, Oct. 16, Company E, Ninth infantry:

"Killed: George Tenchant, William H. Ritchie, Edward F. Burns, Carl M. Johnson, William Laffin, Jack Peoplis, Charles Wilson, Orville J. Deemogoole.

"Died from wounds received in action: First Sergeant William F. Gumley, John D. Kelley.

"Wounded: Martin G. Lyons, lung, wounded in neck, serious; Hubert L. Hampton, lung, skull, serious; Jack M. Russell, thigh, serious; Henry Stierle, cheek, serious; Eugene Dewitt, thigh, serious; Frank McAndrew, back, head, slight; Musician Charles W. Buck, shoulder, slight. —Chaffee."

IN OPEN REBELLION.

Kruger Receives Advices That Cape Colony Is Disaffected.

London, Oct. 21.—"Mr. Kruger has received a report from Mr. Schalkburger that the greatest part of Cape Colony is in open rebellion," says a dispatch to the Daily Mail from Brussels, "and that the Boers have armed 15,000 Afrikanders within the last three weeks."

Surprised by by Canadians.

Pretoria, Oct. 21.—A force of Canadian troops surprised a Boer laager near Balmoral. The Boers fled after a short fight. The Canadians had two killed and an officer and two men wounded.

LANDSLIDE IN THE BARBADOES.

Five-Hundred-Acre Tract Covered and Nearly One Hundred Houses Destroyed.

Kingston, Jam., Oct. 21.—Mail advices from Barbadoes give particulars of a landslide covering 500 acres of land in the district of Boscobel. Nearly a hundred houses were destroyed and the island's best plantations were ruined. The district was devastated. The governor has started a relief fund.

YALE'S BICENTENNIAL.

Celebration Is Opened With Religious Exercises.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 21.—Yale University began yesterday the celebration of the 200th anniversary of the founding of Yale college. The bicentennial of the great institution of learning was ushered in with ceremonies essentially religious. The services were performed in accord with the devout and reverent traditions of the old New England days when the little handful of clergymen gathered together and with prayerful supplications asked divine blessing upon the institution which they had conceived and fought for. The old hymns were sung and powerful sermons were uttered. The city, proud in its function as a seat of learning, had bedecked itself in Yale's colors and presented a splendid spectacle. Blue draperies were intertwined with new cut evergreen and this general scheme of color was only broken by the graceful folds of the stars and stripes. Within the chapel where the bicentennial was inaugurated the services were participated in by an assemblage as imposing as the exercises were simple.

The service began at 10:30 a. m. A chant by the choir was followed by the Lord's Prayer. President Hadley read a lesson from the Scriptures and after the Te Deum the vast congregation sang Psalm lxv. Rev. Joseph Hopkins Twitchell of Hartford, the senior fellow of the corporation, preached the sermon. The closing hymn was "I love thy kingdom, Lord," written by Rev. Timothy Dwight, D. D., LL. D., president of Yale college from 1795 to 1817. Then was sung the doxology and the benediction was pronounced by Rev. Timothy Dwight, president of the university from 1886 to 1899. Meanwhile special bicentennial services were held in other churches of the city.

ADMIRAL BUNCE DEAD.

Cancer Causes the Death of the Civil War Naval Hero.

Hartford, Conn., Oct. 21.—Rear Admiral Francis M. Bunce, U. S. N., retired, died Saturday morning at his home here of cancer of the throat. He was born Dec. 25, 1836, and was appointed to the naval academy May 28, 1852. He served with distinction in the Civil war, taking part in the blockade of Wilmington, N. C., and the capture of Morris Island, S. C., July 10, 1863; he commanded the expedition which cooperated with Gen. Gilmore in the reduction of the Confederate works on the island, and was in the attack on Fort Sumter, Sept. 8, 1863. He served on the monitor Patapsco in the siege of Charleston. In November, 1863, he was wounded by the premature explosion of a shell in the turret of the Patapsco. He was on the staff of Admiral Dahlgren, and received honorable mention time and again for gallant conduct. After the war he achieved distinction in taking the monitor Monadnock from Philadelphia to San Francisco, that being the first extended voyage of an ironclad. He received a captain's commission in 1883 and was made a commodore in 1895. In 1898 he was given the rank of rear admiral.

SIDNEY, N. S., FIRE SWEPT.

Business Portion of Thriving Nova Scotia Town Is in Ruins.

Halifax, N. S., Oct. 21.—The prosperous and thriving town of Sidney was almost swept out of existence yesterday by a fierce conflagration which started about 2 o'clock. The flames, which were fanned by the forty-five-mile gale, swept through the principal business portions of the town, causing ruin and devastation. Four blocks of the finest business buildings are in ashes. The only thing that saved the city from total destruction was a heavy rainstorm which set in after dark and, as the wind decreased in fury, the firemen and hundreds of miners succeeded in getting the fire under control. Over sixty buildings are in ashes and many more are badly scorched.

New Bank Being Organized.

Luverne, Minn., Oct. 22.—A state bank with a capital of $17,000 is in process of organization at Magnolia, a village east of here in this county. The promoters are A. Walker and G. W. Turner of Magnolia and M. V. Kennedy of Adrian. The latter has lately been connected with the State Bank of Adrian. The erection of a brick building will be begun soon.

Fatally Shot at a Dance.

Marion, Ind., Oct. 21.—At a country dance at the home of Harley Marshall, near Upland, last night, Arsle Deeren shot Harley Marshall and Lee Larkins. Larkins was an innocent bystander and received a wound from the bullet that passed through Marshall. Marshall and Larkins will both die from the wounds in their breasts. Deeren is in jail.

Killed by an Explosion.

Marietta, Ohio, Oct. 21.—In an explosion at the machine shops of Pattin Bros. & Co. yesterday D. P. Pattin, one of the principal owners, was killed and the building completely destroyed. Mr. Pattin was lighting a match to find a leak of gas and the explosion followed. The property loss is over $20,000.

Big Fire in Omaha.

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 21.—Fire which originated in W. L. May & Co.'s wholesale grocery did $100,000 damage to that concern and adjoining wholesale houses. The flames started on the fourth floor of the grocery house and quickly communicated with other buildings, and before the firemen arrived all were in flames.

Stabbed Her Brother-in-Law.

Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 21.—Mrs. Mary Lowe stabbed her brother-in-law, T. F. Lowe, to death last night with a butcher knife. The crime was the outcome of a quarrel between the woman and Lowe.

Expelled From Germany.

Kiel, Oct. 21.—The Kieler Zeitung announces that eleven residents of the village of Klobenhand, near the Danish frontier, have been expelled for publicly advocating the reunion of Schleswig with Denmark.

News of the State.

INSPECTION DOES IT.

Reason Assigned for Big Wheat Receipts at Duluth.

Minneapolis grain men say they believe the inconsistencies between the grain inspection of Minneapolis and that of other wheat markets will be adjusted. Chief Inspector Marshall will be asked to investigate as soon as he returns from Duluth.

Duluth grain men say the inspection has nothing to do with the fact that Duluth's receipts at the present time are greater than those of Minneapolis. They say the difference in receipts is caused entirely by the difference in price between the two places, and the difference in price in turn by the relative demand for wheat at the two places. A newspaper correspondent of Duluth, after carefully investigating the question at that point, writes as follows:

"Grain men here who are authority say that the excess of wheat receipts at Duluth over those at Minneapolis is not caused by any differences in inspection, but by the difference in price. They also say that this year for the first time the inspection of Minneapolis and that of Duluth are as nearly uniform as they can be made. Minneapolis receipts for several weeks were from 100 to 200 cars in excess of the Duluth daily receipts. The reason was that Minneapolis was paying a premium for cash wheat. The price there has been a good deal better than the figures for December wheat. Duluth was paying a premium for cash wheat at the opening of the crop year. A large amount for shipment via the lakes was in demand. That condition started an enormous amount of wheat for this market. The quantity was so great that the local grain men reduced the cash price to a half-cent under the price for December wheat. By this time Minneapolis had raised its price for cash wheat as compared with December and the tide at once turned toward that market. Receipts at Minneapolis increased rapidly. Duluth grain men, being in need of more wheat than they were receiving, began less than a week ago to bid up the price of cash wheat. Receipts immediately responded and it is probable that Duluth receipts will be in excess of those at Minneapolis until the demand here is satisfied or until Minneapolis again bids up the price. It is said here that Minneapolis grain men complain because they really do not understand the situation."

Receivers of wheat at Minneapolis continue to receive from their country trade vigorous opinions on local inspection. The principal dissatisfaction relates to wheat. Complaints on flax inspection have been comparatively few.

A WHIPPLE MEMORIAL.

The State Historical Society Honors the Late Bishop.

The Minnesota State Historical society held a memorial session recently for the late Bishop Whipple. Addresses were delivered by Charles Flandrau, Rev. George C. Tanner, Greenleaf Clark, Gen. John Sanborn, Rev. William C. Pope.

The remarks were chiefly biographical and reminiscent. Judge Flandrau sketched the bishop's work among the Indians, especially among the Ojibways and Sioux.

Rev. Tanner of Faribault mentioned the services of Bishop Whipple in the establishment and maintenance of the Episcopal schools at Faribault and Wilder.

Judge Greenleaf Clark's address was a tribute to the bishop as a citizen.

Gen. Sanborn cited instances in which Bishop Whipple was a mediator for the rights of Indians in the treaties, and also cases of his influence in the passage of laws by congress leading to the results obtained in regard to the treaties.

Rev. Pope addressed the society as a fellow missionary of the deceased prelate, and spoke of the honors accorded him by the houses of American and of Anglican bishops.

The society, being a semiofficial body, will not contribute toward the erection of the memorial tower at the Cathedral of Our Merciful Savior, but the members will add to the fund personally.

BOARD OF CONTROL MAN.

Alvah Eastman, Just Appointed to the Normal Board.

Alvah Eastman of St. Cloud, publisher of the St. Cloud Journal-Press, has been appointed by Gov. Van Sant to succeed W. B. Mitchell on the state normal board. Mr. Eastman has accepted. Mr. Eastman, in his paper, has constantly supported the board of control.

Ham Hong Stays in Prison.

The state prison board has denied a pardon to Ham Hong, the Chinaman from Crow Wing county, who is serving a twenty-five-year sentence at Stillwater on a charge of murdering another Chinaman. No appearance was made in the case, and the members of the board felt that documentary evidence did not justify releasing him. The petitions of Elsie B. Foss, Estelle Williams, Ulrike Kohler and Minnie Kohler, sent to the penitentiary from Blue Earth county on charges of shoplifting, were denied. William Faribault of Ramsey county, convicted on a charge of stealing several hundred pounds of turkeys last winter, was granted a pardon on his abstaining from the use of liquor.

Olson a Bankrupt.

Fergus Falls, Minn., Oct. 18.—Iver B. Olson, who has been engaged in the confectionery business at Bemidji, filed a petition in bankruptcy in the United States court in this city, placing his assets at $3,434.56, of which $900 is exempt, and his liabilities at $3,142.34.

New Smallpox Inspector.

Brainerd, Minn., Oct. 18.—Dr. J. A. Thaber of this city was appointed smallpox inspector for this section of Northern Minnesota by the state board of health.

GOV. PILLSBURY NO MORE.

Death Came Peacefully After a Short Illness.

John S. Pillsbury died at 2:38 o'clock Friday morning at his home in East Minneapolis.

Gov. Pillsbury was taken ill about a month ago with whooping cough. During a severe attack of coughing he ruptured a blood vessel in the brain. Bright's disease and a weak heart, manifested about the same time, caused complications from which the patient's advanced age prevented him from rallying.

The funeral took place from the First Congregational church Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The body lay in state in the church from 10:30 until 12 o'clock on Sunday and was viewed by a large crowd of people. The interment was at Lakewood.

John S. Pillsbury was born at Sutton, N. H., July 29, 1827.

In June, 1855, he arrived at St. Anthony Falls, Minn., entering the hardware business with G. F. Cross and Woodbury Fisk. In 1875 he entered the milling business with Charles A. Pillsbury, later taking in George A. and Fred C. Pillsbury.

He served as governor of the state from Jan. 7, 1876, to Jan. 10, 1882.

In 1889 he gave the state university $150,000, of which institution he had become a regent. In recognition of his services for the university the legislature several years ago made him a regent for life. He came to be known as the "father of the university."

Mr. Pillsbury is survived by his wife, Mahala Fisk Pillsbury, whom he married at Warner, N. H., in 1856; and two children, Alfred F. Pillsbury and Mrs. E. C. Gale.

Governor's Proclamation.

Gov. Van Sant issued a proclamation announcing Gov. Pillsbury's death as follows:

"It becomes my sad duty to announce to the people of Minnesota the death of Hon. John S. Pillsbury, one of our most illustrious and honored citizens.

"The conspicuous part taken by Gov. Pillsbury in the material growth and development of Minnesota, his patriotic and distinguished services in important official positions, his generous and unselfish interest in the welfare of our state, and especially in her educational interests, his pure life and exalted character, have brought to him the love, esteem and reverence of every citizen within her borders.

"It is hence especially fitting that expression of our devotion to the memory of our distinguished fellow citizen, and our deep sense of loss at his death, be publicly manifested, and to that end I direct that the flags upon all state buildings be placed at half mast for a period of thirty days, and that all public business be suspended on the funeral day."

UNUSUAL DEMAND FOR LANDS.

State Auditor Has Nearly Sold the Quota and He Cancels the Sales in Two Counties.

Owing to the unprecedented demand for state lands and because the law allows the sale of only 100,000 acres in one year, State Auditor Dunn has been obliged to cancel the sales scheduled in Morrison and Benton counties.

Mr. Dunn telegraphed from Crookston recently that the sales in Kittson and Red Lake counties would complete the disposal of the 100,000 acres. He had already sold 62,000 acres at the best prices ever realized in Minnesota, and the 38,000 acres to be sold in Kittson and Red Lake counties were expected to be entirely cleaned up.

The prices have ranged from $8 to $25 an acre. The most gratifying feature of the sale is that the land has been sold almost exclusively to bona fide homeseekers, and almost half of them non-residents. The counties in which the sales were held have been overrun with homeseekers for several weeks. Hotels have been overcrowded and livery rigs have been at a premium. After Minnesota, the states best represented are Iowa, Wisconsin, Michigan, Nebraska, Missouri and Illinois.

TAKE AIRINGS IN RELAYS.

Hundred Coats for the Men at the Soldiers' Home.

The veterans at the Minnesota soldiers' home this winter will take their airings in relays. The home board met recently at the home and decided to buy 100 overcoats. The coats will be divided among the cottages. It is believed that 100 coats will be sufficient to enable all the old soldiers who wish to take airings to get out some time during each of the cold days.

The board decided to appropriate $5 a month to defray the expenses of services conducted by priests for Catholic inmates. The matter was called to the attention of the board by a letter from Archbishop Ireland, who suggested a Catholic chaplain. The board felt that it was unable to employ two chaplains, but agreed to defray the actual expenses of the priests who visit the home to hold services.

Spree Ends in Suicide.

Duluth, Minn., Oct. 20.—Carey E. Moulex, a switchman of the Duluth Transfer railway, shot himself through the heart at the Santiago hotel. He had been on a prolonged spree. His wife received a letter from him during the day in which he bade her farewell. Inclosed with the letter was a receipt for dues on $2,000 insurance in the United Workmen.

No State Entomologist.

Gov. Van Sant said recently that the appointment of a successor to the late Prof. Otto Lugger, state entomologist, would not be made for some time. In the meantime any of the entomologist's duties that may require attention will be turned over to some of the members of the agricultural college faculty.

Gov. Van Sant, who, with Dean Liggett of the agricultural school and President Northrop of the state university, will select the next entomologist, was unable to state when the post will be filled.

EVERY ELEMENT IN MOURNING.

Common Sorrow Over John S. Pillsbury's Death.

Minneapolis, Oct. 20.—The death of Former Governor John S. Pillsbury yesterday morning caused profound sorrow in all elements of society. The more prominent business men of Minneapolis esteemed him as a public-spirited man whose advice was sound. The working classes of the city had long recognized Mr. Pillsbury as a man of kindly sympathy and humanity, who was always ready to encourage any organization or movement calculated to ameliorate the condition of the common people. The army of students at the university, while familiar with the fact that Mr. Pillsbury was ill, had hardly looked for his death, and his passing away came as a sad surprise. There was one general sentiment in favor of the abandonment of the Minnesota-Grinnell football game scheduled for Northrop field for this afternoon. The body of the distinguished Minnesotan will lie in state to-morrow morning from 10:30 to 12 o'clock in the First Congregational church, corner of Fifth street and Eighth avenue southeast. The funeral services will be held in the same church at 2 o'clock. The interment will be at Lakewood cemetery. The faculty or at least a delegation representing the faculty will have charge of the remains as they lie in state. This was in accordance with the desire of the relatives of the deceased.

DEATH ENDS BANQUET.

Minneapolis Man Stricken With Apoplexy After Finishing a Speech.

St. Paul, Oct. 20.—Death ended suddenly yesterday afternoon a banquet given at the Hotel Ryan by the St. Paul real estate exchange to the real estate men of Minneapolis. I. C. Seeley, sixty-five years old, a former president of the Minneapolis exchange, was stricken with apoplexy and died within forty minutes. He had just completed a speech in reply to the welcome extended in behalf of the St. Paul exchange by W. C. Read, when he fell to the floor. Physicians were hastily summoned but he expired within forty minutes.

LAFOLLETTE RECOVERING.

He Will Next Monday Resume His Duties at Madison.

Milwaukee, Oct. 20.—The situation has cleared slightly this week in the matter of the health of Gov. La Follette, though there is still more or less mystery about it. He has been at the farm of Dr. Philip Fox, ten miles from the capital, all the week, and Secretary Murphy says he will be ready to resume the duties of his position next Monday. The latest report from the governor is that he has engaged two saddle horses, and that he proposes to do some riding during his convalescence whether his physician approves of it or not.

Highest Award on Cocoa and Chocolate.

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 10, 1901.—The judges at the Pan-American exposition, Buffalo, have awarded three gold medals to Walter Baker & Co. (Limited), Dorchester, Mass., for the superiority of their breakfast cocoa and all of their cocoa and chocolate preparations and the excellence of their exhibit. This is the 37th highest award received by them from the great expositions in Europe and America.

Searching for a Brute.

Wheatland, N. D., Oct. 20.—The people of Ayr are enraged over an attempt by a bootlegger to criminally assault a fourteen-year-old farmer girl. The brute drove the girl out of town a few miles, but she proved too alert for him and escaped to a neighbor's house before the fellow accomplished his purpose. At last reports he had not been apprehended, but probably will be soon, as the citizens are out en masse.

Sheep in Good Condition.

Rapid City, S. D., Oct. 20.—Joseph Watterson, sheep inspector for the Western South Dakota Cattlemen's association, has finished his inspection of the sheep of this section, and reports that he finds them in an unusually good condition. The sheep owners are in better condition than ever to care for their flocks, and there will be comparatively few losses, even though the winter should be a hard one.

To Kill the Indian's Ducks.

White Earth, Minn., Oct. 20.—Senator Brower, his law partner, George Stewart, Frank Randal, Dr. Hubert, superintendent of the state reformatory, Dr. Hoyt and Louis Wakeman, all residents of St. Cloud, have obtained permission from Agent Michelt to hunt on the reservation. In company with Gus H. Beaulieu of this place they expect to put in several days in hunting ducks.

Awarded the Highest Prize.

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct.—The New Domestic Sewing Machine Co. has today been awarded, at the Pan-American Exposition, the highest prize, the coveted gold medal, for the best family sewing machine.

Insane Over Elopement.

Aberdeen, S. D., Oct. 20.—Paul Voy of Groton, who eloped with the young daughter of a near neighbor recently, is now reported as being violently insane. He has been placed under treatment in hopes of restoring his mind.

Must Pay for Water Privileges.

Fergus Falls, Minn., Oct. 20.—The city attorney began suits against about thirty of the residents along the Union avenue sewer to collect $33 from each of them for the privilege of tapping the sewer. The sewer was built for the accommodation of the hospital, and, instead of assessing the cost against abutting property the council passed an ordinance providing that whenever any one tapped it he should pay $33 for the privilege.

FAREWELL TO TOWNE.

Duluth Citizens Tender the ex-Senator a Banquet.

Duluth, Minn., Oct. 18.—Eight hundred men of all shades of political opinion sat down at the farewell banquet tendered by Duluth citizens to Charles A. Towne at the armory last night, while fully 500 ladies were present in the galleries to hear the speeches by William J. Bryan, Mr. Towne and others after the discussion of the menu. The affair was non-partisan and carried out the intention of the promoters to make it a testimonial to Mr. Towne's personal popularity among his friends and neighbors. Scores of prominent Democrats, however, were present from all parts of the state to add their tribute and listen to the eloquence of their brilliant leaders. Mr. Bryan's subject was "Moral Courage," and he took occasion to shower encomiums on the guest of the evening for his notable display of that quality in 1896, at the time of his spectacular farewell to the Republican party to follow silver. He said: "Some may be disposed to stamp the word 'failure' upon the political career of your distinguished guest, but he has set an example that must weigh heavily on the side of civic virtue. He has faced without flinching a fire as hot and as hellish as ever came from cannon's mouth, and he has won a victory greater and more glorious than ever crowned the life of one who fawned at the feet of power or bartered away his manhood to secure an office."

PRIEST CHARGED WITH ASSAULT.

Young Girl Claims to Have Been Terribly Ill-Treated.

Neillsville, Wis., Oct. 18.—The examination of Father Jungblud, the Catholic priest, and Lizzie Nolan, his housekeeper, charged with assault upon a girl, took place yesterday before Justice Dudley. Several witnesses testified as to wounds received by the girl, Mary Prieuer, including the doctors who treated her. The girl testified that two days preceding the arrest she was bound around the arms with a rope and hung to a hook in the ceiling, remaining each day from some time in the morning until some time in the afternoon, during which time only her tiptoes were allowed to touch the floor. She was whipped, she testified, because she could not remember the hard words in her catechism. The defendants were bound over to await further action. Bail was fixed at $2,500 in each case. They were committed to jail in default of bail.

DEATH ENDS SUIT.

Remarkable Legal Battle for Possession of Child.

La Crosse, Wis., Oct. 18.—By the death of little Edward Petter, the infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Petter at Colby, Wis., a hard legal battle for its possession has come to an end. Albert Petter is a grocer in this city, and by his order the remains were shipped to this city from Colby, where the mother is at present living. Last May, shortly after the birth of the child, Mr. and Mrs. Petter were granted a divorce by Judge Fruit, who gave the custody of the child to the mother. She removed to Milwaukee, and later Petter attempted to gain possession of the child through the Milwaukee courts but was unsuccessful. Mrs. Petter then moved to Colby with the child, but the matter was still pending in the courts. The death of the child has ended the quarrel.

DIE BY HUNDREDS.

Strange Disease Attacks Deer and Antelope in Montana.

Helena, Mont., Oct. 18.—State Game Warden W. F. Scott left Helena last night for Malta, from where he will proceed to the Little Rockies in Northern Montana to inquire into the report that many hundreds of deer and antelope are dying in that section from some unknown disease resembling anthrax. State Veterinarian M. E. Knowles has received reports that the unknown malady has extended over a considerable portion of Northern Montana, and it is feared that it may be communicated to stock.

KNOCKED OUT BY DROPS.

Wabasha Man Said to Have Administered Chloral to a Friend.

La Crosse, Wis., Oct. 18.—What is thought to be the first case under the Wisconsin law making it a felony to administer knock-out drops is that against a man thought to be Dennis Cronon of Wabasha, who, it is charged, took a friend, a riverman, to a saloon here and poured chloral in a glass of his beer. The victim fell forward in a deep sleep. It is alleged Cronon rifled his friend's pockets. He is still too drowsy to talk. The penalty is not less than $5,000 fine or ten years at hard labor.

FOUND UNCONSCIOUS.

Mail Clerk Attacked With Apoplexy in His Car.

Winona, Minn., Oct. 18.—S. G. Swain, a veteran mail clerk of this city who has been employed on the Winona & Western branch of the Chicago Great Western railway, suffered a stroke of apoplexy near Altura Tuesday afternoon. The trouble was discovered when he failed to open his door to throw out mail. He was found on the floor of the car in an unconscious condition and was at once brought to his home in this city. He is very low and there is little hope of his recovery.

Under a Serious Charge.

Dell Rapids, S. D., Oct. 18.—Arthur J. Bouck, a young man living near Trent, S. D., has been arrested on complaint of Miss Mary Cronin of Moody county on the charge of assault, accomplished by administering "knock-out" drops.

Successful Land Sale.

Warren, Minn., Oct. 18.—Auditor Dunn held a sale of state lands yesterday, and never before has there been such a crowd present. About 20,000 acres were sold at an average price of $5 to $9 per acre.

The Progress of a Novelist.

The diversity of Miss Mary E. Wilkins' literary gifts is to be further exemplified in a book of short stories entitled "Understudies." Since the earlier tales of New England life which were sufficient in themselves to make an enviable reputation for any author, we have learned to know Miss Wilkins as a story teller and a novelist in other fields and in other ways and it has been interesting to follow her development as an artist. Only once did she deviate from the flow of progress, and that was when she was tempted to enter into competition with the pseudo-historical romance—and fell. But in "The Portion of Labor," now appearing in Harper's Magazine, she has not only recovered herself, but, in our judgment, has climbed to a higher level of artistic attainment. Her new volume of "Understudies" also shows that in the short story her hand has not lost its cunning. Not only are these "Understudies" very delightful as love stories, but the conception of the idea which characterizes them is an original and attractive one, and to the reader who cares to probe beyond the mere story, it will also be found to be interesting from a psychological standpoint.—Harper's Weekly.

Mrs. Dyer's Heart.

McCarran, Mich., Oct. 21.—In April last the sensational case of Mrs. Samuel G. Dyer of this place was reported in these columns. Mrs. Dyer has suffered for years with a very bad case of Heart Trouble, and was cured in a few weeks by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Since then Mrs. Dyer has received hundreds of inquiries as to her condition, and many may be interested to learn that she is at present enjoying the best of health, and has not had the slightest return of the Heart Trouble.

Formerly she had to sit up in bed for hours to get relief, now she goes about as smartly as any lady of 62 years in the state. Dodd's Kidney Pills have made many friends in Chippewa county through their cure of Mrs. Dyer's case, and have proven beyond doubt that their cures are not only very complete, but absolute and permanent.

ENORMOUS CROPS

North Dakota has just harvested a wonderful crop of wheat and flax. Reports from the various railway points along the "Soo" Line show yields of 25 to 38 bushels to the acre of wheat, and from 15 to 20 bushels of flax per acre. Flax is now bringing $1.25 per bushel. Most of the crop was raised on newly broken land, so that the first crop pays for the farm and all the labor, and leaves a handsome profit. There is still plenty of good free government land open for entry; also good openings to go into business in the new towns along the "Soo" Line. For descriptive circulars, maps and particulars, write to B. W. Casseday, Land Agent, "Soo" Line, Minneapolis, Minn.

WEDNESDAY, OCT. 23, 1901.

W. C. Smiley, ex-editor and one of the best men for the city that Thief River Falls has ever had, is out as a candidate for the municipal judge-ship of Thief River Falls. The office is a new one and is said to carry a goodly cash remuneration with it. Smiley comes out fairly and squarely and says that he has not been informed that the people need him for the office, but that he WANTS the office and will do his best to fill it properly—if he gets it.

Now, that is refreshing. As a politician Smiley is decidedly original. The man who has honesty and horse sense enough to admit the fact that he is seeking the office, is liable to be decidedly level headed when it comes to rendering important decisions concerning the differences of his neighbors. Smiley is not a hypocrite, and he will certainly do the square thing, if elected.

While editor of the Thief River Falls Press Mr. Smiley did much for the welfare of his town, and if the people of that burg appreciate good service they ought to elect Mr. Smiley to the office of municipal judge. There are other candidates, all good men, but none who have done so much, or will do so much for Thief River Falls as W. C. Smiley.

SALTED BUTTER.

Why It Keeps Better Than Butter That Is Fresh.

Why does salt butter keep better than fresh butter? We must first realize that the bacterial population of a moderate sized pat of butter may be reckoned by millions, that a tiny lump only large enough to go into a thimble has been known to be tenanted by nearly 48,000,000, that, in fact, in consuming a slice of bread and butter you may unconsciously be assimilating individual lives exceeding in number those of the whole of Europe. Thus the urgency for keeping these hordes in check and hence the efforts which are made, first, to set up effectual barriers to their ingress by taking proper precautions in the production of milk and, second, in the conduct of the processes involved in the manufacture and distribution of the finished article.

Included in these processes is the addition of salt in such quantities as to justify the butter being known as salt butter, this addition being made with the object of extending the keeping powers of the butter or, in other words, to suppress to a large extent the activities of the butter bacteria. That salt does act in this manner is shown by the fact that in butter thus treated a very large reduction in the number of micro-organisms present is effected. There can be little doubt, therefore, that the common butter microbes do not by any means regard salt as their elixir of life.

In England boracic acid is said to be extensively used in butter as a preservative or antiseptic agent, while in the United States a recent public health document states that none was reported to have been found in the samples of butter examined. This is probably due to the fact that in America there exists a strong prejudice in favor of salt butter, whereas in England the use of salt butter is the exception and not the rule. Hence in America salt can be used as a preservative instead of the boracic acid employed for that purpose in England.

The densely populated condition of butter above referred to is not to be wondered at if we realize that the raw material in the shape of milk may contain from 500,000 to as many as 169,000,000 of bacteria in a few drops.—Longman's Magazine.

CURING THE BLUES.

Just Try Turning Up the Corners of Your Mouth.

A well known doctor of Minneapolis who has made a specialty of nervous diseases has found a new remedy for the "blues." As no drugs are administered, he has felt safe in experimenting with at least a half hundred melancholy patients and now declares himself thoroughly satisfied with the good results of his treatment. His prescription reads something like this: "If you keep the corners of your mouth turned up, you can't feel blue." The directions for taking are, "Smile, keep on smiling, don't stop smiling." It sounds ridiculous, doesn't it? Well, just try turning up the corners of your mouth, regardless of your mood, and see how it makes you feel. Then draw the corners of your mouth down and note the effect, and you will be willing to declare "there's something in it."

The doctor treats his nervous patients to medicine when necessary, but when the case is one of pure melancholy, without bodily ill, he simply recommends the smile cure. He has the patient remain in his office and smile. If it isn't the genuine article, it must at least be an upward curvature of the corners of the mouth, and the better feelings follow inevitably. The treatments are followed up regularly, and the patients all testify to their good effect. It takes considerable persuasion to induce some of them to apply the cure, and of course the greater number of patients are women, for when a man is blue he is bound to be blue in spite of everything, but a woman is more easily persuaded to try to find a cure.

The doctor declares that if persons will only draw down the corners of their mouths and use sufficient will power they can actually shed tears. On the other hand, if they will persistently keep the corners of the mouth turned up pleasant thoughts will chase away the gloomy forebodings. His discovery grew out of an experience in his own home. His wife was of a nervous and rather morbid temperament, and when in a despondent mood he would ask her to "smile a little" until the saying came to be a household joke. But it brought about good results, and then came the inspiration to try the same cure on others.

The doctor has not patented his remedy, and it is free to all who choose to take advantage of it.—Minneapolis Journal.

The Flight of the Stork.

The stork is a remarkably picturesque bird. Its snowy body contrasting with the bright red beak and legs and black quill feathers of the wings make it a striking object. The flight is magnificent, bolder and more buoyant than that of a heron. Like most large birds, its powers of flight show best when it is at a great height. When we were on the Bastei rock, in Saxon Switzerland, a pair passed overhead, flying southward. Though high above us, we could clearly see the black pinion feathers, and as we watched the powerful beat of the wide spreading wings we thought of the angels in Zechariah's vision who had "wings like the stork."—Chambers' Journal.

The Bund.

The bund is the name given in almost all eastern seaports to the street fronting on the water. This street is usually the trade center, and rumors that are likely to affect trade or political conditions fly thick and fast about it. As most of these are unfounded, it is the habit in the orient to call a story whose authenticity is doubted "bunder."

Warning Against Forest and Prairie Fires

Office of State Forest Commissioner.
St. Paul, Minn., March 21, 1901.

Chapter 196 of the General Laws of the State of Minnesota for 1895 (Act of April 18th) constitutes Supervisors of towns, Mayors of cities and presidents of village councils Fire Wardens, and it is made their duty to take precaution to prevent forest and prairie fires, and if they occur, to go and extinguish or control them; and in emergencies to call upon any able-bodied male person, over eighteen years of age, to assist. Reports of such fires with particulars tending to fix responsibility therefor shall be made within reasonable time—usually within a week. The Forest Commissioner is required to provide and sign an abstract (as herein) of the penalties under said law, and it is made the duty of the County Commissioners of each county to cause said abstract to be published in at least three issues of the official paper in their respective counties each year between the 15th of April and 1st of November, and they are hereby instructed to publish this notice so. Under said law.

The following are liable to a penalty not exceeding $500 or imprisonment in the state prison not over ten years or both:

Any person who maliciously sets or causes to be set on fire any woods, prairie or other combustible material whereby the property of another is destroyed and life is sacrificed.

The following are liable to a penalty not exceeding $100 or imprisonment not exceeding three months.

Any person refusing, without cause, to assist fire wardens in extinguishing forest or prairie fires.

Any fire warden who neglects to perform his duties.

Any person who wilfully, negligently or carelessly sets on fire, or causes to be set on fire, any woods, prairies or other combustible material thereby causing injury to another.

Any person who shall kindle a fire on or dangerously near to forest or prairie land and leave it unquenched, or who shall be a party thereto.

Any person who shall use other than incombustible fire wads for firearms or carry a naked torch, firebrand or other exposed light in or dangerously near to forest land.

Any person who shall wilfully or heedlessly deface, destroy, or remove this or any other warning placard posted under the requirements of the above mentioned Act.

Any railroad company wilfully neglecting to provide efficient spark arresters on its engines; or to keep its right of way to the width of 100 feet cleared of combustible material; or which shall fail to comply with other provisions of Section 12 of the above mentioned Act.

The following are liable to a penalty of not less than $5 nor more than $50:

Any railroad employe who wilfully violates the provisions of Section 12 of the above mentioned Act.

Any owner of threshing or other portable steam engine who neglects to have efficient spark arresters, or who shall deposit live coals or hot ashes without extinguishing the same.

R. C. DUNN (State Auditor,)
Forest Commissioner.
C. C. ANDREWS,
Chief Fire Warden.

THE CHICKEN YARD.

No henhouse that is frequently dusted with lime will be infested with lice.

Lime purifies the quarters and dries them. It is cheap and should be used plentifully.

Always have the nests so low that the hens can step in rather than be obliged to jump down.

If the fowls get too fat, oats as a single food are one of the best grains that can be given to lessen fat.

Mating birds to breed to a feather is a high art, to be acquired only by long practice, aided by close study.

A flat perch is best because of being the most comfortable to the feet and the best support to the breast.

There are three breeds of fowls that are pre-eminently valuable as egg producers. These are the Minorcas, Leghorns and Black Spanish.

A medium sized active male is twice as valuable as one that is large and extra heavy. If large size and weight are desired, select large hens, but the male should be active and vigorous.

When a fowl has canker and the mouth and throat are sore and ulcerated, wrap a soft rag around a lead pencil, dampen it slightly, dip in chlorate of potash and swab out the mouth clean and inject a drop of turpentine.

To Varnish Bronze.

To make a brilliant black varnish for bronze make a bath of equal parts of nitrate of silver and nitrate of copper. Dip the articles to be treated into this liquid and allow them to remain there for some time. Upon withdrawal heat them over the flame of an alcohol lamp until the black patina color has been reached.

Yesterday morning Herm Adams came near losing a valuable horse while doing some scraper work along the private ditch of J. R. Hannay. The horse slipped into the ditch and had to be dug out. The animal was somewhat bruised and strained but will probably come out all right.

G. H. Sandum, of Elmore, Minn., has been spending several days here looking after his farming interests. Last spring he purchased the Jonas Lind farm, in River Falls, and the A. Lundin place making in all a farm of 440 acres. On Monday he purchased the lumber and started work on a new barn which will be one of the finest in the country.

Alex C. Wolf, who lives on Sec. 22 of Wyandotte township lost all of his crop including 20 acres of flax last Thursday by fire. He started burning off the stubble and a sudden change of wind carried the flames beyond his control. By hard work he managed to save his stock and buildings but his entire crop, which was in six large stacks, went up in smoke.

J. Rousch, who formerly resided here was moving to Colfax, Ia., last week. He had his effects in a freight car and got along all right until he struck Crookston. While sleeping in his car on Friday night at south Crookston, three men entered and told him they needed his money. They got it—about $15. They also went through the car and appropriated a fine shot gun.

—To cure a cough or cold in one day take the Imperial Cough Syrup.

Albert Sea, the genial manager of the Magnet saloon, took a little trip into the country on Sunday to give his dog an airing and incidentally to shoot at any game he might happen to see. He brought home a long legged corpse after first removing the hide and hair. He gave it to Jack Phillips, telling him innocently that is was a jack rabbit and that he wanted pie made of it for Monday evening as he wished to treat some of his friends to a rabbit pie supper. Mr. Phillips did the job up properly and made a first-class pot pie which was greedily eaten by Mr. Sea's guests. On Tuesday he was telling about an immense cat that he had killed while hunting on Sunday and some of the "boys" have bad weak stomachs since.

—Julius Pleth, the land man of St. Hilaire wants to buy farm lands—wild or improved, and will pay spot cash for same.

To cure a cough in one day take the Imperial cough syrup. Guaranteed to cure. For sale at the new Drug Store.

A Sad Case.

During the past two months or more typhoid fever has held sway over the family of Thos. C. Hanson, of Wylie. Mr Hanson came to this county only four months ago to take the position of section boss for the Great Northern on the Wylie section. He had hardly more than got properly settled when typhoid fever struck him down. at the time this calamity happened Mrs Hanson had just become mother to her fifth baby and was hardly yet strong enough to take care of her husband, during his illness and four other small children. But the brave women did her best and soon she too was taken ill with the fever which in her case proved fatal. Death claimed her for his own and left the bereaved husband in poverty with five small motherless children. Mr. Henson has recovered from his attack of fever but is as yet unable to provide for the five little ones. The oldest of the children is only seven years of age and the youngest is now only four months old. On Monday the little ones were sent to St. Paul where they will be taken care of in the Childrens Home of the M. E. Church. Mr. Hanson is bereft of both wife and family but he at least knows that the little ones will not want for anything.

Sale of State Lands.

On last Friday State Auditor Dunn conducted the annual sale of State lands at Red Lake Falls. There was an immense crowd of buyers present and the bidding was spirited from the start. The law provides that 100,000 acres shall be sold annually, and Auditor Dunn was obliged to stop the sale in this county before he had offered all the land available as the limit prescribed by law had already been reached. Bidders from outside points were in the majority, and it is a noteworthy fact that the price of the land sold in Red Lake county ranked first of all sold in the state. The average price, according to the figures given by the Minneapolis Journal, for land in Red Lake county was $14.00 per acre. The Crookston papers give the following averages for state land in other counties: Polk, $13 per acre; Marshall, $8; Roseau, $8; Kittson, $11. When it is taken into account that real estate speculators, as well as actual settlers, were present at all these sales the fact that Red Lake county soil brought the highest price would seem to be good evidence that the land sold here was considered by all the best investment offered.

A number of outside buyers secured tracts in this county but Julius Pleth, of St. Hilaire, was probably the largest individual buyer, he having purchased over 2,000 acres.

The highest price paid was for a 20 acre tract in Rocksbury township, which was sold for $30.25 per acre. The lowest figures was $7 per acre.

It is not often one finds an Anglican cleric so accomplished a scientist as Mr. Bacon, the clever balloonist, who is now engaged in a series of experiments in war, ballooning and wireless telegraphy from the clouds on behalf of the British war office. Such nerves come with drinking "Golden Grain Belt" beer for it is brewed from the purest barley malt and hops. Pure, sparkling and refreshing, it is a delicacy fit for the finest table yet within the reach of all. Order of your dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

—Do you want to sell your farm? Julius Pleth, the land man of St. Hilaire wants to buy it and will pay cash.

One of the Many.

F. W. Tonne, of Fairmount, Minn., arrived here on Saturday to see how work was progressing on his farm in Wyandotte. which he purchased from Julius Pleth last spring. He is very well satisfied with the prospects, so much so that he purchased another tract of 160 acres from Mr Pleth. He paid $13 per acre last spring for his land and now says that he would not consider an offer of less then $20 per acre for the same. Mr Tonne has been looking over the land east from here very carefully and the ditches which are now in course of construction in River Falls and Wyandotte. After a careful examination of the land and the benefits which will accrue from the ditches he says that it is his firm belief that within two years there will not be an acre of land tributary to these new ditches which can be purchased under $30 per acre.

—Julius Pleth, the land man wants to buy your farm. Do you want to sell? If so call at his office two doors south of Hotel Markham.

—For cuts and sores there is nothing better than the Imperial Carbolic salve.

Enforcing Vaccination.

The following letter explains itself, and shows that the Board of Health has the right to enforce vaccination of school children, throughout the State of Minnesota.

Minnesota State Board of Health.
ST. PAUL, MINN., Oct. 12th, 1901.

DR. A. F. BLOMBURGH, H. O.
St. Hilaire, Minn.

MY DEAR SIR:—Word has been published broadcast that Attorney General Douglas has furnished the State Superintendent of Public Instruction an opinion to the effect that the order of the State Board of Health under date of August 12th, 1901, requiring all school teachers and pupils to present a certificate of vaccination on or before October 15th 1901, could not be enforced. This is a mistake.

The attorney general did give an opinion in 1899 to the effect that compulsory vaccination of school children could not be enforced unless smallpox was present as an epidemic.

Under date of July 16th 1901, an opinion was given from the attorney general's office to the effect that smallpox was epidemic in the State of Minnesota at the present time and that therefore the State Board of Health had power to order a general vaccination of school children. It was upon this opinion that the State Board of Health, at a special meeting August 9th, based its order. It reasserted its position on this question by a vote at a regular meeting October 8th.

It would appear that Superintendent J. W. Olsen did not acquaint himself with this latter ruling of the Attorney General. Respectfully,

H. M. BRACKEN,
Secretary and Executive Officer.

The Young of the Sea Devil.

You may find in the sea devil a curious illustration of nature's system for adjusting reproduction. The cod lays several hundred thousand eggs at a spawning because nearly all of them must necessarily be lost while floating on the waves and those which hatch are mostly devoured. But the sea devil, which produces but a single young one at a time, retains the latter in its belly until the infant creature is from four to six feet in length, so that when born it is able to take care of itself and is in no danger of being destroyed.

Paper Covered Books.

The life of the paper covered books that accumulate on everybody's hands and among which one sometimes finds one she would like to keep may be prolonged by this process: Cut a piece of gingham or print a trifle larger than the cover. Paste it to the paper covers and trim the edges. Dry under a weight and letter the title on the cover. The cloth should be in one piece.

Original.

"What do you think of my ideas?" inquired the would be contributor.

"Well," replied the editor, handing back the manuscript, "you've got one very original idea."

"What's that?"

"Your idea that your ideas are original."—Philadelphia Press.

A Youthful Financier.

A correspondent asks, Will some of your mathematical geniuses kindly tell me if I am absolutely devoid of the calculating faculty in not being able to see through the following three cornered trick, shall I say? A beggar boy asked an old gentleman in the street for sixpence.

"What will you do with it if I give you one?" asked the old gentleman.

"Turn it into ninepence quick," replied the boy.

"How?"

"Give me the tanner, and I'll soon show you."

The boy got the money, darted off to a baker's shop and bought a threepenny loaf, with which he returned to the old gentleman and handed him back 3 pennies.

"How's this? You said you would make the sixpence into ninepence."

"So I have. The baker's got threepence, you've got threepence and I've got a threepenny loaf. That's ninepence."—Pearson's Weekly.

The Hog.

If we were to single out the domestic animal most important on the farm or the one which yields the largest per cent of profit it would be the hog. He it is that converts all the waste products into a merchantable article with the greatest despatch and least loss. All through the winter the packers' demand for ordinary pork was steady at a price that seldom fell below $5 a hundred, when cattle and sheep were selling slow, and though farmers were sold short, such is the prolific yield of good sows there were no fears of the kind of a shortage in this year's crop that occurs when animals that require a longer time to mature are sold close. Yet there is no animal that receives less attention from the expert investigators who are laboring to advance agricultural interests, and many of the problems connected with hog raising are no nearer a solution than they were twenty years ago. We know that hog cholera continues to prevail in certain sections, which we broadly term the corn belt, but we have not learned its cause, though various theories have been advanced, one of the most popular attributing it to germs present in the soil of those sections. Nitrogenous foods and abundant exercise are supposed to help by developing a hardy constitution that will resist disease, but the hogs of the eastern states, born and bred in pens with never a taste of pasture and fattened on western corn, never have cholera.

In reviewing the work of the experiment stations and of the agricultural department at Washington, as well as that of private investigators, one is struck by what appears to be almost a conspiracy to ignore the hog. The hen also suffers somewhat from this unjust discrimination on the part of experimenters, but her claims are being allowed and her fortunes are looking up.

Not so with the hog. He is regarded as a gross money maker of low instincts and grovelling habits that entirely unfit him for scientific associations. Even pedigrees do not help him much with disinterested observers, for we are already hearing dire prophesies about the "breeding away" of the fine constitution that characterized the old razor back.

Can we not find some learned investigator who will make a thorough study of the every-day market hog and his needs and not leave us entirely to the guidance of hog feeders and breeders who mean well, but who are working for immediate results and not for future generations of hogs? Let's have more hog instruction from competent advisers.

The Potato Crop.

A short time ago the experiment station at Burlington sent out word that the potato blight and rot threatened to do serious damage in Vermont this fall. Later reports from the same source say that the fears of trouble were all realized, and that there has been in fact a considerable amount of loss already to potato growers.

The rot follows the late blight and comes from the same cause. Those who have late blight in their fields, therefore, are bound to have rot; and in all such cases special care ought to be taken in sorting and storing the potatoes for winter.

The experiment station still insists that proper spraying, backed up by proper cultivation, will protect the potato crop from these diseases. Continued experiments and practical field tests covering a period of ten years or more have proved this beyond the possibility of doubt. Even now, in the latter part of September, when most potato vines are dead and many fields of potatoes already dug, the experiment station potato fields are as green and growing as any time in July or August; and the potato expert claims that they are making potatoes now at the rate of 25 to 30 bushels a week for every acre.

Wouldn't it pay potato growers to look into that matter?—Vermont Experiment Station.

Packing Butter for Long Shipments.

Consul Hughes of Coburg thus describes a new method of packing butter for long shipments: A light wooden case or box is lined thoroughly at the bottom and sides with a layer of plaster of paris one-fourth of an inch thick, on which common glass slabs, with their edges fastened together with gummed paper, so as to make a perfect fitting box are placed. In this box the butter is put, packed in good waterproof paper in 10-pound packages. The glass top is then put on and sealed carefully with gummed paper bands so as to make the box air tight. A one-fourth inch layer of plaster of paris is then put over this and the wooden cover nailed on. Each of the cases is made to contain about 200 pounds of butter. The plaster of paris, being a non-conductor, very little heat reaches the butter, which arrives at its destination in good condition. It is reported that very successful results have been obtained by shipping butter packed in this manner from Melbourne to Kimberley—rather a severe test.

It is a true saying that the right kind of poultry managed in the right way is profitable. But when we have said that we have given a very wide latitude to the assertion. For in "management" we comprise innumerable questions that must be settled one way or the other and the settlement of which questions has in it the whole question of profit or loss in the transaction. The poultry business is at that point where it takes brains to make money out of it. Brains means not only native intelligence but also a good fund of information and the ability to apply that fund of information to the conditions as they exist in any place. One writer asserts that three times as many people lose money through poultry as make money. How does he know? Has he a list of the people that have tried poultry raising and failed or succeeded? Of course not. It is without doubt true that taking people as a whole more make a success than a failure of it. The man that makes the remark quoted doubtless referred to those men that have put large sums of money into the poultry business and made that their one effort in life. If that is his meaning he comes nearer to being right, but it would be mere guessing to say what the proportion is.

RACE FOR LIBERTY

DESPERATE MAN FIGHTS CLEAR OF TWO DETECTIVES AND ESCAPES.

ONE OF GREAT NORTHERN ROBBERS

ATTEMPT TO GET CHANGE FROM A MONTANA BANK BILL GIVES HIM AWAY.

THRILLING CHASE BY OFFICERS

FUGITIVE HELPS HIMSELF TO HORSES TO AID IN RACE FOR LIBERTY.

Nashville, Tenn., Oct. 28.—A desperate man fought his way clear of two city detectives here yesterday, and, after a thrilling chase, escaped. In his race for liberty he utilized a two-horse wagon team, a horse and buggy and a riding horse, all forcibly taken, while two dead bloodhounds mark the first portion of his trail.

Officers believe the man is one of the gang that held up the Great Northern express near Wagner, Mont., last June, his attempt to get change for a $20 bill of the series secured in that robbery attracting the attention of the police to him.

At noon yesterday morning a raw-boned man about five feet ten inches high, with florid complexion, offered the bill in payment of a small purchase made at a store on the public square. Difficulty in making the change caused the salesman to closely notice the bill, which proved to be on the Montana bank to which were consigned. The police were quietly notified, the clerk meanwhile delaying the matter of the change. Detectives Dwyer and Dickens were soon on hand and approaching the man, demanded his name.

"Ferguson," was the reply, and after another question or two Detective Dwyer informed the man he was under arrest. Quick as a flash Ferguson had a revolver in each hand and started for the door. A hand-to-hand fight followed, both detectives grappling with the stranger, who proved more than a match for them. Using his pistols as clubs he fought his way to the door and fled down the street. A passing ice wagon caught his attention and the three negro occupants were soon out of his way. Then, at a terrific pace, the wagon was headed across the Cumberland river bridge into East Nashville, a fusillade of shots following it. On Woodland street went the flying team, but a sudden turn into First street

Soon Brought It to Grief.

One of the horses fell and broke his leg, but the fugitive was not to be delayed. Running across the street he held up an old negro who was driving by in a buggy and the flight was continued. Out into the commons he sped. Once the buggy overturned, but was quickly righted. Finally the third horse was abandoned, and after a dive into Shelby Park on foot, the supposed bandit secured another horse which was hitched at a point near the park. Then after a sensational ride the horse was left and the flight continued on foot. Further on the pursuers found two of the bloodhounds used in the chase shot to death a short distance apart, and after that the trace of the man was lost.

The sheriff with a large posse is now scouring the country for the missing man. When the buggy was abandoned the man threw away a wallet containing $1,000 in ten and twenty-dollar bills of the Montana bank. The chief of police now has the money.

MOTHER AND SON POISONED.

Another Son Is Suspected of Committing the Crime.

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 28.—Lying unconscious at their home at this city Mrs. Rebecca Welsh and her son Charles were found by neighbors yesterday evidently suffering from slow corrosive poisoning. The young man died last night, his mother cannot live, and his brother, F. G. Welsh, who it is alleged, was ordered from home several days ago, is under arrest. His sister Cora, aged twenty, who had been in the house with the victims who had been sick since Friday noon, is under police surveillance. She says her mother and brother became very sick after eating dinner Friday, and claims she was also taken ill and was unable to rise until yesterday morning, when she tried to arouse the unconscious sufferers, and, falling, laid down and slept until awakened by neighbors who were attracted to the house by the groans of the victims. The young woman says she does not believe her brother Grant poisoned the family's food. Physicians claim Charles died of slow corrosive poisoning.

KILLED FOR FIFTY CENTS.

That Was Not Enough, So the Boy's Murderer Gave Himself Up.

Montreal, Oct. 28.—"I killed a boy last night," said Tobin Hanson, a Dane thirty-two years old, to the officer in charge when he walked into central police station yesterday. "I killed him for money and I only got 50 cents. That is not enough so I came to give myself up." Hanson described the locality in which the deed had been committed and the police found the boy's body. It was identified as Samuel Marotto, a son of Samuel Marotto, a well known spice and coffee merchant.

SWINDLERS CONVICTED.

Liverpool Cotton Firm Is Out Fifty Thousand Dollars.

Waco, Tex., Oct. 28.—L. J. Guvmas of Mexico, Tex., and W. J. Home of New Orleans, who, in 1896, made a contract with a Liverpool firm to ship them cotton, were convicted in the federal court here. The cotton was shipped with drafts attached to bills of lading which were cashed. When the cotton was examined it was found to be linters. The Liverpool people are said to have lost $50,000.

CZOLGOSZ'S LAST HOURS.

Officials Anxious to Deprive the Execution of Notoriety.

Auburn, N. Y., Oct. 28.—The time which Leon F. Czolgosz, the assassin of President McKinley, has to live is reckoned by hours now, but there has been no relaxation of the stringent rule under which the prisoner has been secluded since his confinement. Auburn prison was closed yesterday to any who sought the assassin, and so it will remain until the prisoner has paid the penalty which the law exacts. In fact the plan to deprive Czolgosz living of any notoriety has been extended to deprive Czolgosz dead of notoriety. Immediately after the execution the clothing of the murderer with the vast accumulation of mail that came to the prison for him will be burned, and if possible the request of the parents of the dead man for his remains will be evaded. It is feared that the removal of his body to Cleveland would lead to scenes of an unfortunate nature, and the prison officials are anxious to avoid anything of the kind. The plan of burning the clothing and letters of the murderer will prevent the exhibition of relics by those who pander to the morbid. The hour of 7 on Tuesday morning is the time set by Warden Mead for the execution.

AN ACTIVE ADMIRAL.

Crowninshield to Take Charge of European Squadron.

Washington, Oct. 28.—Secretary Long announced Saturday that Admiral A. S. Crowninshield, chief of the navigation bureau at present, would be detached from that position and take command of the European squadron next March, being relieved of his present duties by Admiral Henry C. Taylor. The secretary said that this plan had been arranged last April, when, upon the expiration of Admiral Crowninshield's four years' commission as chief of the navigation bureau, he was recommissioned for another term. The date was fixed as March 9 next, because on that day Admiral Crowninshield, who now holds the title of ex-officio, as head of the navigation bureau, will become a rear admiral in fact, through the ordinary course of retirement and promotion.

ENRAGED MAN'S DEED.

Denied a Sight of His Children, He Kills His Wife and Himself.

Chicago, Oct. 28.—Because he was denied the sight of his two little children, James Kennedy, a laborer, yesterday murdered his wife and killed himself. The couple was married twelve years ago, but quarreled recently and separated. Kennedy called on his wife yesterday and asked to see the children. Fearing that he meant to take them away from her she told him they had gone to church. In a few minutes, however, when they heard their father's voice, they came running from a bedroom where they had been hidden by the mother. This enraged Kennedy and, pulling a revolver, he fired three shots into his wife, killing her. He then turned the revolver on himself, and when found a few minutes later was dead.

SEVERAL BADLY BURNED.

Baby Overturns a Lamp and Starts a Conflagration.

Pittsburg, Oct. 28.—Thirteen-months-old Robbie Busler last night at his home, No. 40 Arch street, Allegheny, pulled a lighted lamp from a table and was so badly burned that he can live but a few hours. His mother, Mary Busler, in her efforts to save the baby, was seriously burned about the head and breast. Her recovery is doubtful. Three neighbors, Peter Grimes, Patrick McDermott and James McGovern, were all painfully burned about the face and hands while extinguishing the flames which enveloped the mother and child and threatened the destruction of the house. In her excitement Mrs. Busler ran into the yard with her clothing ablaze. It became necessary for her rescuers to literally tear her clothing from her.

UNCLE SAM IS WATCHFUL.

Government Prevents Big Shipment of Arms and Ammunition to South America.

San Francisco, Oct. 28.—Suspicious circumstances surrounding a big shipment of arms and ammunition on the Chilean steamer Lea, now lying in this port, has led to action by the United States authorities to prevent any possibility of the warlike goods reaching the hands of Central American insurgents. The cases contain 4,700 Remington rifles and bayonets and 2,500,000 ball cartridges.

BLACK HILLS BLAZE.

Fire Destroys a Large Cyanide Plant at Ragged Top.

Deadwood, S. D., Oct. 28.—The large cyanide plant at Ragged Top, owned and operated by the Spearfish Mining Company of Colorado Springs, Colo., was completely destroyed by fire early Saturday morning. Loss, $50,000; insurance about half. The fire started in the lower part of the building and, there being no fire protection, it was soon a total wreck. The loss to mining interests also will be considerable until the mill can be rebuilt.

Miser Dead, Money Hidden.

La Crosse, Wis., Oct. 28.—In the undertaking rooms at North Bend, a small town near here, lie the remains of David Randall, who has lived the life of a recluse in a hut near that place for years. He had no relatives and thus far the remains have not been claimed. He had been a miser and is thought to have left $500,000 hidden away, no one knowing the hiding place.

"Topeka Joe" Is Located.

Toledo, Oct. 28.—J. B. Evans, better known as "Topeka Joe," the famous postoffice robber who escaped jail here recently, has been located in the woods near Sarnia, Can., and a posse of men is on his track. There is a heavy reward for his capture.

Miss Minnie Dorothy Pepper, granddaughter of Millionaire Christian Pepper of St. Louis, has announced to her friends her engagement to Hall Hamilton of Topeka, Kan. Both are members of James K. Hackett's company.

GEN. CHAFFEE ORDERS PRACTICE PARADES OF ALL THE TROOPS.

TO IMPRESS RESTLESS NATIVES

STRINGENT MEASURES TO SUPPRESS INSURRECTION IN SAMAR.

CONDITIONS IN CEBU BRIGHTEN

LOREGA HAS SURRENDERED WITH HIS ENTIRE FORCE AND SUPPLIES.

Manila, Oct. 28.—Gen. Chaffee has ordered that hereafter so-called practice parades shall be held here every week, in which all the Manila troops will participate. The object of these parades will be to impress the restless population. The military authorities have made elaborate preparations to defend life and property in the remotely possible event of there being trouble here.

Dispatches from Catbalogan, Samar, say that stringent and energetic measures are being taken to suppress the insurrection in that island. Gen. Smith has notified all the presidentes and head men of the Pueblos that in order to avoid trouble they must surrender all arms and turn over the men implicated in the Balangiga massacre before Nov. 6, threatening that otherwise the presidentes will be sent to the island of Guam, the

the Villages Destroyed and their property confiscated. The marines under Maj. Littleton W. T. Waller have been stationed at Balangiga and Basy and ten gunboats are vigorously patrolling the southern coast. Several villages of head men have been destroyed. Naval Cadet Loveman Noa, commanding the gunboat Mariveles, who had gone ashore at Nara Nipa, South Samar, to prevent smuggling, was attacked by insurgents. He lost his revolver and was shot and boloed.

Lieut. Louis J. Van Schaick reports that an attack by insurgents on the municipal police and scouts at Sabing one scout was killed and two of the police were captured. The insurgents secured two Krag-Jorgensen rifles, two shotguns and 200 rounds of ammunition. Lieut. Van Schaick has been ordered to occupy the suburg of Sabing.

Fight With Insurgents.

The constabulary report a fight with insurgents near Passi, province of Iloilo, island of Panay, in which twenty-five insurgents were killed and three captured, together with a quantity of arms and ammunition.

The news from Gen. Hughes regarding conditions in the island of Cebu is encouraging. Lorega has surrendered with his entire force and one cannon and seven rifles, while Gen. Hughes is negotiating for the surrender of Maxilom, who styles himself "Governor Politico-Militar." His surrender will mean the pacification of the province.

NO MORE "SENORS" IN LUZON.

American Titles, "Mr." and "Mrs." and "Miss," to Supersede Spanish Personages Hereafter.

Washington, Oct. 28.—Gen. Wade has issued a circular in Southern Luzon doing away with the Spanish titles of "don, senor, senora and senorita," and gives for those appellations the American equivalent, "Mr., Mrs. and Miss."

KING EDWARD HAS CANCER.

London Newspaper Asserts That Three Operations Have Been Performed.

London, Oct. 28.—Reynold's Weekly is the first British paper to assert that King Edward is suffering from cancer of the throat. In yesterday's issue it declares that since his majesty's accession three operations have been performed for the removal of papilloma on the left vocal chord and that one was removed from the right vocal chord last week.

"Assistance was hastily summoned," says this journal, "as his majesty was breathing with difficulty, and an immediate operation was performed. But it was regarded as only a temporary relief, the injured epithelium now having become a cancerous growth and serious developments are expected."

ENGLAND ANGRY WITH HOLLAND.

British Government Asks the Dutch Ministry to Recall Its Consul at Pretoria.

Brussels, Oct. 28.—The relations between Holland and Great Britain again appear to be somewhat strained. According to intelligence which is being circulated here, Great Britain asked Holland to recall her consul at Pretoria because he was suspected of facilitating treasonable correspondence. Holland has given the consul indefinite leave of absence.

Big Forest Fire Raging.

Colorado Springs, Colo., Oct. 28.—A big forest fire is raging on the mountain range in the vicinity of Garfield mountain, directly south of Pike's Peak. The fire started yesterday afternoon from an unknown cause, and, driven by a high wind, spread over a big area. The blaze is easily discernible from this city. So far as can be learned there are no houses in danger, but much damage will be done to timber.

In a Fit of Jealous Rage.

Kansas City, Oct. 28.—Ross Sheridan, a well known and highly connected young man of Independence, Mo., in a fit of jealous rage, yesterday shot and mortally wounded "Writ" Berkey, his rival.

Town Destroyed by Fire.

London, Oct. 28.—"The town of Bobruisk, in the government of Minsk, has been destroyed by fire," says a dispatch to the Daily Mail from St. Petersburg, "and several lives have been lost."

IOWA IS BEATEN AT LAST.

Hawkeyes' Long List of Victories Checked by Gophers.

Minneapolis, Oct. 28.—Iowa will no longer boast of an uncrossed goal line, and to the husky Gophers belongs the glory of defeating the heavy Hawkeyes for the first time in three years. The game was one of the fiercest and cleanest ever witnessed on Northrop Field. It was a wonderful exhibition of strength and sinews. Minnesota warned Iowa that in playing Capt. Williams it would violate one of the rules adopted by the "Big Nine" conference, and five minutes before the game Iowa decided it would not be wise to play him. Griffith, the little seventeen-year-old brother of Iowa's last year's captain, played at quarter and won the admiration of the grand stand for his pluck and ability.

Iowa played a hard game and is deserving of much credit. For thirty minutes the score was 0 to 0, and the contest was not won until the last whistle had sounded. Final score, 16 to 0.

DOWNED BY BADGERS.

Wisconsin Team Too Heavy for the Kansas Boys.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 28.—Kansas went down to defeat before Wisconsin Saturday by a score of 50 to 0, hopelessly outplayed from start to finish. Kansas in her tandem plays with guards and tackles back proved a puzzle to the Badgers up to the end of the game, but the Badgers outweighed and outgeneraled the visitors.

SHOT BY ROBBERS.

North Dakota Man Hesitates When Told to Hold Up His Hands.

Larimore, N. D., Oct. 28.—Last evening Tolef Halverson and Christ Sandland were riding from Park River to Larimore on a freight train. While getting out of a car at Junction, two miles west of here, they were met by two masked men who ordered them to throw up their hands. Sandland, instead of complying, started to run. He was fired at twice, but he continued running. One of the robbers took after him and upon catching him placed the revolver against his neck and fired. The highwaymen then led their two victims out half a mile on the prairie, where they went through them. The robbers took $25 from Halverson and $23 from Sandland. The latter also had a certified check for $250. It is believed the highwaymen came down on the same train and knowing that Christ had this money expected to secure it, not knowing he had purchased a certified check. Sandland will probably die. His relatives live at Park River, and are quite prominent people.

MRS. GEBHARD SET FREE.

Divorce Granted, but on the Woman's Petition.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Oct. 28.—Fred Gebhard, for years the close friend of Mrs. Langtry, was given a surprise when the hearing of his suit for divorce came up in court Saturday. Gebhard secured his liberty, but not in the way he desired, for the divorce was granted to Mrs. Gebhard, who, before her marriage, was Louise Morris, a belle of Baltimore. Judge Jones, before whom the hearing in the case was held, decided that Gebhard instead of Mrs. Gebhard was guilty of willful desertion. In Gebhard's divorce suit, which was filed on Sept. 30 last, he charged his wife with having deserted him in September, 1899. Mrs. Gebhard, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Morris of Baltimore, arrived here Saturday. Soon after her arrival she filed a cross-bill, in which she charged that it was she and not her husband who had been deserted. Gebhard replied to this, denying the allegations.

GRADE CROSSING ACCIDENT.

Three Persons Killed and One Seriously Injured.

Milwaukee, Oct. 28.—Three persons were killed and one seriously injured by being struck by a train en route to Chicago on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road while driving over a grade crossing at Oakwood, a small town fifteen miles south of here.

Splendid Military Record.

La Crosse, Wis., Oct. 28.—First Lieut. Otto Kunard of Company B, W. N. G., of this city, has resigned his command with a splendid military record. Pressing business matters are given as the reason for his resignation. Lieut. Kunard went to Porto Rico as second lieutenant, and after the battle of Coamo was promoted to first lieutenant for bravery. His successor has not yet been named.

Studying Trempeleau Mountain.

Winona, Minn., Oct. 28.—Over 100 normal students went to Trempeleau mountain for the purpose of studying the line of geography. They were under the charge of Prof. J. M. Holzinger. Luncheon was taken along and the entire day was spent at the mountain. A special train was provided on the Burlington to bring them home early in the evening.

Corn-Husking in South Dakota.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Oct. 28.—Farmers generally throughout the state have commenced the work of husking their corn. Help is very scarce and the corn will not be handled very rapidly. In many parts of the state the corn will average forty bushels to the acre, according to the yields of that which has thus far been husked.

Boy Burns to Death.

Dell Rapids, S. D., Oct. 28.—The five-year-old son of Roy Renning, a farmer living near Wentworth, met a horrible death. His father was burning stubble and the child's clothes caught fire and he burned to death.

First Time in Ninety Years.

La Crosse, Wis., Oct. 28.—Mrs. P. Peterson, aged ninety, was forced to call a doctor for the first time in her life, the occasion being an accident, breaking her hip and wrist. She is hale and hearty otherwise and was about her household duties when injured by falling on the basement stairs.

Loses His Home.

Dodge Center, Minn., Oct. 28.—The house of Oscar Sanford burned yesterday morning. Most of the contents was saved.

LUMBER IN ASHES

Ten Million Feet of Lumber Is Destroyed, Causing a Loss of About $200,000.

Iron River, Wis., Oct. 27.—Fire yesterday destroyed ten million feet of lumber at the Alexander & Edgar yards here. The loss will amount to about $200,000. The lumber was all of the best quality. The fire simply burned itself out. There was a strong wind and no way to stop the fire. The wind happened to be right on the mill or the greater portion of the town would have been destroyed. The fire is supposed to have started from a spark from the mill. There was difficulty in getting the water works started, and the pump at the mill was out of order. An engine was called from Superior, forty-nine miles away, but it arrived too late. The lumber is all insured.

CHILD ROASTED.

Seriously Burned in Hot Ashes, but May Live.

Grand Forks, N. D., Oct. 27.—Gottlieb Klein and his wife, with their one child, aged two years, live near Washburn, in a small shanty. At the rear of the cabin is a hole in the ground into which ashes have been dumped to prevent coals from blowing about. A few days ago the two parents went to visit a neighbor, leaving the child at home. Before leaving Mrs. Klein removed the ashes from the stove and threw them into the hole. During their absence the child in some way got out of the house and went on a tour of exploration around the premises. He fell into the hole, on top of the hot ashes, and there he remained until the arrival of his parents, about two hours later. The child was terribly burned, and suffered fearfully, but when last heard from was thought likely to live.

WOLVES KILL SHEEP.

One Farmer Has Lost 100 Sheep the Past Year.

Granite Falls, Minn., Oct. 27.—Wolves in this county are attacking the sheep herds. Mr. Langmald, a farmer living in Minnesota Falls township, reports that he has had a hundred sheep killed by the wolves this season. Mr. Griswold had eleven killed in one night recently. Mr. Langmald has to send a man or boy out with the sheep when they are in the pasture just to keep the wolves away. Some good sport might be gotten out of a hunt as well as some practical good done. Wolves are frequently seen prowling along the highway by farmers coming to town.

DODGES BULLETS.

Bold Attempt of Three Men to Hold Up a Storekeeper.

Grand Forks, N. D., Oct. 27.—Three men entered the second-hand store of M. Rosenswag on Third street about 5 o'clock, and while two of them engaged Rosenswag in conversation the third drew a revolver and demanded money. Rosenswag failed to comply and the robber sent a bullet past his ear. Rosenswag ducked behind the counter in time to dodge a second bullet and made a long dive through the window into the street, cutting his hand on the broken glass as he went through. Two arrests were made on suspicion.

MYSTERIOUSLY MISSING.

Butterfield, Minn., Man Disappears—Had Money With Him.

Comfrey, Minn., Oct. 27.—John D. Rupp, a resident of Butterfield, a town near here, has disappeared. His absence dates from last May. During that month he was known to have had a check cashed for a large amount of money. Soon after this he disappeared and no clew has yet been discovered that tends to throw any light on the subject. He was about forty-five years old, single, and is said to have had considerable money. His brother has arrived from Kansas and is endeavoring to solve the mystery.

ANOTHER DOWIE CONVERT.

Belvidere, Minn., Farmer Joins the Zion City Colony.

Red Wing, Minn., Oct. 27.—W. E. Holst, a well-to-do farmer who has lived for many years in Belvidere, this county, has sold his property and joined Dowie's Zion City. He has a wife and several children. Mr. Holst was converted to the Dowie Creed by some pamphlets sent him. He sold his farm for $6,100 but it is not known whether he turned over all his money to the alleged prophet.

The Dietic and Hygienic Gazette says: "Walter Baker & Co., of Dorchester, Mass., U. S. A., have given years of study to the skillful preparation of cocoa and chocolate, and have devised machinery and systems peculiar to their methods of treatment, whereby the purity, palatability, and highest nutrient characteristics are retained. Their preparations are known the world over, and have received the highest endorsements from the medical practitioner, the nurse, and the intelligent housekeeper and caterer."

Prominent Republican Dead.

La Crosse, Wis., Oct. 28.—Alexander McMillan, one of the most prominent Republicans of the state, a former member of the state legislature and a former mayor of this city, died yesterday, aged seventy-six.

Run Over and Killed.

Bloomer, Wis., Oct. 27.—Aug. Lambery was run over and instantly killed by a traction engine six miles from here. He was walking near the engine when he slipped and fell between the wheels.

Convicted of Assault.

Red Wing, Minn., Oct. 27.—George Shertoun of Pine Island has been convicted of a criminal assault on a fourteen-year-old girl named Bessie Barteau, and will be sentenced to the state prison.

BOY HAS NARROW ESCAPE.

Locked Up by Playmate and Is Accidentally Found.

Winona, Minn., Oct. 26.—Little Kenneth Kerfoot, the four-year-old son of Rev. and Mrs. S. F. Kerfoot of this city, was shut in a locker on the Y. M. C. A. tennis court here Wednesday evening and could not be found for several hours. His discovery was then only accidental. If he had not been found at that time it is probable that he would have died there, for the tennis house had been searched before. It was locked up for the season and would not have been opened again until next spring. The playmate who locked him in is so small that she could not explain what she had done. Hundreds of neighbors had joined in the search before the boy was found, and the mother was almost distracted with grief.

GLOVER NOT GUILTY.

Man Who Shot to Save His Own Life Is Set Free by the Jury.

Gettysburg, S. D., Oct. 26.—The jury in the Daly murder trial came into court yesterday with a verdict of not guilty. The case has occupied four days and has attracted considerable notice because of the motive which prompted the crime. Glover, who was acquitted, killed Daly, a man who had threatened his life on several occasions. He boasted of such intentions and ordered Glover out of town. Being hounded by the fear that Daly would finally accomplish his intention and deprive his wife and baby of his support, Glover became desperate and shot Daly from the second-story window of his home while Daly was waiting outside for a chance to shoot Glover.

THROWN OVER AN EMBANKMENT.

Passenger Train Wrecked and Three Persons Fatally Injured.

Ottumwa, Iowa, Oct. 26.—Chicago, Burlington & Kansas City passenger train No. 1 was wrecked two miles east of Exline yesterday. The entire train, consisting of a coach and mail and combination cars, with the engine, was thrown over a forty-foot embankment. The cars were all splintered in small pieces. There were nearly thirty passengers in the coach. Three were probably fatally injured and five others badly hurt. The wreck is thought to have been caused by a rail turning where the track had been torn up. Exline is a small station a few miles from the Missouri line.

WAR ON CIGARETTES.

Humane Society Starts a Crusade in La Crosse.

La Crosse, Wis., Oct. 26.—The humane society has started a war against the use of cigarettes in this city and Humane Officer Bowlby is now investigating the cigarette evil among small boys as well as older ones. Dime novels are also on the black list, and an effort will be made to induce dealers to discontinue their sale and also other literature of the same character. It is the intention of the humane society to visit saloons, cigar stores and other places where cigarettes are sold and point out the law to the proprietors, and in this manner do away with the sale of the cigarettes.

WOULD SUPPRESS IT.

The Citizens of La Crosse and Football.

La Crosse, Wis., Oct. 26.—Malvin Severson, aged twelve years, had a collarbone and his right arm dislocated and was bruised about the head and body while playing football. He is a member of the Ward school team and parents of the vicinity are up in arms to have football prohibited in schools here. This is the fourth serious accident in two weeks. A petition has been sent to the board of education asking that football shall be forbidden.

HELD TO GRAND JURY.

Patrick Kane Is Charged With Murdering His Wife.

Prairie du Chien, Wis., Oct. 26.—Patrick Kane, held in the county jail here on a charge of murder, was yesterday bound over to the November term of the circuit court. Kane is charged with the murder of his wife on Sept. 23. It is said he shot her with a shotgun while she was in bed. She died nine days later. The defense is trying to prove that the shooting was accidental.

TWO PERSONS KILLED.

Tree Falls Across a Carriage Containing Six Persons.

Monroe, Wis., Oct. 26.—While driving in a carriage with a party of four others Daniel France and wife of Fairview, Kan., were killed at Cedarville, near here yesterday by a large tree that some men were cutting down, which fell across the road when it was wedged to fall the opposite direction. The four other occupants of the carriage escaped uninjured.

Lands at $1 an Acre.

Belle Fourche, S. D., Oct. 26.—Harding county, which is adjacent to Butte county, is a very desirable place for stockmen and ranchers. All the arid land is being taken up under the desert land act, which enables the husband to buy 160 acres of land at $1 per acre. Reservoirs are being built for the purpose of retaining the surface waters, making irrigation profitable.

Land Buyers Overrun South Dakota.

Lake Preston, S. D., Oct. 26.—Frank Zoller sold three farms, four miles south of here to Iowa parties for $13,500. The town is full of land buyers. The hotels are overrun and it is hard to get a bed to sleep in.

Little Girl Burned to Death.

Watertown, S. D., Oct. 26.—The barn of M. H. Thornton was burned last evening and his little girl was burned to death. The fire was caused by children playing with matches. Two boys were badly injured.

POULTRY.

A Half-Column of Don'ts and News.

Don't breed a Hamburg that has a single comb.

Never use a "clay-breasted" Partridge Cochin female.

Never use a bronze turkey tom that has a slim shank.

Never use a bird that shows any tendency to knock-knees.

Never breed extremes in form or color if at all avoidable.

Never use a bird that has a natural deformity of any kind.

Never use a bird that is inferior in size to its sex of its breed.

Avoid white birds that have straw-colored backs and wing bows.

Never discard goose or gander because of its age—the older the better.

Never use a pullet to sell eggs from until you have tested her laying qualities.

Never mate a male of any breed that is easily cowed by all the other males.

Never use one that has a scant leg and toe feathering, if a feather-legged breed.

Never use a Pekin duck that does not walk quite erect, nor one that has a short body.

Never use one of the pinkish-white shanks if its breed calls for yellow or dark yellow shanks.

The Teacher's Wife.

Clarissa, Minn., Oct. 28th.—Mrs. Clara Keys, wife of Charles Keys, school teacher of this place, tells a wonderful story.

For years her life was one of misery. Her back ached all the time, her head ached all the time, her back ached all the time, neuralgic pains drove her to desperation. She used much medicine, but failed to get any relief till she tried Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"Very soon after I began using Dodd's Kidney Pills all my aches and pains vanished like the morning dew. I consider this remedy a God-send to suffering womanhood."

Encouraged by their success in her own case, Mrs. Keys induced her mother, an old lady of 74 years, to use Dodd's Kidney Pills for her many aches and pains. Now both mother and daughter rejoice in perfect freedom from illness or suffering, which is something neither had enjoyed for years before.

He Enjoyed the Shave.

He was one of those smooth-faced young men who chew gum because it's ladylike and smoke cigarettes because it's manly. He couldn't have stood under the mistletoe in a short-waist for five minutes without tempting something with a deep bass voice and whiskers to meander that way.

"Hair cut?" asked the barber, as he threw his head back on the rest.

"Naw, course not!" indignantly replied the customer. "Can't yer see I want a shave?"

The barber heaved a weary sigh as he lathered the face, which looked like an advertisement for somebody's complexion balm. Then he picked up a neck razor, whipped it over the strop once, and scraped the lather off with the back of the instrument.

"By Jove, a shave makes a man feel better!" ejaculated the smooth-faced one, rubbing his hand gently over his skin.

"That's the fourth one t' throw things to day," growled the barber.—Denver Times.

Anxious Querist.

It was a female voice that came over the telephone wire this time:

"Is this the weather forecaster?"

"Yes, ma'am. Can I do anything for you?"

"Yes, sir. I would like to have you tell me how much longer this humidity is going to last."

"Pardon me, but why do you wish to know that?"

"Because I washed my hair a week ago, and I want to find out how much longer I've got to wait for it to dry."—Chicago Tribune.

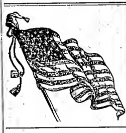
WEDNESDAY, OCT. 30, 1901.



Leon Czolgosz, the murderer of President McKinley has given his life for the life he took. He was put to death by the electric method yesterday morning at Auburn prison in New York state at about 7:15 o'clock. During his last moments he preserved the same air of defiance which has characterized him all the time. His last words were: "I killed the president because he was an enemy to the good people—the working people. I am not sorry." And then, "I am awfully sorry I could not see my father."

It is strange bow a man who could commit such a cold-blooded crime could yet be possessed of any filial affection. No doubt his immediate friends think that he paid too high a price for his crime, but the American people feel that tho' the assassin had been possessed of hundreds of lives, all could not pay for the life of their esteemed and loved president.

Hon. Nat Campbell, Mayor of Crookston, with a few friends recently spent a few days hunting in the vicinity of Mud Lake. On their return Nat told the Crookston Times man that he had seen a flock of ducks in flight which was about four miles wide and took 25 minutes to pass.

Now the wild duck in flight is estimated to travel at the rate of 120 miles per hour. At this rate that flock would contain about 200 square miles of ducks or 128,000 acres. Thats quite a little bunch of ducks when you come to think of it.

We would suggest to Mr Campbel that when he next goes up there to hunt that he patronize his home dealer and take his supplies along from Crookston. Evidently the Thief River Falls stuff must have worked over time.

"Button Holes For Sale Here" is a sign which peers out through a rather dirty window of a lower floor tenement on the east side. In view of the possibility that it might mean just what it said and that the dealer really sold holes for buttons a Tribune reporter investigated.

A woman whose dress was a mixture of bathing suit and ball gown answered his knock.

"You sell buttonholes here?" was asked.

"Naw, we make 'em!" she exclaimed, with as much disgust as a very squeaky voice was capable of showing.

"Well, the sign in the window says"—

"Never mind the sign!" she snapped back. "What do you want with me?"

She was, finally persuaded to tell something of her new business.

"You see, it's this way," she began. "The working girls who live over here have to dress pretty well and do it on little money. Most of 'em makes their own clothes, but they have not too much time to do the work in. Now, if you was a woman you'd know that it was mighty hard to make buttonholes, specially by hand. Poor girls can't afford buttonhole machines. They make up the dresses and bring 'em over to us, and we put in the buttonholes at so much a hole, 'cording to the kind of stuff and how well they wants it dune. And that's all there is to it."

'Twas an Irish Bull.

Before the days of proper safeguards a good many cattle got in the paths of Michigan railroads and were killed outright or so badly injured as to necessitate putting them out of misery. These happenings frequently afforded the owners of the cattle an opportunity to bring suit against the railroad companies, so that the employees were required to be very careful as to details and to keep a strict record of the manner of a cow's death, etc. Regular printed reports of such cases had to be turned in by the section master, who was required to fill out blanks stating the probable age of the deceased animal, weight, color, distinguishing marks and disposition of carcass, the animal being sometimes cut up and sold for beef.

Naturally it was an Irish section "schuperintindher" who, like Flanigan in his terse report of a wreck, simply stated, "Off ag'in, on ag'in—Flanegan," made out the record of a certain bovine tragedy in a characteristic way. Mike guessed pretty well at the age and weight and color of the dead cow, but when he came to the line "disposition of carcass" he scratched his head reflectively.

"Sure," he muttered, "she doled aisy annyway." Then opposite the line he scrawled, "Kind and gentle."—Detroit Free Press.

What a Daub of Ink Did.

A certain newspaper proprietor had a way of appearing in the composing and press rooms at the most unexpected times, and as his visits often resulted in a general "shakeup" of the working forces of the paper they were awaited with fear and trembling by the employees.

One time one of the pressmen, an excellent workman, who had been there many years, but was sometimes guilty of a lapse of sobriety, had a black eye and was in a quandary as to what excuse he should offer if the proprietor noticed it. By a sudden inspiration he seized an ink roller and daubed some ink on his face, quite covering the discoloration. Presently the governor came in and, with the foreman, went through the room, commenting on every detail and looking very sharply at every workman. When about to leave, he suddenly pointed to the inky pressman and said, "What is that man's name?"

The man quaked in his shoes until he continued slowly: "I want you to give that man 5 shillings a week more wages. He is the only man in the room who looks as if he had been working."

Something to Brace Up On.

It was along about noon when a well dressed man lined up against the bar. He had the air and looked the part of a high liver, but there was every sign of a bad night. He stretched himself, rubbed his head and said to the bartender:

"I want something to brace up on."

"All right, sir. "What'll it be?"

"Get the large lemonade glass and break five eggs in it."

Chapman, the bartender, looked at him suspiciously and hesitated.

"That's what I want," he ordered.

Chapman broke five raw eggs in the glass and waited for further orders.

"Now a pint of champagne."

Chapman opened the bottle, and the customer poured it on top of the eggs and, taking a spoon, stirred the mixture thoroughly and then drank it. Then he paid his bill and walked out.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Prunes as Medicine.

That the fruit possesses very considerable virtue in this respect is conceded by most eminent authorities, and for this reason as well as on account of their food value they are included among the foods suitable for invalids, children and those whose digestive powers are rather inactive. Their influence is mild, which fact makes them desirable for the not over robust.

A dish of well cooked rice and prunes, made dainty and attractive for serving, is a dish to serve for either a breakfast, luncheon or a dessert, especially for the child or invalid, and should be added especially to our list of hot weather dishes, frequently replacing meat and potatoes and heavy, unseasonable desserts.

A Man of Experience.

"You are quite sure, Uncle Rusbrod," she queried, "that Judy has no idea there are only books in those two boxes you took this morning over to the courthouse in the cart?"

"Miss Ma'y," answered the old chap, with dignity, "I done had three wives, au' Judy's de las', I reckon. An' I jes' tell you dis, honey, I don' trus' no colored 'ooman's tongue."—Mrs. Burton Harrison in Lippincott's.

Bodily Proportions.

The proportions of the human figure, says an anatomist, are six times the length of the right foot. The face, from the highest point of the forehead, where the hair begins, to the end of the chin, is one-tenth of the whole stature. The hand, from the wrist to the end of the middle finger, is also one-tenth of the total height. From the crown to the nape of the neck is one-twelfth of the stature.

The Original Pair.

Upon one point the disputants are agreed: Man descended from a pair of ancestors. Who they were is not so apparent.—Chicago Tribune.

Happiness is sometimes like a pair of spectacles. While one looks for it it sits astride one's very nose.—New York Times.

If a man saved the ash of all the cigars he smoked, he would have consumed 1,000 before he had a pound of ash.

No. 1531.
To Emma Curtis:

You are hereby notified that on the 7th day of May A. D. 1898, in proceedings to enforce the payment of delinquent taxes pursuant to that certain real estate tax judgement which was entered in the District Court in and for the county of Polk in the 14th Judicial District of the State of Minnesota, on the 21st day of March A. D. 1898, the following described piece and parcel of land which is now situated in Red Lake county (formerly a part of Polk county) in the State of Minnesota, to-wit:

Lot 11, Block 8 in the Railroad Addition to Red Lake Falls was sold to the state to satisfy the amount for which it was adjudged liable in said judgement, interest and costs for the sum of fifty-three cents; that on the 23rd day of May 1900 the right of the state acquired by said sale was assigned for the sum of sixty-five cents; that the amount required to redeem said piece and parcel of land from such sale (exclusive of the costs to accrue upon this notice) is sixty-five cents and interests on said amount at the rate of twelve per cent per annum from said 23rd day of May A. D. 1900, until such redemption is made and that the time for redemption of such piece and parcel of land from such sale will expire sixty days after the service of this notice, and proof thereof has been filed in the office of the county auditor of said Polk county.

Witness my hand and official seal this 10th day of September A. D. 1901.

[SEAL] John Petterson County Auditor
of Polk County, Minnesota.

Warning Against Forest and Prairie Fires

Office of State Forest Commissioner.
St. Paul, Minn., March 21, 1901.

Chapter 196 of the General Laws of the State of Minnesota for 1895 (Act of April 18th) constitutes Supervisors of towns, Mayors of cities and presidents of village councils Fire Wardens, and it is made their duty to take precaution to prevent forest and prairie fires, and if they occur, to go and extinguish or control them; and in emergencies to call upon any able-bodied male person, over eighteen years of age, to assist. Reports of such fires with particulars tending to fix responsibility therefor shall be made within reasonable time—usually within a week. The Forest Commissioner is required to provide and sign an abstract (as herein) of the penalties under said law, and it is made the duty of the County Commissioners of each county to cause said abstract to be published in at least three issues of the official paper in their respective counties each year between the 15th of April and 1st of November, and they are hereby instructed to publish this notice entire. Under said law.

The following are liable to a penalty not exceeding $500 or imprisonment in the state prison not over ten years or both:

Any person who maliciously sets or causes to be set on fire any woods, prairie or other combustible material whereby the property of another is destroyed and life is sacrificed.

The following are liable to a penalty not exceeding $100 or imprisonment not exceeding three months.

Any person refusing, without cause, to assist fire wardens in extinguishing forest or prairie fires.

Any fire warden who neglects to perform his duties.

Any person who wilfully, negligently or carelessly sets on fire, or causes to be set on fire, any woods, prairies or other combustible material thereby causing injury to another.

Any person who shall kindle a fire on or dangerously near to forest or prairie land and leave it unquenched, or who shall be a party thereto.

Any person who shall use other than incombustible fire wads for firearms, or carry a naked torch, firebrand or other exposed light in or dangerously near to forest land.

Any person, who shall wilfully or heedlessly deface, destroy or remove this or any other warning placard posted under the requirements of the above mentioned Act.

Any railroad company wilfully neglecting to provide efficient spark arresters on its engines; or to keep its right of way to the width of 100 feet, cleared of combustible material; or which shall fail to comply with other provisions of Section 12 of the above mentioned Act.

The following are liable to a penalty of not less than $5 nor more than $50:

Any railroad employe who wilfully violates the provisions of Section 12 of the above mentioned Act.

Any owner of threshing or other portable steam engine who neglects to have efficient spark arresters, or who shall deposit live coals or hot ashes without extinguishing the same.

R. C. Dunn (State Auditor,)
Forest Commissioner.

C. C. Andrews,
Chief Fire Warden.

The water pump of today is but an improvement on a Grecian invention which first came into use during the reign of Ptolemies Philadelphos and Energetes, 283 to 221 B. C. The name, which is very similar in all languages, is derived from the Greek word pempo, to send or throw. The most ancient description we have of a water pump is by Hero of Alexandria. There is no authentic account of the general use of the pump in Germany previous to the beginning of the sixteenth century. At about that time the endless chain and bucket works for raising water from mines began to be replaced by pumps.

In the seventeenth century rotating pumps, like the Pappenham engine, with two pistons, and the Prince Rupert, with one, were first used. Pumps with plunger pistons were invented by Marland, an Englishman, in 1674, and the double acting pump by De la Hire, the French academician.

To cure a cough in one day take the Imperial cough syrup. Guaranteed to cure. For sale at the new Drug Store.

Tomorrow night is Hallow'en. The night when ghosts and goblins and all unloosed spirits prowl around doing good or evil as their mood prompts. The latter kind are decidedly in the majority and it would not be a bad idea to fix things so that they cant be carried off at least.

Half a dozen good samaritans took a three mile run up the track Monday night on a hand car to render assistance to an unfortunate and booze befuddled individual who was supposed to have fallen from the moving train. After they got back they discovered that their man had got to Crookston safely and so they cussed a few.

Judge Watts and Court reporter Lohn went through on Monday to Red Lake Falls to open the October term of district court. Owing to the prevalence of small pox it was decided not to call either the grand or petit juries at this time. This left only a few civil cases to be disposed and most of these will be tried at Crookston in chambers

As we come toward the Christmas holidays, larger space in the magazines is given to fiction. The Cosmopolitan includes a tragic story of the Mexican foot-hills by Thomas A. Janvier, a very clever society story by Carolyn Wells, one of the Old French Romances by Richard Le Gallienne, an unusually interesting Indian narrative by H. T. George, and a weird story by S. R. Crockett.

Fred Augustin, of LaSalle, Ill., was here last Friday looking up real estate investments. His object was to secure a tract of 1,000 acres suitable for stock raising. We are informed that he offered Julius Pleth $20 per acre for a 960 acre tract owned by Mr. Pleth a short distance west of this place. Mr. Pleth refused the offer and says further that the land in question is easily worth $30 per acre.

C. H. Fleming, Gen. Pass. Ag't of the Minneapolis and St. Louis Railway, accompanied C. C. Elliott, the real estate man, of Ogden, Ia., and together spent a few days hunting over the duck pastures in Red Lake and Marshal counties. They finished the trip Saturday evening and spent Sunday here. At Thief River Falls they picked up W. C. Smiley and A. C. Schmidt. In spite of this however they got a good supply of game. This was Mr. Flemings first trip in this part of the state and he enjoyed it immensely, he said.

ARROW SHOTS.

I shot an arrow into the air,
It fell to the earth; I know not where.
—LONGFELLOW.

Did anybody even disagree with you about the weather?

A gray bearded man on a bicycle will always look funny.

A boy who goes out during a lecture always seems to wear squeaky shoes.

How do you like to see a young girl with a long skirt dusting the sidewalk?

When a pretty girl is dressed up cool on a hot day she looks sweet enough to eat.

A graduate of the Boston school of oratory may not be worth shucks at orating.

A man who is slouchy about one thing is apt to be slouchy and careless about all.

If you want to find out if people are interested in you, just wear a coat with a rip in it.

When a man gets married in summer, no matter how hot it is, he has to wear a coat.

If a boy does a brave thing in the army, it is soon discovered that he is a prayerful boy.

The neighbors to a boy who is in the band can always tell when a new piece is to be played.

Some people have an idea that it is all right to brag on themselves, if it is true what they say.

The less you believe of what you hear, the less likely you will be to have a lot of wrong information.

Any girl looks a great deal prettier when she goes visiting in a strange town than she does around home.

Did you ever see a man start out in business in a new town who did not say he was doing better than he expected?

Boys and girls never write out their full names except on their graduation programs and on their wedding invitations.

People studying house plans have more trouble than they do naming their children, for they don't mind if the children are named after same one else.

People say they broke down in health because they had too much to think about, but we never saw anybody that we thought broke down from that cause.

It must take a lot of nerve to be on the same program with a smart lecturer, for an amateur to speak a little piece or sing a little song to open the program.

—Do you want to sell your farm? Julius Pleth, the land man of St. Hilaire wants to buy it and will pay cash.

Broke His Leg.

On Wednesday afternoon Albin Arvidson, a young man whose home is in Garnes, had his left leg broken by a kick from a broncho. Arvidson was driving the water tank for a threshing rig which, at the time of the accident was working on the farm of Hans Frederickson, north east of this village. One of his horses was a broncho which was not accustomed to the workings of a steam thresher. The animal tried to run first but settled down to do some high kicking. Arvidson's leg got in the way of the flying heels with the result as stated. Dr. Blomburgh attended the injured man and succeeded in getting the injured limb set in good shape.

Longest Railway Tunnel.

The longest railroad tunnel in the United States is to be built through the Sierra Nevada mountains of California. The tunnel will involve an outlay of from $300,000,000 to $500,000,000, being 27,000 feet in length and passing through the heart of the mountain. It will save the Southern Pacific a climb of 1,500 feet and will shorten the road about seven miles. For a short cut to health and happiness let us recommend "Golden Grain Belt" beer. —If you are troubled with rheumatism take the Imperial Blood and Rheumatism cure. It will positively cure all diseases arising from impure blood, and is sold under an absolute guarantee to benefit or money refunded Call for free sample at the New Drug Store.

The right arm is always a little larger than the left, but the left foot is almost always larger than the right, presumably because while nearly every man uses his right arm to lift a weight or strike a blow he almost invariably kicks with his left foot, while the lounger stands on his left leg and lets his right fall easily, because he has learned by experience that this is the best attitude he can assume to prevent lassitude and fatigue.

This constant bearing of the weight on the left foot makes it wider than the right, and it often happens that a man who tries on a shoe on the right foot and gets a close fit has to discard the shoes altogether because he cannot endure the pain caused by the tightness of the left. If when riding on the street car you will take the trouble to notice, you will see that in laced shoes the gap is much smaller on the right foot than on the left, while with button shoes the buttons have to be set back ten times on the left shoe to once on the right.

A Tussle With English.

The pitfalls of the English tongue to a foreigner are many. A Frenchwoman who has undertaken housekeeping in New York thought she had a good working knowledge of the language, but soon discovered her mistake.

One day she called a carpenter and planned with him to have some work done about the house in the way of putting up shelves, etc., and she went over the ground with him as carefully as possible to get from him an estimate of what it would cost.

After the work was done the bill submitted was considerably in excess of the sum first named. The Frenchwoman endeavored to remonstrate, but only succeeded in making the following remarkable statement to him:

"You are more dear to me thoa when we were first sagoged."—New York Sun.

Almonds.

The world's almond crop, exclusive of those raised in California and the west, comes from Italy, Sicily, Majorca, Spain, France, Portugal, Morocco and Algiers. The highly prized Jordan almonds come from Malaga, Spain, and not from the Jordan river, as many people suppose. The common almond is the most indigestible of all the nuts and contains very little nourishment. There are many ways, however, in which it is advantageously used as a desert or as a flavoring. One peculiarity about the almond tree is that its leaves contain prussic acid and are therefore poisonous, while the fruit may be eaten with impunity.

A Sure Thing Sport.

A well known politician on setting out for a day's sport with a friend pointed to a large spaniel which lay apparently asleep in the hall and bet his friend a guinea he could not attract the dog's attention.

The bet was readily accepted, and after the failure of a shrill whistle and a blank cartridge to cause the slightest movement the guinea was delivered up.

"That's my old dog Mahatma I had stuffed a few weeks ago," laughed the politician, "and that's the tenth guinea he's brought me."—London Tit-Bits.

Italian Bees.

Italian bees are more hardy than the native and more profitable. They are more energetic and will gather honey in partial droughts when natives will do nothing. They will gather honey from blossoms that natives will not touch. They are stronger on the wing, will fly more directly and swiftly and are not so irritable.

KAISER'S DRINKING GLASS.

Exhibited in a Shop Window, It Was Offered for Sale for $140.

In a shop window in Berlin is exhibited for sale an ornamental wine glass out of which the kaiser drank once. The price demanded is $140. But, as it has been in the window several days, would-be purchasers evidently think the price too high.

Attached to it is a notice, stamped with a notary's seal and a document written by the clerk of the Third Regiment of the Uhlans of the Guard, stating that Kaiser Wilhelm actually drank out of the glass March 7, 1900.

The matter causes infinite mirth among the Socialists and Radicals of Berlin.—New York World.

Care of the Complexion.

Many persons with delicate skin suffer greatly in winter from chapping. Frequently the trouble arises from the use of impure soap and cheap salves. The face and hands should be washed only in clear, hot water with Ivory Soap. A little mutton tallow or almond oil may be used after the bath to soften the skin.

THE BEAUTIFUL SNOW.

(Old Favorites Series.)

Oh the snow, the beautiful snow, filling the sky and the earth below;
Over the housetops, over the street, over the heads of the people you meet.
Dancing, flirting, skimming along. Beautiful snow! It can do nothing wrong.
Flying to kiss a fair lady's cheek; clinging to lips in a frolicsome freak;
Beautiful snow, from the heavens above, pure as an angel, and fickle as love!

Oh the snow, the beautiful snow! How the flakes gather and laugh as they go!
Whirling about in its maddening fun, it plays in its glee with everyone.
Chasing, laughing, hurrying by, it lights up the face and its sparkles the eye;
And even the dogs with a bark and a bound, snap at the crystals that eddy around.
The town is alive and its heart is aglow, to welcome the coming of beautiful snow.

How the wild crowd go swaying along, hailing each other with humor and song!
How the gay sledges like meteors flash by—bright for a moment, then lost to the eye.
Ringing, swinging, dashing they go over the crest of the beautiful snow:
Snow so pure when it falls from the sky, to be trampled in mud by the crowd rushing by;
To be trampled and tracked by the thousands of feet, till it blends with the horrible filth in the street.

Once I was pure as the snow—but I fell: fell, like the snowflakes, from heaven—to hell:
Fell, to be tramped as the filth in the street: fell, to be scoffed, to be spit on and beat,
Pleading, cursing, dreading to die, selling my soul to whoever would buy,
Dealing in shame for a morsel of bread, hating the living and fearing the dead.
Merciful God! have I fallen so low? And yet, I was once like this beautiful snow!

Once I was fair as the beautiful snow, with an eye like its crystals, a heart like its glow;
Once I was loved for my innocent grace—flattered and sought for the charm of my face.
Father, mother, sisters all, God, and myself, I have lost by my fall.
The veriest wretch that goes shivering by will take a wide sweep, lest I wander too nigh;
For of all that is on or about me, I know there is nothing that's pure but the beautiful snow.

How strange it should be that this beautiful snow should fall on a sinner with nowhere to go!
How strange it would be, when the night comes again, if the snow and the ice struck my desperate brain!
Fainting, freezing, dying alone, too wicked for prayer, too weak for my moan
To be heard in the crash of the crazy town, gone mad in its joy at the snow's coming down;
To lie and to die in my terrible woe, with a bed and a shroud of the beautiful snow.

—J. W. Watson, 1852.

Father O'Flaherty's Tactics.

BY ETHEL M. COLSON.

(Copyright, 1901, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

It was a neat little house in a neat little street, Dennis Mullaney's residence, but it was not alone because of its neatness that Mrs. Mullaney was proud of it. She had bought that house—on the installment plan, mind you—out of her own earnings as a seamstress, aided by the little she could save out of her husband's wages of two dollars a day. And she had never, as she herself expressed it, had "liss than eight childer ter kape" while the house was in course of acquirement. For these beloved "childer" the social ambitions were high. It was no part of her plans that Molly, her eldest and the flower of the flock, should marry a "common teamster," although young "Jamesy" Murphy owned a fine team.

It is doubtful if the young people would ever have had a chance to be happy—without making a run for it, which Molly would never have consented to do—but for Father O'Flaherty's assistance.

Father O'Flaherty was the boyish-faced priest at St. Michael's, a young man just out from Ireland, and, once more to quote Mrs. Mullaney, "wuz rekin' loike the very divvle ter bate ther faver of homesickness," which was consuming him. Father O'Flaherty was fond of calling at the Mullaney cottage because Mrs. Mullaney reminded him of the good, hard-working, affectionate mother who had sacrificed her own joy in his presence for the sake of his future well-being. He was sorry, upon the occasion of the call which directly followed Mrs. Mullaney's fiat against "Jamesy" Murphy to see that Molly looked pale and troubled and that her eyes showed traces of tears.

"It's hankerin' after Jamesy Murphy that she do be," the indignant mother burst forth in answer to the good priest's kindly inquiry. "But it's cry she'll have ter, onliss Jamesy alters his ways."

"A good lad, Mrs. Mullaney," said Father O'Flaherty, "and very steady for his years."

Molly shot him a grateful glance, but Mrs. Mullaney grew more indignant.

"He may be steady as the church fer awl I care," she declared, roundly, "an' as harnsome as Molly thinks him. But no young man that's willin' ter thrive team these days is good enough fer my Molly. It's eddication an' athyle thot helps a mon up in ther wurruld these days."

"It's hankerin' after Jamesy Murphy."

"It's love thot makes people happy," ventured Molly, emboldened by the priest's evident sympathy.

"I believe you're right, my girl," Father O'Flaherty told her a few moments later, as she showed him out at the front door. "Keep up a good heart and a good courage, Molly, and you'll be a happy woman one of these days."

Straight home to the study where a committee of "solid" parishioners waited to discuss plans for the building of the new church went Father O'Flaherty, thinking of Molly and "Jamesy" and Mrs. Mullaney as he went. And thinking a little, too, perhaps, of the bright-eyed, rosy-cheeked Irish girl for whose sake he had been hurried off to college a little earlier than he had expected, but of whose charms a man dedicated to the priesthood from his infancy had no right to think. She, too, had looked a little pale and troubled when last he saw her. The thin face of Father O'Flaherty looked thinner than ever as he faced his parishioners.

"I'll leave most of the details to you, gentlemen," he said, presently, "but I want young James Murphy to have the contract for the teaming. He's a good lad and the contract will help him. None of you will have any objection, I am sure."

"Heaven bless ye, father."

"Jamesy isn't prepared for't," suggested one of the three contract teamsters in the room.

"I understand he soon will be," was Father O'Flaherty's quiet reply.

That night he had an interview with the young teamster.

"I'm thinking, James," was the substance of this conversation, "that you could borrow the money for a couple of new teams from your father if you had a good contract in sight, couldn't you? And I myself shall be glad to lend you the money for still another good team and wagon. With three or four teams you'll be in shape to undertake the teaming contract for the new church of St. Michael."

"Never mind thanks, lad," he concluded the interview by saying. "Go and talk to your father—and see if you can't overcome Mrs. Mullaney's prejudice against having a teamster for a son-in-law by telling her that you've got the church contract."

"Heaven bliss ye, Father," said young "Jamesy," relapsing into the vernacular.

And, as Father O'Flaherty had expected, Mrs. Mullaney's social ambitions for her daughter recognized a wide difference between a "common" teamster who drove his own single team and the "contract teamster" who rejoiced in four teams and the church contract.

The neat little house was replaced by a tall flat building some time ago, and Mr. and Mrs. James Murphy, blissfully happy and successful, are joint owners with Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Mullaney of this new building. Father O'Flaherty, albeit that he never finds the new building quite so snug and homelike as the old one, calls there quite often and he is usually a little happier for every visit.

The sweet little Irish girl of whom Father O'Flaherty has no business to be thinking slipped out of this life last winter, and it comforts the man who has no business to think of her to know that Molly Murphy, nee Molly Mullaney, was made happy for her sake.

Some men will do for strangers what their relatives may ask in vain.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucus lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten, are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucus surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

LAW'S DEBT PAID

LEON CZOLGOSZ DIES IN THE ELECTRIC CHAIR AT AUBURN PRISON.

PRESIDENT'S DEATH IS AVENGED

ASSASSIN GOES TO HIS DEATH UNREPENTANT AND UNCONFESSED.

VIOLENTLY CURSES RELIGION

EFFORTS TO INDUCE THE CONDEMNED MAN TO TALK ARE UNAVAILING.

Auburn, N. Y., Oct. 31.—Czolgosz is with Booth and Guiteau, wherever they are.

His body has been consumed by acid in a grave in the cemetery attached to Auburn prison—a grave that will never be marked in any way to identify it from the two or three hundred other felon graves in that yard, a grave that will be forgotten. That which was called Leon F. Czolgosz was exterminated yesterday morning by electricity at the service of the law and nothing to remember the creature for except the unforgettable significance of that vault in Canton.

The being whose body filled the newly-made nameless prison grave, but which has ere this been completely consumed, died as he had lived—an anarchist. He knew if he went to his end with truculent words on his lips that in dives where anarchists gather, "Remember Czolgosz" would be the watchword, and as he sat in the chair yesterday morning he panted: "I shot the president, and I did it because I thought it would benefit the poor people and for the name of the working people of all nations. I am not sorry for my crime — that is all I have to say." The

in the flush of vanity and it filled with anger the hearts of all who heard him. It was Czolgosz's message to anarchy before he passed out of life unshriven, for he would have no priest, to leave his corpse to be buried in unhallowed ground. Czolgosz might have evoked pity as deluded and foolish, but he succeeded at last in precluding any such emotion and aroused instead a revengeful spirit toward his kind.

Strangely enough the physicians who performed the autopsy found that apparently Czolgosz did not have a diseased brain, nor a diseased body, to account for his distorted intellect. Superficially, at least, the brain had all the appearance of health.

The following summary of the result of the autopsy was issued by those who performed and conducted it:

"The autopsy was made by Mr. Edward A. Spitzka of New York under the immediate supervision and direction of Dr. Carlos F. MacDonald of New York and Dr. John Gerin, prison physician. The autopsy occupied over three hours and embraced a careful examination of all the bodily organs, including the brain. All of the physicians who attended the execution were present and all concurred in the findings of the examiners."

At the Autopsy

Doctors MacDonald and Gerin and Mr. Spitzka signed their names to this document, which made it appear that degeneracy is not a general condition in an espousal of anarchistic tenets. There may be another lesson for Americans in this.

Czolgosz died probably in a little over two minutes after he reached the death room. An hour and a half later, when it had grown cold, the body was placed on an operating table brought in for the purpose and the autopsy was performed. The detailed report on that autopsy, so far as it related to the brain, was impossibly technical. Only one conclusion was intelligible to the lay mind. This was: "The brain in general is well developed, sufficiently marked with fissures and the lobes are in normal proportion."

Mr. Spitzka took several drawings of the brain for future study. The only thing that was left to do in the passing of Czolgosz was to bury the remains. The burial took place in the afternoon. The body was placed in a coffin case made of pine and then in a wagon, which carried it by a roundabout way

To the Prison Cemetery.

Another wagon going by another route had brought quicklime and acid to the graveyard. The precautions taken had been successful in avoiding a crowd, and only a few persons saw the unfavorable scene which followed when the coffin case was opened, lowered into the grave and quicklime and acids dumped in. Earth was shoveled on quickly and the grave filled up. It was for a hard place to find by and by. It was estimated that the acid and quicklime would completely destroy the body in twelve hours, but the grave will be carefully guarded for two or three days.

Czolgosz's brother and brother-in-law went to the prison in the afternoon while the burial was going on. They wanted to have a last look at the corpse. The sight was spared them. Their object in staying here had been to get a certificate of the assassin's death to aid them in an effort to collect some insurance from a fraternal organization to which the assassin had belonged.

As Czolgosz entered the death chamber he looked about him. He saw the cold, stony, unsympathetic gaze of the witnesses. His eyes glared and he was apparently nerving himself for his final words. His sullen face was almost ghastly in the dim light, but it was not strained. Those who saw it for the first time noted the effeminacy of the lips, the long jaw, the strong, thick nose.

In promptitude, Czolgosz was hustled into the chair. It was 7:10 when he entered the chamber and four and a half minutes later he was pronounced dead by the attending physicians.

Once in the chair Czolgosz glanced helplessly about and while the electricians were adjusting the electrodes, drawing taut the straps he attempted to make a statement.

"I shot the president because I thought it would benefit the good working people," he said.

It was with an effort he spoke. The witnesses, surprised, glued their eyes on the assassin and strained their ears which followed. The attendants faltered not a moment, but adjusted the straps and electrodes with precision.

To Catch the Words

More incoherent words followed, almost unintelligible. The assassin evidently had made up his mind what he would say, but with death before him he faltered.

"I am not sorry for my crime." This utterance was painfully distinct. Some of the witnesses cast significant glances at each other.

"Let him die, the dog," they said.

Reports do not agree as to Czolgosz's first speech. After the execution it was declared he said:

"I killed the president because he was the enemy of good working people."

With his face almost hidden by straps Czolgosz made one final effort to talk. He was evidently thinking of home, for just before the current was applied, he said:

"I am heartily sorry I could not see my father."

All was in readiness as Electrician Davis stepped back and placed

His Hand on the Lever.

Then Warden Mead gave the signal and 1,700 volts went coursing through the murderer's body, which stiffened with a suddenness that was startling. It bounded up with a powerful, convulsive movement, as if it would burst the straps. His chest arched out and every muscle was tense.

The face, so far as could be seen, did not change expression. Then the current was turned off. No sound came from the body. The murderer's chest fell in, the body relaxed and sank back limp.

Reduced to 200 volts the current again passed through the body, was increased to full strength, and then, reduced to almost nothing. It continued

Its Deadly Work.

Dr. MacDonald, standing at Czolgosz's left, stepped up and placed his finger on the assassin's bare neck, while Prison Physician Gerin did likewise on the right side.

Then at 7:14:30 there was a third contact, which lasted but a few seconds. Again the body stiffened under the powerful current, falling back limp and lifeless when turned off.

Dr. Gerin stepped forward with a stethoscope. The assassin's coat was thrown back, the shirt opened in front, the instrument placed over his heart, and the doctor listened for signs of life.

"He is dead," was all he said. This was at 7:15.

The stethoscope was handed to Dr. MacDonald, who, after listening, also pronounced life absent.

BAD FOR BUFFALO BILL.

One Hundred of the Horses in His Show Killed in a Collision.

Washington, Oct. 31.—A head-on collision occurred at Linwood, N. C., early yesterday between "Buffalo Bill's" show train and freight train No. 75. The master of the show train was badly hurt, and the engineer and fireman of the same train received slight injuries. About 100 of "Buffalo Bill's" horses were killed and the four cars containing them totally wrecked. One car of the freight train was demolished. Neither engine left the track. The show train was traveling as second section to fast freight No. 72, and, according to the orders had the right of way. It is said the freight conductor overlooked the fact that there was a second section to the fast freight, the accident being due to this oversight.

AMERICANS TRIALS IN RUSSIA.

Correspondent Receives a Tip That He Is Not Wanted After Nov. 1.

Berlin, Oct. 31.—Mr. Joseph Herrings, a naturalized American who was correspondent of the Staats Zeitung in Cuba in 1898, and who also acted in China last year for American journals, has received notice of his expulsion from Prussia. The notice was first received in July, the ground alleged being evasion of military service in 1885, while he was sentenced to a month's imprisonment after leaving the country. This sentence was annulled by the Russian government by the amnesty of 1886, but the Prussian police assert that even if the amnesty holds good it only cancelled the punishment and not the offense. Mr. Herring lately received notice to quit Prussia before Nov. 1.

HATED HIS STEPCHILDREN.

St. Louis, Oct. 31.—Henry Schroeder, an employe of the Home Comfort Range company yesterday shot his stepdaughter, Katie Kirst, aged seven, through the heart, killing her instantly, and then fired two balls at his stepson, Henry Kirst, aged eleven, both of which missed him. Schroeder then swallowed a dose of carbolic acid and fired a bullet into his own brain, dying in a few moments. It is said that Schroeder hated his stepchildren.

Ordered to Hang.

Wheeling, W. Va., Nov. 2.—The supreme court has issued a writ of mandamus to compel Warden C. E. Haddox, of the state prison, to execute George Carter convicted of the murder of a companion in a gambling house.

Aimed at Trusts.

Washington, Nov. 2. — It is said on very good authority that President Roosevelt, in his message, will recommend legislation compelling trusts to publish quarterly statements of earnings, collections, etc., of property.

Fire in Aurora Mine.

Ironwood, Mich., Nov. 2. — A fire which started in the Aurora mine a little after midnight yesterday generated gas and spread to adjacent workings, closing up the Pabst mine. Many workmen were rescued with difficulty.

Second Degree Murder.

Iowa Falls, Iowa, Nov. 2. — Judge Weaver has sentenced M. O. Clemmens, convicted of the murder of Burgduff at Union, Iowa, last June, to twenty years' imprisonment. Second degree murder was proved.

OFFICERS IN JAIL

CONVICTED OF ILLICIT TRADING AND BRIBERY IN THE PHILIPPINES.

GIVEN LONG TERMS IN PRISON

CAPT. SPELLMAN AND LIEUT. JONES OF THE FORTY-THIRD ARE THE MEN.

FOR PUNISHMENT OF TREASON

PUBLIC DISCUSSION OF A BILL BEFORE THE PHILIPPINE COMMISSION.

Manila, Nov. 4.—Capt. Spellman and Lieut. Jones of the Forty-third regiment, who were convicted of illicit trading and bribery, have been sentenced to five and three years' imprisonment, respectively. They have been brought to Manila en route to Fort Leavenworth, Kan., where they will be imprisoned.

Under the new law Chinese are pouring into Manila and quickly settling in the provinces. During the past two weeks 3,000 Chinamen have come here.

The disturbances in Central Luzon have materially subsided under the activity of the army and constabulary. Fourteen warships are maintaining a very strict blockade of the island of Samar with the result that the insurgents there are not able to obtain supplies of any kind from outside the island.

There was a public discussion yesterday before the Philippine commission of the draft of Treason and Sedition.

Many public men were heard. Vice Gov. Wright explained the object of the bill, saying that the Spanish code was unsatisfactory.

"There are a number of people living in the Philippines," remarked Mr. Wright, "who, so long as there is no punishment for treason, will take advantage of the fact to clog the wheels of the insular government. It must not be overlooked that turbulent spirits exist in the pacified provinces. The masses of the people are susceptible to inflammatory utterances and are liable to be influenced by demagogues. It would be inexcusable weakness on the part of the commission to allow the people to be aroused to deeds of violence who are now gradually drifting to the pursuits of peace. The recent attempts at insurrection in the island of Samar and the Province of Batongas (Luzon) and a few other points, due to noisy

Philippine Agitators,

have caused a feeling of unrest in the minds of both Filipinos and Americans, and the effect of their continuance will be to make impossible the very things these agitators most desire. Such efforts serve to recruit the ranks of insurgents and to postpone the era of good feeling and fellowship which must come. No excuse exists for secret political organizations. Their intent must be evil. No matter what may have been the opinions of the Filipinos regarding the sovereignty of the American government the fact remains that the Americans are here, and, moreover, here they intend to stay."

The bill was then read in Spanish. It was attacked by a number of Filipino leaders.

Supplies Reach Insurgents.

Advices from Calbalogan, Samar, say it is well known that in spite of the fact that all ports of Samar are closed, supplies still reach the insurgents. Most of this work is done during dark nights by small boats from the island of Leyte. Every available gunboat is now endeavoring to prevent this. The capture of Lukban's commissary has proved a great blow to the insurrection, as it renders future supplies very precarious. Conditions in the island of Leyte are very annoying to Gen. Smith. A large number of junks are used with the express object of aiding the insurgents in Samar, covering the movements of fugitives and landing provisions and clothing.

ATTACKED EMPRESS DOWAGER.

Assassin Attempts to Take Life of China's Ruler.

Pekin, Nov. 4.—While the dowager empress was embarking to cross the river Saturday before entering Ho Nan an assassin attempted to murder her, and killed an attendant with a spear before he was cut down. The court has left Ho Nan, en route for Pekin.

Li Hung Chang Obeys Orders.

Pekin, Nov. 4.—The condition of Li Hung Chang, who has been seriously ill, shows improvement. His physician diagnoses the malady as ulceration of the stomach, and the hemorrhages have been severe. As a rule he is an intractable patient, but having been told that his life depended upon a liquid diet, he is complying with the medical orders.

DIMINUTIVE PRINCE.

Son Born to Prince Albert and Princess Elizabeth.

Brussels, Nov. 4.—Princess Elizabeth, who was married Oct. 2, 1900, to Prince Albert, heir presumptive to the throne of Belgium, has given birth to a son, who will be christened Leopold. At the close of the afternoon the king visited Prince Albert to congratulate him upon the event, expressed his joy and promised to act as godfather.

FIRST OF THE SEASON.

Snowstorm in the Northwest Reminds Us That Winter Is Here.

St. Paul, Nov. 4.—A snowstorm, the first of the winter, prevailed generally throughout the Northwest yesterday. Reports from a number of points state that the rain which prevailed Saturday turned into snow during the night. The temperature is rapidly falling, and subzero weather is reported from the Northwest Territory. In St. Paul snow fell during the greater part of the day with a cold northwest wind.

EDWARD S. STOKES DEAD.

Man Who Killed Jim Fisk Thirty Years Ago.

New York, Nov. 4.—Edward Stokes, who has for some time been seriously ill at New York, died Saturday. For several days he had been growing weaker. Stokes was the man who shot and killed Jim Fisk, a partner of Jay Gould, thirty years ago. His life has been one of the most remarkable and strenuous of any passed in New York. In his sixty years he has lived more than a century. Stokes was best known to the present generation as the proprietor of the Hoffman house, his interest in which he sold to Grahams Polly of Brooklyn for $200,000.

ENTIRE PLANT BURNED.

Packing Establishment in Buffalo Entirely Destroyed.

Buffalo, Nov. 4.—Jacob Dold & Co.'s packing establishment was destroyed by fire. The flames were discovered in one of the smaller buildings of the plant where the barrels are prepared for packing. The structure was of wood and burned like tinder. Sparks from the barrel house set fire to adjoining structures and the flames got a foothold in several places at the same time. The firemen's work had but little effect, and in two hours the entire plant was destroyed. Loss, $200,000.

BREED TESTS AT BUFFALO.

Guernseys Make Best Showing as Butter Producers.

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 4. — Frank A. Converse, superintendent of live stock of the Pan-American exposition, has announced the following results in the breed tests in the model dairy:

Net profits in butter fat, won by the Guernseys by a net profit of $1.66; net profit in churned butter, won by the Guernseys by a net profit of $5.86. Total solids, won by the Holstein-Freisians by a net profit of $26.11. Total solids and gain in live weight, won by the Holstein-Freisians by a net profit of $31.63.

No More Plague Cases.

Liverpool, Nov. 4.—No further cases of bubonic plague in Liverpool were officially reported yesterday. Mr. Boyle, United States consul, assures outgoing passengers that they need not fear at present being detained at American ports. Speaking last evening at a banquet Mr. Boyle said: "As an authority for such a statement, I assert the city of Liverpool does more business with the United States than the rest of the world together. I can say that I am not a bit nervous over this outbreak of the plague in Liverpool. If I thought the situation serious enough to warrant the quarantining of vessels from Liverpool at United States ports I would recommend it at once, but at present I have seen no necessity."

Busy Burglars.

Sioux City, Iowa, Nov. 4.—Two burglaries with peculiar circumstances occurred in this vicinity Saturday night. At Salix, Iowa, some intruders came to town on bicycles and gained an entrance to the bank of J. C. Currier & Son. They drilled a hole in the safe door and blew it open with dynamite, but the noise led to their discovery and they escaped on their wheels. At Elk Point, S. D., burglars entered the residence of C. J. Fox. They got $2.75 in silver, a diamond ring and a pocketbook containing $120 in bank notes. The latter they dropped in the house and went away without it.

Big Fire at Milwaukee.

Milwaukee, Nov. 4.—Fire early yesterday destroyed the warehouse and contents of the Metropolitan Storage company and damaged the property of the American Laundry company's plant and the Westlake, Delahunt & Smith printing office adjoining. The total loss will probably reach $160,000, most of which will fall on the contents of the storage warehouse.

Northwest Pupil Statistics.

Washington, Nov. 4.—Statistics given out by the census bureau show that Minnesota has 612,900 persons of school age, 5 to 20 years; 299,731 males of militia age; voting age, 306,784. North Dakota persons of school age, 112,787; militia age, 80,091; voting age, 95,217. South Dakota, school age, 147,163; militia age, 87,500; voting age, 112,691.

Fierce Forest Fires Raging.

Poplar Bluff, Mo., Nov. 4.—The fiercest forest fires since 1885 are raging a few miles south of here. The woods have been in flames for three days and thousands of cattle and horses are in danger. Farmers and stockmen have turned out en masse to fight the flames, but their efforts so far have availed little.

Ovation for Sousa.

London, Nov. 4.—Sousa's band received a memorable ovation at the close of its engagement at the Glasgow exhibition. The crowd wanted to carry the conductor on their shoulders. Mr. Sousa will begin a tour of the provinces to-day at Middlesborough.

Many Business Houses Burned.

Lisbon, N. H., Nov. 4.—Starting in the peg mill of James G. Moore early yesterday morning fire destroyed a large part of the business section of this town. The total loss will amount to fully $100,000 with insurance of between $50,000 and $60,000.

Soldiers Will Be Tried.

Miles City, Mont., Nov. 4.—The prosecution of Robert Atchison at Miles City on a charge of purchasing government oats at Fort Keogh from soldiers has been dismissed. The soldiers who sold the oats to Atchison will be tried by court-martial.

Shoe Store Scorched.

Faribault, Minn., Nov. 4. — R. E. Orne's shoe store was partially destroyed by fire early yesterday morning. The greater part of a $6,000 stock is ruined. He carried an insurance of $5,000. The fire is supposed to have caught from a defective chimney.

Accidentally Kills His Brother.

Des Moines, Nov. 4.—Clarence Tarn, aged thirteen, was shot in the head by his brother, Herbert, while playing with an old revolver not known to be loaded. He cannot recover.

FRANCE HOSTILE

TURKEY MUST COME TO TIME OR THERE WILL SURELY BE TROUBLE.

PROMPT ACTION IS DEMANDED

EXECUTION OF THE SULTAN'S IRADE ON THE LORANDO CLAIM ASKED.

WARSHIPS TO ENFORCE DEMANDS

SQUADRON EN ROUTE FOR TURKISH WATERS—OTHER WARSHIPS READY.

Paris, Nov. 4. — Yesterday morning M. Delcasse, minister of foreign affairs, telegraphed M. Bapst, counsellor of the French embassy at Constantinople, directing him, so the correspondent of the Associated Press is authoritatively informed, to present to Tewfik Pasha, Ottoman minister of foreign affairs, a note asking how the Turkish government proposes to pay the Lorando claim, and demanding the execution of the sultan's irade dealing with that matter.

The note will also request satisfaction regarding the rights of France which are defined in the various capitulations and treaties and which in some cases have not been respected, and in others have been encroached upon by Turkey.

Admiral Caillard is expected to reach his destination to-day. The foreign office has received no news from him since his division left the other divisions of the Mediterranean squadron en route four days ago. It is pointed out that the absence of news is not surprising, as the instructions to Admiral Caillard were to steer due south and to avoid passing in sight of Bonifacio, Corsicana or traversing the Straits of Messina in order to prevent his movements being signalled. The vessels of the division carried only a normal supply of coal, but this would be much more than sufficient to enable them to steam 1,500 miles, the estimated distance they must cover before reaching their destination.

It is expected that Admiral Caillard will be joined en route by the torpedo cruiser Condor, which is stationed in Cretan waters, and may be met by the torpedo boat destroyer Vautour, which is stationed at Constantinople. It is also probable that the armored cruiser Admiral Charner, which arrived at Port Said Oct. 31 from the Far East, is being held in order to join Admiral Caillard if needed. It is further reported that several other warships are held in readiness at Toulon to reinforce him should their presence be necessary.

TRAGEDY AT POLITICAL MEETING.

Colored Man Shoots Into the Crowd, Killing a White Man.

Roanoke, Va., Nov. 4. — Meager details were received here yesterday from the little town of Ferrum, Va., about thirty miles distant, of a tragedy at that place Saturday night. A negro named William Hale took exception to some remarks made by a white man at a political meeting, and, leaving the hall, went to his home, where he armed himself with a double-barreled shotgun, returned to the place where the speaking was being held and fired both barrels of the gun into the crowd. A white man named Robinett, who was the village blacksmith, was killed instantly, and John Thomas, colored, received wounds from which he died shortly afterward. Two other men, both white, but names unknown, were seriously wounded. Hale made his escape and thus far has not been captured, though the country is being scoured for miles around. Bloodhounds have been sent to the scene.

"I AM INNOCENT."

Negro on Scaffold Denies the Crime for Which He Was Convicted.

Raleigh, N. C., Nov. 4.—At Fayetteville, N. C., at 10:25 yesterday morning, Louis Council, a negro convicted of committing a rape on a white woman, Mrs. James West, in Cumberland county, was hanged. On the scaffold Council was asked if he was guilty. He replied: "Before God and man I am innocent," and the priest, taking the cross from Council's hand, declared him innocent. When the trap was sprung the rope broke and the negro's body fell to the floor. Another rope was secured and the prisoner coolly walked on the scaffold. In a few minutes he was dead.

SAFE UNDER HIS OWN WING.

Governor of Indiana Refuses to Honor Requisition for Ex-Gov. Taylor.

Indianapolis, Nov. 4. — Gov. Durbin has refused to grant requisition for the return to Kentucky of ex-Gov. Taylor and Charles W. Finley, who were indicted by Kentucky courts for complicity in the murder of Gov. Goebel.

PROCLAIMS THANKSGIVING DAY.

President Roosevelt Announces That Thursday, Nov. 28, Will Be Day for Praise.

Washington, Nov. 4. — President Roosevelt Saturday issued his proclamation fixing Thursday, Nov. 28, as a day of national thanksgiving.

Injured in a Collision.

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 4.—Four persons were seriously hurt, one perhaps fatally, and several others slightly cut and bruised in a collision of two motor cars on the Columbus, London & Springfield electric railway yesterday afternoon at Rome, a few miles west of here.

Heavy Snow at La Crosse.

La Crosse, Wis., Nov. 4. — The first real snowstorm of the season struck here yesterday. There is five inches of snow on the ground.

STUDENT IN POSTAL FRAUD.

Dwight Carpenter and Grant Frazier Arrested in St. Paul With Shady Money Orders.

St. Paul, Nov. 4.—Dwight Carpenter, a student at the state university, was arrested Saturday, together with Grant Frazier, a friend, for attempting to obtain money on two $100 money orders, apparently by the postmaster at Oxford, Wis. Carpenter confessed to having cashed two orders, and that he had eight more that he intended to present at various Minnesota, Wisconsin and Iowa towns. Postmaster Wright of Oxford says the orders were stolen from a trunk where he kept them, but as they all bear his official stamp, the authorities are not satisfied.

STUBBORN FIRE AT MANITOWOC.

Seventy-Three Car Loads of Flour Destroyed.

Manitowoc, Wis., Nov. 4.—Seventy-three car loads of flour on track and two car loads in the warehouse of the Wisconsin Central Railway company were destroyed by fire last night, together with the warehouse and dock property of the road. The loss will reach $100,000; covered by insurance. The origin of the fire is not known. It was the fiercest in the history of the city while it lasted, and only the combined efforts of the entire fire department prevented the further spread of the flames.

GOES OVER AN EMBANKMENT.

Eighteen Occupants of a Bus Are Well Shaken Up.

Pewaukee, Wis., Nov. 4.—Late Saturday night a bus containing eighteen people who were returning to their homes after attending a social at Supt. McCollom's place, one mile west of this village, by the breaking of an evener, was thrown off the road and down an eight-foot embankment. The vehicle was overturned and the upper portion was crushed to pieces. All the occupants were pretty well shaken and bruised.

WOULD-BE LYNCHERS FINED.

Meddlers of a South Dakota Mob Given a Lesson.

Miller, S. D., Nov. 4. — The officers have placed Isaac Alley in the Highmore jail. Friends of nine-year-old Anna Fenton, whom he is alleged to have attempted to assault, dragged him from the sheriff with the intention of either hanging or tar and feathering him, but the crowd was dispersed. Ten or twelve of these were arrested and fined for interference.

Bloody Record.

Helena, Mont., Nov. 4. — William Daugherty, sentenced at Butte by the United States court, Judge Knowles, to five years in the penitentiary, is believed by the United States secret service officers to be a member of a gang who are counterfeiting gold coin who have been operating all along the coast and Northwest country. Ezra B. Coon, one of the gang, was recently captured in Eastern Oregon. Daugherty has a long criminal record, having killed five men. He served ten years in Idaho for murder. One other member of the gang escaped eastward.

No Cars for Murphies.

Princeton, Minn., Nov. 4.—There never has been such a shortage in cars during the potato season. For a month not over a third of the cars needed could be obtained. All the extensive warehouses and root cellars are full and farmers actually haul their tubers back home, not finding places to unload. The loss will be enormous, as orders taken all over the Southwestern states cannot be filled, and consequently are countermanded.

Largest in the World.

Walter Baker & Co., Ltd., Dorchester, Mass. are the largest manufacturers of cocoa and chocolate in the world. They received a gold medal from the Paris exposition of last year. This year they have received three gold medals from the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo. Their goods are the standard for purity and excellence.

Helena School for [illegible].

Helena, Mont., Nov. 4.—James Southwick, the twelve-year-old Great Falls boy who confessed to kidnaping the six-year-old Ryan boy, was given a preliminary hearing on three charges—kidnaping, extortion and incorrigibility. He will doubtless be sent to the reform school.

Bad Runaway Accident.

Albert Lea, Minn., Nov. 4. — John Knutson was hurt in a runaway here. His face is broken in and both eyes so badly injured that he cannot see. He was brought here for treatment, and there is some show for him to recover.

Fire in a Stillwater Church.

Stillwater, Minn., Nov. 4. — The First M. E. church was damaged by fire last evening. The flames originated in the basement and were prevented from spreading by the promptness of the department. The damage will amount to about $250.

Bullet in Her Head.

Duluth, Minn., Nov. 4.—Mrs. Elizabeth Green, who was shot by her husband Sept. 6, a 32-caliber bullet entering her head, has left the hospital and gone home. She retains her faculties, but complains that her vision is affected.

Wisconsin Man Shot.

New Richmond, Wis., Nov. 4.—Intelligence has been received here of the fatal shooting at Elmhurst, Wash., of John Heffron, son of Patrick Heffron of this city. He was a railroad man about twenty-four years old.

Helena Physician Involved.

Helena, Mont., Nov. 4. — William C. Tranter has confessed to the theft of $6,000 from King & Lowry's Butte poolroom, where he was employed. Tranter, in his statement, implicates Dr. A. C. Dogge, a former Helena physician.

Fifty-Three Dead.

Sioux City, Iowa, Nov. 4.—Dr. McEwen of Emerson, Neb., reports smallpox spreading at an alarming rate on the Winnebago reservation. Fifty-three deaths occurred in October.

IN WILD BALLOON

NINE PEOPLE TAKE AN INVOLUNTARY TRIP TOWARD THE CLOUDS.

ALMOST DROPPED IN THE OCEAN

WENT OUT TO SEA BUT WAS BLOWN BACK OVER THE LAND.

WAS A TERRIBLE EXPERIENCE

BALLOON WAS IN THE AIR TWO HOURS BUT FINALLY LANDED SAFELY.

San Francisco, Nov. 4.—The nine occupants of the car of the balloon which escaped from this city Saturday afternoon returned safely to San Francisco yesterday. The balloon was landed near Pescadero, fifty miles from this city and but a few miles from the ocean. The balloon was in the air nearly two hours, and at one time was out at sea but was blown back over the land.

When the balloon broke its bonds it sailed away in a southerly direction. Near Redwood City it struck an air current which took it toward the ocean over the summit of the coast range. Nineteen miles from La Honda, and about six miles from Pescadero lies Beatty Thomson's place. Thomson was up and out when the balloon came along by Whit's mill and the grappling hook slipped through the trees and raked the ground. By this time much of the gas had been let out of the balloon and the power was weak. The rope that held snapped and the captive became a runaway and was sweeping along the ground. When it came within Thomson's reach he grasped it and bore down with all his weight.

This Stopped the Flight.

Soon the balloon was brought to the ground and eight overjoyed passengers and the aeronaut alighted and took supper with Thomson.

A. L. Dodge, one of the passengers, in describing the trip, said that the balloon first started toward Oakland, and after circling about for a time drifted southward and became stationary for a short period. Then, in response to a breeze from the east, it sailed over the San Mateo hills and stood far out over the ocean. The hearts of all the occupants of the wicker cage were filled with fear as the prospect of being dumped into the ocean stared them in the face. Twice, according to Dodge's story, the balloon dipped close to the surface of the water, but rose again, each time to a considerable altitude. Finally a breeze from the sea caught the balloon and carried it back over the land, and after dragging the car through the tops of a grove of trees, landed on the hillside near Pescadero. It was a terrible experience, and I would not undergo the same adventure again for anything. Everybody was more or less shaky, while the women and two or three of the men were so sick that they sat in the bottom of the basket throughout the trip."

RELEASE OF MISS STONE.

Is Again Reported as Being Imminent.

Vienna, Nov. 4.—The Politische Correspondenz says that the release of Miss Stone, the abducted American missionary, is again represented as being imminent. It adds that a well known Macedonian brigand has been sent to obtain proof that Miss Stone is still alive, which information Consul Dickinson wants for use in his negotiations with the brigands. Two other men who are acquainted with the country where Miss Stone is held captive have also been commissioned by Mr. Dickinson to try to get in touch with the brigands.

RESULT OF A STRIKE.

Two Workmen at Columbia, S. C., Are Shot, One Fatally.

Columbia, S. C., Nov. 4.—Two nonunionists working in the Southern shops here, Walter Binder and William Scott, were shot in their homes [illegible] last night. [illegible] Binder [illegible] Harry Jones and Arthur McCray [illegible] will follow. The strike has long since ended.

PRATT CONVICTED.

Attempted Bribery of the Speaker of the Michigan Legislature.

Lansing, Mich., Nov. 4.—After twelve hours' deliberation the jury which tried Charles H. Pratt on the charge of attempted bribery of Former Speaker Adams of the state legislature, returned a verdict of guilty. A stay of proceedings was granted and the case will be carried to the supreme court.

FISHERMEN LOST IN STORM.

Scores of Boats Wrecked on Russian Lake and 170 Men Are Drowned.

London, Nov. 4.—It is announced in a dispatch to a news agency from St. Petersburg that scores of fishing boats were wrecked and that 170 men were drowned during a recent storm on Lake Baikal.

TEACHER BURNED TO DEATH.

Prof. J. D. Orr Starts Fire With Kerosene With Fatal Effect.

Kansas City, Nov. 4. — Prof. J. D. Orr, a Kansas City, Kan., school teacher, yesterday started a fire in the kitchen stove with kerosene. An explosion followed which scattered the burning oil over his clothing. When aid arrived his clothing had been entirely burned from his body and he was unconscious and died shortly after. Mrs. Orr, in attempting to aid her husband, was painfully burned about the hands.

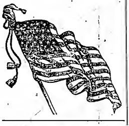
WEDNESDAY, NOV. 6, 1901.



President Roosevelt has issued his proclamation designating Thursday, November 28th, as Thanksgiving day, and that day will, as usual, be observed as a National holiday. In his message setting aside that day for thanksgiving, President Roosevelt speaks of the present conditions as follows:

This thanksgiving finds the people still bowed with sorrow for the death of a great and good president. We mourn President McKinley because we so loved and honored him; and the manner of his death should awaken in the breasts of our people keen anxiety for the country, and at the same time a resolute purpose not to be driven by any calamity from the path of strong, orderly, hopeful liberty, which as a nation we have thus far safely trod.

Yet, in spite of this great disaster, it is nevertheless true that no people on earth have such abundant cause for thanksgiving as we have. The past year in particular has been one of peace and plenty. We have prospered in things material, and have been able to work for our own uplifting in things intellectual and spiritual. Let us remember that as much has been given us, much will be expected from us; and that true homage comes from the heart as well as from the lips, and shows itself in deeds. We can best prove our thankfulness to the Almighty by the way in which, on this earth, and at this time, each of us does his duty to his fellow man.

A new way of committing suicide was invented in St. Paul a few days ago by Mrs. William Mayer, wife of a saloonkeeper. She piled up ruffled newspapers in the bath tub and poured on a quantity of kerosene. Then she locked the door and stooping over the tub applied a lighted match. She stayed until her head and face, neck and breast were almost completely burned to a crisp. Then she opened the door and ran down stairs. She was conveyed to an hospital and attending physicians consider that her experiment will be a success.

With ample apologies to our readers we feel called upon to make a comment upon the weather. We dont want to ask you how you like it but when we come to think of the way the cold snap and snow has stopped operations for all the new county ditches and shut off our leading industries, we feel like taking a fall out of the weather man.

Peculiarities of Footpaths.

Footpaths are what roads are not, natural productions, just as the paths made by hares, deer and elephants are. No one really makes a footpath—that is, no one improves it. What is true of central Africa is true of England.

"The native paths," wrote Professor Drummond, "are the same in character all over Africa. Like the roads of the old Romans, they run straight on through everything—ridge and mountain and valley—never shying at obstacles nor anywhere turning aside to breathe. Yet within this general straightforwardness there is a singular eccentricity and indirectness in detail. Although the African footpath is, on the whole, a bee line, no fifty yards of it are ever straight. And the reason is not far to seek.

"If a stone is encountered, no native will ever think of removing it. Why should he? It is easier to walk around it. The next man who comes by will do the same. He knows that a hundred men are following him. He looks at the stone a moment, and it might be unearthed and tossed aside, but, no, he holds on his way. It would no more occur to him that that stone is a displaceable object than that feldspar belongs to the orthoclase variety. Generations and generations of men have passed that stone, and it still waits for a man with an altruistic idea."—Spectator.

An Odd Nest.

A correspondent of Cassell's Magazine records a curious freak on the part of some wasps in Gloucester, England.

The wasps were noticed going in and out of a lock which secured a workshop door. The owner of the shop had the lock removed to satisfy his curiosity about the doings of the busy workers. He found a nest inside. The cells were made of mud and were full of larvæ. There were several dead wasps inside the lock.

As the lock was in almost daily use the wasps could not have had a very peaceful home.

How Good Manners Saved Him.

This anecdote proves the profitable character of good manners and was told to me by a descendant of the gentleman who owned them. Mr. M. of —— was a rebel in 1745. He was taken and was being brought to the tower with Kilmarnock and Balmerino. A block stopped the sad cortege, and a lady, looking from a window, cried, "You tall rebel" (Mr. M. was 6 feet 4 inches), "you will soon be shorter by a head!"

"Does that give you pleasure, madam?" said Mr. M.

"Yes, it does."

"Then, madam," said Mr. M., taking off his hat and making a low bow, "I do not die in vain."

Lady —— was moved. She made interest for Mr. M. There exists a paper, in the hand of George II. to this effect: "Let Lady —— [the name is obliterated] have access to her tall rebel and be hanged to her."

The royal clemency was extended to Mr. M. I saw his pardon, beautifully engrossed within a decorative border and framed, on the wall of his descendant's study. It is fair to add that practically the whole county of Ross and also the Earl of Sutherland petitioned for the life of the courteous Mr. M.—Andrew Lang in Longman's.

How to Grow Short.

If you climb a mountain, your height decreases by three-quarters of an inch, and it may even diminish, exceptionally, by a full inch.

This is a fact known to all experienced mountain and Alpine climbers. On reaching the summit of the heights that form the pleasure ascents of holiday makers in the Alpine districts the stature of the climber is found to have become less to the extent already mentioned.

Doctors think that the attitude assumed of necessity in ascending is the cause of this diminution. Some persons believe that the pressure of the atmosphere produces this shrinking. In favor of the medical theory there is the other unquestionable fact that the decrease of stature is greater in those who carry a heavy pack during the climb.

When the Alpinist has descended to the ordinary level, his height begins to increase, but the normal length of the body is not attained until several hours after reaching the regular surface of the earth.

King of Virginia.

Apropos of the British royal titles a reference to colonial possessions appeared in an English sovereign's designation so long ago as the reign of Queen Elizabeth. The poet Spenser dedicated his "Faerie Queen" to Elizabeth, and then he described her as "queen of England, France and Ireland and sovereign of the Dominion of Virginia." It may also be remembered that the Virginians refused to acknowledge Oliver Cromwell's protectorate until he sent a fleet to compel them to do so. Charles II., in return expression of the colonists' loyalty, had himself proclaimed in Virginia on his restoration as "king of Great Britain, Ireland and Virginia." The further statement has been made that Charles caused the arms of Virginia to be quartered with those of England, Ireland and Scotland. Certain it is that they appear so on English coins struck as late as 1773 by order of George III.—Liverpool Post.

A Turkish Bank Note.

The bill is on imperial green paper, a color held sacred in Turkey, which the government alone is permitted to use. On the top and sides are the following words in Turkish, "To be paid to the bearer, without interest, 20 piasters." At the top of the note is the sultan's toghra, surrounding which is a quotation from the Koran. Underneath are the words, "Twenty piasters, paper money, to be used in the place of gold at the Bank of Constantinople." At the base of the note is the seal of the mint and on the back the seal of the minister of the treasury. The toghra is considered sacred and is guarded by the three highest officials of the mint, whose sole duty is to watch it.

Getting at a Fact.

The colored witness, being asked his age, said to the court:

"Well, suh, I wuz a young man w'en freedom broke out."

"What year was that?"

"Hit wuz de year de Yankees come in, suh."

"You do not seem to have a very accurate idea of time."

"Oh, yes, suh! Hit wuz 'long 'bout hog killin' time."—Atlanta Constitution.

Nut Foods.

Nearly all nuts contain large percentages of nitrogenous constituents and fats. In the nut kernel there is very little waste—in fact, the nourishment is in a concentrated form, and for that reason nuts are best combined or taken with other foods. They are especially valued for their fine, meaty flavor, which is found in no other vegetable food product.

Turks and Coffee.

Coffee reached Constantinople about 1554 and was of universal use in Mohammedan countries before the close of the sixteenth century. So essential was it deemed to domestic happiness that a Turkish law recognized a man's refusal to supply his wife with coffee as sufficient ground for her claiming a divorce.

SYLVESTER PETERSON, Register.
(Nov 6-Dec 11)

No. 1531.
To Emma Curtis:

You are hereby notified that on the 7th day of May A. D. 1898, in proceedings to enforce the payment of delinquent taxes pursuant to that certain real estate tax judgement which was entered in the District Court in and for the county of Polk, in the 14th Judicial District of the State of Minnesota, on the 21st day of March A. D. 1898, the following described piece and parcel of land which is now situated in Red Lake county (formerly a part of Polk county) in the State of Minnesota, to-wit:

Lot 11, Block 8 in the Railroad Addition to Red Lake Falls was sold to the state to satisfy the amount for which it was adjudged liable in said judgement, interests and costs for the sum of fifty-three cents; that on the 23rd day of May 1900 the right of the state acquired by said sale was assigned for the sum of sixty-five cents; that the amount required to redeem said piece and parcel of land from such sale (exclusive of the costs to accrue upon this notice) is sixty-five cents and interests on said amount at the rate of twelve per cent per annum from said 23rd day of May A. D. 1900, until such redemption is made and that the time for redemption of such piece and parcel of land from such sale will expire sixty days after the service of this notice, and proof thereof has been filed in the office of the county auditor of said Polk county.

Witness my hand and official seal this 10th day of September A. D. 1901.

"Reddy" Simonson is irrepressible—that is so far as visiting Thief River Falls is concerned. He went up there again on Sunday last. This time he took a buggy and a driver so he didn't have to change clothes when he came back.

The intense cold of the past few days had the effect of making the ditch contractors suspend operations for this year. The camps are generally broken up and gone into winter quarters. Work on the various new ditches throughout the county will be resumed as soon as the weather will permit in the spring.

E. J. Holmes has fitted up his furniture and hardware store with a two story table about 30 feet long. He says he had to put it up in self defense as his new stock took up more room than he had. He calls the structure a life saver. When something drops off and hits Emil in the right spot he'll call it by some other name.

Stone Wanted.

The St. Hilaire Lumber Co., wants to purchase a lot of stone during the coming winter for use in repairing their dams here and up the river, and for other river improvements. Any person having stone for sale which they can deliver this winter will please call at company's office in St. Hilaire for particulars and prices.

Thorkelson & Nelson, proprietors of the Imperial Drug Store have rented the building next door to their drug store, and will put in a large stock of holiday goods. Their business has increased from year to year until they have not enough room to handle their new stock in their present premises. They intend to give their patrons better service than ever this season.

Over Forty Million.

The saw mill here closed at noon yesterday for the season after having made the biggest seasons cut in the history of the plant. The total amount of lumber manufactured here this year will amount to over forty million feet. The Crookston mill, belonging to the same company, also shut down yesterday after a most successful season's work.

For Fire Protection.

The village council, at its meeting on Monday night, decided to construct a new water tank for fire protection. The dimensions of the structure are not yet fully decided upon. It will be located close by the village well and will catch all the overflow from the watering trough. It will be placed underground at a depth sufficient to insure good service all the year round. This is one of the best things ever done by the village council and will give great satisfaction to every one.

Large Contract for Watches.

An American firm has agreed to deliver 2,000,000 watches during the next year. This is by far the largest order ever given for timepieces. Since the practice of giving watches as premiums has become so common a large number of firms are kept busy supplying them for this purpose alone. "Golden Grain Belt" beer needs no premium to sell it for it is brewed from the purest barley malt and hops and should be used in every home. Order of your dealer or of Alex Thomson, Crookston.

On last Wednesday evening, October 30th, Anton Anderson and Miss Annie Severson were united in marriage. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Hendrickson, and was performed by Judge Peters in his best style. Anton took a trip to Red Lake Falls on that date and secured the license on the quiet, and even his closest friends didn't know anything about the matter until it was all over. The young couple are both well and favorably known in this vicinity and have the best wishes of all for their future happiness.

Cliffgard Farm Sold.

On last Saturday H. F. Opfer, of Wunkon, Ia., transacted a good amount of real estate business here the principal items of which were the purchase of the 240 acres south-east of St. Hilaire commonly known as the Cliffgard farm and also 600 acres of land in Black River township. The latter tract was purchased from Julius Pieth, the consideration being $16.50 per acre. The first mentioned tract was also purchased through Mr. Pieth and the amount paid was $4,000.

Chris Moe, who has owned the Cliffgard farm for over a year, and from whom Mr. Opfer bought it, has made over $2,000 on the place in that year. Mr. Opfer considers he has secured a great bargain in that farm at the price he paid.

Mr. Moe informs us that, having sold his farm he will go to Norway for the winter.

—Julius Pieth, the land man of St. Hilaire wants to buy farm lands—wild or improved, and will pay spot cash for same.

Election Returns

At the municipal elections held yesterday in Red Lake Falls Dr. N M. Watson was re-elected as mayor without opposition. Messrs Healy and Bray were elected as aldermen-at-large, and Messrs Tonpin and Swanson for justices.

At Thief River Falls Frank H. Kratka was elected mayor. C. A. Rohbecke and D. N. Winton were chosen for aldermen-at-large. In the contest for municipal judge N. W. Tarrant won out, he receiving 196 votes. W. C. Smiley had 123 votes and Frank Hihner 15.

Advices from East Grand Forks state that Mayor Brandt was re-elected and also his entire ticket.

TAMMANY LOSES IN NEW YORK.

New York, Nov. 6.—Seth Low, reform candidate for mayor, carries the city by about 30,000 and nearly all of his ticket also elected. All returns are not yet in.

The Thanksgiving number of The Ladies' Home Journal is replete with good fiction and interesting and novel features. It opens appropriately with an article which tells "Where the president's Turkey comes from." Then there are delightful stories by Hezekiah Butterworth and Laura Porter, and a new live story called "Christine," by Fredrick M Smith. Cleveland Moffett has an interesting storey about Ira D. Sankey, the great evangelist, and Edith King Swain recounts the famous ascents she has made in various parts of the world. Will Bradley's original designs for a house begin with the breakfast-room, and Wilson Eyre, Jr., presents plans for a country-house and a garden. Mr. Bok gives much good advice to young married couples in his editorial. Another most timely feature is "Why should a young man support the church?" by the Rev Francis E. Clark. Many home-made Chrismas gifts are shown, and the first of "the journal's amusing puzzles" appear. The regular departments are exceptionally good and the illustrations superb. By the Curtis publishing company, Philadelphia. One dollar a year; ten cents a copy.

The Laughter of Savages.

The general impression one derives from the accounts given is certainly that savage tribes are not victims of a sullen despair, but, on the contrary, have a large and abundant mirth. Their laughter and other signs of good spirits are of the most energetic kind. Darwin and a number of travelers assure us on this point. The Tasmanians, Ling Roth tells us, accompanied their loud bursts of laughter with movements of the hands to the head and quick tapping movements of the feet. The loud, deep chested character of the men's laughter is sometimes specially noted. A recent visitor to central Africa regrets that under European influence the deep chested, hearty laughter of the men is being replaced by what is known as the "mission giggle" in the younger folk.—International Monthly.

English Quail Stew.

For four plump quails provide four oysters, four tablespoonfuls of butter, three large cupfuls of ox tail soup or rich stock, two small glasses of port or madeira, two tablespoonfuls of onion vinegar, the same of India relish and mushroom catchup, celery salt, white pepper and four slices of crisp, brown toast. Leave the quails whole, simply opening down the breast. Put the butter in a frying pan over a hot fire and when brown lay the quails in the pan. Cover and cook ten minutes. Turn and cook ten minutes more. When browned on both sides, add the soup or stock, wine, catchup and relish. When it boils again, add celery salt and pepper to season and thicken with a tablespoonful of flour wet up in cold water. Stir it gradually until it boils. Turn each quail on its back and insert an oyster. Cook five minutes and serve on slices of toast with the liquid poured over all.

A Great Storm Wave.

A great storm wave is peculiar to cyclones. At the center of the disturbance the mercury in a good barometer may be lower by three inches than that in a similar instrument on the verge of the cyclone. This is owing to the diminution of atmospheric pressure consequent on the rotation of the air wheel, and as nature abhors a vacuum the sea in the vortex rises above its usual level until equilibrium is restored. This storm wave advances with the hurricane and rolls in upon the low land like a solid wall. In the Buckergunge cyclone of 1876 the storm wave covered the land at the eastern end of the Ganges delta at heights varying from ten to forty-five feet, as measured by marks on the trees. One hundred thousand lives were lost on this occasion.—Chambers' Journal.

They Found the Pail.

During a spell of particularly hot weather a well known baronet came across three workmen engaged on a job on his estate. One of them remarked, as workmen not infrequently do, on the dryness of the job. The heat had perhaps extended itself to the baronet's temper. At any rate, he turned away, with the reply: "If you are thirsty, you know where the well is. You will find a pail there."

Thinking over his remark a little later, it flashed across the baronet's mind that he had given orders for three bottles of champagne to be put into the pail and lowered into the well to cool for dinner. He hastened to the well and discovered—three empty bottles! What he said this time is not reported. —London Truth.

TALKING BY WHISTLING.

Complete Language Has Been Developed by the Aborigines of the Canary Islands and Is Used.

There is a perfect whistling language used by the aborigines of the Canary Islands, and the people can communicate with each other over long distances. A stranger wandering over the islands is frequently surprised to hear from a hilltop the sound of loud whistling, which is quickly repeated on the next hill, and so it is carried from summit to summit, until it dies away in the distance.

But perhaps the most curious means of communication in the world is the drum language of an African tribe, named, as nearly as the word can be represented in our letters, Thang-Tu. These queer people can talk to each other with large drums made of hamboo loops, over which the skin of some animal is stretched. The drum is used only on important occasions—such as the meeting of war or the trial of some members of the tribe who have broken some of the common religious rules. Then the head man of the village, who is hidden behind a rough grass screen, asks questions of the witnesses by tapping on the drum, and finally delivers judgment by giving either of the three sharp bangs, which means death to the prisoner, or the one light tap, that means freedom.—Philadelphia Times.

THE CHAMPION WING SHOT.

Capt. Bogardus Has a Dangerous Experience But Comes Out Unhurt.

Ferris Wheel Park, Chicago, Nov. 4th.—Capt. A. H. Bogardus, the champion wing shot of the world, has spent the summer here. His shooting school has been one of the features of the Park during the season. He has given many exhibitions, and his skill with the rifle is superb.

The Captain tells of a very close call he once had when living at Elkhart, Ill. He had been a sufferer from Kidney Disease for several years, and it rapidly developed into Bright's disease. All his friends told him that this was incurable and that he would never get better.

To say that he was alarmed is to put it mildly. This plucky man had faced many dangers, and it made him sick at heart to think that at last he was to be conquered by such a cruel foe.

At last he heard of a medicine that had cured many such cases—Dodd's Kidney Pills. He used them, and was completely restored to good health.

He says:—"I attribute my present good health to Dodd's Kidney Pills and to nothing else."

Gibson Girls in Far-Away Hawaii.

The popularity of the book does not seem to be on the wane. On the contrary, it is spreading to distant parts of the world. This is evidenced by the fact that "The Gibson Play," which appeared some months ago in the Ladies' Home Journal, and which might be called a book play even though it was made possible by the series of pictures drawn by Mr. Gibson, entitled "A Widow and Her Friends," was presented by the students of Oahu College, Honolulu, in the Hawaiian Islands, a few weeks ago. The various parts were assumed by native Hawaiians, who, it is said, acted them in a truly American manner.

Of Course She Didn't Know.

A certain Unitarian minister of Greater New York has determined that his young daughter shall not know the dark side of orthodox religion. The miss accompanied her mother to the country during the past summer, and there found a playmate in the young daughter of a village teacher. One day the following conversation was overheard.

"You've told a story," said the village girl, accusingly. "Don't you know where folks go who tell stories?"

"No," replied the New York miss. "Where do they go?"

"They go to hell."

"Where's hell?"

"Why, Maude Black! You, a minister's daughter, and don't know where hell is!"

"Well, I don't care," answered the accused. "I never was in a geography class in my life."—New York Times.

HOUSES BUILT IN MANILA.

Stone Does Not Figure in the Construction of Upper Stories.

The sky-scraping tower of stone and iron which is becoming so common an eyesore in American cities has not invaded that land of the earthquake and the typhoon, the Philippine Islands, and is not likely to do so soon. These perilous visitants govern the character and the size of the houses, which are very rarely more than two stories in height, even in the best quarters of Manila. Of these the ground floor is used as a coach house or to lodge the native servants. It is apt to be too damp for the family, who live on the upper floor, which is divided into a spacious hall, dining and reception rooms, and bed and other apartments. The kitchen is often a separate building, with a roofed passage leading to the house. Besides it is the bathroom, an apartment much in demand among the Filipinos, with whom cleanliness is one of the chief virtues and bathing a daily duty.

These houses were formerly of stone, but since the great earthquake of 1880 only wood has been permitted in the second stories. These are fitted with sliding windows all around, to permit the freest entrance of air. At the same time, to keep out the hot glow of the sunlight, glass is replaced in the windows by translucent seashells, through which only a modicum of light can filter. Corrugated iron roofs are common, but they are very hot. To obviate this, many roofs are covered with a thin layer of nipa-palm thatching, which is cooler, though dangerous in case of fire.

PRESIDENT M'KINLEY'S CIGARS.

Special Brand Turned Out for Him—His Only Vice.

One of President McKinley's first desires when he was thought to be convalescent was for a cigar. The President always was a great smoker. It was his only vice—that is, of course, if smoking is a vice. In Washington Mr. McKinley always bought his cigars at the same place—the cigar stand under the Ebbitt house. When he first went to Washington Mr. McKinley put up at the Ebbitt house and he continued to make that hotel his Washington residence during all of his official life up to the time of his inauguration as president. There he found a brand of cigars that suited him, and he smoked it ever afterward. Of late years the manufacturers have been turning out a special cigar for Mr. McKinley. He sent for half a dozen boxes at a time. His allowance was said to be from eight to ten cigars a day. When he was in congress, says the New York Times, Mr. McKinley was even a harder smoker than of late. In the evenings after dinner he would sit around the Ebbitt house lobby, or, when the weather was fine, in a chair on the 14th street sidewalk, and would consume five or six cigars before going to bed. During the Spanish war, when the President was forced frequently to keep late vigil at the White House, he soothed his nerves with cigars. He never drank except when feeling the need of a stimulant for medical purposes.

NOTABLE MEN AND WOMEN.

Dr. James M. Gray, who has been engaged in teaching in the Moody Bible Institute in Chicago during the summer, will spend the winter in New England conducting his classes in the synthetic study of the Bible in Boston and elsewhere as usual, beginning in the fall.

Dr. Thomas McClelland, the new president of Knox College, was president of Tabor College several years ago. At that time he wanted a railroad to connect Tabor with the rest of the world. Failing to interest other roads in the enterprise, he built it himself and afterwards sold it on favorable terms to the Burlington.

Major D. W. Whittle, who is said to be dying in East Northfield, Mass., is one of the best-known evangelists in the country. "There Shall Be Showers of Blessing" and "I Know Whom I Have Believed" are two of his most familiar hymns. For two years Major Whittle has been confined to his bed by rheumatic fever.

Count Tolstoi, the famous Russian novelist, neither drinks, smokes nor eats meat. It is his boast that he does not possess a single article he could possibly dispense with; and he has even refused to receive a bicycle as a present, on the ground that it is a luxury. His recreations are chess and lawn tennis, at both of which he is adept.

George Muller still lives in good deeds though he has been dead some years. The income for the orphanages he founded in Bristol, England, is not diminishing. Last year it was nearly $190,000. Much of it comes in peculiar form, and shows the influence of Mr. Muller's ideas on devout minds. A large amount, for example, is money that would otherwise have been paid for life and fire insurance, but is contributed as an expression of faith in God for protection instead of trust in insurance companies.

Patellas or Knee Pants.

At an examination not long ago one of the questions in physiology was: "What is the patella, or knee pan?" The answer of one boy was as follows: "The patella, or knee pants, is trousers, which extend from the waist to the knees, and were worn by grown-up men during George Washington's administration. They are not worn by men in the present time, except bicycle riders and men who play golf, but are only worn by small boys. Every boy is glad when he is old enough to take off his patellas, or knee pants, and go into long pants, which extend from the waist to the ankle."

MARKET LETTER.

The following market letter is furnished by Edwards, Wood & Co., Grain, Seeds, Provisions, Commission Merchants, 8, Chamber of Commerce, Minneapolis, 310, Board of Trade, Duluth:

Oct. 31st.—Wheat has declined about 1 cent, so far this week, on account of heavy rains in the Argentine Republic. Northwest receipts have continued heavy. The total receipts at the four principal spring wheat markets for the week, to date, are 3,189,000 bushels; last year, 2,269,000 bushels; since August 1, 71,512,000 bushels; last year at the same time, 55,525,000 bushels. Receipts at the four chief winter wheat points for the week, to date, are 506,000 bushels; last year, 5,568,000 bushels; total since July 1, 33,377,000 bushels; for the same period last year, 46,774,000 bu. Total receipts since the beginning of the present crop year, 103,888,000 bushels; for the same period last year, 102,299,000 bushels. According to reports to Bradstreet's, Oct. 29, the available supply east of the Rockies for the United States and Canada, increased 4,954,000 bushels since the last account; this is partly compensated for by decrease in the amount on ocean passage, the world's visible supply increasing 2,954,000 bushels. Exports from both coasts for the week ending Oct. 26, are 4,952,000 bushels. The world's shipments for the same week, 7,268,000 bushels; last year, 8,935,000 bushels. Receipts of winter wheat for three days this week are less than one-tenth as much as for the corresponding days last year, and the total figures for the crop year show that the large movement in the Northwest only a little more than compensates for the decreased receipts of winter wheat. The wheat and flour movement is at present handicapped by a serious shortage of cars on Eastern roads. The lake routes will soon be closed for the season, which will not improve matters. The car famine contrasts curiously with the over-supply of ocean freight room, which is remarkable, especially for this time of year. Ocean freights have declined 50 per cent, and a large amount of shipping is idle. This is said to be explained by the small exports of corn. The price of wheat has been steadied this week by the strength of corn and oats; corn has gained strength on the continued bad husking returns, rains in the West, and the continued shipping of both corn and oats to the West and South. Oats are strong and higher on the active cash demand, and the speculative condition at Chicago, where one man is said to hold a line of over 8,000,000 bushels. Reports of this year's corn crop grow steadily worse, both as to quality and yield. Returns from twenty-eight counties in Illinois indicate about half a crop of soft, chaffy corn. The price of corn has advanced 1 cent so far this week. We venture to predict 75 cents per bushel for corn. A famine exists in parts of Mexico. The government has suspended the tariff on corn, but, notwithstanding, bread riots have occurred, in which several persons were killed. A letter from Saratoff, Russia, predicts a wholesale loss of cattle and horses in that province on account of lack of fodder. Flax has declined on heavy Northwestern receipts, but there is a good demand for the best grades. If you are unfamiliar with the grain trade, send for our private cipher, explaining speculation.

Hoist With His Own Petard.

Prof. Trent of Columbia University, in "A Retrospect of American Humor," in the November Century, tells the following anecdote in connection with an account of Judge Longstreet's book, called "Georgia Scenes:"

"Unless he was mystifying his readers, one of the best scenes in his book was not from Judge Longstreet's hand—that admirable description of the militia company drill which Mr. Thomas Hardy seems to have made free with in the twenty-third chapter of 'The Trumpet Major.' Almost as amusing as the apparently-plundered sketch is the fact that when the 'lifting' was exposed by the 'Critic,' in parallel columns, a writer in the 'Daily News'—was it Andrew Lang?—came to the rescue of the British novelist by pointing out how far the latter had improved upon the crude sketch of the American provincial. But no sooner was this convincing proof of British superiority been given than the 'Critic' was forced to explain that by an unlucky (sic) mistake the authors' names at the top of the columns had been transposed!"

The Japanese Version of Longfellow.

From the entertaining diary of a Japanese girl, printed in Leslie's Monthly for November.

29th—English of America—Sir. It is light, unreserved and accessible—grew dear again. My love of it returned like a glow in a brazier that I had watched passionately.

Oya, oya, my book of Longfellow under the heavy coat of dust!

I dusted the book with great care and veneration, as I did a wee image of the Lord a month ago.

The same old gentle face of the "Merican poet—a poet not always able to sing of tragic lomentations, and of "Far beyond"—stared at me from its frontispiece. I wondered if he ever dreamed his volume would be opened in the tiny brown palms of a Japan girl.

Am I not a lovely young lady!

Large, fatherly poet he is, but not unique. Uniqueness, however, has become commonplace.

Poet of plain plainness he is—plainness in thought and color. Even his elegance is plain enough.

How to Make a Birthday Book.

Take as many sheets as there are days in the year. Paste at the head of each the date, and inscribe a legend from your favorite poet. Leave a space for your friends to write their names against the day of the year when they were born. Bind the whole between stiff cardboard, and tie it with knots of ribbon, drawn through holes made with a large needle. If you are clever with pen and ink, you may embellish your book with drawings here and there, or you may insert at intervals a picture from an illustrated paper.—November Ladies' Home Journal.

TINTYPES MAY PREVARICATE.

Seacoast and Foreign Labels Stamped on the Covers.

When the tintype man came out with the pictures he asked the young couple what address they would like stamped on the red paper cover. They didn't seem to understand the question and he repeated it. "I can put on any place you like," he added. "I am provided with rubber stamps, with which I can stamp the name of every town of importance from Coney Island to Constantinople, and I can fill in the date to suit my customers. Here is my local stamp. It says, 'In Old Coney Island.' I don't use that; however, nearly so often as the seacoast and foreign labels. They come in handy for people who like to put up a bluff that they have been further away from home than they really have. These social frauds are a little late in beginning their deception this year, owing to the backwardness of the season, but today has brought a rush of business and the Long Branch and Atlantic City stamps have been overworked. The outlook is good for an unusually large crop of pretenders who are going to make their friends think they have been away this summer. To back them up in their assertions they are going to lay in a good supply of tintypes. For the last two or three seasons people who leave New York for a day or a week or a month of the year have made a practice of getting their pictures taken in every town visited, as a souvenir of the trip. All this photographing would be expensive if high class artists were always patronized, so in order to curtail the cost the ambitious travelers look up the tintype men. This habit of economy has been a blessing to me as well as to the stay-at-homes. A regular photograph would bear the name of the artist as well as the address, and thus make deception impossible, but most tintypes look alike, no matter where taken, so all I have to do is to finish the picture and stamp on any address desired. In that respect I am the best friend of the impecunious. It isn't everybody who would take the trouble to humor their foibles, but I go on the practice that a man who has not enough amiability to accommodate his customers has no right to be in business, and so I help them whenever and however possible. What place did you say? Coney Island or—" The maid looked at the man sheepishly. "Let's put it New Haven," she said. "That will sound better than Coney Island."—New York Press.

LINCOLN'S AVENGER.

Some Stories Illustrating Boston Corbett's Impulsiveness and Courage.

Sallie Bruner Houston tells the Smith County (Kan.) Pioneer a curious story of how she received the news of the assassination of Lincoln, Garfield and McKinley. She was 4 years old at the date of the assassination of Lincoln, but she remembers that when the news came to her father's farmhouse she "leaned up against the big fireplace and cried," while her mother "wiped her own eyes with her apron." Of the assassination of Garfield Mrs. Houston relates this story: "At that time we were living on our farm six miles south of Concordia, this state. Several of the family, including myself, were sitting in the yard with Boston Corbett, the man who shot the assassin of Lincoln. At that time Corbett lived on a farm near us. While we sat there my father came from town and brought the news of the shooting of President Garfield. Every one who remembers Corbett remembers his impulsive nature. He was quick as a cat. The news seemed to electrify him. He jumped to his feet, saying: 'I wish I were there.' We all knew what he meant. There would have been no trial for Guiteau. All who ever knew Boston Corbett knew that he would have shot Guiteau on the spot had he been there. It was about this time that Corbett was arrested on complaint of some of his neighbors for some petty offense and taken to Concordia for trial before a justice of the peace. He thought that he was not getting justice, so he drew his ever-ready revolver and ordered them out and thus cleared the courtroom. He then mounted his little black pony and went home. There was a great deal of talk of having him rearrested, and several persons went to his home to do so, but did not have the courage to do so. As they always returned without him, the case was finally dropped."

Anarchists Elected in Rome.

The Camera di Lavoro—a body entirely composed of workingmen, but recognized officially by the municipality of Rome, from which it receives 500 lire subsidy per month, might be translated into English as "trades union." It has between 8,000 and 9,000 members on its rolls, but only some 2,500 took part in the elections last week. The battle was between the socialists single-handed and an alliance of Republicans and anarchists, and the result was the complete victory of the coalition. Five republicans and three anarchists headed the list; the beaten socialists obtained only the three seats allotted to the minority. The fact has its importance, for it signals the first appearance of the anarchists in the public life of Rome—less than two years since an international congress was held here to devise measures for their suppression and just a year after one of their party assassinated the King of Italy.—London Tablet.

Hail the new and dainty divinity, that sits aloft; the Twentieth Century Charioteer! She has one foot on the gong; one hand controls the steering gear, the other moves the lever that starts or backs the auto. The Nudity Cure.

There is a village in Austria, near the Ardiatic, where the nudity cure is practiced. The debilitated neurasthenics, the tired, etc., can go there, and, in the costumes of Adam, expose themselves to the air, the sun's rays or the rain. Thickets are carefully arranged to as to cut off all view of the patients; a hat and short trunk only are allowed. The sexes are separated. Baths, massage, gymnastics and games are indulged in, and a strict vegetarian diet completes the treatment.—Gazette Hopitaux.

"Mamma," said Kitty, "does the Lord know everything?"

"Yes, dear."

Kitty pondered a moment.

"Yes; I have no doubt He knows that, too."

Our Growing Paper Trade.

The United States, the greatest paper producing country in the world, is also one in which there is the greatest demand for it, both absolutely and per capita, and it has heretofore been exported. Of recent years, however, the American manufacturer has begun to reach out for his share of the trade in foreign markets. In the year 1897 American exports of paper, manufactures of paper and wood pulp, were valued at $4,775,370; in 1898 they had advanced to $6,164,178, and in 1899 they reached $6,255,211. Even in the last named year the United States held only eighth place as an exporter of paper products.—Home Magazine.

The Czar Had His Bath.

Apropos of the czar's recent visit to France, it is related that only the presence of mind of Mme. Loubet, wife of the president of France, prevented a sad contretemps. The imperial party was staying at a country villa, and when the hour for the czar's morning bath arrived the servants started to prepare the tub. But the hot water would not come. The servants twisted the faucets this way and that, and pounded on the pipes, but all to no purpose. Finally, Mme. Loubet heard of the difficulty. She called several men servants, and hot water was sent from the kitchen to the imperial tub in buckets.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. Coachman's Clever Retort.

Mrs. William Astor tells this good story of a clever retort made by one of her coachmen. She had been out driving in Central Park, where it was her habit to take a turn every afternoon when the weather is fine. The coachman, owing to a too lively use of the whip, had nearly run into another vehicle, and had displayed bad judgment generally.

Dueling With Tallow Bullets.

There is something intensely amusing in the new wrinkle taught by Dr. Davillers to the Ligue des Patriotes, composed of those famous bloodless duelists of France, at whom the world has been laughing these thirty years. He teaches the believers in the code how to shoot at each other with real pistols, in a business-like way, using tallow bullets and a small charge of powder. This is to accustom students of dueling to gaze with equanimity down the roiled barrel of a revolver. (I believe revolvers are now used in duels.) The face is covered with a fencing mask, and the eyes are protected by thick goggles. Old clothes save the body, except from the grease of the bullets. The fact of actually shooting at each other and hitting some tender spot adds spice to the practice, and the prospect is excellent for a widespread of the wrinkle of the French physician. The question naturally arises: Why not use tallow bullets in actual duels, with the combatants naked above the waist?—Victor Smith, in the New York Press.

SEIZED SHERIFFS

TWO ESCAPED CONVICTS TURN THE TABLES ON THEIR PURSUERS.

ESCAPE IN SIGHT OF POLICE

USE SHERIFF AND WOMAN AS SHIELDS TO PROTECT THEM FROM POLICE.

SHERIFF PROMISES IMMUNITY

POLICE COMPELLED TO STAND HELPLESSLY BY WHILE THEY ESCAPE.

Topeka, Kan., Nov. 11.—Sheriff Cook of this county and Deputy Sheriff Williams were captured by two escaped convicts from the Fort Leavenworth military prison yesterday at Pauline, five miles south of Topeka, and held prisoners in the farmhouse of a man named Wooster for several hours. The convicts finally escaped between a line of police sent from Topeka to reinforce the sheriff and are now at large. Both were slightly wounded. Wooster was badly wounded by one of the convicts when he tried to fire on them. Mrs. Wooster and Sheriff Cook were held before the convicts as a shield by the prisoners in making their escape. The posse is now in pursuit.

At 2:30 yesterday afternoon some farmer boys near Pauline learned that the convicts were in the neighborhood. Hastily forming a posse, armed with target rifles, pistols and clubs, they gave chase. Neither of the convicts were armed and they were unable to make a stand. Later Sheriff Cook and Deputy Williams arrived. Coming upon the convicts both officers fired, wounding the men but not disabling them. The convicts then fled through a small opening in the timber and ran into the house of Farmer Wooster. Sheriff Cook telephoned to Topeka for assistance and then Took Up the Chase.

Thinking the convicts had run around the house, Cook darted through the open door, intending to surprise them at the rear door. But instead of this the convicts had gone into the house and the officer almost fell into their arms. Sheriff Cook was ordered to give up his gun, which he did. Deputy Williams by this time had reached the house and entered without knowing what had happened, and he, too, was made captive by the convict. In the meantime Chief Stahl of Topeka, with eight officers, were on the way. They arrived at the Wooster house about an hour after the officers had been imprisoned. Chief Stahl immediately began negotiations with the convicts to give up their prisoners, but the convicts only laughed. The convicts placed the woman and Sheriff Cook in front of them as shields and made for the door. Then after exacting a promise from the sheriff that he would not permit any of the officers outside to fire on them, they Started for the Open.

As they left the house, the frightened farmer's wife and sheriff before them, the convicts passed between a cordon of police who could have easily captured them, and started for the railroad track. The sheriff had in the meantime exacted a promise from the police that they would not molest the convicts and they did not. After covering a considerable distance down the track the convicts suddenly disappeared through a hedge fence, bidding the officers a mocking farewell. One of the police sergeants later said he could have easily touched the leading convict with his hand as he passed.

The convicts had secured a good start before the officers had recovered from their surprise. Then some of the policemen wanted to pursue, but Sheriff Cook would not permit it as he had promised the convicts immunity from arrest. Chief Stahl left some of his men on the scene and with the others started back to Topeka to take up the chase later on. From Topeka a posse was started out and Chief Stahl expressed the opinion that he would land the men in a few hours.

Convicts Rob a Man.

Kansas City, Nov. 11.—None of the fourteen escaped convicts from the Fort Leavenworth prison at liberty Saturday evening was taken yesterday, although armed guards and citizens kept up a steady hunt all day Sunday. Saturday evening three of the escaped prisoners held up and robbed a man near Manhattan, Kan., but escaped and all trace of them was lost. One of the men is believed to be Frank Thompson, the notorious negro leader of the mutiny.

SCHOONER WRECKED.

Crew Spends a Perilous Night on the Wreck Before Being Rescued.

Menominee, Mich., Nov. 11.—The schooner Emily Taylor was wrecked at Zelser bay, twenty miles north of here, and the crew, consisting of Capt. James Stone, his wife, two children and two sailors, spent a perilous night on the wreck before they were rescued by fishermen. The schooner is owned by Capt. Stone and hails from Gladstone. She had loaded wood at Arthur Bay for Green Bay, and was caught in the blow.

Havana, Nov. 11.—The Democratic party has adopted Gen. Bartolome Maso as its candidate for the presidency of Cuba.

New Plant Destroyed.

Newcastle, Pa., Nov. 11.—The plant of the Lawrence Ice and Storage company was completely gutted by fire last evening. The damage amounts to fully $150,000. The plant was only completed and operations begun this fall.

Strikers Return to Work.

Oelwein, Iowa, Nov. 11.—The Chicago Great Western strike was settled by the men returning to work though the objectionable foreman was not removed. Three hundred strikers were out for three weeks.

SURETY COMPANY WILL PAY.

Finance Keeper's Defalcation Larger Than Reported.

Port Huron, Mich., Nov. 10.—It now transpires that the Fidelity and Deposit Company of Maryland, which carried the bond of Charles D. Thompson, the self-confessed defaulting supreme financekeeper of the supreme tent of the Knights of the Maccabees, before being released last July, is still liable for any loss which the order may have sustained by the defalcation. Representatives of the company, it is said, have informed Maccabee officials that the loss will be paid. Therefore, it is now probable that Thompson will be arrested to-day. This was indicated last night from a talk with officials of the order and the arrest will come as a result of the conference of the K. O. T. M. trustees and representatives of the bonding company. The heaviest loss is said to fall upon the Maryland Fidelity company, as Thompson's defalcations since August, when the National Surety company assumed the risk, were comparatively small. It was announced yesterday that Thompson's shortage was $60,000 instead of 57,000. All data concerning the embezzlement is in the hands of the bond companies and orders are being awaited from headquarters.

BOLD ROBBER FOILED.

Attempted Holdup in a Saloon in Montana.

Great Falls, Mont., Nov. 10.—At 9:45 last night a masked robber entered the saloon of Alfred Malmberg in Little Chicago and with the command "hands up!" fired a shot into the ceiling and proceeded behind the bar to rifle the till. The nerve of Edward Erickson, the bartender, which came very nearly costing his life, saved the money, but the robber, badly beaten, and leaving behind his hat, mask and gun, made his escape through the door into the street. The bartender was at first taken back by the boldness of the robber, but he soon recovered his nerve and grabbing a bung-starter, he sailed in. He disarmed the robber and gave him a good beating.

BANK WAS CLEANED OUT.

Mounted Robbers Make a Successful Raid at Scotland, S. D.

Yankton, S. D., Nov. 10.—The Bank of Scotland, twenty-eight miles west of Yankton, was robbed yesterday morning of $5,000. The safe was blown open and the entire contents carried away. Two strangers were seen in the vicinity of the bank during the evening. About 3 o'clock yesterday morning an explosion aroused the citizens, who arrived at the bank building in time to see the robbers making their escape on horses. They were pursued but have not been captured. The outer door of the vault was entered after drilling through the lock. Explosives were used on the inner vault door and on two safe doors.

FARMER ARRESTED.

Is Charged With Having Other People's Cattle in His Possession.

Redwood Falls, Minn., Nov. 10.—Thomas F. Smith, a well-to-do farmer of Itenville county, was arrested by the sheriff of Grant county, S. D., yesterday. Smith is wanted by the South Dakota authorities on the charge of taking more cattle than he was entitled to in a round-up in that county this fall. The round-up was made by employes. The sheriff was armed with a requisition from Gov. Van Sant, but after he brought his prisoner to this city the latter employed an attorney, who has applied to Judge Weber, now holding court here, for the release of the prisoner under habeas corpus. Judge Weber will give his decision to-day.

Fire Is Extinguished.

Bessemer, Mich., Nov. 10.—The fire in the Mikado mine was extinguished yesterday after a damage of $10,000. Two hundred men are thrown out of employment. The body of Erick Johnson, one of the entombed men, was found clinging to a ladder 150 feet from the surface. William's body has not yet been recovered.

New Agent at Moorhead.

Moorhead, Minn., Nov. 10.—L. S. Stodder, formerly agent for the Northern Pacific at St. Cloud, will succeed E. O. Dilling as local agent for the company. Mr. Dilling has accepted the position of manager of the Fargo office of Edwards, Wood & Co., the St. Paul grain commission firm.

Fatal Jump From Train.

Caledonia, Minn., Nov. 10.—William Osnus, a cook employed at W. S. Moore's railroad camp five miles west, was instantly killed by jumping from a freight train and falling back on the track. His parents live at West Salem, Wis., where he will be taken for burial.

Prominent Wisconsin Man Dead.

Kenosha, Wis., Nov. 10.—Frederick S. Newell, one of the best known manufacturers in the Northwest, died yesterday after an illness of many months. He was fifty-six years of age and during his life fathered many industrial enterprises.

Young Hunter Shoots Himself

New Richmond, Wis., Nov. 10.—James Gamble, aged thirteen years, shot and killed himself accidentally while hunting prairie chickens near Chinook, Mont. He was an only son of a well known St. Croix county family.

Convict Escapes From Prison.

Bismarck, N. D., Nov. 10.—Edward Lee, a convict at the state penitentiary, escaped from that institution while engaged at building cattle sheds. He is still among the missing. A reward of $50 has been offered for his capture.

LOW IS ELECTED

FUSION CANDIDATE FOR MAYOR OF GREATER NEW YORK A WINNER.

LARGEST VOTE EVER POLLED

FUSION CANDIDATE FOR DISTRICT ATTORNEY HAS FAIR PLURALITY.

DICK CROKER'S LAST CAMPAIGN

TAMMANY LEADER WILL NOT PERSONALLY CONDUCT ANOTHER.

New York, Nov. 7.—Seth Low, former president of Columbia university, and four years ago the citizens' union candidate for the first mayor of Greater New York, was elected yesterday the second mayor of Greater New York by a plurality ranging anywhere from 30,000 to 40,000, defeating Edward M. Shepard of Brooklyn, the Democratic nominee. The campaign was an exciting one, and the vote, though somewhat less than at the presidential election a year ago, was the largest ever polled in a municipal contest in this country.

In addition to the canvass for mayor public interest largely centered in the nomination by the fusionists of William Travers Jerome for district attorney, and Mayor Robert A. Van Wyck, by the Democrats, for justice of the supreme court. They were voted for only in the territory contained in New York county. The latest returns indicate that Jerome has been elected by a comfortable plurality and that Mayor Van Wyck has been defeated, the latter running behind his ticket from 15,000 to 20,000. These returns also show that the triumph of the fusion ticket is practically complete. Reports received from the various sections of New York State show that the Republicans of the lower house of the state legislature, the number of Republican and Democratic assemblymen not differing materially from the figures of preceding years. In the various municipal contests reported from up the state the most interesting elections noted were those of Albany, Troy, Rochester, Syracuse and Buffalo. The city of Albany was carried by the Republicans. The election in Troy was a lively one, a number of arrests for illegal voting being made. Former United States Senator Murphy headed the fight for the candidate of the Democrats, while Former Gov. Black managed the campaign for the progressive Democratic-Republican ticket. Seymour Van Santvoord, the candidate for mayor, supported by ex-Gov. Black, was easily elected. In Buffalo the entire Republican city and county tickets were elected, Erastus C. Knight, the state controller, being chosen mayor. The result in Rochester was close, but Mayor Warner's friends claim the election of the Republican candidate.

Will Retain Control

New York, Nov. 8.—Complete unofficial returns from every district of Greater New York give Seth Low, fusion candidate for mayor, 291,992, and Edward M. Shepard, Democratic candidate, 265,128, making Low's plurality 26,864. Edward M. Grout, fusionist candidate for controller, received 299,713 votes, and William Ladd, his Democratic rival, 254,737, making Grout's plurality 44,796. Unofficial returns from every election district in New York county give William Travers Jerome, fusionist, a lead of 15,880 over Henry W. Unger, Democrat, in the race for the district attorneyship. The vote was: Jerome, 163,959; Unger, 148,079.

GRUESOME FIND.

Human Bodies Being Shipped as Machinery.

Chicago, Nov. 7.—Eight human bodies were taken last evening from two crates at the freight depot of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad. They were consigned to R. J. Jones of Brashear, Mo., and marked as second-hand laundry machinery. The bodies were purchased during the day from the Harvey Medical college of this city and were being shipped to Missouri for purposes of dissection. The police are looking for Jones, but so far have been unable to locate him. The only charge that can be brought against him is the shipping of bodies in a manner contrary to law.

YOUNG WOMAN MURDERED.

Man Who Had Quarreled With Her Arrested on Suspicion.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 7.—Nora Brittain, a young white woman, was found dead in bed at a house on South Forsyth street yesterday morning. A small hole in the temple, evidently made with a sharp but rough instrument, proved that the woman had been murdered. J. J. Carroll, a news agent running between Atlanta and Brunswick, was arrested last night charged with the crime. Carroll denies that he was implicated in the murder, but admits that he had a quarrel with the woman Tuesday night.

Didn't Keep Count.

"How many times did you vote in the election?"

"Marse Tom," was the reply, "ain't you knowed me long 'nuff ter know dat I don't know nuttin' 'tall 'bout 'rithmetic?"—Atlanta Constitution.

Evening Matters.

"Henry, what did you mean by putting only a dime in the contribution box?"

"Why Harriet, Uncle Archibald was with us, and he put in $2."—Chicago Record-Herald.

ARMED AT ALL TIMES.

Precautions Against Further Surprises in Samar.

Manila, Nov. 11.—A dispatch from Catabogan, Island of Samar, says that Lukban, the insurgent leader, has sent a message to Gen. Smith declaring that he will not listen to negotiations for surrender until the Americans have withdrawn from the Gandaro valley. Gen. Smith has ordered every American soldier in the island of Samar and the department of Leyte never to be without arms at all times. He is determined there shall be no more surprises, and commanding officers are held responsible. Gen. Smith also directs that scouting must continue indefinitely and that all rice and hemp captured must be destroyed. He considers the capture of Lukban only a question of a short time.

KILLER OUT OF REVENGE.

Non-Union Teamster Is Assaulted and Killed.

San Francisco, Nov. 11.—Otto M. Ekberg, non-union teamster, was killed Saturday night by an unknown man, who struck him on the head with a gas pipe fully two feet long. The only witness to the assault was Mrs. Alma Miller. She does not think she would be able to identify the murderer. During the recent strike in this city Ekberg and another non-union teamster were attacked by twenty or more union teamsters. In defending themselves Eckberg and his friend shot into the crowd, wounding one of the union men slightly. It is thought this occurrence supplied the motive for the killing.

GREAT FIRE LOSS.

Coal Company's Dock and an Immense Trestle Are Consumed.

Pittsburg, Nov. 11.—A fire which originated in a stable of the Monongahela River Consolidated Coal company at Six-mile Ferry, just below Homestead, promises to do much damage. At midnight the immense trestle of the coal company, its dock, covering 200 yards along the river front, are in flames and will be a total loss. Several small shanty boats and tugs moored to the docks have been destroyed, as well as the office of the company with all its contents. The loss cannot be stated at this hour, but before the flames can be extinguished the aggregate will probably reach $100,000.

INVADERS MUST GET OUT.

Kitchener Has a Scheme to Rid Cape Colony of Boers.

London, Nov. 11.—In a letter dated Oct. 23 the Cape Town correspondent of the Daily Mail says:

"Lord Kitchener and Sir John Gordon Sprigg (the Cape Town premier) have arranged a scheme for the expulsion of the invaders from Cape Colony. A joint commission of imperial and colonial military chiefs has been sitting here for several days past to draft a scheme. It is understood that this provides for the colony taking a large share in the future of the campaign and contributing largely toward its cost. Apparently a levy of loyalists en masse is the idea involved.

TO HIS NEW POST.

Great Demonstration in Havana for Mgr. Sbarretti.

Havana, Nov. 11.—The departure of Mgr. Sbarretti, the retiring bishop of Havana, who left on the steamer Mexico en route for his new post, that of apostolic delegate extraordinary to the Philippines, was the occasion of a great demonstration. Thousands attended at the cathedral to receive a farewell blessing. Numerous religious societies went in procession to the wharf, and the civil military and ecclesiastical authorities accompanied Mgr. Sbarretti on board the steamer.

FILIPINOS WHIPPED.

Their Position Carried by Americans After a Hard Fight.

Manila, Nov. 11.—Advices from Catbalogan, capital of Samar island, reports that Maj. Waller attacked a force of insurgents occupying a strong position at Sojton, two three-inch guns being used to shell the rebel stronghold. Throughout the first day the rebels held the place, but yesterday Maj. Waller renewed the attack and, after a desperate engagement, carried the position. Two marines of the attacking force and twenty-six insurgents were killed.

FOUND TO BE FRAUDS.

Operators of a Fake Marriage Bureau Are Convicted.

Kansas City, Nov. 11.—The jury in the case of Charles Miller and Mrs. N. C. Collins, alias Grace Arnold, in the federal court, found them guilty on the two counts in the indictments charging them with operating a fake marriage bureau and employment agency through the United States mails. The couple are said to have operated marriage bureaus in Cleveland and St. Louis.

Berlin, Nov. 11.—The official decree for the expulsion from Germany of Joseph Herrings, an American war correspondent in the Spanish and Chinese wars, has been annulled. Mr. Herrings will remain in Berlin.

Masked Men Rob a Hotel.

Chicago, Nov. 11.—Two masked men entered a lodging house at 383 South Clark street at 8 o'clock last evening and with revolvers intimidated the hotel clerk and fifteen guests seated about the office. They got $10.

Two Steamfitters Killed.

Kansas City, Nov. 11.—Two steamfitters were killed and two others seriously injured by the blowing out of a valve in the water pumping apparatus at Schwarzchild & Sulsberger packing plant in Armourdale.

STATE ELECTIONS

OHIO GOES REPUBLICAN BY LARGELY INCREASED PLURALITIES.

FORAKER'S RE-ELECTION ASSURED

IOWA GIVES REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE NINETY THOUSAND PLURALITY.

RESULTS IN OTHER STATES

MASSACHUSETTS, NEBRASKA, NEW JERSEY AND VIRGINIA HOLD ELECTIONS.

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 8.—With almost complete returns in it is noted that the Republican plurality beats all records in what has become known as the quadrennial "off year," and with two exceptions the records of other years. In the "off years" or those following a presidential election, the Democrats have carried Ohio, the exceptions being in 1881 after the death of Garfield, and in 1885 and 1893, after the Cleveland elections. Wherever local issues were paramount this year the Republicans sustained losses, notably at Columbus, on account of local option, and at Cleveland, on account of Mayor Johnson's agitation of "taxation inequalities." Where no such conditions existed the Republicans made gains and they carried some Democratic counties that never before were represented by the Republicans. Sixty-two counties have Republican pluralities aggregating 90,840. Twenty-six counties have Democratic pluralities aggregating 23,179, making the plurality of Nash over Kilbourne for governor, 67,661, and approximating 80,000 plurality for other candidates on the Republican state ticket.

CUMMINS' BIG VOTE.

Iowa's New Governor Will Have About 90,000 to the Good.

Des Moines, Iowa, Nov. 8.—Returns from the county auditors of Iowa indicates that the ultimate official vote will give A. B. Cummins, the Republican governor-elect, something like 90,000 plurality. Four-fifths of the counties have been heard from and a conservative estimate of the returns indicate this result as quite certain. Unofficial returns from every county in the state gives Cummins 234,492; Phillips, 145,064. Cummins' plurality, 89,428. The returns on the legislature are not complete, but the Republicans have probably increased their already large majority by eight or ten.

GORMAN IS SAFE.

Maryland Legislature Will Have a Democratic Majority.

Baltimore, Nov. 8.—Latest returns received, including every county in the state, partly official and partly estimated, give the Democrats 46 delegates and 7 newly elected senators, which, combined with the 10 who hold over in the senate assures the friends of Mr. Gorman a total of 63 on joint ballot. The Republicans, it appears, have elected 49 delegates and 6 senators, which, added to their 3 hold-over senators, gives them a total of 58 on joint ballot.

In Mississippi.

Jackson, Miss., Nov. 7.—With only the offices of state treasurer and secretary of state to be filled no active canvass has been made and no interest manifested. Private telegrams from larger towns indicate that the incumbents, who were appointees of Gov. Longino, have been elected.

New Jersey Is Republican.

Trenton, N. J., Nov. 7.—Late returns indicate that Franklin Murphy, Rep., has been elected governor by about 10,000 plurality. Both branches of the legislature will be Republican.

Vote in Connecticut.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 7.—Connecticut yesterday chose delegates to the first constitutional convention to be held in the state since 1818. Of the 168 towns in the state 165 have been heard from, showing that Republican delegates were elected in 105; Democrats in 44 and Citizen or non-partizan candidates in 16.

Pennsylvania.

Philadelphia, Nov. 8.—Practically complete returns from the state give Harris, Rep., for state treasurer, 52,360 plurality, and Potter, Rep., for supreme judge, 47,939 plurality. The official totals from the few counties in which the vote is incomplete will not materially alter the foregoing figures.

Big Democratic Majority.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 8.—Official returns increase the Democratic majority on the state ticket. It will probably run to 36,000. The Republicans gain two senators and eight members of the house, leaving both branches of the legislature overwhelmingly Democratic.

Nebraska.

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 8.—Nearly complete returns from more than a third of the counties in Nebraska serve to increase the pluralities for the Republican state ticket. If the ratio of gain is maintained, Sedgwick, Rep., for supreme judge, will have a plurality of 12,000.

Rhode Island.

Providence, R. I., Nov. 8.—Complete returns from the 139 precincts in the state give Gregory, Rep., for governor, a plurality of 6,383. The legislature is Republican.

A Bad Break in Society.

Jack Forchen-Hunt—"Yes, she rejected me, and all because of a bad break I made when I was proposing.

Dick Adams—"What was that?"

Jack Forchen-Hunt—"Oh, I told her she was 'one in a thousand.' She thinks she's one of the Four Hundred."—Catholic Standard.

Non-Committal.

Guest (facetiously)—I say, waiter, do people have to wait a week here to be served?

Waiter—I don't know, sir; I only came yesterday.—Cassell's Journal.

Northwest News

NOBODY VOTED.

Indifference Shown by Voters at Tuesday's Election in South Dakota.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Nov. 10.—There is a voting precinct in this county which is entitled to the premium, as it did not cast a vote in the recent judiciary election. Last fall Lyon township cast 57 votes, and this year the county commissioners selected the judges and sent the ballots and ballot boxes out. They were both brought back in the same shape as sent out. One of the judges of election failed to report for duty, and the other two with the clerks sat around all day and no one came to vote. The two judges present did not know whether they had the right to open the ballots with one judge absent, and they were brought back unopened.

MINE FOR UNCLE SAM.

Ledge of Gold Uncovered While Grading for Federal Building.

Helena, Mont., Nov. 10.—A ledge of free milling gold ore was struck yesterday while grading for the foundation for the United States federal building which is now under construction. The ledge is a very strong one of iron-stained quartz, containing free milling gold. The government, when letting the contract for the government building, explicitly stipulated that any finds of mineral made by the contractors should go to the government.

SET ASIDE A DEED.

Clough Gave It, 'Tis Said, to Escape His Debts.

Sioux City, Iowa, Nov. 10.—The Iowa State National bank has sued Julia E. Clough, administratrix of the estate of H. H. Clough, who died two years ago, to set aside a deed given by Clough to his son, Horace R. Clough, to a 280-acre farm worth $18,000. Claims aggregating $200,000 were filed against the estate after Clough's death, and the bank holds $35,000 of paper. It is alleged that Clough deeded away his farm to avoid payment of his debts.

MURDER DONE.

Joseph Middleworth Shot by an Old Enemy at Centerville, S. D.

Centerville, S. D., Nov. 10.—Joseph Middleworth was shot and killed in Frank Allen's saloon by William Waters. Three shots were fired. Waters also fired at Middleworth's father, but missed. Bad blood is said to have existed between the two men for some time. Waters escaped and officers are in pursuit.

GREENE PLEADS GUILTY.

Shot His Wife on the Street—Then Attempted Suicide.

Des Moines, Iowa, Nov. 10.—Otis Greene, indicted for murdering his wife on Sept. 9, pleaded guilty to murder in the second degree and was sentenced to the penitentiary for life. He shot his wife on the street and then shot himself through the temple. From the effect of the shot he became totally blind.

Wants That Relief Money.

New Richmond, Wis., Nov. 10.—Preliminary steps have been taken to begin suit at once to enforce the payment of the New Richmond cyclone bend relief appropriation made by the last legislature. Judge L. K. Luse of West Superior, former assistant attorney general of this state, will be associated with Attorney W. F. McNally of this city in prosecuting the claims in the courts.

Working on Right of Way.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Nov. 10.—Col. Chase, the representative of the syndicate which intends to construct an electric railroad between this city and Madison, is at work securing the remainder of the right of way. The land has been secured for about half the distance. When the remainder is ready the work of grading will be commenced without delay.

Look at the Labels!

Every package of cocoa or chocolate put up by Walter Baker & Co., bears the well known trade-mark of the chocolate girl, and the place of manufacture, "Dorchester, Mass." Housekeepers are invited to examine their purchases, and make sure that other goods have not been substituted. They received three gold medals from the Pan-American exposition.

More Hunters Than Deer.

Milwaukee, Nov. 10.—County Clerk Hare has already issued nearly 3,500 licenses to men who intend to go into the northern woods to hunt deer. Last season there was a license for every 100 acres of land in the state, and some one who claims to have kept a close score says there were as many hunters shot in Wisconsin as deer.

Meagher Sells His Ranch.

Bowdle, S. D., Nov. 10.—James Meagher, one of the most prominent stock men in this vicinity, has sold his ranch for $11,500 cash. He will travel through the West and South this winter in search of a location.

Wishes Will Be Complied With.

Beloit, Wis., Nov. 10.—Carrying out the wishes of the late Prof. Charles A. Bacon, his remains will be taken to Chicago to-day for cremation. His funeral was held at the college yesterday afternoon.

Landlord Hill Not Guilty.

Fargo, N. D., Nov. 10.—Landlord Hill of Leonard was declared not guilty by a jury on a charge of selling whisky and beer at his hotel. The evidence of the men making complaint was refuted by other witnesses.

Laborer Found Dead.

Marshfield, Wis., Nov. 10.—William Dankemeyer, a laborer, was found dead in a mill yard at Chili, near here. He was about forty years old and lived with his brother. The cause is ascribed to fits.

TOOTH COSTS HIM HIS LIFE.

Broken Jaw, Blood Poisoning and Death Follow Extraction.

Loyal, Wis., Nov. 11.—Kimball J. Berry of this village is dead as a result of a determination to rid himself of an aching tooth, a molar far back in his head, that for nights had well nigh distracted him with pain. He visited a dentist who pulled it. It was extracted with great difficulty, so firmly fastened was it to the jaw, and in the operation the jawbone was fractured. While the accident was discovered immediately after the operation and every possible medical aid given at once, the patient died after several days and in great agony. Blood poisoning resulted from the extraction, and so quickly was the system inoculated that Berry's recovery was beyond human agency.

COLLEGE ATHLETE IS KILLED.

Homer Holland Shot at Mount Ayr, Iowa, by a Gambler.

Des Moines, Iowa, Nov. 11.—Homer Holland, two years ago champion all-round athlete of Drake university, was shot and instantly killed by M. Hunter at Mount Ayr, Iowa.

Hunter is a gambler and Holland had associated with him for some months. They were walking home together and quarreled. Hunter drew his revolver and Holland fell dead at the first shot. Holland held the Iowa State Intercollegiate record for the running, hop, step and jump. In the state field meet in 1899 Holland won 23 of Drake's 49 points, winning the meet for Drake.

SMALL SUCCESS AND A FAILURE.

Two Iowa Banks Raided, One With Slight Returns.

Cedar Rapids, Iowa, Nov. 11.—Burglars made an attempt to rob the State Bank of Coggan, twenty-five miles from this city. The outer vault was blown out, but the men evidently were frightened away before the inner vault was forced.

-o-

Sioux City, Iowa, Nov. 11.—The bank at Turin, Iowa, thirty miles south, was raided. The robbers failed to reach the cash chest and only succeeded in securing $50. The building was wrecked.

CHEESE POISONS MANY PEOPLE.

Dozen Brassville Residents Prostrated by Ptomaine Poisoning.

Kenosha, Wis., Nov. 11.—The greatest excitement prevails in Brassville, a suburb of Kenosha. More than a dozen people have been seized with Ptomaine poison as a result of eating cheese which had been purchased from a small store in the neighborhood.

The first cases of the poisoning appeared several days ago, and the doctors of the city have been kept busy in the suburb since. As yet no deaths have been reported, but several of the victims are in a precarious condition.

DEPOT AND GOODS BURNED.

West Superior N. P. Freight Depot Totally Destroyed by Fire.

West Superior, Wis., Nov. 11.—The freight depot of the Northern Pacific railroad at this point was totally destroyed by fire yesterday morning. The loss on building and goods in transit will amount to about $12,000, all fully covered by insurance. How the fire originated is not known, but when it was discovered almost the entire side of the building was ablaze. Temporary quarters are now being arranged and the building will be rebuilt at once.

Billiardists Gathering.

Fargo, N. D., Nov. 11.—The Northwestern billiard tournament will be inaugurated here to-morrow night. Spear of Minneapolis, Clow of St. Paul and Hatley of Duluth arrived here this afternoon. They represent those cities in the league and will all play Peterson of Fargo. Thursday the fun will be transferred to Duluth, where Hatley will play all and then the game will go to the Twin Cities for the wind up. Peterson is being strongly backed here. He won the Florida and Wisconsin state championships, and is regarded as a crack. Hatley money is easy here and combination bets are made of Peterson and Hatley against the Twin City men.

Murder in the First Degree.

Wausau, Wis., Nov. 11.—The Schwantes murder case, which has been on trial for the past two weeks, came to a close Saturday night. At 11 o'clock yesterday morning the jury brought in a verdict of guilty in the first degree. The convicted man is a young farmer living near Spencer, who was charged with burning the home of an aged couple named Klokow last November while the old people were asleep. Argument for a new trial will be made.

Vaccinating Dakota Cattle.

Sturgis, S. D., Nov. 11.—Blackleg among cattle has appeared in a number of places on the Black Hills ranges and a number of deaths have occurred. It is supposed that the disease came from Nebraska. The disease has been here before, and it has been found that vaccination stamps it out. In Nebraska the animal is vaccinated at the root of the tail, while in the Hills the virus is inserted in one of the shoulders.

Soldiers for Philippines.
